Bridge-Ward without.

HAVING treated of Wards in LONDON, on the North ſide the Thames (in number five and twenty) I am now to croſs over the ſaid River, into the Borough of SOUTHWARK. Which is alſo a Ward of London without the Walls, on the South ſide thereof, as is Portſoken on the Eaſt, and Faringdon extra on the Weſt.

The City anciently endeavours to get Southwark ſubject to it. J. S.

It was anciently called the Village or Town of Southwark. And the City of London, from ancient Times, endeavoured to get this Place under its own Juriſdiction; finding a great Inconvenience by the Neighbourhood of it; Malefactors in London eſcaping thither out of the Reach of the Cognizance and Puniſhment of the City Magiſtrates. But how Matters ſtood in former Times between the City and Southwark, may in ſome meaſure be ſeen by theſe Paſſages, ſome three or four hundred Years ago.

Anno 1327.

The City of London came to have a Propriety in this Borough for many long Years paſt, by Petitioning the Parliament in the firſt Year of Edward III. Shewing the great Inconvenience and Miſchief accruing to the Citizens of London by Malefactors, who did many lewd Deeds there, and then fled to Southwark, out of the Reach of the City's Officers, and ſo were ſecure. On this Reaſon the King granted the City a Charter for this Place; which was to this Tenor:

Carta de Southwerk. E Libr. Cuſtumar. Lond. int. Record. Camer. The Grant of Southwark to the City. Edw. 3.

Edwardus Dei gratia, &c. i. e. “Edward by the Grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland, and Duke of Aquitain, To all to whom the preſent Letters ſhall come, Greeting. Know ye, That whereas our beloved, the Citizens of the City of London, by their Petition before Us, and our Council, in our preſent Parliament, called together at Weſtminſter, exhibited; have given Us to underſtand, that Felons, Robbers, and divers other Malefactors, and Diſturbers of the Peace, who in the ſaid City and elſewhere, have committed Murthers, Robberies, and divers other Felonies, departing ſecretly from the ſame City, after ſuch Felonies committed, flee to the Village of Southwrek, and cannot there be attacked by the Miniſters of the ſaid City: And are there publickly received. So that they are made bolder by the defect of due Puniſhment, to commit ſuch Felonies. And therefore have beſought of Us, for the Preſervation of our “ Peace in the ſaid City, and to reſtrain the “ Wickedneſs of thoſe Evildoers, that We would “ grant to them to have the ſaid Village, to them

“ their Heirs and Succeſſors for ever; for the Term
“ thence due to Us at our Exchequer, to be yearly “ paid, We, in conſideration of the Premiſes,
“ and by the Aſſent of the Prelates, Earls, “ Barons, and Commonalty of our Kingdom in “ Parliament aforeſaid aſſembled, have granted for “ Us and our Heirs, to the ſaid Citizens, the ſaid “ Village of Southwark, with the Appurtenances: “ To have and to hold, to them, their Heirs and “ Succeſſors, Citizens of the ſaid City, from Us
“ and our Heirs for ever: Paying to Us and our “ Heirs, per Ann. at our Exchequer, at the accuſtomed
“ Terms, the Farm thence due and accuſtomed.
“ In witneſs whereof we have cauſed theſe
“ our Letters to be made Patents. Witneſs Our “ Self at Weſtminſter, the 6th Day of March, in “ firſt Year of Our Reign.

This is recorded in the Memoranda of the Exchequer, de Anno Edw 3. poſt Conqueſtum primo finiente, incipiente ſecundo, int. Recorda de Termino Sti. Michaelis.

So that Edward III. in the ſecond of his Reign, granted to the Maior and Commonalty of London, Ballivam de Suthwerk, i. e. the Bailiwick of Southwark; which they held of the King at Fee-farm, paying 10*l.* a Year. And their Baily was Thomas Clopham, who ſeems to be put in by the Maior and Commonalty of London.

There was another Patent of the ſaid King's, in the 13th of his Reign, to pay no more than 10*l.* for the ſaid Feeferme.

Collection of Records of the Tower by Sir R. Cotton, with Prin's Amendments, 1657.

In the 51ſt of the ſaid King Edward III. the Citizens pray that King to confirm to them their Liberties for puniſhing all Miſdemeanors in Southwark: And that Commandment be given, that the Marſhal do not intermeddle within the Parts of Southwark, that be guildable. This was not granted; the King anſwering, that he could not do it without doing Wrong to others.

Rich. 2.

Again, The Maior, Aldermen, and Commons of London, pray King Richard II. in the firſt Year of his Reign, that they may have the like Puniſhment of Evildoers in Southwark as in London, ſaved to all Lords their Rights. But that King alſo denied; anſwering, that it was prejudicial to the King, and alſo to the Biſhops of Canterbury and Winchester.

Henry 4.

But King Henry IV. in the 7th of his Reign, granted a Patent to the City, for Power to arreſt Robbers and other Malefactors in the Town of Southwark; and to bring them thence into the Priſon of Newgate, and to exerciſe almoſt every other kind of Juriſdiction there: and granting the Citizens all Goods and Cattals, called Waifs and Strays; and the Aſſize of Bread, Wine, Beer, and of all other Victuals: And to have Return of all the King's Briefs, Extracts, Precepts and Commandments. Teſte the 23d Day of July in the ſaid ſeventh Year of his Reign.

Yet the next Year, viz. 8 Henry IV. the Town of Southwark preferred a Petition to the ſaid King: That being Parcel of the County of Surry, and paying 10*l.* Feefarm to him, they may be exempted from the Juriſdiction of London, notwithſtanding any Letters Patents obtained by the ſaid City. The Anſwer was, The Parties ſhould come before the King and his Council, and ſhould be heard according to their Evidence.

Edw. 4.

And Edward IV. in the ſeventh of his Reign, granted a Brief to the Sheriff of Surrey, for allowance of Liberties and Juriſdictions within the Town of Southwerk.]

But before I come to the particular Deſcription of this Ward, it will not be impertinent to declare, when, and by what means the Borough of Southwark now called Bridge Ward without, was made one of the Six and twenty Wards, belonging to the City of London; which was in this manner:

Ex Humfr. Dyſon.

How the Borough of Southwark became at the firſt to be one of the 26 Wards of London.

Henry 8.

After the diſſolution of the Monaſteries, Abbeys, Priories, and other Religious Houſes, in this Realm of England: The Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of this City of London, taking into their Conſiderations, how commodious and convenient it would be unto the City, to have the Borough of Southwark annexed thereunto, and that the ſame Borough was in the King's hands wholly; they became humble Suitors unto King Henry the Eighth, and to the Lords of His Highneſs's Privy Council, for the obtaining of the ſame. Which Suit not being granted unto them; after the deceaſe of King Henry the Eighth, they renewed their Suit unto his Son and next Succeſſor, King Edward the Sixth, and to the Lords of his Privy Council, for the obtaining of the ſame Borough.

King Edward's Grant to the City;

At the length, after long Suit, and much Labour, it pleaſed King Edward the Sixth, by his Letters Patents, ſealed with the Great Seal of England, bearing date at Weſtminſter, the three and twentieth Day of April, in the fourth Year of his Reign, as well in conſideration of the Sum of Six hundred forty ſeven Pounds, two Shillings and a Peny, of lawful Money of England, paid to His Highneſs's uſe, by the Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of London, as for divers other Conſiderations him thereunto moving; To give and grant unto the ſaid Maior and Commonalty, and to the Citizens of London, divers Meſſuages, Lands, and Tenements, lying in or near the ſaid Borough of Southwark, in the ſaid Letters Patents particularly expreſſed, which were ſometimes the Lands of Charles, then late Duke of Suffolk, and of whom King Henry the Eighth did buy and purchaſe the ſame.

And that the ſaid Alderman ſo eſpecially elect and choſen, and from time to time, as the Cauſe ſhould require thenceforth, to be elect and choſen for the Survey and Government of the ſaid Borough, and the Inhabitants and other remaining in and to the ſame, ſhould always be named and called the Alderman of Bridge Ward without, and by none other Name, for or concerning that Office, or Room, and ſhould have the Cure and Charge of the good Ordering and Government of the ſaid Borough and Town of Southwark, and of the Inhabitants and People of and in the ſame, and of no other Place within the ſaid City, by reaſon or colour of the ſaid Room, as long as he ſhould remain and ſtand Alderman of the ſaid Ward, but as the reſidue of the ſaid Aldermen of the ſaid City be commonly charged: And therein to do and uſe himſelf, as other Aldermen within the Liberties of the ſaid City were accuſtomed and uſed to do, in as much as the Laws and Statutes of this Realm would permit and ſuffer.

The Alderman to change from that Ward, as occaſion ſerved.

Yet nevertheleſs it was provided, and by the ſaid Common-Council further ordained and enacted, That the ſaid Sir John Ayliffe, Knight, ſhould then be Aldermen of the ſaid Ward: And that as well the ſame Sir John Ayliffe, as alſo all and every Perſon or Perſons, that thenceforth ſhould fortune to be Alderman of the ſame Ward, ſhould have and enjoy like Prerogative, Liberty, and Benefit, to change and remove from the ſame Ward, and to accept and take at his and their free will and pleaſure any ſuch other Ward or Wards within the ſaid City, as it ſhould fortune him, or them, or any of them, to be thenceforth duly elect and choſen unto by the Inhabitants of the ſame other Ward, or Wards, or any of them in like manner and form, as the other Aldermen of the ſaid City lawfully might, and commonly uſe to do: Any thing in the ſaid recited Act to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

The Alderman of Bridge Ward without to continue ſo for the ſpace of 3 Years, without removing.

Nevertheleſs, at a Court of Aldermen holden on Tueſday the ſecond of September, in the ſaid fourth Year of the Reign of King Edward the Sixth, and in the time of the Maioralty of the ſaid Sir Rowland Hill, it was ordered, That the Aldermen of Bridge Ward without, for the time being, ſhould ſtand and remain Alderman of the ſame Ward three whole Years next after his Election, before he ſhould be permitted to be removed to the Governance of any other Ward: Notwithſtanding any former Law, Uſage or Cuſtom.

4. Another Order for electing the Alderman of Bridge Ward without, in the time of K. Ph. and Q. Mary.

But afterwards it ſeemeth, upon better Advice, that another Order ſhould be taken in the election of the Alderman of the ſame Ward: For at a Common-Council holden in the Guild Hall in London, on the ſixteenth Day of June, in the fourth and fifth Years of King Philip and Queen Mary, and in the time of the Maioralty of Sir Thomas Curtis, Knight, the ſaid former Act made on the laſt Day of July, in the fourth Year of King Edward the Sixth, for ſo much thereof as did concern the Form and Order of the Election of the Alderman of the ſaid Ward of Bridge Ward without, was utterly repealed. And then it was enacted, That from thenceforth the Alderman of the ſame Ward ſhould always, at the time of vacation, or lack of an Alderman thereof, be elected and choſen by the Lord Maior and Aldermen of London, for the time being, at a full Court of Aldermen, by them to be holden in the Inner Chamber of the Guild Hall of the ſame City, in this manner, viz. That the Lord Maior and Aldermen ſhould at their ſaid full Court, amongſt themſelves, nominate four diſcreet and meet Citizens, being Freemen of London, either reſident within the ſaid Borough, or in London, or the Liberties thereof, to be put in election of Alderman of that Ward. And of the ſaid four Perſons ſo nominated, the ſaid Lord Maior and Aldermen ſhould by Scrutiny, according to their accuſtomed manner, elect one to be Alderman of the ſame Ward: which Alderman, ſo by them elected and ſworn, ſhould uſe and behave himſelf in all things, as by the reſidue of the former Act of Common Council, made the laſt Day of July, in the fourth Year of King Edward the Sixth was ordained and appointed.

Thus having declared, by what means, and at what time the ſaid Borough of Southwark was made and named one of the ſix and twenty Wards, now belonging to the City of London, I intend to proceed to the deſcription of the ſeveral particular Places of the ſame Ward, and likewiſe of ſuch Monuments of Antiquity as are to be found therein. [Hitherto Humphrey Dyſon.]

Weſt Part of this Ward.

This Borough being in the County of Surrey, conſiſteth of divers Streets, Ways, and winding Lanes, all full of Buildings Inhabited. And firſt, to begin at the Weſt part thereof, over againſt the Weſt Suburb of the City.

On the Bank of the River Thames, there is now a continual building of Tenements, about half a Mile in length to the Bridge.

Long Southwark.

Then from the Bridge, ſtrait toward the South, a continual Street called Long Southwark, builded on both ſides, with divers Lanes and Allies up to St. George's Church; and beyond it thorow Blackman ſtreet, towards Newtown (or Newington.) The Liberties of which Borough extend almoſt to the Pariſh Church of Newtown aforeſaid, diſtant one Mile from London Bridge; and alſo South Weſt [a continual Building] almoſt to Lambeth, more than one Mile from the ſaid Bridge.

The Eaſt Part. St. Olaves-ſtreet.

Then from the Bridge along by the Thames Eaſtward, is St. Olaves ſtreet, having continual Building on both the Sides, with Lanes and Alleys up to Battel Bridge, to Horſedowne, and towards Rotherhithe: alſo ſome good half Mile in length from London Bridge.

So that I account the whole continual Buildings on the Bank of the ſaid River, from the Weſt towards the Eaſt, to be more than a large Mile in length.

Bermondſey-ſtreet.

Then have ye from the entring towards the ſaid Horſedown, one other continual Street, called Bermondſeyſtreet. Which ſtretcheth South, likewiſe furniſhed with Buildings on both ſides, almoſt half a Mile in length, up to the late diſſolved Monaſtery of St. Saviour, called Bermondſey.

Long Lane.

And from thence is one long Lane, (ſo called of its length) turning Weſt to St. George's Church aforenamed. Out of the which Lane, namely, Long-Lane, breaketh one other Street towards the South and by Eaſt, and this is called Kentiſh ſtreet, for that it is the way leading into that Country: And ſo have you the Bounds of this Borough.

Kentiſh ſtreet.

The Antiquities. Religious Houſes.

The Antiquities moſt notable in this Borough are theſe. Firſt, for Eccleſiaſtical, there was Bermondſey, an Abbey of black Monks; St. Mary Overies, a Priory of Canons Regular; St. Thomas, a College or Hoſpital for the Poor; and the Loke, a Lazarhouſe in Kentſtreet. Pariſh Churches there have been ſix, whereof five do remain, viz. St. Mary Magdalen, in the Priory of St. Mary Overy; now the ſame St. Mary Overy is the Pariſh-Church for the ſaid Mary Magdalen, and for St. Margaret on the Hill, and is called St. Saviour.

Pariſh Churches.

St. Margaret's.

S. MARGARET's on the Hill.

Monuments in this Church. J. S.

St. Margaret's on the Hill, which now long ſince is ceaſed from being a Church. But when it was, it had Monuments for John Hough, Eſq; Thomas Curſon, Eſq; Thomas Yard, Eſq; Robert Barbet, Eſq; William Sydney, Eſq; Peter Saverey, Thomas Hever, Gayer Moreton.

This Church being put down is now a Court for Juſtice and called the Town-Hall, fronting the Street; lately burnt down, and rebuilt. On which ſtandeth a fine Statue of King Charles II. with his Scepter in his Hand. Underneath thus inſcribed, Combuſtum, An. 1670. Reædificatum annis 1685 & 1686. JACOBO SMYTH, Mil. & ROBERTO GEFFERY, Mil. Prætoribus. Impenſis, S. P. Q. L.]

S. Thomas in the Hoſpital ſerveth for a Pariſh-Church, as afore. St. George a Pariſh Church, as before it did. So doth St. Olave, and St. Mary Magdalen, by the Abbey of Bermondſey.

There be alſo theſe five Priſons, or Goals.

The Clinke, on the Bank.
The Compter, in the late Pariſh Church of St. Margaret.
The Marſhalſea.
The King's Bench.
And the White Lyon. All in Long Southwark.

The Bear-Garden.

Now to return to the Weſt Bank: There were two Bear Gardens, the Old and New: Places wherein were kept Bears, Bulls, and other Beaſts, to be baited: As alſo Maſtives, in their ſeveral Kennels, are there nouriſhed to bait them. Theſe Bears, and other Beaſts, are there baited in Plots of Ground ſcaffolded round for the Beholders to ſtand ſafe.

Certain Rhimes againſt theſe Sports. Crowly the Printer his Epigram. J. S.

For the foulneſs of theſe rude Sights, and for that theſe beaſtly Combats were uſually performed on Sundays, and that ſo much Money was idly thrown away, that might have been better given to the Poor, a Poet in the latter Time of Hen. VIII. made and printed theſe homely Verſes, more commendable for his Zeal than his Poetry.

What Folly is this to keep with danger
A great Maſtive Dog, and a fowle ougly Bear?
And to this one End, to ſee them two fight
With terrible tearings; a ful ougly ſight.
And yet methinks thoſe Men be moſt Fools of al,
Whoſe ſtore of Money is but very ſmal:
And yet every Sunday they wil ſurely ſpend
One Peny or two, the Bearward's Living to mend.
At Paris Garden each Sunday a Man ſhall not fail
To find two or three hundred for the Bearward's Vale.
One halfpeny a piece they uſe for to give,
When ſome have not more in their Purſes, I believe.
Wel, at the laſt Day their Conſcience will declare,
That the Poor ought to have all that they may ſpare.
If you therefore it give, to ſee a Bear fight,
Be ſure God his Curſe upon you will light.

An Act for Paris-Garden to be made a Pariſh. Chriſts Church.

Paris Garden is now become a Pariſh, and a Church is built there, called Chriſt's-Church. For the doing of which there was an Act of Parliament made under King Charles II. intitled, An Act for making the Mannor of Paris-Garden a Pariſh, and calling it Chriſt-Church. Wherein may be ſeen ſome account of the building of the Church, and the occaſion of making it a Pariſh. It ſets forth, How John Marſhal, of the Borough of Southwark, Gent. by his laſt Will dated the 21. of Auguſt, 1627. and proved in the Prerogative-Court of Canterbury, the 15. April 1631. did declare his Will and Meaning to be, That his Feoffees, or Truſtees, (of whom Sir Samuel Brown, late one of His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Court of Common Pleas, Weſtminſter, was one, and the Survivor of all the reſt of them) their Heirs and Aſſigns, ſhould raiſe out of the Revenues of his Lands, mentioned in the ſame Will, the Sum of 700 l, and with it erect a new Church and Church yard, in ſuch Place as they ſhould think fit. And that the ſaid Sir Samuel, in purſuance of a Decree in Chancery, made 1663. in a Cauſe wherein the ſaid Sit Samuel was Defendant, upon the Statute made in the 44th Year of Queen Elizabeth, touching Gifts to Pious and Charitable Uſes, did convey all the Lands mentioned to be deviſed to the ſaid Sir Samuel and other his Co-truſtees, by the 'foreſaid Will of the ſaid John Marſhal, unto Sir Edward Bromfield, Bar. Peter Scot, LL.D. Edward Woodward, James Reading, Richard How, Edward Cook, Edward Ball, Eſquires, John Butler, William Sherlock, Samuel Hyland, Michael Hart, and William Apps, Gentlemen, in the ſaid Decree nominated and appointed Truſtees, or Feoffees, in that behalf, and their Heirs and Aſſigns for ever; To the intent to perform the ſeveral Truſts mentioned in the ſaid Will of John Marſhal. And that the ſaid new Truſtees raiſed the ſaid 700 l. out of the ſaid Rents: And that Will. Angel, Eſq; Owner of the ſaid Lordſhip, Mannor, or Liberty of Paris Garden, by his Indenture dated April 1. 1670. did for Conſiderations therein mentioned, infeoffe, and by Fine aſſure unto the ſaid Sir Edward Bromfield, and the other Truſtees, their Heirs and Aſſigns for ever, a convenient Parcel of Land for the building of a Church, and for a Churchyard: And that the laſt mentioned Truſtees had laid out the ſaid Summ of 700 l. and other Monies, upon the building of a Church on the Ground aforeſaid, according to the Will of the ſaid Marſhal: And by the ſame Will the ſaid Truſtees were to allow to a Miniſter of the ſaid new Church, out of the Rents of the Lands of the ſaid Marſhal, expreſt in his Will 40 l. per An. till out of the Reſidue of the Rents and Profits of his Lands, they can raiſe ſufficient to purchaſe Lands and Tenements to the value of 60 l. per Annum, over and above all Reprizes. And ſuch Lands and Tenements to purchaſe, and to endow the ſaid Chuch with the ſame.

Dr. Barton.

And that after the building of a Church, and a Miniſter ſettled therein, the ſaid Truſtees were to diſpoſe of, and pay the Rents, Iſſues and Profits of a certain Meſſuage or Tenement in Ax-yard in St. Saviour's Pariſh, of the yearly value of 20 Marks, unto the ſaid Miniſter and his Succeſſors for ever.

And that the choice of the ſaid Miniſter is by the ſaid Will, to be for ever in the ſaid Truſtees, and their Succeſſors for the Time being.

And laſtly, That the Inhabitants of the ſaid Paris Garden had petitioned the Parliament to be made a diſtinct Pariſh, to the intent that theſe Things might be accompliſhed.

Upon all theſe Premiſſes it was enacted, I. That Paris Garden be a diſtinct Pariſh accordingly, ſubject to the ſame Orders as other Pariſhes, and called Chriſt's Church, according to Marſhal's Will. And, II. That the ſaid Truſtees, viz. Sir Edward Brom-

Bromfield, &c. and the major Part of them, be the Patrons of the Church, they, their Heirs and Aſſigns for ever. III. That the Rector be empowered (without any Licenſe to purchaſe in Mortmain) to have, receive, purchaſe, and take to him all that is left by the Will of the ſaid Marſhal. IV. The Inhabitants ſhall be liable to all ſuch Duties, Offices, Rates and Aſſignments, as if it had been an ancient Pariſh. V. The Ground and Soil whereon the Church ſtandeth, and the Churchyard, to remain in the ſaid Truſtees, and their Heirs, &c. for ever, to the Uſes aforeſaid, and ſuch Articles, Clauſes and Agreements as are expreſſed in the Indentures made by the ſaid William Angel, unto the ſaid Truſtees. VI. The Profits ariſing by Burials in the Church and Churchyard (except the Vaults made by William Angel) to go towards the Repairs of the Church, Chancel, and Walls about. VII. That there ſhall be yearly choſen by the Inhabitants of the ſaid Pariſh, two or more Churchwardens, two or more Overſeers, and two Surveyors of the Highways, and to have the ſame Powers as in other Pariſhes. VIII. The Truſtees are authorized to pay the Rector, till the ſaid Church be endowed, the 40 l. per Ann. mentioned in the Will. IX. The Rector to receive all ſuch Tythes, Compoſitions for Tythes, Oblations and Dues whatſoever, which are payable, or ought to be paid by the Inhabitants of Paris Garden. X. The Truſtees allowed to raiſe farther out of the Eſtate of the ſaid John Marſhal, over and above the 700 l. already raiſed, a Sum not exceeding 400 l. as they, or the major Part of them ſhall judge neceſſary for the compleating of the ſaid new Church, and for paying the Churchwardens or Impropriators of St. Saviours 100 l. for, and in reſpect of ſuch voluntary Contributions and Tythes as have formerly come unto the ſaid Churchwardens from the Inhabitants of the ſaid Lordſhip, Manour, or Liberty, for repairing the Church. And they are required to pay the ſaid Sum accordingly.

Provided always, That nothing in this Act ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to extend, to make any part of the Manour of Southwark, or the Clink Liberty, belonging to the See of Wincheſter, to be within the Pariſh of Chriſt's Church aforeſaid, or to alter, diminiſh, or abridge any of the Paſſages, Bounds, Limits, Ways, or Bridges, of right belonging to the Manour of Southwark, or Clink Liberty aforeſaid.

The Inhabitants hereabouts, on this Weſt Part of Southwark bordering on the Thames, were multiplied conſiderably, conſiſting of Woodmongers, Timbermerchants, Shipwrights, Bargemen, Watermen, and ſuch whoſe Livings depended upon the River. And being a good diſtance from St. Mary Overy's Church, it was a ſeaſonable and pious Act to provide a nearer Place for this People to meet together for Divine Worſhip.]

Liber Manuſcr. The Stews on the Bankſide.

Next, on this Bank, was ſometime the Bordello, or Stews, a Place ſo called of certain Stew-houſes privileged there, for the repair of Incontinent Men to the like Women; of the which Privilege I have read thus:

In a Parliament holden at Weſtminſter, the eighth of Henry the Second, it was ordained by the Commons, and confirmed by the King and Lords, That divers Conſtitutions for ever ſhould be kept within that Lordſhip, or Franchiſe, according to the old Cuſtoms that had been there uſed time out of mind: Amongſt the which, theſe following were ſome, viz.

That no Stewholder, or his Wife, ſhould let or ſtay any ſingle Woman to go and come freely at all times, when they liſted.

No Stewholder to keep any Woman to Board, but ſhe to Board abroad at her pleaſure.

To take no more for the Woman's Chamber in the Week, than fourteen Pence.

Not to keep open his Doors upon the Holy days.

Not to keep any ſingle Woman in his Houſe on the Holy days, but the Bayliff to ſee them voided out of the Lordſhip.

No ſingle Woman to be kept againſt her will, that would leave her ſin.

No Stewholder to receive any Woman of Religion, or any Man's Wife.

No ſingle Woman to take Money to lie with any Man, but ſhe may lie with him all Night, till the Morrow.

No Man to be drawn or enticed into any Stewhouſe.

The Conſtables, Bayliff, and others, every Week to ſearch every Stewhouſe.

No Stewholder to keep any Woman that hath the perilous Infirmity of Burning; nor to ſell Bread, Ale, Fleſh, Fiſh, Wood, Coal, or any Victuals, &c.

Theſe, and many more Orders were to be obſerved, upon great Pain and Puniſhment.

Froes of Flanders were Women for that purpoſe.

 Teighler. firſt Ed.

I have alſo ſeen divers Patents of Confirmation, namely, one dated 1345. the nineteenth Edward the Third. Alſo I find, that in the fourth of Richard the Second, theſe Stewhouſes belonging to William Walworth, then Maior of London, were farmed by Froes of Flanders, and were ſpoiled by Walter Tylar * and other Rebels of Kent. Notwithſtanding, I find that Ordinances for the ſame Place, and Houſes, were again confirmed in the Reign of Henry the Sixth, to be continued as before. Alſo

Robert Fabian.

Sewhouſes put down by Henry VII. for a time.

Robert Fabian writeth, that in the Year 1506. the one and twentieth of Henry the Seventh, the ſaid Stewhouſes in Southwark were (for a ſeaſon) inhibited, and the Doors cloſed up. But it was not long (ſaith he) e're the Houſes there were ſet open again, ſo many as were permitted, for (as it was ſaid) whereas before were eighteen Houſes, from thenceforth were appointed to be uſed but twelve only. Theſe allowed Stewhouſes had Signs on their Fronts, towards the Thames, not hanged out, but painted on the Walls, as a Boar's-Head, the Croſs Keys, the Gun, the Caſtle, the Crane, the Cardinal's Hat, the Bell, the Swan, &c. I have heard ancient Men of good Credit report, that theſe ſingle Women were forbidden the Rights of the Church, ſo long as they continued that ſinful Life, and were excluded from Chriſtian Burial, if they were not reconciled before their Death. And therefore there was a Plot of Ground, called the Singlewoman's Church yard, appointed for them, far from the Pariſh Church.

Stewhouſes put down.

In the Year of Chriſt, One thouſand five hundred forty ſix, the ſeven and thirtieth of Henry the Eighth, this Row of Stews in Southwark was put down by the King's Commandment, which was proclaimed by ſound of Trumpet, no more to be privileged and uſed as a common Brothel†, but the Inhabitants of the ſame to keep good and honeſt Rule as in other Places of this Realm, &c.

Whoredom ſtill prevails. Latimer's Complaint.

J. S.

But tho' the Sin was no longer allowed in this Place, yet the ſame Sin ſtill remained. For this Complaint was made before King Edward the Sixth, by a Reverend Father, Latimer, in his blunt, but honeſt way of preaching: "One thing here I muſt deſire you to reform, my Lords, you have put down the Stue's; but I pray you what is the Matter amended? What availeth that? ye have but changed the Place, and not taken the Whoredom away, &c. I hear ſay, there is ſuch Whoredom in England as never was ſeen the like..... I hear ſay, there is now more Whoredom in England than ever there was on that Bank. Theſe be the News I have to tell you: I fear

“ they be true. There is more open Whoredom, “ more Stued Whoredom than ever was before. “ For God’s ſake let it be lookt upon. It is your “ Office to ſee unto it.]

The Clinke.

Then next is the Clinke, a Goal or Priſon for the Treſpaſſers in thoſe Parts, namely, in old time for ſuch as ſhould Brabble, Fray, or break the Peace on the ſaid Bank, or in the Brothel Houſes, they were by the Inhabitants thereabout apprehended and committed to this Goal, where they were ſtraitly Impriſoned.

Wincheſter-Houſe.

Next is the Biſhop of Wincheſter’s Houſe, or Lodging, when he cometh to this City. Which Houſe was firſt builded by William Gifford, Biſhop of Wincheſter, about the Year One thouſand one hundred and ſeven, the ſeventh of Henry the Firſt, upon a Plot of Ground pertaining to the Prior of Bermondſey, as appeareth by a Writ directed unto the Barons of the Exchequer, in the Year 1366. the one and fortieth of Edward the Third (the Biſhop’s See being void) for eight Pounds due to the Monks of Bermondſey, for the Biſhop of Wincheſter’s Lodging in Southwark. This is a very fair Houſe well repaired, and hath a large Wharf and a Landing Place, called the Biſhop of Wincheſter’s Stairs.

Lordſhip of Southwark belonged to the Biſhops of Winton.
J. S.

This Biſhop alſo had the Lordſhip and Manour of Southwark; which came to King Edward VI. upon Biſhop Gardiner’s Deprivation. And Anno 1552, there was an Exchange made between the Lord Marquis of Northampton and the King, whereby that Lord had the Lordſhip and Manour of Southwark, and the King had the Chief or Capital Meſe of Lambeth, ſometime belonging to the Duke of Norfolk, attainted of Treaſon. The ſaid Marquis builded the Gallery at Wincheſter Houſe. In Queen Mary’s Time it was reſtored to the See, and ſo it continueth.]

Rocheſter-Houſe.

Adjoining to this, on the South ſide thereof, is the Biſhop of Rocheſter’s Inn, or Lodging. By whom firſt erected I do not now remember me to have read, but well I wot, the ſame of long time hath not been frequented by any Biſhop, and lieth ruinous for lack of Reparations.

Reliq. Spelm.
J. S.

This Place of the Biſhop of Rocheſter’s were certain Houſes near by Wincheſter Place, that had been given him for a Palace: And ſometimes (as it is reported) Parcel of the Poſſeſſions of the Priory of St. Swithins in Wincheſter. This Place became divided afterward into ſeveral little Dwellings.]

The Abbot of Naverly had a Houſe there.

The Priory Church of St. MARY OVERIE,

St. Mary Overies a Priory.

Eaſt from the Biſhop of Wincheſter’s Houſe, directly over againſt it, ſtandeth a fair Church called St. Mary over the Rie, or Overy, that is, Over the Water. This Church, or ſome other in place thereof, was (of old time long before the Conqueſt) an Houſe of Siſters, founded by a Maiden, named Mary. Unto the which Houſe and Siſters ſhe left (as was left to her by her Parents) the Overſight and Profits of a Croſs Ferry, or Traverſe Ferry over the Thames: there kept, before that any Bridge was builded. This Houſe of Siſters was after by Swithen, a Noble Lady, converted unto a College of Prieſts, who in place of the Ferry, builded a Bridge of Timber, and from time to time kept the ſame in good Reparations. But, laſtly, the ſame Bridge was builded of Stone, and then, in the Year 1106. was this Church again founded for Canons Regular, by William Pont de le Arche, and William Dauncy, Kts. Normans.

J. S.

To this Monaſtery, among other its Revenues, belonged the Rectory and Church of Banſtead, and the Manours of North Todworth and South Merfield, with the Appendances in the County of Surrey.]

Lib. Rufen.
Liber Bermondſey.

William Gifford, Biſhop of Wincheſter, was a good Benefactor alſo, for he (as ſome have noted) builded the Body of that Church, in the Year 1106, the ſeventh of Henry the Firſt.

The Canons firſt entred the ſaid Church then. Algodus was the firſt Prior.

King Henry the Firſt, by his Charter, gave them the Church of St. Margaret in Southwark.

King Stephen confirmed the Gift of King Henry, and alſo gave the Stone Houſe, which was William de Ponte le Arche, by Downgate.

St. Thomas’s Hoſpital.

This Priory was burned about the Year 1207. Wherefore the Canons did found an Hoſpital near unto their Priory; where they celebrated until the Priory was repaired. Which Hoſpital was after (by conſent of Peter de la Roche, Biſhop of Wincheſter) removed into the Land of Anicius, Archdeacon of Surrey, in the Year 1228. a Place where the Water was more plentiful, and the Aire more wholſome, and was dedicated to St. Thomas.

The Pariſh of St. MARY Magdalene.

St. Mary Magdalene.

This Peter de Rupibus, or de la Roch, founded a large Chappel of St. Mary Magdalene, in the ſaid Church of St. Mary Overy. Which Chappel was afterward appointed to be the Pariſh Church for the Inhabitants near adjoining.

This Church was again newly builded in the Reign of Richard the Second and King Henry the Fourth.

John Gower. No Knight, neither had he any Garland of Ivy and Roſes, but a Chaplet of four Roſes only.

John Gower, a Learned Gentleman and a famous Poet, (but no Knight, as ſome have miſtaken it) was then an eſpecial Benefactor to that Work, and was there buried on the North ſide of the ſaid Church, in the Chappel of St. John, where he founded a Chantry. He lieth under a Tomb of Stone, with his Image alſo of Stone being over him. The Hair of his Head aburne, long to his Shoulders, but curling up, and a ſmall forked Beard; and on his Head a Chaplet, like a Coronet of four Roſes, an Habit of Purple, damasked, down to his Feet, a Collar of Eſſes of Gold about his Neck. Under his Head the likeneſs of three Books, which he compiled. The firſt, named Speculum Meditantis, written in French; the ſecond, Vox Clamantis, penned in Latin; the third Confeſſio Amantis, ſet forth in Engliſh; and this laſt is printed: Vox Clamantis, with his Chronica Tripartita, and others both in Latin and French, never printed, I have and do poſſeſs; but Speculum Meditantis, I never ſaw, tho’ heard thereof to be in Kent: Beſide, on the Wall where he lieth, there was painted three Virgins crowned, one of the which was named Charity, holding this Device:

En toy qui es Fitz de Dieu le Pere,
Savue ſoit, qui giſt ſour ceſt Pierre. i. e.

In thee, who art the Son of God the Father,
Be he ſaved that lies under this Stone.

The ſecond writing, Mercy, with this Device:

O bone Ieſu fait ta mercy,
Al’ alme, dont le corps giſt icy. i. e.

O good Jeſu, ſhew thy Mercy
To the Soul whoſe Body lies here.

The third writing, Pity, with this Device:

Pour ta Pite Ieſu regarde,
Et met ceſt alme en ſavue garde. i. e.

For thy Pity, Jeſu, have regard,
And put this Soul in ſafeguard.

* Quær.

The Roof of the middle waſte Ile fell down in the Year 1469. This Priory was ſurrendred to Henry the Eighth, the one and thirtieth of his Reign, the ſeven and twentieth of October, the Year of Chriſt 1539. valued at Six hundred twenty four Pounds, Six Shillings, Six Pence, by the Year.

Priory of St. Mary Overy made a Pariſh Church for Pariſhioners of St. Mary Magdalen and St. Margaret's on the Hill.

About Chriſtmas next following, the Church of the ſaid Priory was purchaſed of the King by the Inhabitants of the Borough. Dr. Stephen Gardener, Biſhop of Wincheſter, putting to his helping hand, they made thereof a Pariſh-Church for the Pariſh-Church of St. Mary Magdalene, on the South ſide of the ſaid Quire, and of St. Margaret on the Hill ; which were made one Pariſh of St. Saviour.

St. Margaret's and St. Magdalen's Pariſhes united.
J. S.

There was an Act of Parliament, Anno 1540, 32 Henry VIII. for the uniting of theſe two Pariſhes, viz. St. Margaret's and St. Mary Magdalen's, whereby the Churchwardens elected by the Pariſh were a Body Corporate. After ſome Years, thirty of the Pariſh, inſtead of all the reſt of the Pariſhioners aſſuming to themſelves the Management of the Buſineſs and Revenues of the whole Pariſh, upon pretence of avoiding the Confuſion of the Multitude, became very uneaſy to the reſt of the Pariſh. Inſomuch that in the fifth Year of King James I. they appealed to the Parliament for a Regulation. The whole Cauſe at large is worth the recording, as I have it from an authentick Writing, which was as followeth :

32 Henry VIII. By Act of Parliament the two Pariſhes of St. Margaret's and St. Mary Magdalen, in Southwark were united and made one; and the Church of the Monaſtery of St. Mary Overy made the Pariſh Church, and called by the name of St. Saviour's : The Pariſhioners enabled, amongſt themſelves, yearly to nominate and elect four or ſix Churchwardens, the Churchwardens made a Body Corporate and capable in the Law. To them is graunted Lands and Tenements to the value of twenty Marks a Year, belonging to the diſſolved Fraternity of Brothers and Siſters in St. Margaret, and divers other Hereditaments belonging to the Churchwardens of the ſame St. Margaret's.

A Fraternity in St. Margaret's.

The Pariſh governed by Thirty.

The Pariſhioners did chooſe Churchwardens eighteen Years together, according to the ſaid Act, and did take the Churchwardens Accompts : They provided that the Revenues and Profits of the Church were carefully employed for the common Good : They prevented laviſh and unneceſſary Expences, and miniſtred unto every Man equal Right, until about 5 Mar. in Anno 1556. ſome of the Pariſhioners perceiving the Revenues and Profits of the Church to be encreaſed to 300*l.* a Year, or thereabout, and being deſirous of the Rule and Sway of the reſt, pretended, that the Aſſembly of the Multitude, at the choice of Churchwardens occaſioned much confuſion, ſuggeſting that the election of the Churchwardens, and the diſpenſation of the Revenues and Profits of the Church were transferred to a ſelected Number, the Confuſion would be avoided, and all other Buſineſs better ordered.

They abuſe their Truſt.

By which Intimation thirty Pariſhioners aſſumed unto themſelves the ſole Authority to manage the Revenues and Profits of the Church, to exclude the Miniſters and Pariſhioners for ever from the Election, the Accompts of the Churchwardens, and all other Buſineſs and Privileges belonging unto them ; they chooſe the Thirty themſelves, Six Churchwardens and Four Auditors to take their Accompts, out of the Thirty : They call themſelves Veſtrymen, Maſters and Governors of the Pariſh : They ſpend thirty Pounds a Year, or thereabouts, in Feaſting themſelves and their Wives, upon the Revenues of the Church : They allow the Churchwardens Four Pounds a Year Fees, and their Auditors Twenty Shillings. They benefit themſelves with Leaſes of the Church Lands, to the great hindrance of the Poor. They make By-Laws and Conſtitutions, againſt the Statutes. They yearly loſe great Sums of Money in the receipt of Tythes, Clerk-wages, and at the Communion Table. The Pariſh hath loſt fifty ſix Pounds by one of their Company that ran away being Churchwarden ; a hundred forty one Pounds two Communion-Cups and a Cover, that was ſuppoſed to be ſtoll'n out of the Veſtry by a Veſtryman. And is many hundred Pounds the worſe for their election and managing the Revenues and Profits of the Church, but no way advantaged by the ſame. Therefore the Pariſhioners deſire that the former Act may be confirmed with theſe Alterations :

A Regulation of the Pariſh endeavoured.

That the Miniſters and Subſidy Men of three, four, or five Pounds may have the election of the Churchwardens, and an overſight in all the Buſineſs belonging to the Church, and the Revenues thereof. That the Churchwardens may enter into Bonds to make true Account, and do no Act but with conſent of the Miniſters and Subſidy Men. That all the Lands belonging to the Pariſh, and all other Profits may be confirmed and eſtabliſhed. That the Churchwardens, with conſent, may purchaſe Lands, and take Legacies for the Relief of the Poor. That all the Actions of the precedent Churchwardens may be good and effectual. That the ſurplus of the Revenues may be converted to the uſe of the Poor. That five Pounds Fine may be impoſed (or under) upon them that refuſe to bear Offices, &c.

Reaſons for the ground thereof.

That the Statute which firſt gave life to the Corporation, and endowed it with Revenues and Profits, may no longer be ſubject to ſerve the private Affections and Paſſions of a few Ambitious Men, but be reverently obeyed. That the election of Churchwardens may be limited by Statute ; becauſe thoſe that are choſen by the Thirty are not capable of Lands and Poſſeſſions, nor to do any Act as a Corporation. That the Lands and Poſſeſſions of the Church and Pariſh, now ſubject to Suit by the undue election of the Churchwardens, and all the former Actions of the precedent Churchwardens (yet void in Law) may be confirmed and made good. That the Lands and Revenues of the Church conſecrated to charitable Uſes, may be preſerved from laviſh Expence and be employed to the common Good. That the Office of Churchwardens may hereafter be managed according to Law, Cuſtom, Equality, and Parity ; which for many Years hath been unequally diſtributed, to the diſcontent of many the better ſort of Pariſhioners, and the evil Example of many other Pariſhes. That the Churchwardens may make their Accounts before the Miniſters and Subſidymen : whereby all means of Corruption may be prevented.

The Manner of election of Churchwardens by thirty Veſtrymen, now ſought to be altered, hath theſe grounds to uphold and defend it ſelf.

Election of Churchwardens by 30 Veſtrymen.
1 Objection.

The election of Churchwardens, now uſed, was by conſent of the Pariſhioners transferred to Thirty.

Anſwer. The Pariſhioners cannot transfer the Election to ſome, which by the expreſs Law of a Statute is conferred to all; neither can the Authority be deputed to fewer, but all muſt be Actors, or the moſt part: And if the Pariſhioners might conſent to transfer the Election, yet the ſame muſt be yearly, and bindeth the ſucceeding Pariſhioners no longer than they ſhall ſee that duly executed which they conſented unto. And the Pariſhioners have as much Power now to diſſolve the Election, and to reduce the ſame to the primitive Order, as the former Pariſhioners had to transfer the ſame. The Pariſhioners in former Times might be induced, for their Eaſe, and upon hope of ſucceeding good, to transfer the ſame to Thirty. But it is now found by Experience unprofitable and inconvenient.

2 Objection. It was eſtabliſhed by Conſtitution of the Ordinary.

Anſwer. The Ordinary cannot alter the Election, becauſe the Churchwardens are Incorporate by Statute, and are made a Civil Body, and not Eccleſiaſtical; and they are no longer capable of Lands and Poſſeſſion, nor a Capacity in the Law to do any Act as a Corporation, if they continue not in ſuch a Body, and ſo choſen as by the Act it was expreſly intended and eſtabliſhed. And if the Election were Eccleſiaſtical, yet the choice by a ſelected Number is contrary to the Eccleſiaſtical Canons.

3 Objection. The Election hath continued Fifty Years peaceably, and no fault found therewith.

Anſwer. Things lawfully done cannot be made void to to all Intents. And this which was altogether void at the firſt, cannot be made good and ſtrengthened by continuance of Time. The Election continued peaceably, becauſe the Pariſhioners knew not by what Authority they exerciſed the ſame. There hath been fault found with it theſe forty Years, for ſo long, at the leaſt, hath the Veſtry been termed the Sharing Houſe by ſome, of their own Report.

4 Objection. The government by Thirty is ancient. And it is meeter to tolerate ſome Wants in Magiſtrates than by ſuppoſing to amend them to overthrow Government and Authority; for Alterations and Changes are dangerous.

Anſwer. The government which the Thirty aſſume is derived from the Churchwardens, whoſe Office is not to be Governors and Maſters of the Pariſh, but to be Guardians and Stewards of the Revenues of the Church. Their Authority extendeth not to any Government in the Pariſh; for that belongs to the Lord Maior and Juſtices. Therefore the Attributes of Maſters and Governours of the Pariſh, are ambitious Titles and Appellations, which they have arrogated, to diſtinguiſh themſelves from the equality of their Neighbours. The Antiquity they urge, doth conſiſt in the election of Churchwardens, which is not ſo ancient by eighteen Years, as the election by the Pariſhioners (from whom they uſurped it.) The Objection therefore proves them neither Magiſtrates nor Governours; if they were, yet Government and Laws may be abrogated (by thoſe that have Authority) for apparent Benefit. And it hath been uſual in all Commonwealths, to make new Laws and repeal the old, to amend the evil, and with diſpenſations to mitigate the ſevere. But if it be abſolutely evil to change old Laws and Cuſtoms, then the Thirty are Offenders, that durſt ſeize upon Authority, to violate and change a Statute Law, and fall from the firſt Integrity and Perfection thereof, to bring in Ordinances and Cuſtoms of their own Invention.

5 Objection. There would be great Confuſion, if the whole Pariſh ſhould be Electors, as at the time of the Act was intended.

Anſwer. In all Ages and Countries where Civil Offices are elective, the common People and Handicraftmen (tho' they were never admitted to exerciſe any Publick Offices) yet they were never denied Voices in Elections of Civil Officers. The Examples in our own Land are infinite; for the Maiors, Sheriffs. Bailiffs, and chief Officers throughout the whole Realm, are choſen by the Inhabitants and Commonalty aſſembled, except only in ſuch Places where there is Power given by their Charters to make Laws to the contrary. The Knights of the Shire, and Burgeſſes for Parliament are choſen by the Freeholders, which in moſt Places conſiſt of greater Multitudes.

6 Objection. The Election by 3 l. Subſidymen will be popular, and incite the ruder ſort to extream liberty, to chooſe ſuch Officers as are inſufficient, and not able to diſcharge the ſame.

Anſwer. The Subſidymen conſiſt not of above two hundred: It is not intended that all of them ſhall bear Offices, but have Voices in the election of Officers. And yet the meaneſt of them is as ſufficient, as ſome of the Thirty Veſtrymen: amongſt whom the greateſt part are never accountant and chief Churchwardens, as they are termed; for thoſe are elected out of Ten or Twelve, the reſt in ſubſtance are no other than Electors, and do ſerve only to furniſh their Aſſemblies at their Elections and Banquets. The Popularity oppoſed againſt the Subſidymen is frivolous, being conſider'd with that of the Two Houſes of Parliament, the Convocation, Common-Councils, Leets, and other Aſſemblies in Cities, Boroughs, and Pariſhes in England: Yet if the Number be too great, it is at the pleaſure of the Houſes to contract them to 5 l. And touching the Objection, That like will affect his Equal, and the worſer ſort will chooſe ſuch Officers as themſelves; The ſame may as well be obtruded againſt the Freeholders of England; the Subſidymen and Commonalty of every City, Town, and Pariſh; the one conſiſting of a great multitude of Countrymen, may chooſe the Inſufficienteſt and weakeſt Men to be Knights of the Shires and Burgeſſes; the other compoſed of Artificers, Handicrafts, Labourers, and Tradeſmen, may elect ſuch Maiors, Bailiffs Sheriffs, and other Officers, as ſort with their own Diſpoſition.]

St. SAVIOURS Church.

R. Repaired. Upon this ſpacious and ſpecious Church (for well it deſerves thoſe Epithets) we look backward twenty Years, or thereabouts. At which time it was in many Parts of it repaired, and within throughout richly and very worthily beautified.

St. Peter's Chapel. About two or three Years after, that Gallery that is over that part of the Church that is called St. Peter's Chapel, and that that is over againſt it; as alſo that Gallery that croſſes the middle Ile, over the entrance into the Chancel (much gracing the Church, and ſupplying a great neceſſity) were worthily contrived and erected.

In the Years of our Lord God 1621, and 1622, it was again in many Parts of it repaired; all the North ſide of it (at once) ſtrengthned and beautified, with a ſubſtantial and very artificial Rough-caſt. The other ſide Plaſtered and Whited.

Among many rich and beautiful Things that have been added to this Church, at divers times, and to ſeveral Parts and Places, ſome of a general Coſt, and ſome of particular Bounties (for ſome reſerved Cauſes omitted) we here only remember that extraordinary fair and curious Table of the Commandments, and the Screen at the Weſt Door, ſet up in the Year of our Lord God, 1618.

Our Ladies Chapel. But paſſing all theſe, ſomewhat now of that part of this Church above the Chancel, that in former Times was called, Our Lady's Chapel.

The New Chapel. It is now called, The New Chapel; and indeed, tho' very old, it now may be call'd a new one, becauſe cauſe newly redeemed from ſuch uſe and imployment, as in reſpect of that it was built to, Divine and Religious Duties, may very well be branded with the ſtile of wretched, baſe and unworthy. For that that before this abuſe, was (and is now) a fair and beautiful Chapel, by thoſe that were then the Corporation (which is a Body conſiſting of Thirty Veſtrymen, Six of thoſe Thirty Churchwardens) was leaſed and let out: and this Houſe of God made a Bakehouſe.

Made a Bakehouſe.

Two very fair Doors, that from the two ſide Iles of the Chancel of this Church, and two that through the head of the Chancel (as at this Day they do again) went into it, were lath'd, daub'd and dam'd up: the fair Pillars were ordinary Poſts, againſt which they piled Billets and Bavins. In this place they had their Ovens, in that a Bolting Place, in that their Kneading Trough, in another (I have heard) a Hogs Trough. For the Words that were given me were theſe, This place have I known a Hog Sty, in another a Storehouſe, to ſtore up their hoarded Meal: and in all of it, ſomething of this ſordid kind and condition.

It was firſt let by the Corporation aforenamed, to one Wyat, after him to one Peacock, after him to one Cleybrooke, and laſt to one Wilſon, all Bakers. And this Chapel ſtill employed in the way of their Trade, a Bakehouſe, tho' ſome part of this Bakehouſe was ſometime turned into a Starchhouſe.

The time of the continuance of it in this kind, from the firſt letting of it to Wyat, to the reſtoring of it again to the Church, was threeſcore and ſome odd Years, in the Year of our Lord God 1624. For in this Year the Ruines and blaſted Eſtate that the old Corporation ſold it to, were, by the Corporation of this time, repaired, renewed, well, and very worthily beautified: The Charge of it for that Year, with many Things done to it ſince, ariſing to Two hundred Pounds.

This, as the former Repairs, being at the ſole Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners.

One Ile in this Chapel was paved at the only Coſt of one Mr. John Hayman, Taylor, and Merchantaylor, in the Year 1625.]

Lately repaired and beautified moſt ſplendidly. J. S.

This is now a very magnificent Church, ſince the late Reparation. It hath an huge Organ, which was procured by voluntary Subſcription. The Repair (it is ſaid) coſt the Pariſh 2600 l. and that well laid out. The old Monuments are all refreſhed and new painted; a great deal of Wainſcotting. The Workmanſhip of the Arches and Columns (which are very big) beſpeak it a very ancient Structure.

There is a Table hanging on a Pillar againſt the Pulpit, to this Tenor:

“This Church was laid throughout with Stone,
“ new Paved and Galleried; the great Vault ſunk;
“ the Pulpit and Altar Piece erected; the Com“ munion Table railed, and ſet with black and “ white Marble; the Choir encloſed by Gates:
“ the South and Weſt Windows opened and enlar“ ged; the Whole new Glazed; the ſixth and ſe“ venth Bells caſt; the Chapel paved; and all
“ the Church cleanſed, white waſhed and beauti-
“ fied, at the charge of the Pariſh, Anno 1703.]

Auſtin's Monument. J. S.

At the upper end of the South Ile of this Church of St. Mary Overies is a fair and curious Monument of the Auſtins, repaired by the Relations, Anno 1706. and refreſhed with Painting and Gilding, that it might ſuit with the reſt of the Church. It is emblematical of Chriſt and of the Reſurrection, according to the pious Fancy of the devout Mr. Auſtin, who ſet it up at firſt. Firſt, There is the Repreſentation of a Rock, upon which is writ Petra erat XTS : i. e. The Rock was Chriſt. Down this Rock runs a Stream of Water ; and through the ſame Rock is creeping a Serpent ; whereby he ſtrips his old Skin, which hangs on that part of his Back that is not yet got through. At the foot of this Rock, and out of it, grows up ſtanding Corn ; on which is a Label with theſe words, Si non moriatur, non reviviſcit : i. e If it dieth not, it liveth not again. Underneath this Corn, upon the Baſis, is this ſignificant Motto,

Nos ſevit, fovit, lavit, coget, renovabit.

i. e. He hath ſown, cheriſhed, waſhed us, and he ſhall gather us together, and renew us.

Upon the Top of this Rock ſtandeth an Angel ; in his left hand a Sickle, his right hand pointing up towards the Sun ſhining in his Glory, with a Label upon the lower Rays of it, Sol Juſtitiæ : i. e. The Sun of Righteouſneſs.

On the right and left ſides of this Monument are Inſtruments of Husbandry hanging by a Riband out of a Death's Head, as Plows, Whips, Yokes, Rakes, Spades, Flayls, Harrows, Shepherds Crooks, Sythes, &c. Over this is writ, Vos eſtis Dei Agricultura : i. e. Ye are God's Husbandry.

On the outſide of theſe, on the right and left, are two Harveſtmen with Wings, the one with a Fork, the other with a Rake behind him. They are in light Garments ſitting, and leaning their Heads upon their Hands, their Elbows reſting upon their Knees, as weary and tired, and reſting after their Harveſt Work : and having Straw Hats on very comely ; underneath them theſe words, Meſſores congregabunt : i. e. The Reapers ſhall gather. Behind each of them, upon little Pedeſtals, is placed the Creſt of Auſtin, On a Wreath between two Wings ſable, a Paſſion Croſs, Or. The Word, Nemo ſine cruce beatus, i. e. Without the Croſs no Man bleſſed.

Under all this is a Winnowing Fan ; within which is the repreſentation of a Sheet of Parchment as it were ſtitch'd upon it. On which is writ the Inſcription, viz.

Maintenance of Chaplains, of a School, and Reparations of the Church of St. Saviours.
J. S.
Dr. Barton.

Concerning the State of this Pariſh of Saint Saviours, or St. Mary Overies, King James I. by Letters Patents bearing date the 12. of April in the ninth Year of his Reign, granted the Rectory and Parſonage Impropriate thereof to certain Perſons and their Heirs in Truſt for Wardens of the Pariſh Church, and their Succeſſors. Enjoyning them out of the Revenue thereof to find and maintain two preaching Chaplains, and a Schoolmaſter and Uſher for the Free Grammar School, and to repair the Pariſh Church: and to pay the Chaplains threeſcore Pounds per Annum, and the Schoolmaſter and Uſher 30 l. per Annum.

Eſtabliſhed by an Act of Parliament.

But of late, in the Reign of King Charles II. the ſaid Pariſh obtained an Act of Parliament for the better eſtabliſhing and conſtituting the Affairs of their Church and Pariſh. The Reaſon whereof the Preamble of the ſaid Act ſets forth, viz. That the ſaid Pariſh Church was very great and ſpatious, and ſo very chargeable to be maintained in due Reparations; and the Revenues of the Rectory not amounting to above 100 l. per ann. communibus annis, would not extend to repair the ſaid Church, and to allow any reaſonable Maintenance to the ſaid Chaplains. By this Act the Pariſhioners of St. Saviours Southwark, all the Inhabitants, and all the Meſſuages, Lands and Tenements therein, were for ever exonerated, acquitted, and diſcharged of and from all Tithes and Tenths belonging to the ſaid Rectory and Parſonage Impropriate, and the Meſſuage and Lands, &c. for ever holden and enjoyed Tithefree, and from all Sum and Sums of Money payable for and in lieu of Tithes. And in conſideration thereof, it ſhall and may be lawful for the Churchwardens for the time being, and Overſeers of the Poor, or the greater number of them, giving notice unto, or calling together ſix or more of ſuch Inhabitants as have within the ſpace of ſeven Years then laſt paſt born the like Office therein, to aſſemble themſelves yearly in the Veſtry Houſe, upon every Tueſday and Wedneſday in Eaſter Week; and they, or the greater number of them, ſhall yearly for ever then, or within fifteen Days after, make and ſettle a Tax, Rate, or Aſſeſſment, not exceeding (above the reaſonable Charges for collecting the ſame) the Sum of three hundred and fifty Pounds in any one Year, to be impoſed or ſet upon all the Pariſhioners, and upon all the Poſſeſſors and Occupiers of all Houſes, Lands and Tenements erected, or to be erected or built in the Pariſh. Which Tax, or Rate, to be made by an equal Pound Rate, according to the yearly Value of all ſuch Houſes, Lands, &c. and to be paid Quarterly, by equal Portions, upon demand made thereof by the ſaid Wardens, or any Perſon or Perſons appointed under their Hands and Seals, to gather and collect the ſame. And in caſe of Refuſal or Neglect to pay ſuch Rate wherewith he, or ſhe, or they ſhall be charged, the ſame by Warrant of any two next Juſtices of Peace; to be levied by Diſtreſs and Sale of the Offenders Goods, and for wtnt of Diſtreſs, by Impriſonment of the Offender, until payment. And if any Perſon or Perſons find themſelves aggrieved at the Rate on them impoſed, and ſhall within ſix Days after Demand, complain unto any two of the next Juſtices for the County of Surrey, the ſaid Juſtices ſhall have Power, within eight Days after the Complaint, to relieve them; and to charge the ſame on ſuch other Perſon or Perſons as they ſhall ſee cauſe. And in caſe any ſhall be rated not being of Ability to pay, or upon empty Houſes, or void Piece of Land, or other Place where the ſame cannot be collected, then the ſame Perſons who made the Rate or Aſſeſſment, or the major part of them living within the ſaid Pariſh, are authorized and required, at the next meeting, by way of ſurcharge, to aſſeſs, or reaſſeſs all and every ſuch Sums of Money upon the ſaid Pariſh, as to them ſhall ſeem juſt to be levied and recovered, as aforeſaid.

And the ſaid Wardens of the ſaid Pariſh Church of St. Saviours, ſhall by equal quarterly Payments pay yearly for ever unto each of the two Chaplains thereof, the yearly Sum of One hundred Pounds; and unto the Schoolmaſter Twenty Pounds, and to the Uſher Ten Pounds.

All the reſidue of the Monies to be raiſed as aforeſaid, from time to time, to be applied and diſpoſed of, for and towards the Repair of the ſaid Pariſh Church, and other Matters concerning the Adminiſtration of the ſame Church Affairs, in ſuch manner as the ſaid Wardens for the time being ſhall conceive meet.

The ſaid Wardens yearly to give account to two Juſtices of the Peace, or more, at the ſame time that the Churchwardens and Overſeers of the Poor ſhall give up their Accounts, to the ſame Ends, and under the ſame Penalties impoſed by an Act of Parliament made in the 43 of Queen Elizabeth, Chap. 2.]

Southwark Place.

Mint in Southwark.

Farther up on that ſide, almoſt directly over againſt St. George's Church, was ſometime a large and moſt ſumptuous Houſe, builded by Charles Brandon, late Duke of Suffolk, in the Reign of Henry the Eighth, which was called Suffolk houſe; but coming afterwards into the King's hands, the ſame was called Southwark Place, and a Mint of Coinage was there kept for the King.

Called alſo Dukes Place.
J. S.

[This Houſe was alſo called, while it was in the Dukes Poſſeſſion, The Dukes Place. Which Place he exchanged with the ſaid King Henry VIII. And the King in exchange gave him the Biſhop of Norwich's Place in St. Martins in the Fields. And this Exchange was enacted 28 H. VIII.]

To this Place came King Edward the Sixth, in the ſecond of his Reign, from Hampton Court, and dined in it. He at that time made John Yorke, one of the Sheriffs of London, Knight, and then rode through the City to Weſtminſter.

This Houſe given to the Archbiſhops of York.

Queen Mnry gave this Houſe to Nicholas Heth, Archbiſhop of York, and to his Succeſſors for ever, to be their Inn or Lodging for their repair to London, in recompence of York Houſe, near to Weſtminſter, which King Henry her Father had taken from Cardinal Woolſey, and from the See of York.

Archbiſhop Heth ſells it.

Archbp. Heth ſold the ſame Houſe to a Merchant, or to certain Merchants, that pulled it down, ſold the Lead, Stone, Iron, &c. and in place thereof builded many ſmall Cottages of great Rents, to the increaſing of Beggars in that Borough. The Archbiſhop bought Norwich Houſe, or Suffolk Place, near unto Charing-Croſs, becauſe it was near unto the Court, and left it to his Succeſſors.

Collectan. M. Hutton, D. D. é Regiſtr. Eboracen. J. S.

The ſaid Archbiſhop, Auguſt the 6th 1557. obtained a Licenſe for the alienation of this Capital Meſſuage of Suffolk Place; and to apply the Price thereof for the buying of other Houſes called alſo Suffolk Place, lying near Charing-Croſs: as appears from a Regiſter belonging to the Dean and Chapter of York.]

Twigden Maſters Tho. Cook Launcelot Hobſon	Churchwardens.

The enlargement of the South Ile (abovenamed) is above half the length of the Ile. The Ground of it from that ſmall Part of an Ile to which it was then adjoined, (downward) was taken out of the Churchyard, making a compleat Ile, and adding to the Church, as a great deal of room, ſo a great deal of grace and beauty.

In a Window next to this downward, is the Arms of one Mr. Thomas Stone, at whoſe Charge it was glazed.

The upper Window of the South Ile is thus inſcribed:

White Lion a Gaol for Surrey.

Then is the White Lion (a Goal) ſo called, for that the ſame was a common Hoſtery for the receipt of Travellers by that Sign. This Houſe was firſt uſed as a Gaol within this * threeſcore Years laſt; ſince the which time the Priſoners were once removed thence to a Houſe in Newtown, where they remained for a ſhort time, and were returned back again to the aforeſaid White Lion, there to remain, as the appointed Gaol for the County of Surrey.

*Forty Years. Firſt Edit.

Kings Bench.

Next, is the Goal or Priſon of the Kings-Bench, but of what Antiquity the ſame is, I know not. For I have read, that the Courts of the Kings Bench and Chancery, have oft times been removed from London to other Places, and ſo hath likewiſe the Goals that ſerve thoſe Courts; as in the Year 1304. Edward thd Firſt commanded the Courts of the Kings Bench and the Exchequer, which had remained ſeven Years at York, to be removed to their old Places at London. And in the Year 1387, the eleventh of Richard the Second, Robert Triſilian, Chief Juſtice, came to the City of Coventry, and there ſate by the ſpace of a Month, as Juſtice of the Kings Benches, and cauſed to be indited in that Court, about the number of 2000 Perſons of that Country, &c.

H. Knighton.

It ſeemeth therefore, that for that time, the Priſon or Gaol of that Court was not far off. Alſo, in the Year 1392, the ſixteenth of the ſame Richard, the Archbiſhop of York being Lord Chancellor, for good Will that he bare to his City, cauſed the Kings Bench and Chancery to be removed from London to York. But e're long they were returned to London.

The Petition of the Priſoners of the Queens Bench to the Lords, for more room. J. S.

The Priſoners in this Priſon of the Kings Bench were formerly not only reſtrained of their Liberty, but were further puniſhed by reaſon of the ſtraitneſs of room: there being more a great many about the middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign committed there than before, as well for Debt, Treſpaſs, as other Cauſes. By reaſon of which ſtreightning and peſtering one another, great Annoyances and Inconveniences grew among the Priſoners, that occaſioned the Death of many. So that within ſix

Years laſt paſt (it was now about the Year 1579.) well near an hundred Perſons died, and between Michaelmas and March about a dozen Perſons; beſides others that had been extreamly ſick and hardly recovered; and ſome remained ſtill ſick, and in danger of their Lives, through a certain Contagion, called, The Sickneſs of the Houſe: which many times happened among them; engendring chiefly, or rather only, of the ſmall or few Rooms, in reſpect of the many Perſons abiding in them; and there, by want of Air, breathing in one anothers Faces as they lay, which could not but breed Infection; eſpecially, when any Infectious Perſon was removed from other Priſons thither. And many times it ſo happened, namely, in the Summer Seaſon, that through want of Air, and to avoid Smoldring, they were forced, in the Nighttime to cry out to the Marſhal's Servants, to riſe and open the Doors of the Wards, whereby to take Air in the Yard for their refreſhing. Whereupon theſe Priſoners, about March 1579. put up a Petition to the Lords of the Queen's Privy Council, ſetting forth all this their lamentable Condition; and beſeeched them to take ſome Order for the enlarging of the ſaid Rooms for preſervation of their Lives, that then remained there, as of others that ſhould fortune to be committed thither: And alſo for building of ſome Chappel, or Place of common Prayer; they being driven to uſe for that purpoſe a certain Room, through which was a continual Recourſe. And that they would the rather be moved hereunto, in that the ſame Houſe or Lands were the Queen's Inheritance; and the Marſhal there anſwerable to Her Highneſs for a yearly Rent therefore; and alſo being Her Highneſs's Principal Goal.

For ſeconding this Petition Sir Owen Hopton, Kt. Lieutenant of the Tower, Fleetwood the Recorder, and ſeveral Aldermen and Juſtices of the Peace, ſent their Letter to the Lords, teſtifying the truth of the abovesaid Complaint, and moreover aſſuring their Honours, that there was not one convenient or ſeveral Room in the whole Houſe, wherein they might ſit, for the executing of the Queen's Majeſty's Commiſſion, but were forced to uſe a little low Room, or Parlour, adjoining to the Street, where the Priſoners daily dined and ſupped: So that were it not for the diſcharging of their Duties that ways, and ſome pitiful Remorſe toward the help of ſome Priſoners hard Caſes, they could be contented to tarry from thence, as well as ſome others of their Collegues did, for the Inconveniency aforeſaid.]

Marſhalſea in Southwark.

Then is the Marſhalſea another Goal, or Priſon, ſo called, as pertaining to the Marſhals of England. Of what continuance kept in Southwark I have not learned: but like it is, that the ſame hath been removeable at the pleaſure of the Marſhals. For I find, that in the Year 1376, the fiftieth of Edward the Third, Henry Piercy, being Marſhal, kept his Priſoners in the City of London, where having committed one J.Prendargeſt of Norwich, contrary to the Liberties of the City of London, the Citizens, by perſwaſion of the Lord Fitzwalter, their Standard Bearer, took Armour, and ran with great Rage to the Marſhal's Inn, brake up the Gates, brought out the Priſoner and conveyed him away, minding to have burnt the Stocks in the midſt of their City; but they firſt ſought for Sir Henry Piercy, to have puniſhed him; as I have noted in my Annals.

More, About the Feaſt of Eaſter next following, John Duke of Lancaſter, having cauſed all the whole Navy of England to be gathered together at London, it chanced a certain Eſquire to kill one of the Shipmen. Which Act the other Shipmen taking in ill part, they brought their Suit into the King's Court of the Marſhalſea; which then as chanced (ſaith mine Author) was kept in Southwark: but when they perceived that Court to be too favourable to the Murderer; and farther, that the King's Warrant was alſo gotten for his Pardon; they in great Fury ran to the Houſe wherein the Murderer was Impriſoned, brake into it, and brought forth the Priſoner with his Gives on his Legs, they thruſt a Knife to his Heart, and ſticked him as if he had been a Hog: after this they tied a Rope to his Gives, and drew him to the Gallows. Where when they had hanged him, as though they had done a great Act, they cauſed the Trumpets to be ſounded before them to their Ships, and there in great triumph they ſpent the reſt of the Day.

Rebels of Kent break up the Marſhalſea.

Alſo the Rebels of Kent, in the Year 1381. brake down the Houſes of the Marſhalſea and Kings Bench in Southwark, took from thence the Priſoners, brake down the Houſe of Sir John Immorth, then Marſhal of the Marſhalſea and Kings Bench, &c. After this, in the Year 1387, the eleventh of Richard the Second, the morrow after Bartholomew Day, the King kept a great Council in the Caſtle of Nottingham, and the Marſhalſea of the King was then kept at Lughborough, by the ſpace of ſix Days or more. In the Year 1443. Sir Walter Many was Marſhal of the Marſhalſea, the two and twentieth of Henry the Sixth. William Brandon, Eſq; was Marſhal in the eighth of Edward the Fourth. In the Year 1504. the Priſoners of the Marſhalſea, then in Southwark, brake [illegible], and many of them being taken were executed, eſpecially ſuch as had been committed for Felony or Treaſon.

Occurrences there.

Upon committing a Feltmaker to the Marſhalſea, the Feltmakers riſe. J. S.

In June, Anno 1592. happened a dangerous Inſurrection in Southwark, occaſioned by the ſerving a Warrant from the Lord Chamberlain, by one of the Knight Marſhal's Men, upon a Feltmaker's Servant; who was committed to the Marſhalſea, with certain others that were accuſed to his Lordſhip by the ſaid Knight Marſhal's Man, without cauſe of Offence, as themſelves did affirm. He entred the Houſe where the Warrant was to be ſerved, with a Dagger drawn, affrighting the good Wife, who ſate by the Fire with a young Infant in her Arms: and after, having taken the Priſoners, committed them to the Marſhalſea; where they lay five Days without making their Anſwer. Certain Servants of the Feltmaker aſſembled together out of Barnſey Street and the Blackfriers, with a great number of looſe and maſterleſs Men, apt for ſuch Purpoſes, to reſcue theſe that were committed to the Marſhalſea.

They aſſembled themſelves by occaſion and pretence of their meeting at a Play on a Sunday; which, beſides the breach of the Sabbath, gave opportunity of committing theſe and ſuch like Diſorders.

Sir William Webb, Lord Maior, hearing of this Tumult, ſped away with one Sheriff, to Southwark, and made Proclamation, and diſmiſſed the Multitude; and apprehended the chief Doers and Authors of the Diſorder, and committed them to Priſon, to be farther puniſhed as they deſerved. And ſending next Morning for the Deputy and Conſtable of the Borough, with divers others of beſt Credit, who were then preſent, to examine the Cauſe and Manner of the Diſorder, he found by the Teſtimony of the Inhabitants, a great cauſe of it to be the rough dealing of the Marſhal's Men, in the ſerving of their Warrant; not uſing themſelves with that good diſcretion and moderate Uſage as were meet; but after a rough and violent manner; provoking Men by ſuch hard Dealings to contend with them, which would otherwiſe obey in all dutiful ſort. And when theſe People were thus aſſembled in this diſorderly manner, it was obſerved that the Knight Marſhal's Men, being within the Marſhalſea, iſſued forth with their Daggers drawn, and Complaint of the Marſhal's Men.

Baſtinadoes in their Hands, beating the People. Whereof ſome paſt that way by chance, ſome came but to gaze, as the manner is. And afterwards drew their Swords, and ſeveral innocent Perſons they ſlew. Whereby the Tumult was more incenſed, and themſelves endangered; but that help came to prevent further miſchief.

The ſaid Inhabitants of Southwark did complain further, that the ſaid Marſhals Men were very unneighbourly, and diſdainful among them: refuſing to pay Scot and Lot with them, or any other Duty to Church or Commonwealth. All this the Lord Maior ſignified to the Lord Treaſurer; that ſo they might be admoniſhed of their Behaviour, and to uſe more diſcretion in ſerving their Warrants.

The Maiors Letter to the L. Treaſurer hereupon.

The ſaid Sir William Webb, Maior, apprehending great danger in the City, when theſe Apprentices and others, that made the Inſurrection, ſhould be puniſhed, becauſe it was generally thought and known, that the Marſhal's Men gave the occaſion; thought fit to write to the Lord Treaſurer, and to move, that this Puniſhment ſhould be done with an even hand, as well upon the Knight Marſhal's Men, who incited theſe Multitudes, by their indiſcreet and violent Behaviour, as upon this baſe and diſorderly ſort that mutinied againſt them. Which, in caſe it were not done, notwithſtanding the great care they had, and meant to take, to keep all things in good order (wherein alſo he ſuppoſed, that the Magiſtrates of this City never had their People in better Obedience, than at that time they had) yet they were forced to be in ſome doubt, that this preſent Miſchief would not be ſo thorowly abated as it were to be wiſhed. Foraſmuch as the popular ſort (as the ſaid Maior proceeded) which weighed not things by Reaſon and Diſcretion, would ſtill look upon the firſt Beginnings and Provocations of this Tumult; which they ſuppoſed all to have proceeded from the Knight Marſhal's Men: and upon ſuch as were ſlain by them, whereof ſome were no Medlers, but Paſſers-by, by chance; and alſo upon the iſſue of the Puniſhment inflicted upon them, which notwithſtanding would be moſt juſt, touching their own deſerts, yet they would ſuppoſe the ſame to be partial, except the other Party were puniſhed too.

The Lord Maior had conferred with the Knight Marſhal himſelf, whom he found to be of great Diſcretion and Moderation in this Matter. But it gave Offence, that his Men were committed to Priſon, and bailed out; but the others were not, but continued in Priſon.

Geffery Chaucer.

Amongſt the which, the moſt ancient is the Tabard, ſo called of the Sign, which, as we now term it, is of a Jacket or ſleeveleſs Coat, whole before, open on both ſides, with a ſquare Collar, winged at the Shoulders: a ſtately Garment of old time, commonly worn of Noblemen and others, both at home and abroad in the Wars; but then (to wit, in the Wars) their Arms embroidered, or otherwiſe depict upon them, that every Man by his Coat of Arms might be known from others. But now theſe Tabards are only worn by the Heralds, and be called their Coats of Arms in Service. For the Inn of the Tabard, Geoffrey Chaucer, Eſq; the moſt famous Poet of England, in commendation thereof, in the Reign of Edward III. writeth thus:

> It befel in that ſeaſou, on a day,
> In Southwark, at the Tabart as I lay,
> Ready to wend on my Pilgrimage
> To Canterbury, with full devout courage:
> That Night was comen into the Hoſterie
> Well nine and twenty in a companie,
> Of ſundry folke, by adventure yfall
> In fellowſhip, and Pilgrims were they all,
> That toward Canterbury woulden ride:
> The Stables and Chambers weren wide,
> And well we were eaſed at the beſt, &c.

But Peter de Rupibus, Biſhop of Wincheſter in the Year 1215. new founded the ſame again more fully for Canons Regular, in place of the firſt Hoſpital: He encreaſed the Rent thereof to three hundred forty four Pounds by the Year. Thus was this Hoſpital holden of the Prior and Abbot of Bermondſey, till the Year 1428. at which time a Compoſition was made between Thomas Thetford, Abbot of Bermondſey, and Nicholas Buckland, Maſter of the ſaid Hoſpital of St. Thomas, for all the Lands and Tenements which were holden of the ſaid Abbot and Covent in Southwark, or elſewhere, for the old Rent to be paid unto the ſaid Abbot.

And in the Year 1553. on the 10th of April, King Edward the Sixth, in the ſeventh of his Reign, gave to the Maior, Commonalty, and Citizens of London, to be a Workhouſe for the poor and idle Perſons of the City, his Houſe of Bridewel, and ſeven hundred Marks, Lands of the Savoy Rents. The Steeple of this Church of St. Thomas, greatly decayed, was Repaired, new Leaded; from the Ground to the top new Coated with a beautiful Rough-caſt; and inriched with a very fair Turret, in the Year of our Lord God, 1633.

At the ſame time the Pariſhioners beſtowed upon the entrance into the Church, a new Brick Wall, with a Door in the middle of it, fit for ſo worthy a Paſſage.

About four or five Years ſince, ſome Coſt was beſtowed upon the Eaſt Window; and in the Year of our Lord 1618, (at the lower end of the Church) a very handſome Gallery builded.

Parſonage Houſe.

There is a very good Parſonage Houſe ſituate in the Churchyard; on which much Coſt hath lately been beſtowed (to improve and adorn it) by the late Rector, the Reverend Dr. Hazelwood.

Free School.

There is alſo a Free School belonging to this Pariſh, founded in Queen Elizabeth's Days, and She reckoned the Foundreſs: 'Tis amply endowed, ſituate in a Lane over againſt the Church. It hath divers Governors, choſen out of the Inhabitants of the Pariſh. Several Maſters are appointed over the poor Children of the Pariſh which are here to be taught, without any Number aſſigned. A chief Maſter, who lately was the Rev. Mr. Joſeph Dunſtar, his Salary is 60*l. per Ann.* An Uſher, who is allowed 30*l. per Ann.* A Writing Maſter, who is allowed 50*l. per Ann.* This Writing Maſter hath an Uſher aſſiſtant to him, whom he pays himſelf. And, laſtly, a Reading Maſter; to teach Engliſh: His Salary is 20*l. per Ann.* The School conſiſts of three large School Rooms; and contains a great number of Youth, according to the Populouſneſs and Largeneſs of the Pariſh.]

Over againſt this Pariſh Church, on the South ſide the Street, was ſometime one great Houſe, builded of Stone, with arched Gates, which pertained to the Prior of Lewis in Suſſex, and was his Lodging when he came to London: It is now a common Hoſtery for Travellers, and hath to Sign, the Walnut Tree.

Prior of Lewis his Houſe.

Then Eaſt from the ſaid Pariſh Church of St. Olave, is a Key. In the Year 1330, by the Licenſe of Simon Swanlond, Maior of London, it was builded by Iſabel, Widow to Hamond Goodcheape. And next thereunto was then a great Houſe of Stone and Timber, belonging to the Abbot of St. Auguſtin, without the Walls of Canterbury, which was an ancient piece of Work, and ſeemeth to be one of the firſt builded Houſes on that ſide the River, over againſt the City: It was called the Abbots Inn of St. Auguſtine in Southwark; and was ſometime holden of the Earls of Warren and Surrey, as appeareth by a Deed made 1281, which I have read, and may be Engliſhed thus:

Abbot of Auguſtine's Inn.

W. Thorne.

To all to whom this preſent Writing ſhall come, John, Earl Warren, ſendeth greeting. Know ye, that we have altogether remiſed and quite claimed for us and our Heirs for ever, to Nicholas, Abbot of St. Auguſtines of Canterbury, and the Covent of the ſame, and their Succeſſors, Suit to our Court of Southwark, which they owe unto us, for all that Meſſuage and Houſes builded thereon, and all their Appurtenances, which they have of our Fee in Southwark, ſituate upon the Thames, between the Bridgehouſe and Church of St. Olave. And the ſaid Meſſuage with the buildings thereon builded, and all their Appurtenances, to them and their Succeſſors, we have granted in perpetual Alms to hold of us, and our Heirs for the ſame: ſaving the Service due to any other Perſons, if any ſuch be, then to us. And for this Remit and Grant, the ſaid Abbot and Covent have given unto us five Shillings of Rent yearly in Southwark, and have received us and our Heirs in all Benefices, which ſhall be in their Church for ever.

This Suit of Court one William Graſpeis was bound to do to the ſaid Earl, for the ſaid Meſſuage: and heretofore to acquit in all things, the Church of St. Auguſtine, againſt the ſaid Earl.

This Houſe of late time belonged to Sir Anthony Sentlegar, then to Warham Sentlegar, &c. And now is called Sentlegar Houſe, but divided into ſundry Tenements.

Sentlegar Houſe.

Next is the Bridgehouſe, ſo called, as being a Storehouſe for Stone, Timber, or whatſoever pertaining to the building or repairing of London Bridge.

Bridgehouſe.

This Houſe ſeemeth to have taken beginning, with the firſt founding of the Bridge, either of Stone or Timber: It is a large Plot of Ground on the Bank of the River Thames, containing divers large Buildings for ſtowage of things neceſſary towards the reparation of the ſaid Bridge.

There are alſo divers Garners, for laying up of Wheat, and other Grainers for ſervice of the City, as need requireth. Moreover, there be certain Ovens builded, in number ten; of which ſix be very large, the other four being but half ſo big. Theſe were purpoſely made to bake out the Bread-Corn of the ſaid Grainers, to the beſt advantage, for relief of the poor Citizens when need ſhould require. Sir J. Throſtone, Knight, ſometime an Embroiderer; then Goldſmith, one of the Sheriffs, 1516, gave (by his Teſtament) towards the making of theſe Ovens, two hundred Pounds; which thing was performed by his Executors: Sir John Munday. Goldſmith, then being Maior.

Garners for Corn in the Bridgehouſe.
Ovens in the Bridgehouſe.

Concerning theſe Granaries and Ovens of the Bridgehouſe, there happened this Paſſage in the Year 1594, which was a Year of great Scarcity and Dearneſs of Bread-Corn. And Wheat and Rye were brought in from Foreign Parts, for the Supply of

In a Dearth Anno 1594. Corn appointed to be laid up in the Bridgehouſe by the Companies.
J. S.

of the City and Nation. Sir John Spencer being Maior this Year, got it ordered, that the ſeveral Companies of the City ſhould preſently have made Proviſions and furniſhed themſelves with Wheat and Rye, according to their ſeveral Proportions allotted to them. Wherein they were not ſo forward as they ought to have been. And yet ſtill in December they were unprovided of the greateſt Part thereof. Wherefore he enjoined them the 13th of December, to furniſh their Wants with what was brought in from Foreign Parts; and to have the ſame laid up in the Bridgehouſe, in the ſeveral Garners, before the 8th of January next.

Hawkins requires the Bridgehouſe and Ovens for the Queen's Navy. Denied by the Maior.

But Sir John Hawkins, being Treaſurer of the Queen's Navy, ſent ſome of his Men, deſiring, or rather commanding room in the Bridgehouſe, to lay in Wheat; and alſo the Ovens for baking. The Maior anſwered, that they could with no convenience ſpare the ſame: Alledging truly, that if the ſame ſhould be yielded unto them, the Companies would thereby take occaſion to neglect their Proviſions, and would alledge that they could not do the ſame, for that the Maior had lent away their Garners. And thereby the City, which in time of Dearth was furniſhed only from Foreign Parts, ſhould be unprovided, and the Fault wholly laid upon him. And then either that which ſhould be brought for the Proviſion of the City, of force muſt be tolerated to be brought up by the Badgers, and carried from London, as it had been; or elſe the Merchants diſcouraged from bringing in any more: As the ſaid Maior told Sir John Hawkins's Men; and afterwards ſhewed the ſame to the Lord Treaſurer.

The Ovens uſed to bake Bread for the Poor.

And for the Ovens, he told them, that the ſame were uſed in baking Bread for the Poor, that they might have the more for their Money. And therefore they could not be ſpared.

The Maior's appeal to the L. Treaſurer againſt Hawkins's Men.

The Maior added, that, as he was informed, Her Maieſty had Garners about Tower-Hill, and Whitehall, or Weſtminſter. And alſo, That if they would not ſerve, Her Majeſty had in her hands Wincheſter Houſe, wherein great Quantities might be laid. But they anſwered the Maior, That he ſhould hear more to his further Diſlike. The Maior told them, That if they did procure any Letters for the ſame, he doubted not but to anſwer them to the Lord Treaſurers good Acceptance. Soon after the Maior received Letters from ſome of the Council. Whereat the Maior diſpatched his Letter with the whole Matter to the Lord Treaſurer; praying his good Favour, That the ſame Garners being the Cities, they might be employed for the uſe of the ſame; that there be no Want nor Outcry of the Poor for Bread. Or elſe, That if there did fall out a greater Want and Dearth of Grain than yet there was, and that the City were unprovided, his Lordſhip would be pleaſed to have him excuſed. And humbly ſubmitted himſelf to his Honour's good pleaſure. Thus did the good Magiſtrates of the City take care to maintain their Liberties againſt any other Encroachments, and expreſt their ſolicitude for their Poor.]

A Brewhouſe builded in the Bridgehouſe.

There was of late, for the enlarging of the ſaid Bridgehouſe, taken in an old Brewhouſe, called Goldings, which was given to the City by George Monox, ſometime Maior, and in place thereof is now a fair Brewhouſe builded, for ſervice of the City with Beer.

The Bridgemaſter.
J. S.

Over this Bridgehouſe there is a Bridgemaſter appointed, and he ſome Freeman, choſen by the City, whoſe Office is to look after the Reparation of the Bridge: He hath a liberal Salary allowed him. The Place hath ſometimes been a good Relief for ſome honeſt Citizens fallen to decay. The Keeper of the Bridgehouſe had in ancient Times an Intereſt in certain Mills upon the River Lee near Stratford; and the Maſter of S. Thomas of Acres had a Title to other Mills there. For, as it appears by an old Inquiſition taken in the Time of King Edward I. there was a Calcetum, i. e. a Chalk Cawſey on the North near Stratford, which was made by Queen Maud, through which were three Trenches made for three Courſes of Water to run, for the uſe of ſeveral Mills, partly belonging to the Maſter of St. Thomas, and partly to the Bridgemaſter: Over which were three Wooden Bridges made, by the ſaid Maſters.

Chalk Cawſey near Stratford.

The Bridges of Stratford to be repaired by the Bridgemaſter.

This is manifeſt by an Extract out of an ancient Inquiſition, which was in theſe words; “ J. was preſented by Inquiſition taken at Stratford at Bow, before Roger Brabanzon, and others, in Anno XXXII°. Reg. Edw. filii Reg. Henrici; as followeth:

Dicunt etiam quod tria Molendina facta ſunt ſuper Calcetum verſus Boream, viz. unum Molendinum Fullonium per quendam Magiſtrum Domus Sti. Thomas de Acre. Quod Molendinum, & etiam Scitus alterius Molendini Magiſter illius Domus nunc tenet. Et alia duo Molendina per Cuſtodem Pontis London. Scil. unum Molendinum aquaticum, quod vocatur Sayenes Milne; & aliud molendinum Fullonicum, quod vocatur Spilemans Milne. Quæ duo molendina Cuſtos Pontis, London nunc tenet. De quibus molendinis deſcendunt tres curſus aquæ in tribus trenchetis factis ex tranſverſo Calceti predicti per dictos Magiſtrum & Cuſtodem, per magnum tempus poſtquam Calcetum illud factum fuit. Ultra quos Trenchetos, facti ſunt tres pontes de ligno in Calceto illo per prefatos Magiſtrum & Cuſtodem: qui magna indigent ſuſtentatione.

The Purport of which words is, “ That there were three Mills made upon this Chalk Cauſeway Northward; one a Fullers Mill, and the Scite of another Mill belonging to the Maſter of S. Thomas of Acre: and two other Mills, called Sayens Milne and Spilemans Milne, the one a Water Mill, the other a Fullers Mill; both held by the Keeper of London Bridge. From which Mills came three Courſes of Water in three Trenches made croſs the Chalk Cauſeway by the ſaid Maſter and Keeper. Beyond which Trenches were made three Wooden Bridges in that ſaid Cauſeway, by the ſaid Maſter and Keeper: which greatly wanted Repair.

Which the City denied they were to do.

The Maior and Commonalty of London, as Keepers of London Bridge, and the ſaid Maſter of S. Thomas of Acre, were called by Proceſs, and appeared in Anno 7 Reg. Edward II. and the King's Attorney charged them to repair the Bridges according to the ſaid Preſentment. And they traverſed it; ſaying, That they were not bound to make, repair, or maintain the foreſaid Chalk Cauſeway, or any Bridges between Stratford at Bow, and Hamme Stratford, nor had accuſtomed to do it. But the firſt Preſentment was confirmed againſt the ſaid Traverſe in the ninth Year of King Edward II.]

A new Seal for the Bridgehouſe.
R.

At a Common Council, July 14. Ann. 33. H. VIII. it was ordered, that the Seal of the Bridgehouſe ſhould be changed; becauſe the Image of Thomas Becket, ſometime Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was graven therein: And a new Seal to be made, deviſed by Mr. Hall, to whom the old Seal was delivered.

Note, This was occaſioned by a Proclamation, which commanded the Names of the Pope and Thomas of Becket to be put out of all Books and Monuments. Which is the reaſon you ſhall ſee them ſo blotted out in all old Chronicles, Legends, Primers and Service Books printed before theſe Times.

Abbot of Battail his Inn.

Deſcription of St. GEORGE's Pariſh.

Chief Streets in this Pariſh.

The Pariſh of St. Georges is of no large extent, lying Southwards of St. Saviours. The Principal Places are St. Margarets Hill and Blackman ſtreet.

The Mint.

This Pariſh is of chief Note for the Kings Bench Priſon, the White Lyon, the Marſhalſea Priſon, and the Mint, the ancient Retreats of ill principled Perſons, that there ſheltered themſelves from the Payment of their juſt Debts, before the late Act of Parliament that took away that pretended Privilege. But before I enter upon my Deſcription of this Pariſh I ſhall give the Reader a ſhort Account of the Priſons on this ſide the Water.

Priſons in Southwark.
White Lyon Priſon.

There was formerly in Southwark but one Priſon, particularly, ſerving for the whole County of Surrey, and that called the WHITE LYON, which was for the Cuſtody of Murtherers, Felons, and other notorious Malefactors; It was ſituate at the South end of St. Margarets Hill near unto St. Georges Church; but that being an old decayed Houſe within leſs than twenty Years paſt, the County

Marſhalſea Priſon.

Marſhalſea Court.

County Goal is removed to the MARSHALSEA PRISON more towards the Bridge: which is a large and ſtrong Building, being alſo a Priſon for Debt. And here the Court of Marſhalſeas is holden every Fryday, for Tryals of ſuch Perſons within the Verge of the Court of Whitehall, which is twelve Miles round, that are arreſted by a Proceſs taken out of this Court; but within this Verge London is excepted, which is a Liberty of it ſelf.

Kings Bench Priſon.

Abuſes here.

The KINGS BENCH Priſon, ſeated near St. Georges Church, generally thronged with Debtors; a Priſon wherein great Abuſes are committed by the Marſhall or Keeper and his Underlings, and much complained of in Parliament. But I find no Redreſs likely to be had, by conſtraining the Marſhall to keep the Priſoners within the Priſon; he ſuffering them for Gratuities to go at Pleaſure where they pleaſe, inſomuch, that when any one asketh the Rules, or Limits of this Priſon, Anſwer is made, At Conſtantinople; and indeed any where. And this makes them not regard the Payment of their juſt Debts, which a ſtrict Confinement would oblige them unto for their own Advantage; no Man naturally loving a Confinement, were it in a Princes Court, much leſs a noyſome Priſon.

Counter Priſon

The COUNTER is within part of the Marſhalſeas Houſe, and is a Priſon only for Debt.

Clink Priſon.

The CLINK ſeated near the Thames, and in the Clink Liberty already mentioned, being a Priſon for Treſpaſſes in thoſe Parts; but of late Years of little or no Account.

Benefactors to theſe Priſons.

Now for and towards the Relief of the Poor Priſoners in theſe ſeveral Priſons, divers worthy Citizens of London, and other well diſpoſed Perſons, have been Benefactors, and amongſt the great Number many have been taken Notice of in Book the firſt, and elſewhere.

Beſides, I find the Lady Ramſey gave, for the Relief of Priſoners whoſe Debts in theſe Priſons, and thoſe in London, did not exceed forty Shillings. 500 l.

Mr. Robert Rogers, for the Relief of ſuch poor Priſoners as were neither Atheiſts nor Papiſts, and might be delivered for the Sum of twenty Nobles. 150 l.

Mr. Richard Jacob, Vintner, gave to every of theſe Priſons, viz. the Kings Bench, the White Lyon, and the Marſhalſea Priſon, to be Yearly paid 40 l.

Sr. William Dixie, Citizen and Skinner gave to theſe Priſons in Southwark 20 l.

Mr. William Lamb, Clothworker gave to the White Lyon, Kings Bench, and Marſhalſeas Priſons to each ſix Matreſſes, &c.

But to proceed to the Deſcription of St. Georges Pariſh.

St. Margarets Hill.

St. MARGARETS HILL, a ſpacious broad Street, and a great Throughfare for Paſſengers, Coaches, Carts, and Waggons out of Kent, Surrey, Suſſex, and Part of Hantſhire; by reaſon of which it is well reſorted unto, but not of ſo good a Trade as the Borough, nor is ſo accommodated with Inns. In this Street is kept the Fair which begins the Day after Bartholomew Fair in London, and, according to Cuſtom, continues a Fortnight, although it ought by Charter or Grant to hold but three Days; but this Fair is of ſmall concern for Commodities; being chiefly for Shows, as Drolls, Puppit Shows, Rope Dancing, Muſick Booths, and Tippling Houſes.

In this part of the Hill which ſtands in this Pariſh, are a great many Courts and Alleys. I ſhall begin on the Weſt ſide next the Borough, and ſo run Southwards to the Mint againſt St. Georges Church; and then take notice of thoſe on the Eaſt ſide.

And after that, how the ſame City is divided into Parts and Wards; and how the ſame are bounded: And what Monuments of Antiquity, or Ornaments of Building be in every of them: As alſo in the Borough of Southwark: I am laſtly (to conclude this Fourth Book) to ſpeak briefly of the Suburbs, as well without the Gates and Walls, as without the Liberties, and of the Monuments in them.

The Eſtate of the Suburbs anciently, An. 1180. Fitz Stephen.

Concerning the Eſtate of the Suburbs of this City, in the Reign of Henry the Second, Fitz Stephen hath theſe Words: Upwards on the Weſt (ſaith he) is the King's Palace, which is an incomparable Building, riſing with a Vawmure and Bulwark, aloft upon the River, two Miles from the Wall of the City, but yet conjoyned with a continual Suburb. On all ſides, without the Houſes of the Suburbs, are the Citizens Gardens and Orchards, planted with Trees, both large, ſightly, and adjoining together. On the North ſide are Paſtures and plain Medows, with Brooks running thorow them, turning Water-mills, with a pleaſant noiſe. Not far off is a great Foreſt, a well wooded Chaſe, having good Covert for Harts, Bucks, Does, Boars, and wild Bulls. The Corn Fields are not of a hungry ſandy Mould; but as the fruitful Fields of Aſia, yielding plentiful Increaſe, and filling the Barns with Corn. There are near London, on the North ſide, eſpecial Wells in the Suburbs, ſweet, wholeſome and clear. Amongſt which, Holywell, Clarkenwell, and St. Clements well, are moſt famous, and moſt frequented by Scholars and Youths of the City in Summer Evenings, when they walk forth to take the Air.

Thus far out of Fitz-Stephen, for the Suburbs at that time.

Some Conſideration of the Inhabitants, of the Suburbs, and the Buildings. J. S.

And here, before we enter in theſe Suburbs, and paſs along through at the particular Places and Streets therein, it may be worth our while to ſtay a little, and take ſome Notice in general, both of the Inhabitants, and the multiplyed Buildings.

Theſe Suburbians make Counterfeit Commodities.

In the Days of Queen Elizabeth, in that Part of her Reign that is upwards of 120 or 130 Years ago, when London began to be very populous, there was a Confluence hither out of the Countries, of ſuch Perſons as were of the poorer Sort of Trades and Occupations. Who becauſe they could not exerciſe them within the Juriſdiction of the City, followed them here, and within the Compaſs of three or four Miles of the City. By reaſon of theſe Tradeſmen, bad Commodities were made and vended, to the wronging of the People. They made counterfeit Indigo, Muſk, Saffron, Cochinele, Nutmegs, Wax, Steel, and other Commodities. But they were but Bunglers at their Buſineſs. They took Abundance of Apprentices, and kept them not their full Time, according to Law: but ſuffered them in a few Years to be out of their Times. Whereby few became ſufficient Workmen. And they that were ſufficient had ſo many Servants, that Numbers of Families were encreaſed in the Suburbs and elſewhere. Whence, (beſides that the Sickneſs was often encreaſed) the Suburbs were abuſed by falſe and inſufficient Wares; and Deceits were practiſed by them; having none appointed to overſee them and their Works. For they belonged to none of the Companies of London: and ſo were under no Comptrol or Reſtraint.

The Freemens Petition againſt them.

This at length cauſed a Petition to be put up to King James the Firſt in the Year 1609. by the Tradeſmen and Artificers of London, who ſet forth, 'That there were ſpecial Laws and Satutes for 'Strangers inhabiting near the City, being no 'Freemen; yet thoſe Laws had not been put in 'Execution; by reaſon, that no ſpecial Man had 'been appointed to take the over ſight of it. And 'by reaſon no good Government had been uſed, 'or Reſtraint made, there had repaired, and daily did repair from all Parts, Men of divers Trades 'and Sciences, which had not ſerved any Apprenticeſhip, nor had Skill in their Trades; and 'ſhrouded themſelves near the City, keeping 'Shops and uſing Trades openly, as well as privately. 'Thereby hurting the antient Inhabitants which 'dwelt near the City, and had duely ſerved Apprenticeſhips, and the Companies of the ſaid 'City, and abuſed the Subjects by bad Wares and 'Works, encreaſing Multitudes of Poor and cauſing great Scarcity.

'They prayed therefore, that the King would 'grant unto Sir Thomas Chaloner, Sir William Wade, 'Sir Walter Cope, and Sir Nicholas Luſher, (whom 'they judged very fit Men for this Employment,) 'and to their ſufficient Deputies and Aſſigns, to 'erect and appoint one, or more general Halls for 'all the ſaid Tradeſmen and Artificers; that ſhould 'inhabit the Suburbs, or within Ten Miles of it: 'and to authorize them, or any two or more of 'them to call before them all ſuch as took upon 'them to uſe any Art, Myſtery or Science, and 'were not Freemen of the City and of ſome Company. And for the better ordering them, to e'ſtabliſh Yearly certain Men as Officers over eve'ry Trade, Science and Myſtery, to have care and 'Overſight of the Reſidue of that Trade, with 'ſuch and like Orders, as thoſe of the like Com'panies within the City of London were ſubject to: 'and the Obſtinate to be made ſubject to Impri'ſonment. And that it might be lawful for the 'ſaid Four Governours and their Aſſigns, to im'poſe upon them the Penalties of ſuch Laws and 'Ordinances, as in ſuch like Caſes were provided ‘ for Puniſhments of Offenders. And that towards the Governour's Pains, Charges and Travel in eſtabliſhing them in an orderly Government, and having care of the Continuance of the ſame, it might be lawful for them to take of every Perſon to be ſo ſettled under Government, ſuch ordinary Fees and Duties, as by a general Conſent ſhould be thought fit according to the Uſe of the City of London.

The Conſideration of this the King committed to certain Perſons, which were his Commiſſioners for Suits, viz. Sir Julius Cæſar, Sir Francis Bacon, Sir Thomas Parry, Sir Walter Cope, Sir Clement Edmonds and others. And they hereupon directed their Letters to ſome Gentlemen of Middleſex, Surrey, and Eſſex, and to certain Aldermen of London, viz. Sir Thomas Benet, Sir Henry Roe, Sir John Swinnerton, Henry Fynch, John Mitchel, Edward Barkham, George Smithes. Theſe Aldermen April 30. 1610. gave up a Certificate, upon a Reference given by thoſe his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, concerning the Government of the Tradeſmen inhabiting the Suburbs and other Places near the City. The Import whereof was, that they had called the Parties before them, and examined the Cauſes of the Petition, and found that there were many ſuch Abuſes as were complained of. And they conceived it very needful, that ſome good Order might be eſtabliſhed for the Preſervation of lawful and neceſſary Trades: and that ſome ſevere Puniſhment might be inflicted upon ſuch as made falſe and counterfeit Wares; and that an Order might be eſtabliſhed for reſtraining the great Numbers of People which daily came from other Places. And that in their Opinion it were fit, that the Tradeſmen in the Suburbs near adjoining might be drawn under, and be governed by the Companies in the City of London; as with whom they have moſt Affinity. and had ſuch Orders, as well for the Search of their Wares, and Number of Apprentices, as were obſerved in the Companies in the City of London: and that ſome ſpecial Men of every Trade might be Yearly appointed out of, and by thoſe Companies to ſearch Wares, and to ſee ſuch Orders performed as ſhould be found convenient and needful for the ſaid Tradeſmen, upon ſuch Penalties as were inflicted upon Offenders in the ſeveral Companies of London. That both Freemen of the City, and thoſe that inhabited near the City, might live in their Callings to the good of the Common-wealth. And that ſuch ordinary Duties and Quarteridge, Search and Fines for Offences as were paid by the Freemen of the City, might likewiſe be paid by them to the Companies of London, to whom they ſhould be joined.

And foraſmuch as the Power and Authority of the City did not extend to the Maſters and Wardens of every Company, to whoſe Care and Government any of the ſaid Tradeſmen ſhould be joined, for their better Government, with two or more of every Company of the Tradeſmen, to make Search and reform many of theſe Abuſes otherwiſe than in the ſaid City of London, they conceived not, how theſe Abuſes might be reformed, unleſs his Majeſty ſhould be graciouſly pleaſed to give Authority to the ſaid Maſters, Wardens and others to be appointed, to reform the ſaid Abuſes, to make Search within five Miles, or ſo many Miles of the City, as to his Majeſty ſhould ſeem fit, to have the ſaid Courſe of Reformation to extend. And that this Search might be made twice every Year; and the Offender to be puniſhed by Fine or Mulct. And that the ſaid Maſter and Wardens of every Company for their Neglect and Miſcarriage in their Duties be puniſhed forty Shillings, to be levied by Aid and Aſſiſtance of the Lord Maior and Aldermen for the time being.

This was the Sum of the Opinion given in by the Aldermen of London upon this Buſineſs of the Tradeſmen in the Suburbs, referred to them by the Commiſſioners.

The ſaid Commiſſioners did again deſire the Opinion of the Gentlemen of Middleſex, Surrey, and Eſſex in this Matter. And for the laſt named County, in May, Anno 1611. they directed their Letters to Sir Michael Hicks, Sir William Rider, and Mr. Blunt, praying them to enter into a Conſideration of the whole Matter, and of the Circumſtances thereof, and to give the Commiſſioners a Meeting at a Day appointed, viz. May 23. at the Exchequer Chamber, that with Conference with them and ſome of the Aldermen, ſome Courſe might be taken as ſhould be thought fit.

The Encreaſe of Buildings in the Suburbs forbid by Proclamation.

What further became of this Matter, I know not. But whether it were the Encouragement theſe petty Traders and Artificers met with, or the multiplying of the meaner ſort of People, that was the Cauſe, but great Numbers of Edifices were erected in the Suburbs, where before were Fields, and void Places: eſpecially on the Eaſt Parts of the City. This was at length much complained of. Inſomuch that in the Year 1580. it was thought meet to take ſome Courſe to ſtop this by the Queen's Proclamation.

Many Inconveniences are ſaid there, to be occaſioned by the daily Acceſs of People thither: As that the City could ſcarcely be well governed, by reaſon of ſuch Multitudes flocking to live there, by the old Government, without deviſing of new Juriſdictions and Officers. It was thought alſo to encreaſe a great Dearneſs of Proviſions; there being hardly ſufficient Victual and Food and other Neceſſaries for Man's Life, to be had for reaſonable Prizes, ſo many ready to conſume the Proviſions brought in. It was alſo thought to tend to the rendring of the City more ſickly, and to bring in a Mortality; the Preſervation of the People in Health ſeeming impoſſible to continue, where ſuch great Numbers were brought to dwell in ſmall Rooms. Whereof a great Part were very poor, and ſuch as muſt live of begging, or worſe means: and they heaped up together, and in a ſort ſmothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one Houſe. And the Plague or popular Sickneſs, when that might happen in the City, would [by the Contiguity of the Buildings] ſpread and invade the whole City and Confines: and ſo endanger the Queen's own Life, and the ſpreading of a Mortality over the whole Nation.

Therefore the Queen to prevent this, and moved hereunto by the Lord Maior and Aldermen, and other grave and wiſe Men in and about the City, commanded all Perſons to deſiſt and forbear from any new Buildings within three Miles from any of the Gates of the City: And to forbear from letting or ſetting, or ſuffering any more Families than one only, to be placed in any Houſe. And She charged the Lord Maior, and all other Officers having Authority in the ſame, Juſtices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Juriſdiction of the Lord Maior; to foreſee that no Perſon began to prepare any Foundation for any new Houſe; and to be prohibited and reſtrained ſo to do. But that the Perſon attempting the contrary, and all the Workmen, be committed to cloſe Priſon; there to remain without Bail, until they found good Sureties, that they ſhall not at any time attempt the like: And to ſeize all manner of Stuff brought to the Place, where ſuch Building ſhall be intended. And for the preventing this, none were to receive Inmates.

The whole Proclamation was as followeth.

The Queen's Proclamation againſt new Buildings.

‘The Queens Majeſty perceiving the State of the City of London (being anciently termed her Chamber) and the Suburbs and Confines thereof to encreaſe daily by Acceſs of People to inhabit in the ſame, in ſuch ample Sort as thereby many Inconveniences are ſeen already; but many greater of Neceſſity like to follow: Being ſuch as her Majeſty cannot neglect to remedy, having the principal Care under Almighty God to foreſee aforehand to have her People in ſuch a City and Confines, not only well governed by ordinary Juſtice, to ſerve God, and obey her Majeſty; which by Reaſon of ſuch Multitudes lately encreaſed, can hardly be done, without Device of mo new Juriſdictions and Officers for that Purpoſe, but to be alſo provided of Suſtentation of Victual, Food and other like Neceſſaries for Man's Life, upon reaſonable Prizes: without which no City can long continue. And finally, to the Preſervation of her People in Health: which may ſeem impoſſible to continue; though preſently by God's Goodneſs the ſame is perceived to be in better Eſtate univerſaily, than hath been in Mans Memory: Yet where there are ſuch great Multitudes of People brought to inhabit in ſmall Rooms; whereof a great Part are ſeen very poor; yea, ſuch as muſt live of begging, or by worſe means: and they heaped up together, and in a ſort ſmothered with many Families of Children and Servants in one Houſe or ſmall Tenement; it muſt needs follow, if any Plague or popular Sickneſs ſhould by God's Permiſſion enter among thoſe Multitudes, that the ſame would not only ſpread it ſelf and invade the whole City and Confines, as great Mortality ſhould enſue the ſame, where her Majeſty's Perſonal Preſence is many times required; Beſides the great Confluence of People from all Places of the Realm by reaſon of the ordinary Termes for Juſtice, there holden; But would be alſo diſperſed through all other Parts of the Realm, to the manifeſt Danger of the whole Body thereof. Out of which neither Her Majeſty's own Perſon can be (but by God's ſpecial Ordinance) exempted, nor any other, whatſoever they be.

‘For Remedy whereof, as Time may now ſerve, until by ſome further good Order, to be had in Parliament, or otherwiſe, the ſame may be remedied, Her Majeſty, by good and deliberate Advice of her Council; and being alſo thereto much moved by the conſiderate Opinions of the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and other the grave, wiſe Men in and about the City; Doth charge and ſtraitly command all Perſons of what Quality ſoever they be, to deſiſt and forbear from any new Buildings of any new Houſe or Tenement within three Miles of any of the Gates of the ſaid City, to ſerve for Habitation or Lodging for any Perſon, where no former Houſe hath been known to have been in Memory of ſuch as are now living: And alſo to forbear from letting or ſetting, or ſuffering any more Families, than one only, to be placed, or to inhabit from henceforth in any Houſe that heretofore hath been inhabited.

‘And for ſo univerſal a Benefit to the whole Body of the Realm, for whoſe Reſpects all particular Perſons are bound by God's Laws and Man's to forbear from their particular and extraordinary Lucre, She ſtraitly chargeth the Lord Maior and all other Officers, having Authority in the ſame; and alſo all Juſtices of Peace, Lords and Bailiffs of Liberties, not being within the Juriſdiction of the Lord Maior; to foreſee that no Perſon do begin to prepare any Foundation for any new Houſe, Tenement, but that they be prohibited and reſtrained ſo to do. And both the Perſon that ſhall ſo attempt to the contrary, and all manner of Workmen that ſhall, after warning given, continue in any ſuch Work, tending to ſuch new Building, to be committed to cloſe Priſon: And there to remain without Bail, until they ſhall find good Sureties, with Bonds for reaſonable Sums of Mony, that they ſhall not at any time attempt the like, &c. And further, the ſaid Officers ſhall ſeize all Manner of Stuff ſo (after Warning given) brought to the Place, where ſuch new Building ſhall be intended.

Inmates.

‘And for the avoiding of Multitudes of Families heaped up in one dwelling Houſe, and for the converting of any one Houſe into Multitudes, for Dwelling or Victualing Places, the ſaid Lord Maior, and all other Officers in their ſeveral Liberties ſhall commit any ſuch Perſons, giving cauſe of Offence, to cloſe Priſon. And for the Offences in this part of Encreaſe of many Indwellers, or as they be commonly termed Inmates or Underſitters, which have been ſuffered within theſe ſeven Years, contrary to the good, ancient Laws and Cuſtoms of the City, the ſaid Lord Maior, and all other the Officers ſhall ſpeedily cauſe to be redreſt in their ordinary Courts Lawdays, between this and the Feaſt of All Saints next. Within which time ſuch Underſitters, or Inmates may provide themſelves other Places abroad in the Realm: where many Houſes reſt uninhabited, to the Decay of divers ancient good Boroughs and Towns, &c. Given at Noneſuch, the 7th of July 1580. in the 22d Year of her Majeſty's Reign.

The Lord Treaſurer makes a Speech againſt the new Buildings.

This Proclamation could not hinder this ſtrong Propenſion in the People towards building new Houſes. So that in the Year 1583, notice was taken anew of it; and that in ſome very publick manner, and ſome Perſon puniſh'd for it, as it ſeems, in the Star Chamber: For both the Lord Treaſurer of England made a Speech againſt it, and Sergeant Fleetwood the Recorder made another learned one. The former mentioned the Queens Proclamation, and how it was grounded upon a great number of Caſes, to avoid great Inconveniences; partly for Preſervation of Her Majeſty's Perſon; for Suſtentation of her Subjects with Victuals; for preſervation from the Plague. The Offences were evident; firſt, In the Officers that have ſuffered them. The Example was needful, to puniſh the Offenders. That this was Her Majeſty's own Complaint. And that it was Her ſpecial Command to puniſh the Offenders, and to remedy the Offences. Theſe Buildings were the Complaint of all Officers [by reaſon of many Miſdemeanors:] Occaſioned the encreaſe of the Plague; created a Trouble in governing ſuch Multitudes: a Dearth of Victuals; multiplying of Beggars, and Inability to relieve them: An encreaſe of Artizans in number more than could live together: Impoveriſhing of other Cities for lack of Inhabitants. It made lack of Air, Lack of Room, to walk, to ſhoot, &c. And Encreaſe of People to rob the Queen's Cuſtoms. Theſe were the Heads of the Lord Treaſurer's Speech.

The Lawyer's Speech againſt the new Buildings.

The Speech of the other Lawyer, the Recorder, arguing learnedly in Point of Law, ran to this Tenor: ‘That it was an ancient Principle in Law, that Tenant in Fee ſimple of Lands and Tenements, may either build or pull down at his free Will. And yet is the ſame Principle qualified by a Rule of the Common Law: the which is, Sic utere tui, ut alienum non lædas. i. e. So uſe your own, that you hurt not another. That among the magnalia Coronæ, there were no ſuch Prerogatives as are Leges Foreſtæ [i. e. the ‘Laws of the Foreſt.] By the Foreſt Laws, if a Man build any Houſe whatſoever within the Foreſt, without the King's Licenſe, or the Licence of the Lord of the Foreſt; the ſame being preſented at the Swaine Mote, and opened at the Juſtice Seat, may juſtly be defaced by due Courſe of Law, and pulled down, and the Builder impriſoned, and rawnſoned for his Treſpaſs. Here ye ſee that Tenant in Fee ſimple may not deal with his Lands as he liſt, but ſecundum Leges & Conſuetudines Locorum, i. e. according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of Places. I do remember that in the Time of King Edward the Firſt, the Lords of the Parliament, being moved by the King to deviſe a Law, that the King might have Power to inhibit the bearing of Armour among his Subjects, the Parliament concluded that it was not meet to eſtabliſh any ſuch Law: for that it was a Prerogative inſeparable from the Crown; and the King by his Prerogative Law might take ſuch Direction therein, as by his Wiſdom he ſhould think convenient. If this Prerogative Law were executed, then ſhould we not daily meet ſuch an infinite Number of Sword-bearers within this City of London, and Weſtminſter Hall. And yet there be ſuch as have not ſtuck to ſay, that neither the Queens Highneſs could by any Law either inhibit Building, or the Portage of Armour.

‘By the Records of the Pipe it appeareth, that We of London do pay for the City a Feefarm, and that we are Tenants in Feefarm of the Room ground, viz. of ſuch Places as Smithfield is, and of all the Streets and ſuch like Places in London; yea, and alſo of all the Gates, Bulwarks, Walls, Ditches, and alſo, of London Bridge itſelf. And therefore we being Tenants in Fee may pluck down, alter, change and deface the Walls, the the Ditches, the Gates, the Bulwarks, the Poſterns, the Room Lands, the Streets, the Thames Banks, and the Bridge itſelf. This is not true. For that, the Laws of the Crown have ſuch Intereſt over the City of London, and over all the Members thereof, that We may do none of theſe Things without the Licence of the Crown. As appears in Anno 5to of Henry VI. Wherein Licence was given to the Executors of Whittington to pluck down, and newly to reedifie the Priſon Houſe in Newgate.

‘In London, Houſes are to be pulled down with Engines, Hooks and Ladders, provided for that Purpoſe. And this is by the common Laws of the Realm. And this is for avoiding of the Rage of Fire.

‘In London, by the Law for avoiding of Inconveniences, where the Plague is in any Houſe, the Inhabitants thereof are to be ſhut up within the Houſe. And this juſtifiable by Law.

‘In London, by the Law no Man may build, or make a Reredorſe for the Fire of Charcoals within any Houſe, but he ſhall be impriſoned and fined; and alſo the Reredorſe to be defaced.

‘In London, Tallow Chaundlers may not melt their Tallow in their own dwelling Houſes, for annoying of their Neighbours.

‘In London, Flaxwives, for fear of Fire; Coriers, for their Stynche; Inholders, cum ſuis fimis, [i. e. with their Dunges] are inhibited. And this is by the Common Law, and not by any private Cuſtom.

‘Aſſemblies of Markets, of Faires, of Courts unlawfully uſurped, are puniſhable, except they have the Kings Charters for the ſame.

‘A fortiori, it muſt needs be, that to erect new Buildings, and to make new Streets with houſing, may not be ſuffered without Licenſe of the Queen. And eſpecially where the ſame doth tend to the Overthrow of the City of London, being the chief Chamber of the Imperial Crown.

‘St. Myghels Lane in Lymeſtreet was ſtopt and and mured up. And the Inhabitants there dwelling were driven to ſeek Houſes elſewhere. For cauſe Felons and Harlots were there received in the Night Seaſon.

‘So was the Lane from Bevys Marks unto Algate, between Chriſts Church and the Walls of London, ſhut up for the ſame Cauſe. And ſo have been divers other Lanes within London. And all by the Kings Commaundment.

‘What can be a freer Thing than the Body of a Freeman. And yet by the Law, if he be a Lazar, by the Queens Writ de Leproſo removendo, he ſhall be removed from his dwelling Houſe unto a Lazar Houſe out of the City.

‘By the Laws of the Corone inter Capitula Eſcaetrie, if a Man do build a Caſtle or a Houſe of Stone, or if any other Thing, and do embattel the ſame, it ſhall be inquired of by the Exchetor; and after abated; although the Builder be Tenant in Fee ſimple of the ſame.

‘In the 20 H. 8. Biſhop Fecy [Vezy] of Exeter, purchaſed a great Chace and a Lordſhip in Warwyckſhire; and there builded a Town and did People the ſame. But this was done by Licence.

‘For the Preſervation of the King, his Corone and Realm, the King may by the Common Law make Caſtles and Bulwarks upon any Mans Ground, for the Defence of the Realm. Even ſo may the King deface any Buildings, that may be for his Safety. As it was done, when the New Foreſt was firſt made.

‘The Commiſſions for ſuppreſſing of Hedges, Ditches and other ſuch Incloſures, to the Hindrance of Artillery, are granted by the King. And yet are the Owners of the Lands, Tenants in Fee ſimple.

‘By the Laws of the City, if any Man build within ſixteen Foot of the Walls, the building ſhall be pulled down, &c.

This Diſcourſe breaks off thus abruptly.

But yet after all this, it was found, that the Law was too ſhort, to pull down Houſes that were already built. And all they could do was to inflict Puniſhment upon ſuch as had built contrary to the Queens Proclamation. And now was another Stop put to the new Buildings, whereſoever they were in hand with. And among the reſt, a Building of an hundred and ten Foot that began upon Wappin Wall by one William Page.

Another Stop put to new Buildings.

But ſuch Flocking there was notwithſtanding to the City continually, and ſuch Numbers of People (and they for the moſt Part Idle, Vagrant Perſons) harbouring themſelves in it, filling the Houſes with Inmates, that the Queens Succeſſor, King James the Firſt, in the firſt Year of his Reign, ſet forth his Proclamation againſt Inmates and Multitudes of Dwellers, in ſtrait Rooms and Places in and about the City of London: And for the razing and pulling down of certain new erected Buildings. Which Proclamation (occaſioned by the Plague that was this Year in the City) followeth.

Inmates more and more in the City.

‘WHEREAS it falleth out by woful Experience, that the great Confluence and Acceſs of exceſſive Numbers of idle, indigent, diſſolute and dangerous Perſons, and the peſtring of many of them in the ſmall and ſtrait Rooms and Habitations in the City of London, and in and about the Suburbs of the ſame, have been one of the chiefeſt Occaſions of the great Plague and Mortality; which hath not only moſt extremely abounded in and about the ſaid City and Suburbs thereof, and eſpecially in ſuch ſtrait Rooms and Places, and among Perſons of ſuch Quality: but alſo from

A Proclamation againſt them, Anno 1603.

‘thence hath moſt dangerouſly overſpread and infected very many principal and other Parts of this Realm, (which Almighty God ceaſe at his good Pleaſure) His Majeſty tendring the Safety of his loving Subjects, and minding as much as in himſelf lyeth, to avoid the Continuance, or renewing of ſuch Mortality, doth by the Advice of his Privy Council, not only ſtraitly require and command, that his Majeſty's good and profitable Orders and Directions already publiſhed for the ſtaying, if God ſo pleaſe, of the ſame Infection, be carefully, ſpeedily and duly executed; but alſo doth ſtraitly prohibit and forbid, that no new Tenants or Inmates or other Perſons, be admitted to inhabit or reſide in any ſuch Houſe or Place in the ſaid City, Suburb, or within four Miles of the ſame, who have been ſo infected during the Continuance of this Plague or Mortality in or about the ſaid City: Nor after, until ſuch time as it ſhall be thought ſafe and expedient by the principal Officers there for the Time being, &c.

‘And the Aldermen and their Deputies, and every Juſtice of the Peace, to take ſpecial Care, that none of the foreſaid Rooms, Houſes or Places be hereafter peſtred with Multitude of Dwellers, or with any Inmates. And that ſuch of the ſaid Rooms, Houſes or Places, as by any Proclamation heretofore publiſhed are ordered to be razed or pulled down, ſhall forthwith, the ſame being now void, or as the ſame ſhall hereafter become void, be razed and pulled down, accordingly. And being once pulled down, that they ſuffer not any of the ſame to be newly erected, &c. Given at his Majeſty's Manour of Woodſtock the ſixteenth Day of September in the firſt Year of Our Reign.

Penalties upon new Buildings, Anno 1656.

Theſe Buildings in the Suburbs of later Times, were taken notice of in a Parliament Anno 1656. and an Act was then made for the preventing the Multiplicity of Buildings in and about the Suburbs and within ten Miles thereof. The Preamble ſets forth, how theſe New Buildings, Outhouſes and Cottages were found to be miſchievous and inconvenient, and a great Annoyance aud Nuſance to the Commonwealth: and that divers Prohibitions heretofore had been made to the contrary: And yet the growing Evil was multiplied and encreaſed. So that there was a Neceſſity to take ſome further ſpeedy Courſe for the Redreſs. That by the Law the ſaid Houſes and Nuſances ought to be abated, and the Builders, Occupiers and Tenants fined, which if executed, might be the undoing of many Men. The Act now ran, that for every Dwelling-houſe, Outhouſe, or any other Building erected within the Suburbs, or any other Place within ten Miles of the Walls of the City, ſince the 25th of March, 1620. and not having four Acres of Land at leaſt, according to the Statute de terris menſurandis, continually therewith uſed, occupied and enjoyed, there ſhould be paid, for the Uſe of the Commonwealth, one Years Rent at the full and improved Yearly Value; To be paid by the immediate Tenant or Tenants, or Occupier of ſuch Houſes at a wrackt Rent: And after ſuch Payment to be for ever acquitted and diſcharged from ſuch Fine, Penalty or Forfeiture, as they were liable to looſe, or pay for the Building. And all that ſhould after this build any Houſe or Cottage upon a new Foundation within the ſaid Suburbs or within ten Miles ſhould forfeit the intire Sum of 100 l. And every Perſon that ſhould uphold and continue ſuch new erected Houſe, to forfeit for the Uſe of the Poor of the Pariſh, where ſuch Offence ſhould be committed, the Sum of 20 l. for every Month that any ſuch Houſe ſhould be upheld or continued.

But to proceed to a particular View of the Suburbs, with the ſpreading Buildings, notwithſtanding the Oppoſitions, made as we have heard, thereto.

A Proclamation againſt dangerous Annoyances, Anno 1590.

Another Matter that required Remedy and Regulation, in theſe Suburbs eſpecially, was this. It was cuſtomary for the People to carry their Filth, as Intrails of dead Beaſts and other noiſome Things, and to throw them into the Ditches, Waters, Fields and Highways, whereby the Air was in Danger of being corrupted: and ſo to create Infectious Diſeaſes in the City. This gave occaſion in the Year 1590. to the reviving of an old Act of Parliament in the Reign of King Richard the Second, which was at large ſet forth in the Queens Proclamation. Which Filth was upon a Penalty to be forthwith carried away. And it was thought convenient, that the Notice of it ſhould extend not only to the City, but to all the Cities and Boroughs in the Kingdom. It followeth.

A Proclamation, commanding the Execution of an Act of Parliament, provided for avoiding of dangerous Annoyances about Cities, Boroughs and Towns within the Realm.

Statute 12 R. 2 about them.

‘THE Queen underſtanding, that by a Statute made the twelfth Year of King Richard the Second, it was enacted that for ſo much Dung and other Filth of the Iſſues and Entrails, as well of Beaſts killed, as of other Corruptions, were caſt and put into Ditches, Rivers and other Waters; and alſo within many other Places within, about and nigh unto divers Cities, Boroughs and Towns, and the Suburbs of them; that the Air was thereby greatly corrupted and infected; and many Maladies and other intolerable Diſeaſes did daily happen, as well to the Inhabitants, and alſo Dwellers in the ſame Cities, and Boroughs, &c. as to others, thither repairing and paſſing: It was accorded and aſſerted, that Proclamation ſhould be made, as well in the City of London, as in other Cities, Boroughs and Towns throughout the Realm of England: And that all which did caſt and put in Annoyances, Dung, Iſſues, Entrails and other Ordure, in Ditches, Rivers, Waters, and other Places, ſhould cauſe them to be removed, avoided and carried away between that and the Feaſt of Michaelmas next enſuing, every one upon Pain to loſe and to forfeit unto the ſaid King 20 l. And that the Maior and Bailiff of every ſuch City, Borough, &c. ſhould compel the ſame to be done upon like Pain.

‘And moreover that Proclamation ſhould be made in the City of London, as in other Cities, Boroughs, Towns, &c. that none ſhould do, to be ſet or thrown from thenceforth any ſuch Annoyances, &c. And if any did, he ſhould be called by Writ before the Lord Chancellor.

The Money for whoſe Maintanance, (both Miſtreſs and Girls) they hoped to raiſe chiefly from the well diſpoſed Gentlewomen of the Pariſh.

Charity School Boys; And Girls.

When founded.

This Charitable Society began about 30 Years ago; the Members then agreeing among themſelves to ſet up a Monthly Sermon for Preparation to the Sacrament, and for a Collection then to be made at the Church Door, and the Money to be diſtributed to poor Houſekeepers or others, not maintained by Penſion from the Pariſh. Afterwards they converted this Money for the keeping poor Pariſhioners Children at School. Which they continue commendably to this Day.

Wappin is to this Day chiefly inhabited by Seafaring Men, and Tradeſmen dealing in Commodities for the Supply of Shipping, and Shipmen. It ſtands exceeding thick with Buildings, and is very populous; having been very much improved by human Induſtry. For this Place and the Parts about it were formerly one great Waſh, covered with the Waters of the Thames. Afterwards, it was by Pains and Art, gained from the River, and made a Marſh or Meddow Ground, commonly called Wappin Marſhes: and was defended from the Irruptions of the Thames by Walls; which were very chargeable in the continual maintaining of the ſame. And between the Years 1560 and 1570, the Force of the Water was ſuch, that it brake the Wall in ſundry Places and overflowed the whole Marſhes. About the Year 1580, or thereabouts, the moſt Part of theſe Marſhes came to the Queen, that then Reigned in Extent, till a great Sum of Money ſhould be paid: and She rented out the ſame.

Wappin a great Waſh at firſt. How built.

J. S.

The Rents here being ſomewhat uncertain by the Breaches of the River into the Grounds about 1571. when the Water had again broke in, a View was made by the Commiſſioners of Sewers; who thought it neceſſary, that the Walls ſhould be builded upon by any who would. Whereupon many took Land upon the Walls to build. And among the reſt one William Page: who took a Leaſe of an hundred and ten Foot of the Wall, and laid the Foundation of his Building, and beſtowed a great Sum of Money in making the Wall very ſtrong; and in building to the ſtrong Defence of the ſaid Marſhes, and Commodity and Eaſe of the Repairers and Maintainers of the ſaid Wall. But in the Year 1583. the Queen iſſuing out a Proclamation for ſtopping all new Buildings, this Building was hindred for a Time: and Page was fain to make an humble Petition, and ſet forth his Caſe to the Lord Treaſurer: and praying his Allowance to go on with his Building: ſhewing how it would be a Benefit to her Majeſty, in Continuance of her Rent; and that it was not hurtful to any; and that his Building began before the Proclamation. But what Succeſs Pages Petition had, I am not able to ſay: but it appears it afterwards went forward, ſince all the Wall is now thick built upon.]

Building upon the Walls of Wappin.

Friday the 24th of July 1629. King Charles having hunted a Stagg or Hart from Wanſted in Eſſex, killed him in Nightingale Lane, in the Hamlet of Wappin, in a Garden belonging to one —— who had ſome Damage among his Herbs, by Reaſon the Multitude of People there aſſembled ſuddenly.

A Stag kill'd in Nightingale Lane.

In this Hamlet of Wappin, was builded Anno 1626. a large Houſe of Timber by Maſter William Turner, Gentleman, Maſter George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others, for the making of Allom; which grew to ſuch an Inconvenience through the Annoyance that was with boyling of Urine and other Materials, by Reaſon of the ill ſavour of it, and the excrement of it being found to be Annoyance to the River of Thames, that upon the Complaint of the Inhabitants to the King and Council, it was proceeded withal, as appeareth:

An Allom Houſe built in Wappin.

An Annoyance.

The ſixteenth of July 1627. being Munday, and the Tide being near a low Water, about Eight of the Clock in the Evening of the ſame Day, there was a Lighter of Allom Greaſe lying in the Hermitage Dock, which was taken out of a Ship, lying there overthwart the Mouth of the Dock. And upon the emptying of the Water (out of the Lighter) which iſſued from the Greaſe, there did ariſe a moſt noyſome ſtinking Scum of a frothy Subſtance, and did ſpread all about the Mouth of the Dock, and run down into the Thames: and there was a Veſſel cauſed to be filled with it, and it did ſo ſtink, that we were not able to endure the Scent of it, inſomuch that it endangered all the Wells and Ponds thereabouts: This was ſeen and done in the Preſence of theſe under written.

The Inhabitants alſo put up this Petition to the Juſtices againſt this Allome Houſe, as followeth:

To the Right Worſhipful His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Middleſex, and Commiſſioners for Annoyances, and to all other His Majeſty's Officers, whom in this Caſe it ſhall concern,

WE His Majeſty's loving Subjects inhabiting within the Pariſh of Whitechapel, in the County of Middleſex, and St. Botolphs without Aldgate, London, and in the Hamlets of Stepney, Wappin, Eaſt Smithfield, and St. Catharines near the Tower of London, finding and being continually choaked and poyſoned up with the daily and continual Stink, and moſt noiſome and infectious Smell that is lately begun amongſt us, by a Workhouſe for making of Allome (as is reported) by Mr. William Turner, Mr. George Lowe, and Mr. Thomas Jones, and others, erected at the Weſt end of Wappin, adjoining upon the River of Thames, and near unto the Tower of London, and to His Majeſty's Storehouſe on Tower Hill, where the Proviſion for His Highneſs's Shiping is daily provided; Do humbly ſhew, That we find that the noiſome Smell that cometh of the making of the ſaid Allome (which we ſuppoſe to be Urine, and ſuch other infectious Materials, being long kept, and then boiled for the uſe aforeſaid) doth breed and make ſuch an infectious and moſt noiſome Smell amongſt us, that we are not able to live in our Houſes, nor to keep our Families at work about us, the deteſtable Stink thereof is ſo infectious and intolerable now this Winter Time (much more will it be in the Heat of Summer:) So that if ſpeedy Redreſs thereof be not had, we ſhall not be able to continue our Habitations there, wherein we have long time lived. And it is generally thought it will be a decay and dangerous Infection to all Inhabitants both on this ſide and the other ſide the Water, within two Miles compaſs of the Place it ſtandeth; for the Stink thereof (as the Wind ſtandeth) is further ſmelled, both by Land and Water: and daily Complaint made thereof. And now there is begun but two or three Furnaces, but ſhortly there will be many more Furnaces made there, to the further great Damage and Annoyance of his Majeſty's Subjects, which we humble refer to your Worſhips grave Conſideration, humbly deſiring your ſpeedy Aid and Reformation herein, otherwiſe we ſhall be compelled to leave our Houſes and Dwellings to our utter undoings: for the noyſome Smell is ſo dangerous, that no Man will dwell thereabouts, if he might have his Houſe Rent free: And we as bound ſhall daily pray for your Worſhips.

To the Kings moſt excellent Majeſty.

The Inhabitants Petition to the King.

The humble Petition of your Majeſty's Liege People and Subjects, being in number many Thouſands, inhabiting within one Mile compaſs of your Majeſty's Tower of London, within Middleſex and Surrey, and the Borough of Southwark.

Moſt humbly ſheweth,

THat whereas of late divers Rooms have been newly erected in the Pariſh of St. Mary Matfellon, commonly called Whitechapel, in the County of Middleſex, by William Turner, Gentleman, George Low, Gentleman, and Thomas Jones, Gentleman, and others, near unto many great Brewhouſes, which breweth Beer for the Uſe and Service of your Majeſty's Navy, and for divers within London and Middleſex: which ſaid Rooms have been ever ſince their firſt erection imployed for boyling of Urine, for making of Allome, which hath and doth daily caſt ſo noyſome a Savour and evil Air to all the Parts thereabouts, and to all Paſſengers that Way, or by the River of Thames, that they are in no Sort able to endure the ſame, nor their dwelling Houſes by Reaſon thereof, and the ſame hath hath already caſt many of them into Extremity of great Sickneſſes and Diſeaſes, by which evil and unwholeſome Savour, of late many Fiſhes in the Thames there near unto, have been found ready to die, and dead, ſuppoſed to be poyſoned by ſome ill Subſtance iſſuing into the River of Thames: and all the Inhabitants thereabouts are much annoyed, and all the Paſture Ground lying near thereabouts is tainted and ſpoiled in ſuch Manner that the Cattel do refuſe to feed on the ſame. And they further humbly ſhew, that they having preferred their Grievances unto your Majeſty's Commiſſioners of Annoyances, and having cauſed the ſame to be preſented unto them by Indictment, by ſeveral Jurors, ſworn upon Oath before your Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, in their general Seſſions for Middleſex, upon due Proof and the Teſtimony of Witneſſes there alſo ſworn and examined, upon which Evidences the ſaid Jurors have given up ſeveral Verdicts, and preſented upon their Oaths the ſame Annoyance to be exceeding great and intolerable to all Inhabitants dwelling thereabouts, and to all other Paſſengers by the ſame, or upon the River of Thames: Yet your Petitioners having no Redreſs thereby, are compelled by extreme Neceſſity to complain unto your Majeſty, and with much Grief and with all Humility beſeech your Majeſty to take to Conſideration the ſpeedy Redreſs in that behalf, the ſame Annoyance being ſo great and unſavoury, that otherwiſe your poor Subjects, being many thouſands in Number, ſhall be compelled to forſake their Houſes, and abandon their Dwellings, to the Loſs of their Trades and Lives, and the utter undoing of them aud their Families.

Wherefore they moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty to commit the Examination thereof unto the Right Honourable Thomas Earl of Cleveland, Sir Allen Apſley, Knight, Lieutenant of the Tower, Sir Henry Spiller, Knight, Thomas Sanderſon, and George Long, Eſquires, or any three or two of them, or any others, being Juſtices and Commiſſioners of Annoyances within the ſaid County of Middleſex: who by Your Majeſty's gracious Reference being thereunto required, may examine and hear the Allegations on all Parts: And that upon the Certificate of their Opinions therein, Your Majeſty will be pleaſed to vouchſafe your poor Subjects ſuch Relief as the Caſe requireth.

And the Petitioners, according to their bounden Duties and Legiance ſhall daily pray for Your Majeſty's long and proſperous Reign over us.

The Councils Order about theſe Allome Works.

WHereas upon a Complaint formerly made by divers Aldermen of the City of London, on the Behalf of the Inhabitants of the Pariſhes of St. Buttolphs Aldgate, and divers other Pariſhes thereabouts, concerning a great Annoyance unto the ſaid Inhabitants, cauſed by certain Allome Works, erected thereabouts by His Majeſty's Farmers of the ſaid Works: It was by an Order of the twentieth of this preſent Month ordered, that the Preſident of the College of Phyſicians, accompanied with ſix other Doctors of Phyſick of that Society, as likewiſe, that ſome of the Aldermen ſhould upon View of the ſaid Works, and ſuch Obſervations by them made as falls within their Experience, return Certificate to the Boord, of their Opinions touching the ſame: Foraſmuch as thoſe whoſe Names are here under written, did this Day accordingly make their Certificate in writing to the Boord, as followeth; In hæc verba: 'May it pleaſe your Lordſhips, according to an Order of this Honourable Boord of the twentieth of July laſt; We have viewed and obſerved the Allome Works at St. Katharines, and conſidered the Materials therein uſed and imployed. And thereupon do humbly certifie unto your Lordſhips, and are of Opinion, that the Works ſtanding in that Place, muſt neceſſarily breed great Annoyances both to the near Inhabitants, and by the ſpreading Vapours from thence iſſuing to many Places more remote, and to all ſuch Paſſengers as either by Land or by Water have Occaſion to frequent thoſe Parts, not only by their continual noyſome Savours to make all their Habitations grievous and unpleaſant, but alſo by their putrid Qualisy to endanger their Healths: And ſo we humbly reſt at your Lordſhips Commands, July the 24th. An. 1627. Signed, John Argent, Preſ. John Gifford, William Harvey, William Clement, Robert Flud, Samuel Baskernite, Ottuel Meverel, and by Hugh Hamerſley. Their Lordſhips upon Conſideration had thereof, did reſolve, that the ſaid Allome Works in and about the City, were fit to to be ſuppreſt. Nevertheleſs, for that a Petition was now preſented to the Boord by the Farmers of the ſaid Allome Works, ſhewing that it was not poſſible for them to erect and finiſh any new Works in the Countoy before our Lady day next, and that if they ſhould be reſtrained from working here in the mean time, the Kingdom would be unſerved of Allom, of which there is great Uſe, and they likewiſe diſabled to pay his Majeſty's rent. And therefore beſought the Boord that they might have leave to proceed in their making of Allome here until our Lady day next as aforeſaid. It was thereupon thought fit and ordered that they ſhould be at Liberty to make Allome in thoſe Places where their Works are already erected until our Lady day next only and no longer; and that in the mean time they preſume not to erect any other Works in any Places in or about this City. Provided nevertheleſs that they ſuffer not the Dregs and Excrement proceeding from the boyling and making of the ſaid Allome to be caſt or fall into any Places leading into the River of Thames, but that they cauſe the ſame from time to time to be either buried in the Night time in the Grounds where their Works now are, or otherwiſe to be carried and buried in the Night time in ſome other convenient Place, where the ſame may breed no Infection or Annoyance to any his Majeſty's Subjects.

Another Order of Council about the ſame Matter.

WHereas an humble Petition was this Day exhibited to the Boord in the Name of the Inhabitants of the Pariſhes of St. Buttolphs near Aldgate, St. Katharines, White Chapel, Stepney, Redriff, St. Olaves, and others adjacent and near his Majeſty's Tower of London: Shewing, that whereas it had pleaſed the Boord (on the 27th of July laſt, after divers Hearings and Reports made by ſix Doctors of the College of Phyſitians of London) to order that the Farmers of his Majeſty's Allome Works (who had tranſported themſelves out of the Northern Parts of the Kingdom near unto his Majeſty's Royal Chamber and City of London) ſhould ſhould not preſume to erect any other Work in or about, nor ſuffer the Dregs or Excrement of the boiling of Allome to be caſt or fall into the River of Thames, but bury the ſame in the Night time in ſome convenient Place where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance; yet nevertheleſs that ſithence the making of the ſaid Order, and eſpecially on the ſixteenth of Auguſt laſt, the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies or Aſſigns, have in Contempt of the Order powred or cauſed the ſaid Filth, Dregs or Excrements to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames: whereby ſome of the Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for brewing ſo tainted with the Taſt and Savour of Allome excrement, as that within a very ſhort Space the Fiſh have been poiſoned, and the Water altogether unwholeſome, for brewing or any other Uſe, as by Certificate under divers of the ſaid Petitioners Hands, the chief Officers and Inhabitants of the Tower, appeared, And therefore humbly prayed Redreſs of the growing Miſchief and dangerous Contagion proceeding from the ſaid Allome Works, ſeconded with a preſumptuous Contempt of the ſaid Order of the Boord: To the End that by a ſudden Reformation the Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be ſuffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours occaſioned by the ſaid Allome Works. The Boord taking this Complaint into their due and ſerious Conſideration and finding that the former Order of the Boord was not obſerved, as is before mentioned, and that the Annoyance cauſed hereby, extendeth it ſelf to the Extreme Parts of the City, and even ſo far as his Majeſty's Court, when the Wind ſitteth that Way (which cannot but be of dangerous Conſequence by corrupting of both the Air and the Water, whereof Beer is made for his Majeſty's Service and otherwiſe:) thought fit and ordered that the ſaid Allome Works ſhould be preſently ſuppreſſed from working, and utterly removed by the Farmers or others whom it may concern, within a convenient time, notwithſtanding the former Order, (which on their Parts have not been obſerved) and that ſome one of the Meſſengers of his Majeſty's Chamber ſhall be ſent with a Tranſcript of this their Lordſhips Order, to the Farmers or Deputies tf the ſaid Work, and ſee the ſame duly executed; and of the Performance thereof to give Account to their Lordſhips within ten or twelve Dayi after the Date hereof. And of this their Lordſhips Order as well the ſaid Farmers and the Meſſenger, as others whom it may concern, are to take Notice, and to regulate themſelves accordingly, as they will anſwer the contrary.

Fiſh poiſoned by the Allome Excrement: and Water for brewing tainted.

To the Right Honourable Lords, and others of His Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy Council.

The humble Petition of the Inhabitants of St. Botolphs Aldgate, St. Katharines, Whitechapel, Stepney, Redriffe, St. Olaves, and others, adjacent and near His Majeſty's Tower of London.

Another Petition to the Lords againſt theſe Allome Works.

WHereas it pleaſed this Honourable Board, the 27th of July laſt, after divers Hearings, and a Report made by ſix Doctors being of the College of Phyſicians London, to order that the Farmers of his Majeſty's Allome Works (who had tranſplanted themſelves out of the North Parts near unto his Majeſty's Royal Chamber and City of London) ſhould not preſume to erect any other Works in or about the ſame, nor ſuffer the Dregs or Excrement proceeding of the boiling of Allome to be caſt or fall into the River ef Thames, but to bury the ſame in the Night Time, where it might not breed any Infection or Annoyance.

But ſo it is, Right Honourable, that divers Times, Sithence the Order of this Honourable Boord, but eſpecially upon the 16th of this Inſtant Auguſt, the ſaid Farmers, their Deputy or Aſſigns, have, in Contempt of the ſaid Order, powred or cauſed the ſaid Filth, Dregs or Excrement to fall into the Ponds or Ditches leading to the Thames: whereby ſome of your Petitioners have found their Wells of Water appointed for Brewing ſo tainted and grownered with the Taſt and Savour of Allome excrement, as that within three Hours after about forty Fiſhes were apparently found poiſoned, as by the annexed Certificate appeareth.

For Redreſs of which growing Miſchief and dangerous Contagion, ſeconded with a preſumptuous Contempt of your honourable Order, as formerly, the Petitioners fly to this honourable Boord, beſeeching a ſodain Reformation: To the End that your Petitioners may enjoy the Benefit of the Air, and not be ſuffocated with the horrid and putrid Savours, proceeding from the ſaid Allome Works.

And the Petitioners ſhall be (as ever) bound to pray for your Honours. 1627.

Certificate about it.

We his Majeſty's Subjects whoſe Names are ſubſcribed, do for a Truth certifie and will be ready to depoſe, that Sithence the 25th Day of July laſt, the Allome Farmers or their Aſſigns, have erected new Erections at or near Wapping, where there Allome Works are: And that upon the 16th Day of this Inſtant Month of Auguſt, by means of the Excrement or Filth falling or being caſt and waſhed out of the ſaid Allome Works, by the flowing of the River of Thames, was carried into Wells belonging to Brewers thereabouts; and where divers poor People for their means, do reſort, and from thence do carry Water to divers Houſes, and to dreſs their Meat and Diet for their Families; As by Example, at that Time into one Well or Pond of one Joſeph Jaques, a Brewer near thereunto, where Eeles, and other Fiſhes, to the Number of forty and upwards, which within three Hours after, therein were ſuffocated and poiſoned, in the Preſence of theſe Certificats.

WHereas by an Order of this Boord, made in July laſt, for Reaſons in the ſaid Order mentioned, the Allome Works were ſuffered to be in thoſe Places near London, where they were then erected, until our Lady day next only and no longer; And afterwards the twelfth of September laſt, for Contempts, in not purſuing the ſaid Order of the 25th of July, and for Prevention of growing Miſchief that might come by by Sufferance of the ſaid Allome Works, it was ordered that the ſaid Allome Works ſhould be preſently ſuppreſſed, and removed; which being not as yet done, altho' the Farmers of the ſaid Works have ſought out other Places, whither to remove the ſaid Works: Now the Boord upon the Petition of the Company of Dyers, being informed, that in theſe Times of Wars, and Danger, the Dyers and other Artificers uſing Allome cannot be furniſhed with that Commodity, from any other Perſons, or Places, but only from the Farmers aforeſaid, and their Magazines: And that the ſaid Artificers, for want thereof ſhall be forced to give over their Trades to the great Damage of the Commonweale: And the ſaid Farmers informing, that by Reaſon of ſome Shipwracks, and the Danger of Paſſages from out of the North hither, they have failed, nor cannot bring their Allomes hither to London, as they were wont: In Conſideration of all which; and for that their Lordſhips do conceive, that the ſaid Works will be leſs offenſive to the Inhabitants dwelling in thoſe Parts in this Winter Seaſon, the Boord hath thought fit and ordered, that the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies, and Aſſigns, ſhall be permitted, until our Lady Day next, according to the Permiſſion given by the former Order of the 25th of July, to convert the Materials now upon their Hands into Allome, at their Houſe in St. Katharines, erected for that Purpoſe, and to ſell the ſame, for the Uſe of his Majeſty's Subjects: And preſently upon our Lady Day next to remove the ſaid Works to ſome other Place more remote from the City of London, and the Suburbs thereof. And it is ordered, that in the mean while the ſaid Farmers, their Deputies and Aſſigns, or ſome of them, ſhall ſeek, and find out ſome convenient Place for their ſaid Works, and ſignifie unto the Boord of what Place they have made Choice: to the End they may have their Lordſhips Allowance and Approbation, for their Settlement in the ſame. Whereof all Perſons whom it may concern, are to take Knowledge, and accordingly to govern themſelves, as they and every of them will anſwer the contrary at their Perils. Provided always, and it is hereby willed and commanded, that all things elſe required and ſet down to be done by the ſaid Farmers, in either of the ſaid Orders, before mentioned, concerning the Excrement of the Allome, and otherwiſe whatſoever, be duly obſerved and performed by the ſaid Farmers of the ſaid Allome Works.

Now to proceed on the Eaſt ſide, and by North of the Tower, lieth Eaſt Smithfield, Hogs ſtreet, and Tower Hill; and Eaſt from them both, was the new Abbey called of Grace, founded by Edward the Third. From thence towards Radcliff, up Eaſt Smithfield, by Nightingal Lane, (which runneth South by the Hermitage, a Brewhouſe, ſo called of an Hermite ſometime being there: beyond this Lane to the Mannor of Bramley (called in the Record of Richard the Second, Villa Eaſt Smithfield, and Villa de Bramley) and to the Manour of Shadwel, belonging to the Dean of Pauls, there hath been raiſed, in Place of Elm Trees many ſmall Tenements towards Radcliff: And Radcliff it ſelf hath been ſo encreaſed in Building Eaſtward (in Place where I have known a large Highway, with long Rows of Elm and other Trees on both ſides) that the ſame have now taken hold of Lime Hurſt, or Lime Hoſt, it ſelf, (corruptly called Lime Houſe) ſometime diſtant a Mile from Radcliff.

An antient burying Place in Radcliff.

J. S.
Camdeni Annal. Apparat. p. 20.

Here in Radcliff was (near an Hundred Years ago) a leaden Coffin digged up and two or three Urns found with a Piece of Money, inſcribed thus on one ſide: Imp. PUPIENUS MAXIMUS P. F. Auguſt. And on the other ſide, Hands joined and this Motto, PATRES SENATUS.

A Roman Lady buried here.

Antiq. London. Wevers Mon. p. 30.

Sir Robert Cotton, the Learned Antiquarian diſcovered in Radcliff Field the Monument of a Proprætor's Wife: which Biſhop Stillingfleet takes Notice of from Wevers Monuments. Which Relation of that induſtrious Man deſerveth here to be tranſcribed at length: ‘Within the Pariſh of Stepney in Middleſex, in Radcliff Field, where they take Ballaſt for Ships, about ſome fourteen or fifteen Years ago [that is Anno 1614 or 1615] were found two Monuments, the one of Stone, wherein were the Bones of a Man, the other a Cheſt of Lead, the upper Part being garniſhed with Scallop Shells, and a crotiſter Border. At the Head of the Coffin, and the Foot, there were two Jars of a three Foot Length, ſtanding, and on the Sides a Number of Bottles of gliſtering red Earth, ſome painted; and many great Viols of Glaſs, ſome ſix, ſome eight Square, having a whitiſh Liquor within them, within the Cheſt was the Body of a Woman, as the Chirurgeons judged by the Skull. On the either ſide of her were two Scepters of Ivory, eighteen Inches long; and on her Breaſt a little Figure of Cupid, neatly cut in white Stone. And amongſt the Bones two printed Pieces of Jett with round Heads, in form of Nayles three Inches long.

‘It ſeemeth (ſaith Sir Robert Cotton, from whom I had this Relation) theſe Bodies were burnt about the Year of our Lord 239. being there were found divers Coins of Pupienus, Gordian, and the Emperors of that Time. And that one may conjecture by her Ornaments, that this laſt Body ſhould be ſome Princeſs or Proprætor's Wife here in Britain, in the Time of the Roman Government.

London the Metropolis in the Times of the Romans.

And hence the foreſaid learned Biſhop concludeth, that London ſo near adjoining to this Burying Place, was the Metropolis of Britain in the Times that the Romans had to do here: Inaſmuch as it may be preſumed from the Burial of this Lady, that the Legate of the Emperor or Proprætor, had his chief Reſidence here; and the great Buſineſs of the Province, as to civil Matters, was brought hither to him. Here was his Prætorium: Which at firſt ſignified the Generals Tent; but as the Name came from the Camp to the City, ſo the Prætorium was the Manſion Houſe of the Governor.

Eaſt Smithfield. Pet. Le Neve, Norroy.

Fines of divers Counties.

Concerning Eaſt Smithfield, mention is made in Records of Lands and Mills there, within the Pariſh of Whitechappel. In the 21 Edw. the Third a Fine was levied between Humfrey de Bohun Earl of Hereford and Eſſex, Querent, and Sir John de Bulteneye Chevalier, Defendent, of Lands and certain Mills in Eaſt Smithfield in the Pariſh of Whitechapel in the Suburbs of London.]

Pyrates hanged in a Field beyond Eaſt-Smithfield.

Having ſaid thus much for building, at Wappin, Eaſt Smithfield, Bramley, and Shadwel, all on the South ſide of the High Way to Radcliff; now one Note on the North ſide alſo, concerning Pyrates: I read, that in the Year 1440. in the Lent Seaſon, certain Perſons, with ſix Ships brought from beyond the Seas Fiſh, to victual the City of London; which Fiſh when they had delivered, and were returning homeward, a Number of Sea Theives in a Barge, in the Night came upon them, when they were aſleep in their Veſſels, riding at Anchor on the River Thames, and ſlew them, cut their Throats, caſt them over Boord, took their Money, and drowned their Ships, for that no Man ſhould eſpy or accuſe them. Two of theſe Theives were after taken and hanged in Chains upon a Gallows ſet upon a raiſed Hill, for the Purpoſe made, in the Field beyond Eaſt Smithfield, ſo that they might be ſeen far into the River Thames.

Free School and Alms Houſes at Radcliff.

The firſt Building at Radcliff, in my Youth (not to be forgotten) was a fair Free School, and Alms Houſes, founded by Avice Gibſon, Wife to Nicholas Gibſon, Grocer, as before I have noted. But of late Years, Ship Wrights, and (for the moſt Part)

Part) other Marine Men, have builded many large and ſtrong Houſes for themſelves, and ſmaller for Saylors, from thence almoſt to Poplar, and ſo to Blackwall.

Poplar, Blackwal.

J. S.

At Poplar, that lyeth within the Pariſh of Stepney, is a Chapel and an Alms Houſe for poor Seamen; both belonging to the old Eaſt India Company. Here is the Iſle of Dogs, a fine rich Level for fatning of Cattle. Eight Oxen fed here of late were ſold for 34 l. a Piece: and a Hog fed here was ſold for 20 l. and 6 d. Here is alſo a well known wet Dock called Blackwall Dock, belonging to Sir Henry Johnſon Kt. very convenient for building and receiving of Ships. About twenty Years ago, more or leſs, in breaking up an old Ship that was returned from the Eaſt India, they found a ſolid Piece of Oak in the Keel, pierced eight Inches deep with a kind of Horn, that ſtuck faſt in it. The Maſter of the Veſſel did remember that when they were on the main Sea the Ship received a ſudden Shock, which made it ſtop for the preſent, tho' it were in full Sail. At firſt they thought they had ſtruck on a Rock, but conſidering where they were, they concluded that could not be: and they found no harm tho' they went down and ſearched the Bottom of the Ship; but they obſerved the Sea bloody. But now the Cauſe appeared that it was ſome Sea Fiſh that ſtruck the Ship and broke his Horn in the ſide of it.

Blackwal Dock.

Two Whales at Blackwal.

In the Year 1705. were two Whales of different Sorts brought and cut up at Blackwal. One of them was the Parma Ceti Whale, which had a great deal of Blubber, a filthy Stuff ſo called, coming out of the Brain, falling from him: which by the Direction of Dr. Meade was cured, and made excellent Parma Ceti, to the great Benefit of the Apothecary, into whoſe Hand this Blubber came. The other was that kind of Whale, whence the Whalebone is made.]

Tower Hill without the Walls.

Now for Tower Hill; the Plain there is likewiſe greatly diminiſhed by Encroachments, for building of ſmall Tenements; and taking in of Garden Plots, Timber Yards, or what they liſt.

The Minories.

From this Tower Hill towards Aldgate (being a long continued Street) amongſt other Buildings was the Abbey of Nuns, called the Minorites or Minories, whereof I have ſpoken. And on the other ſide of the Street lyeth the Ditch without the Wall of the City, from the Tower unto Aldgate, now all built upon.

Suburb without Aldgate.

Hog Lane.

From Aldgate Eaſt again, lieth a large Street, repleniſhed with Buildings, to wit, on the North ſide the Pariſh Church of Saint Buttolph, and ſo other Buildings to Hog lane, and to the Barrs on both ſides.

Without the Bars.

A common Field formerly.

Alſo, without the Bars, both the ſides of the Street be peſtered with Cottages and Allies, even up to Whitechapel Church; and almoſt half a Mile beyond it, into the common Field; all which ought to lie open and free for all Men. But this common Field (I ſay) being ſometime the Beauty of this City on that Part, is ſo incroached upon, by building of filthy Cottages, and with other purpreſters, --- Incloſures, and Lay Stalls, that (notwithſtanding all Proclamations and Acts of Parliament made to the contrary) in ſome Places it ſcarce remaineth a ſufficient Highway for the meeting of Carriages and Droves of Cattel: much leſs is there any fair, pleaſant, or wholeſome Way, for People to walk on Foot: which is no ſmall Blemiſh to ſo famous a City, to have ſo unſavory and unſeemly an Entry or Paſſage thereunto.

An Act of Parliament for paving without Aldgate.

J. S.

In the Time of Queen Elizabeth, ſome Part of the Way and Street hereabouts without Aldgate; particularly from the two Poſts called the Bars, to a Corner Houſe, then in the Occupation of one Thomas Sparrow, was very miry and deep. And beſide this Place in the High Street, there were other Places extraordinary bad to paſs, lying more towards the South, where the Queens Carriages uſed to paſs from the Minories, Mary Graces [that is, where now are the Queens Victualling Houſes for the Navy] and Radcliff, where that Queen had Storehouſes; and ſo to the Tower: Namely, a Way leading from the Old Cage ſo called, in the Pariſh of St. Botolph, to the North end of Nightingal Lane in the Pariſh of St. Mary Matfelon: and another Way between the ſaid Old Cage, and a Mill, called Craſſe Mill in the ſaid Pariſh of St. Mary. And as theſe bad Ways were very inconvenient to the Queens Carriages, ſo for the Carriages of all others. The great Paſſages here, Courſe and Recourſe of the Queens Subjects both on Horſeback and on Foot, became ſo miry and foul, in Winter time eſpecially, that it was very troubleſome to all that had Occaſion to uſe theſe Ways. Whereupon, an Act of Parliament was made in the 13th of the ſaid Queen, that from Michaelmas 1572. all theſe Places ſhould be paved with Stone: Every Man to do his Part, along by their Manours, Lands aud Tenements, adjoining to the ſaid Ways.

A Fall of W ters without the Bars.

And the ſame Act made Proviſion for ſecuring the overflowing of the Towerditch by great Quantities of Water that fell often upon the Ways between the ſaid two Poſts next Aldgate, called the Bars, and the Corner Houſe occupied by Sparrow aforeſaid [which ſeems to be there where the Lane is, now called Bricklane] whereby the Towerditch might in ſhort Time be filled up: It was ordered therefore, that the ſaid Waters on both ſides the ſaid High Way, ſhould have their Fall and Courſe only down by the ſaid Corner Houſe: And from thence into a Ditch lying on the North ſide of Hog Lane; and ſo to the Common Sewer at the Eaſt End of the ſaid Hoglane.]

Now of Whitechapel Church ſomewhat, and then back again to Aldgate.

The Church.

This Church is as it were a Chapel of Eaſe to the Pariſh of Stebinhith, and the Parſon of Stebinhith hath the Gift thereof: which being firſt dedicated to the Name of God, and the Bleſſed Virgin, is now called Saint Mary Matfelon, upon this Occaſion following. About the Year 1428. in the ſixth of King Henry the Sixth, a devout Widow of that Pariſh had long time cheriſhed and brought up, of Alms, a certain Frenchman, or Briton born: which moſt unkindly and cruelly in a Night murdered the ſaid Widow ſleeping in her Bed, and after fled with ſuch Jewels and other Stuff of hers, as he might carry. But he was ſo freſhly purſued, that (for fear) he took the Church of St. George in Southwark, and challenged Priviledge of Sanctuary there, and ſo abjured the Kings Land. Then the Conſtables (having Charge of him) brought him into London, intending to have conveyed him Eaſtward: but ſo ſoon as he was come into the Pariſh, where before he had committed the Murder; the Wives caſt upon him ſo much Filth and Ordure of the Street, that (notwiſtanding the beſt Reſiſtance made by the Conſtables) they ſlew him out of Hand: And for this Fact it hath been ſaid, that Pariſh to have purchaſed that Name of Mary Matfelon, but I find in Record, the ſame to be called, Villa beatæ Mariæ de Matfelon, in the 21. of Richard the Second.

St. Mary Mat felon.

More, we read, that in the Year 1336. the 10 of Edward the Third, the Biſhop of Alba, Cardinal, and Parſon of Stebinhith, Procurator General in England, preſented a Clerk to be Parſon in the Church of bleſſed Mary, called Matfellon, without Aldgate of London, &c.

Account the Name tfelon. J. S. . Wells, netime Vi- of Horn- rch.

And therefore it was a more probable Account of the Name Matfelon, aſcribed to St. Mary the Patroneſs of this Pariſh Church, which I once heard given by a Reverend Miniſter in Eſſex, viz. that the Word was of an Hebrew or Syriac Extraction; מטפל or מטפלון i. e. Matfel or Matfelon, ſignifying as much as, Quæ nuper enixa eſt, i. e. She that hath lately brought forth a Son: and ſo the Word is fitly applied to St. Mary; and it is as much as, St. Mary lately delivered of her holy Child. And it is probable her Image anciently ſtood in that Church with a Babe in her Arms, as ſometimes ſhe was wont to be figured or depainted. Nor ought any to ſay, that this is a far fetch'd Notion of the Word, to fetch it as far as Syria; conſidering that formerly ſuch great Numbers of People out of theſe Weſtern Parts, and particularly out of England, went to the Holy Land, to viſit the Holy Sepulcher, and to fight againſt the Infidels. And that theſe Pilgrims and Holy Warriors brought home ſome ſmatterings of the Language with them. And that divers Oriental Words were uſed in England in former Times, appears from ſome old Epitaphs. In St. Faiths under Pauls was this upon one John Abny, a Learned Preacher belonging to the Queen; Archilevita Dei Rabi Abnus alme Joannes, &c. where he is ſtiled Rabi or Rabbi, and Archilevita; Titles given to the Jewiſh Maſters and Prieſts. And in the ſame Church, on another Monument, the Hebrew Word Adar for the Month of March is made uſe of:

ugdale's iſtory of t. Paul's.

X bis cum quinis in Adar bonus eſt ſibi Finis.

So that, in ſhort, it is not unlikely (ſince in theſe Matters we can only conjecture) but that ſome Knight, that had dwelt in the Holy Land, was the Founder of this Church of Whitechapel, and dedicated it to St. Mary with the Babe in her Arms, which in thoſe Eaſtern Countries was called Matfelon.]

To the Honour of Jeſus Chriſt, to the Praiſe of Piety, to the Example of Poſterity, and for the Preſervation of the godly Memory of ELIZABETH, his moſt worthily beloved Wife; in whom (by a rare conjunction) Godlineſs with Comelineſs, Wiſdom with Vertue, Beauty with Chaſtity, Youth with Diſcretion, and Diſcretion with Devotion were moſt ſweetly combined. Who, in the prime of her Years, upon her firſt Child, yielded up, by untimely Death (as her ſelf had often foretold) her Soul to God, her Life to Nature, her Body to the Earth, her Memory to the World; and left to the penſive Earth a dear bought Son, to her Friends heavineſs, hard to be removed: to her Husband Sorrow, not to be expreſſed; and to all that knew her, a longing deſire after her.

William Craſhaw, her moſt ſad and ſorrowful Husband, Paſtor of this Church, moſt unwilling to part with her, but moſt willing to honour her with many Sighs and Tears, dedicated this Monument, in aſſurance of her glorious Reſurrection. She died Octob. 8. in the 24th Year of her Age.

MILE END new:Town Hamlet

ſay it was ſome Lady that going out of Town ſaw the School, and was informed of the great Numbers of poor People Inhabitants of the Pariſh, not able to give their Children Education.

lmshouſes Whitechapel

Going out of Town from Whitechapel Eaſtward, are two Rows of Alms Houſes on each ſide of the Way, oppoſite to each other. That on the left Hand belongeth to the Pariſh; and containeth ſixteen Rooms, for as many poor Widows, who have a weekly Salary paid by the Pariſh. That on the right Hand of a later Foundation, was built by Will. Meggs, Eſq; for twelve poor Widows; that is, ſuch as formerly, or their Husbands, had paid Scot and Lot to the Pariſh. They receive Five Pound a Piece Yearly. Formerly they had a Portion of Coals allowed them alſo; but is now ſtopt. There is a pretty Piece of Garden Ground behind their Houſe, belonging to them. The poor People are put into this Alms Houſe, as the Rooms fall, by Sir James Etheridge, who married Mr. Gouldſtons Widow, which Gouldſton was Nephew to Mr. Meggs the Founder.]

The Pariſh of St. DUNSTANS STEPNEY.

Stepney Pariſh.
J. S.

Next adjoining to Whitechapel, on the Eaſt, is the Pariſh of Stepney, waſhed on the South with the River of Thames, and touching on the Weſt and Noth ſides upon Algate, Biſhopsgate, Shoreditch, and Hackney. The Church is called St. Dunſtans Stepney, written anciently Stebunhith, or Stephenhith. And if there were any ancient Church or Chapel hereabouts dedicated to St. Stephen, I ſhould be apt to ſuppoſe the Name to imply a Landing Place (as Hith ſignifies) for Boats and Veſſels at St. Stephens. Or elſe perhaps from the Steepneſs of the Hithe there.

The largee extent of this Pariſh.

Some thing may be ſaid of this Pariſh in general; and afterwards of ſome Particulars in it more eſpecially. It was a Pariſh of very great extent: inſomuch that ſome Pariſhes have been taken out of it: As Whitechapel (which according to the Name was once a Chapel of Eaſe to it) St. Pauls Shadwel, and of later times St. Johns at Wappin, which belonged to Whitechapel, and three others now in building. There be alſo in Stepney Pariſh ſome Chapels of Eaſe yet remaining, as one at Poplar, another in Spittle Fields; and, in my remembrance, another was on the Northern Part of Bethnal Green: But that is now turned into Houſes. So that Stepney may be eſteemed rather a Province than a Pariſh, eſpecially if we add, that it contains in it both City and Country: For towards the South Parts, where it lies along the River Thames for a great way, by Limehouſe, Poplar, and Radcliff, to Wappin, it is furniſhed with every thing that may intitle it to the Honour (if not of a City, yet) of a great Town; Populouſneſs, Traffick, Commerce, Havens, Shipping, Manufacture, Plenty and Wealth, the Crown of all. And were it not eclipſed by the Luſtre of the neighbouring City, it would appear one of the conſiderableſt Towns of the Kingdom, and would give place to very few Cities in England. And among other Places of Remark, at Blackwal is a Wet Dock belonging to Sir Henry Johnſon, of ſufficient bigneſs to contain   Ships.

hapels in his Pariſh.

he North arts.

On the other Side, Northward, this Pariſh hath the face of a Country, affording every thing to render it pleaſant, Fields, Paſture-Grounds for Cattle, and formerly Woods and Marſhes. For in old Writings we read of the Biſhops Woods and Stebunhith Marſhes.

Manour nd two Woods in tepney, belonging to e Biſhop of ondon.

The Biſhop of London had a Manour within this Pariſh of Stepney, and two Woods lying about it: which Rich. de Graveſend, ſometime Biſhop of London, the 20 Edw. I. about the Year 1292, was minded to encloſe for a Park. And for that purpoſe had a Grant of Free Warren from the ſaid King; but the Citizens of London would not ſuffer it. As appears by this Record remaining in the Chamber of London.

Lib. Horn fo. 268.

‘On Thurſday next before the Feaſt of St. Gregory the Pope, 20 Edw. I. in the Preſence of Raſe de Sandwich, Cuſtos of the City of London, Robert de Baſing, John de Bacquill, William de Hereford, Raſe le Blunt, Robert de Roks, Nicholas de Winton, William de Mazeliner, William de Farndon, &c. Aldermen of the ſame City, and four Men of every Ward ſummoned, a Petition of the venerable Father R. de Graveſend, Biſhop of London, was ſhewn to them by the Cuſtos, to this purpoſe: That the ſame Biſhop might encloſe his two Woods in the Town of Stebenhith, lying about his Manour in the ſame Town, and to put Wild Beaſts or Deer in them. Which Four of each Ward, being choſen by the Commonalty, taking Counſel upon this Matter, anſwered by themſelves preciſely, that from the Time whereof no Memory is extant, they had uſed to take and hunt within the foreſaid Woods, and without, Hares, Foxes, Conies, and other Beaſts; where and when they would. And they ſay, that they do not believe, that the Lord the King granted him any thing in prejudice of the City's Liberties. Whereupon they ſay, that they deſire to uſe the Liberties which hitherto they have uſed: And they pray, that the ſame Biſhop may hold his Woods in the form and manner as his Anceſtors and Predeceſſors have held them. And they will not conſent, that he may encloſe them: nor will they grant him any Warren, &c.

Mile End.

Mile-end Town ſtands here; built with many good Houſes, inhabited with divers Sea Captains and Commanders of Ships: Two Eaſt India Captains, by the Name of Brown; and other Perſons of good Quality.

Country Houſes.

It uſed alſo to ſerve for Country Retirement to Citizens and other wealthy Men. Witneſs thoſe many fine Seats and noble Structures that appear ſcattered about in thoſe Parts. For ſo it was eſpecially in antient Times, when Courtiers and Perſons of the greateſt Quality had their Country Houſes here. Among the reſt the Biſhops of London uſed to retire hither for ſome Hundred of Years paſt. Matthew Paris ſpeaks of Roger Niger, a Biſhop of London that died at his Manour Houſe of Stebunhith above four Hundred Years ago. Henry Waleis Maior of London, lived at Stepenhith; and (which is more) at whoſe Houſe, An. 1299. 27 Edw. the Firſt, that King held a Parliament, being then Maior of London.

Roger Niger.
Henry Waleis.

L. Crumwel.

Here the Lord Crumwel, Earl of Eſſex, had a Houſe. Henry Colet, ſometime Lord Maior of London, had Houſe and Lands here, which deſcended to his Son John Colet, Dean of St. Pauls, the Founder of Jeſus School by Pauls, who gave a fair Houſe (and as it ſeems that very Houſe wherein he dwelt near the Church) to the ſaid School, for a Place for the Maſter and Scholars to retire to, when the Plague ſhould be at London. The Dean loved often to retire hither from the City, for Air and Contemplation. Sir Thomas More who wanted Colet's Company, having been abſent abroad, in a Letter inticeth him home, and among other Arguments he uſeth for that Putpoſe, one is, ‘That the Country about his Pariſh of Stepney (as he called it) whereof alſo he ought alſo not to have the leaſt Care [perhaps he was Parſon there] afforded him the like Delights to thoſe which he had in the Place wherein he then was. And from thence he might upon Occaſion come to London, as into an Inn.—And prayed him therefore

‘ fore to return for Stepneys Sake, which mourned ‘ for his Abſence, no leſs than Children did for the ‘ Abſence of their loving Mother.

Bethnal Green. A fair Houſe there.

Country Houſes were alſo within this Pariſh built in Spittle Fields, Mile End, and Bethnal Green, Bow, and Old Ford. In Bethnal Green, I read of a fair Houſe built in Queen Elizabeths Reign by one John Kirby. Fleetword Recorder of London, in a Letter writ about 1578. to the Lord Treaſurer mentioned the Death of certain rich Citizens, as Fairfax, and Bowres, and of John Kirby, that built the fair Houſe upon Bethnal Green. Which Houſe, lofty like a Caſtle, occaſioned certain Rhimes, abuſive of him and ſome other City Builders of great Houſes, and had prejudic'd themſelves thereby. Kirkebies [or Kirbies] Caſtle, and Fiſhers Folly, Spinola's Pleaſure, and Megſes Glory, &c. And this Kirbies Houſe I make no doubt, is that now called, The blind Beggars Houſe there. Perhaps Kirby beggered himſelf by it.

Spittle fields.

A Harbour for Proteſtant Strangers.

The North weſt Parts of this Pariſh, (Spittle Fields and Parts adjacent,) of later Times became a great Harbour for poor Proteſtant Strangers, Waloons and French: Who as in former Days, ſo of late, have been forced to become Exiles from their own Country for their Religion, and for the avoiding cruel Perſecution. Here they have found Quiet and Security, and ſettled themſelves in their ſeveral Trades and Occupations; Weavers eſpecially. Whereby God's Bleſſing ſurely is not only brought upon the Pariſh, by receiving poor Strangers. (Come ye Bleſſed of my Father, &c. For I was a Stranger and ye took me in:) but alſo a great Advantage hath accrued to the whole Nation, by the rich Manufactures of weaving Silks and Stuffs and Camlets: Which Art they brought along with them. And this Benefit alſo to the Neighbourhood; that theſe Strangers may ſerve for Patterns of Thrift, Honeſty, Induſtry and Sobriety, as well

Stepney breeds many Mariners.

It is to be further remarked of this Pariſh of Stepney, on the Southern Parts of it ſpecially, that it is one of the greateſt Nurſeries of Navigation, and Breeders of Seamen in England, the moſt ſerviceable Men in the Nation; without which England could not be England. For they are its Strength and Wealth. And by how much the more Honour and Uſe our Mariners are to us, ſo much the greater Fame deſervedly accrues unto this Pariſh, that breeds and brings them up in ſuch great Numbers.

Stepney Parſonage, and Vicarage.

Ledger King Richard III.

Stepney anciently was both a Parſonage and a Vicarage, to be held by two diſtinct Perſons. And the Parſon or Rector had a Right of Patronage to preſent a Vicar. For I find an old Letter from King Richard the Third to Thomas Kemp, Biſhop of London; wherein William Kemp, Deacon, Rector of the Parochial Church of St. Duſtane of Stepnethe is called Verus Patronus Vicariæ humoi. Eccleſiæ; i. e. True Patron of the Vicarage of this Church. Which William had granted to Nicholas Sudbury, Haberdaſher of the City of London, the next Advowſon or jus Patronatus, of the ſaid Vicarage; one Richard Luke, Clark, being then actually Vicar. Upon which Richards Death, the ſaid Sudbury preſented Degory Watur, Prieſt, Bachelour of Decrees. But this gave Occaſion to a Conteſt about the Year 1484. For then the Biſhop of London had a Mind that another ſhould enjoy the ſaid Vicarage, namely Richard Fox [the ſame, as it ſeems, that was afterwards Biſhop of Wincheſter and Keeper of the Great Seal] who then was a Student in Paris, and a great Friend to Henry Ap Tudder, Earl of Richmond, which the ſaid King Richard called his Great Rebel. The Endeavour to prefer him ſhewed, that Biſhops ſecret good Will to the ſaid Earl and his Cauſe. Hence when the ſaid Watur came to the Biſhop for his Inſtitution and Induction to the Living, he delayed and put him off, till it was lapſed. Watur upon this made Complaint to the King and his Council, and prayed His Highneſs for Remedy to aſſiſt him in his juſt Cauſe. Whereat the King ſent once and again to the Biſhop in the ſaid Clarks Behalf, that he would inſtitute and induct him lawfully preſented into the ſaid Vicarage. But the Biſhop making Anſwer by a Meſſenger, named John Aſheby, one of the Clarks of the Signet, that if indeed it were found and proved, that the ſaid Fox were with the Kings Traitors, then he willingly committed his Right and Authority to the King, and he might himſelf preſent a Perſon, as he thought good. The King ſeeing theſe Delays, he had the Preſentation put into his Hands by the Patron. And then by a third Letter the King let the Biſhop underſtand further, of the Certainty of Fox's conſorting with his Ttaytor: and that he being now Patron both by the Biſhops Conceſſion, and the ſaid Nicolas Sudburies Right, did preſent the ſaid Watur his Clark, and deſired him, canonically to inſtitute him to the ſaid Vicarage, all Exceptions and Delays laid aſide. Dated from the Kings Place of the Wardrobe in the City of London, 22d of January 1484.

Jerom Vicar of Stepney burnt.

One of the Vicars of this Church named Jerom, was burnt in Smithfield in King Henry the Eighth's Time, for the Profeſſion and Love of the Goſpel, about the Year 1540.

An Abbot Vi car here.

Another, and, as it ſeems, the next that ſucceeded, had been Abbot of the Abbey on Tower-Hill, and put in here upon the Diſſolution and Surrendry of his Houſe. He was a ſtout Papiſt, as his Predeceſſor was a ſtedfaſt Goſpeller. In his Time there was a Quire and ſinging in this Church, and an excellent Ring of Bells. And when any Sermon had been preached there, which he did not like, as girding upon any Popiſh Errors and Corruptions, or commending the Evangelical Doctrin; he would ſometimes ſtand up, and preſently command the Bells to ring, or the ſinging to begin in the Quire, while the Sermon was preaching; and ſometimes he would interrupt the Preacher in the midſt of his Diſcourſe. There were many Perſons in this Pariſh well diſpoſed to the Goſpel, who being grieved with this Vicar, for theſe and the like Doings, complained of him to Archbiſhop Cranmer. And being cited before him at Croyden, under King Edward VI. the good Archbiſhop gave him a gentle Reprimand, and ſent him home.

Advowſon o Stepney in Brazen Noſe College.

Anno 9 Regin. Annæ 1711. An Act was made for confirming to the Principal and Scholars of Kings Hall and College of Brazen Noſe in the Univerſity of Oxford, the Purchaſe of the Advowſons of Stepney, and other Churches, as Whitechapel, &c. And for ſettling the ſame to the Benefit of the ſaid College.

This Pariſh is to partake of the Benefit of the Act, 9 Reg. Ann. cap. 22. for building Fifty New Churches. Whereof one is now building, and in great forwardneſs, near Limehouſe, and another in Brick-Lane near Spittle fields; and another in Wappin Stepney. And in the Act there is a Proviſo, That in every new Church and Pariſh to be erected, purſuant to an Act made in the ſecond Seſſion of this Parliament, within Stepney Pariſh, the firſt Rector ſhall be nominated and appointed by the Principal and Scholars of Brazen Noſe College, Oxon: And alſo in every Chapel in Stepney, which ſhall be converted into a Parochial Church.

Mile End.

An Hoſpital o Lazars at Mi End.

Now to point to a few Places in this Pariſh of ſome Antiquity or Remark. Somewhat North from the Church lieth Mile End, being the great Thorowfare to the Eaſt Parts from London. ſo called from its Diſtance from the middle Parts of London. Here ſtood anciently an Hoſpital of poor Lazars, called the Houſe of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt and and Mary Magdalene at Mile End of Stephenhuch in the County of Middleſex. To them a Protection to beg was granted by King Edwards Letters Patents dated Febr. 18. 1551. and John Mills appointed their Proctor. As I find it in the Journal of Goodrick Biſhop of Ely, Lord Chancellor.

Trinity Hoſpital at Mile End.

Further, towards London on the North ſide of the Road are ſeveral handſome well built Alms Houſes belonging to certain Companies of London. One whereof much exceedeth the reſt, and is indeed a beautiful Structure, having a very fair Entrance at two Gates, and a Chapel at the further End; founded by the Trinity Houſe, for the Dwelling of Sea Captains, or Ship Maſters come to Decay; or their Widows. Which hath been ſpoken of in the firſt Book.

Captain Fiſhers Alms Houſe.

Nearer the City, entring into Dog-Row is ſituate Captain Fiſhers Alms Houſe, built 1711. having four Rooms with Cellars for as many Sea Commanders Widows. Their Allowance paid them from Trinity Houſe is Six Pound per Ann. to each: and Twenty Shillings more to each for Firing: and Gowns every Second Year. The Captains Daughter is yet living, and ſent them laſt Chriſtmas Crowns apiece.

Spittle Fields.

Further Northweſt lie Spittle fields, within this Pariſh, formerly, in the Memory of ſome, pleaſant Fields for the Citizens to walk in, and for good Houſewives to whiten their Cloths: Now all built into Streets, with a very convenient Market-place, and a Tabernacle for Divine Worſhip. It was very antiently a great Burying Place, and fourſcore Years ago, more or leſs, were many Roman Urns digged up here. Whereupon Learned Men, (and particularly Dr. Merick Caſaubon) have made their Obſervations. Which hath been noted in Biſhopſgate Ward.

Stebunhuth* Marſh.

But to paſs from theſe North Parts of the Pariſh to the Southern, there lay formerly a great Marſh, or Marſhes, called Stebunhith Marſh, and Poplar Marſh. But it was found by a Jury upon Inquiſition to be one and the ſame Marſh, and not divers. I find a Manour anciently called Pountfrets Manour lying in Stebunhith Marſh.

Belonged to Abby of Grace.

Granted to Lord Went. Grace.

In the 4th of Henry VIII. the Abbot of Grace, or de Gratiis [which was an Abbey near the Tower] demiſed to the Biſhop of London, for the Term of Fourſcore Years, all his drowned Ground, lying in the Marſh called, The Wet Marſh of Stebunhith and Poplar, in the County of Middleſex, for the only conſideration of Twenty Shillings yearly Rent. King Edward VI. by Letters Patents granted unto the old Lord Wentworth and his Heirs the Manour of Stebunhith, and all the Marſh Ground in Stebunhith. By which general Words the Lord Wentworth claimed the foreſaid Abbots Lands, demiſed to the ſaid Biſhop, which Lands letten by the Abbot were rated as Parcels of his Value. In Queen Elizabeth's Days one Hyde a Servant of the Lord Chief Baron Manwood, pretending that the whole Wet Marſh, being worth now 160 l. by Year, ſhould be the Abbots Land, and letten by him by the aforeſaid Leaſe for Twenty Shillings Rent. But he did not demiſe the Wet Marſh, but all his drowned Ground lying in the Wet Marſh. And pretending that the ſaid Wet Marſh ſhould lie in Poplar Marſh, and not in Stebunhith Marſh. Therefore all the ſame Lands ſo letten by the Abbot were ſuggeſted to be concealed from her Majeſty. Hence Letters Patents were procured thereof unto Mr. Farnham, and his Heirs ſixteen Years paſt.* Whoſe Eſtate therein Hyde purchaſed. The Lord chief Baron Manwood, and Sir Thomas Bromley Lord Chancellor, examined the Title of the Lord Wentworth ſhortly after, upon an Information of Intruſion before the chief Baron. And albeit her Majeſty had before departed with her Right and Intereſt therein, there was by Tryal and Judgment as much Land recovered from the ſaid Lord as was worth fourſcore Pounds by Year; over and beſide a great Sum of Money due for Arrearages of the ſame.

 Viz. About the Year 1570. and odd.

Lands in this Marſh recovered from the Lord Wentworth. The Judgment reverſed.

Which Judgment, examined and called in Queſtion by Writ of Error before the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, and other her Majeſty's Juſtices, was reverſed and made void. After, a new Information of Intruſion was exhibited before the ſaid Baron for thoſe Lands. Where upon Complaint unto the Queen for the Chief Barons partial Dealings, and that he was no competent Judge for the Cauſe, She commanded her Attorney and Sollicitor that no further Proceeding in Suit ſhould be in her Name before the ſaid Chief Baron. And that if Hyde ſo would, a new Information ſhould be exhibited in her Name before her Juſtice of her Common Pleas, or her Bench (at Hydes Election) of the ſame Lands, with good Regard, that there might be Proceeding therein (in Favour of Hyde) with all Indifferency. Whereupon an Information was exhibited in the King's Bench, and the Matter at Iſſue, ſpecial Choice was made of a Jury by the Attorney in the Preſence of the ſaid Hyde (not any one being admitted, againſt whom he did except.) Which Jury returned, the Matter was deliberately heard before the Juſtice there; Mr. Attorney and Mr. Sollicitor being there for her Majeſty, and Hyde to inform them. The Jury found, that the Lands demiſed by the Abbot was twenty Acres; and that the Marſh wherein the ſame lieth was known as well by the Name of Stebunhuth Marſh, as Poplar Marſh: and that they were all one, not divers. Upon which Verdict ſo found, Judgment was afterwards ſolemnly pronounced for the Lord Wentworth; after that all the Judges had ſeverally, upon ſolemn Argument in open Court, ſhewed their Opinion to be very clear, that thoſe twenty Acres paſt for the King by Letters Patents made unto the Lotd Wentworth.

The Matter called in queſtion again.

Sithence which Time, the Matter was called in queſtion in the Star Chamber. And ſithence that Time, a new Suit by Information of Intruſion was commenced before her Majeſty's Juſtices of Common Pleas. All this I have out of a Breviate drawn by the Lord Wentworth, Grandſon to the firſt Lord Wentworth, to whom King Edward granted it.

A Conteſt between the Lord Wentworth, and his Tenants.

In the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth, and King James I. Conteſts happened between the Lords Wentworth, Lords of this Manour of Stepney, and of a Manour next adjoining upon it at Hackney, and the Copyhold Tenants; concerning their Cuſtoms and Privileges. Which at laſt was adjuſted and agreed by Covenant between them, ſeveral Thouſands of Pounds being paid by them to the ſaid Lords. An Abſtract of which Covenant, and of the Cuſtoms and Orders eſtabliſhed, being too large to be here inſerted, is reſerved for a Chapter by it ſelf at the End.]

Suburb without Biſhopſgate.

Now again from Aldgate Northweſt to Biſhopſgate, lieth Hounds Ditch, and ſo to Biſhopſgate.

North and by Eaſt from Biſhopſgate, lieth a large Street or High Way, having on the Weſt ſide thereof, the Pariſh Church of St. Buttolph.

A Charity School here. J. S.

Then is the Hoſpital of St. Mary of Bethlem, founded by a Citizen of London, as before is ſhewed. Thence up to the Bars, without the which is Norton fall Gate, a Liberty ſo called, belonging to the Dean of Pauls. Here was firſt of all ſet up a Charity School, by a voluntary Combination of well diſpoſed Gentlemen; whereof Mr. Seimcur, Mr. Turner, &c. were chief: out of Compaſſion towards thoſe poor People inhabiting in that Liberty, without any Pariſh, and ſo void of any Care to be taken of them in their Poverty. They maintain a Schoolmaſter allowing him 30 l. per Ann. who teacheth the Children Reading and Writing, and to ſay their Catechiſm. They are in Number threeſcore and ten, and are clothed as well as taught. The voluntary Subſcriptions upon the Death of the firſt Subſcribers began ſome Years ago to fall off. Mr. Turner then was the chief Perſon that took the Care and Charge thereof. They ſend out twelve or more every Year: and ſo take in more to fill up the Number. Thence alſo up to the late diſſolved Priory of St. John Baptiſt, called Halywel, a Houſe of Nuns, of old time founded by a Biſhop of London. Stephen Graveſend, Biſhop of London, about the Year 1318. was a Benefactor thereunto, reedified by Sir Thomas Lovel, Knight of the Garter, brought up in Lincolns Inn, who builded much there, and in this Place, in the Reigns of Henry the Seventh, and of Henry the Eighth; He endowed this Houſe with fair Lands, and was there buried in a large Chapel by him builded for that Purpoſe. [Here he had alſo a Seat to dwell in. He made his Will December 10th in the 14 Year of King Henry the Eighth. Therein bequeathing his Body to be buried within the Monaſtery of Nuns, called Haliwel, in a little Chapel there made by him. He willed his Couſin Francis Lovel ſhould have his Manſion Place at Haliwel. He dyed 1528. This Priory was valued, at the Suppreſſion, to have of Lands two hundred ninety three Pound by Year, and was ſurrendred 1539. the one and thirtieth of Henry the Eighth. The Church thereof being pulled down, many Houſes have been there builded for the Lodgings of Noblemen, of Strangers born, and other.

Counteſs of Rutland buried hence. J. S.

From this Houſe was carried the Corps of the Lady Rutland, Oct. 21. 1559. to Shoreditch Church, with Thirty Clarks and Prieſts ſinging: about Threeſcore poor Men and Women in black Gowns. Mourners, to the Number of an Hundred. Two Heralds of Arms, Garter and York. Then came the Corpſe; afore a great Banner of Arms: and about Her four goodly Banner Rolls of divers Arms. Mr. Becon preached. After was diſperſed a great Dole of Money, being 2 d. a Piece to each. And ſo all departed to the Place to Dinner. About the Vallance was written, Sic tranſit Gloria Mundi.]

A Croſs at Shoreſditch, now a Smiths Forge.

From Haliwel, in the high Street, is a continual building of Tenements to Soersditch, or Sewers ditch, having * one ſmall ſide of a Field already made a Garden Plot. Overagainſt the North Corner of this Field, between it and the Church of St. Leonard in Soerſdith, ſometime ſtood a Croſs, now a Smith's Forge, dividing three Ways: Forthright, the High Way is builded upon either ſide more than a good Flight Shoot towards Kingsland, Newington, Totenham, &c.

Oldſtreet.

* Grubſtreet Firſt Edition.

Hoxton.

On the left Hand is Ealdeſtreet, [or Oldſtreet] which reacheth Weſt to a Stone Croſs overagainſt the North End of Golding Lane, * and ſo to the End of Goſwel ſtreet. On the Right Hand of this Ealdeſtreet not far from Soerſditch, but on the North ſide thereof, is Hoxton, a large Street with Houſes on both ſides, and is a Prebend belonging to Pauls Church in London, but of Soerſditch Pariſh.

Soerſditch towards Hackney.

On the Right Hand beyond Soerſditch Church, towards Hackney, are ſome late builded Houſes upon the common Soil, (for it was Lay Stall,) but theſe Houſes belong to the Pariſh of Stebinhith.

On the other ſide of the High Way, from Biſhopſgate and Houndſditch, the firſt Building is a large Inn, [called the Dolphin) for Receipt of Travellers; Then a fair Houſe builded by the Lord John Powlet. Next to that a large Houſe with Gardens of Pleaſure, builded by Jaſper Fiſher. From this up to the Weſt End of Berwards Lane, * is a continual Building of ſmall Cottnges. Then was the Hoſpital called St. Mary Spittle, hard within the Bars, whereof I have ſpoken in Biſhopſgate Ward.

* Hog Lane, Firſt Edition.

Soerſditch ſo called more than 400. Years ſince, as I can prove by Record.

Alms Houſes in Soerſditch.

From the which Bars towards Soerſditch [on that ſide] is all along, a continual Building of ſmall and baſe Tenements, for the moſt Part lately erected.

Amongſt the which (I mean of the ancienteſt Building) was one Row of proper ſmall Houſes with Gardens for poor decayed People, there placed by the Prior of the ſaid Hoſpital: Every one Tenant whereof payed one Peny rent by the Year at Chriſtmas, and dined with the Prior on Chriſtmas Day. But after the Suppreſſion of the Hoſpital, theſe Houſes, for Want of Reparations, in few Years were ſo decayed, that it was called Rotten Row, and the poor worn out (for there came no new in their Place.) The Houſes for a ſmall Portion of Money, were ſold from Goddard to Ruſſel a Draper, who new builded them, and let them out for Rent enough; taking alſo large Fines of the Tenants, near as much as the Houſes coſt him purchaſe and building: for he made his Bargains ſo hardly with all Men, that both Carpenter, Bricklayer, and Plaiſterer, were by that Work undone. And yet in Honour of his Name, it is now called Ruſſels Row.

Rotten Row or Ruſſel Row.

Manour of Soerſditch. Rec. Turr. J. S.

The Manour of Soerſditch with the Polehowſe and Bowes (ſo expreſſed in the Record) lately belonging to John de Northampton of London, Draper, was granted 15 Richard II. to Edmund Duke of York, and Earl of Cambridge, Iſabel his Wife and Edward Earl of Roteland Son of the ſame Edmund and Iſabel.]

The Pariſh Church of St. LEONARDS SHORES DITCH.

St. Leonards at Soerſditch.

Now for the Pariſh of St. Leonards in Soresditch. The Arch-deacon of London is always Parſon thereof, and the is ſerved by a Vicar.

The Eaſt Window. J. S.

The Eaſt Window hath ſome handſome Figures painted in the Glaſs, viz. Our Saviour ſitting at his laſt Supper with his twelve Diſciples; all ſitting upon Forms (you muſt conſider the Art more than the Learning of the Workman) and Judas with his Purſe in his Hand, the Table furniſhed with a ſtanding Cup, a Candle, a Salt, two Peny Loaves, a Knife, ſquare Trenchers, and the Paſcal Lamb in a Diſh.

In the Veſtry hard by the Chancel, on the Eaſt Window, there is another fair painted Glaſs with the Figure of the Father embracing the Prodigal Son. And underneath a Signification of the Donor, and Date; in theſe Words inſcribed, Ex dono Thomæ Auſtin Civis and Clothworker, London, Anno Domini 1634.

Chancel repaired.

Upon a Place exalted in the Chancel is mention made of the laſt Reparation of the Chancel; viz. The Commandments were new writ, and this Chancel raiſed and repaired at the Coſt of the Pariſh, Anno Dom. 1700.

Vicars Houſe.

The Vicar hath a convenient Vicarage Houſe on the Weſt ſide of the Church.

An engraven Plate in the North Wal of the Quire,

Here under lye the Aſhes and the Bones
Of Sir Thomas Leigh, that good and learned Knight;
Whoſe haſty Death (alas) the godly ſtill bemones,
Though his Soul always rejoyce in God's Sight.
Great was his Wiſdom, and greater was his Wit,
His Viſage comely, with no ſad Change diſmayed:
A Man in all Affairs, a King to ſerve moſt fit,
Had not Death ſo ſoon his mortal Life betrayed.

He died the 25th Day of November, Anno Dom. 1545.

Nor was her Youth Death's Triumph, but his Shame.

One Note of Shoreſditch, and ſo an End of that Suburb.

I read, that in the Year 1440. the Eighteenth of Henry the Sixth, a Fuller of Shoreſditch appeached of Treaſon many worthy Eſquires and Gentlemen of Kent: but he being proved falſe, was attainted, condemned, and had Judgment to be drawn, hanged, and quartered; which was done, his Head ſet on London Bridge, and his Quarters on the Gates. This Juſtice was done, according to the ſixteenth of Deuteronomy, The Judges ſhall make diligent Inquiſition, and if the Witneſs be found falſe, and to have given falſe Witneſs againſt his Brother, then ſhall they do unto him, as he had thought to do unto his Brother, &c.

A Fuller of of Shoreſditch for falſely accuſing, hanged and quartered.

Deut. 16. The Reward of a falſe Brother.

I read of the Kings Manour, called Shoreſditch Place, in the Pariſh of Hackney. But how it took that Name I know not.

This Houſe is now called Shore Place. The vulgar Tradition now goes, that Jane Shore lived here: and here her Royal Lover uſed to viſit her. But we have the Credit of Mr. Stow, that the true Name was Shorditch Place: and 'tis not unlikely to have been the Place of a Knight called Sir John de Sordich, a great Man in Edward the Third his Days, who was with that King in his Wars in France, and is remembred in our Annals in 14 Edw. 3. He was Owner of Lands in Hackney as well in Demeſne, as in Service: which he gave to Croſton his Chaplain. This Wever notes; who thinks Shorditch to be named from the ſaid Knight. This Shore Place or Shorditch Place was, (they ſay,) the Manour Houſe, called The Kings Hold, in Diſtinction from another Manour called The Lords Hold; both lately poſſeſſed by Francis Tiſſen of Shackelwel, Eſq; deceaſed. But this Houſe with the Lands about it, now belong to Chriſt's Hoſpital.

Shorditch Place.

Wevers Monuments, p. 427.

In the High Road leading from Shorditch, on the Right Hand, are lately erected two fair Alms Houſes, ſtanding almoſt contiguous. The one for twelve poor People of that Pariſh, viz. ſix Men and ſix Women, Built Anno 1713. by the Executors of Samuel Harwar, Draper, ſometime Inhabitant of the Pariſh of St. Leonard Shorditch: No Endowment as yet ſettled.

Two Alms Houſes: One founded by Mr. Harwar.

The other by Sir Robert Jefferies, Knight.

The other next it of far large Extent and Capacity, and well endowed: A great Sum of Money being left for that Purpoſe to the Company of Ironmongers of London, by Sir Robert Jefferies, Kt. and Alderman. It hath two Wings, and Rooms below and above, very fair and beautifully built. It may contain between forty and fifty Inhabitants, who may be either Men or Women: And have each ſix Pound per Ann. allowed them; and Gowns every two Years. There is a Chapel in the middle of the Building, fronting the Highway; and a Chaplain, who hath a Salary and Chamber allotted him: He is to read Prayers twice a Day, and to preach a Sermon every Sunday. The Building is not yet quite finiſhed; nor the Court Yard levelled.]

Suburb without the Poſtern of Moorgate.

I will now turn back from Shoreſditch Croſs to Bethlem Croſs: and ſo paſs through the Hoſpital of St. Mary Bethlem into the Morefield: which lieth without the Poſtern, called Moorgate.

Moorfield.

This Field (of old time) was called, The Moore, as appeareth by the Charter of William the Conqueror to the College of St. Martin, declaring a running Water to paſs into the City from the ſame More. Alſo Fitz Stephen writeth of this More, ſaying thus; When the great Fenne, or More, which watereth the Walls on the North ſide, is frozen, &c.

Morefields called Magna Mora; and the Fiſhery there. J.S.

Quo Warr. Bag of London in the Tally Court. Pet. Le Neve, Eſquire.

This Morefield was in ancient Writings called Magna Mora, becauſe of the great extent of this More or Mere: To which alſo belonged a Fiſhery for the uſe of the City; both from ancient Times in the poſſeſſion of the City. But in the 3 *Edw.*I. Walter de Merton, Lord Chancellor, ſeized on them both. Which upon an Inquiſition appointed that Year, the Jury of Alderman Pet. Aungiers Ward preſented, and complained of; Informing, That the City had been in full and peaceable Poſſeſſion ever, unto the Time of Walter Hervey, late Maior of London, [viz. 1 Edw. I.] of one More or Mere, and one common Fiſhery in Criplesgate Ward, belonging to the Commonalty of the ſaid City. Now the City was without the ſeiſin of the ſaid More and Fiſhery, by means of Walter de Merton, to the diſheriſon of our Lord the King, and the damage of the ſaid City. And they know not by what Warrant.]

Finsbury Fields and Morefields an unprofitable Ground.

This Fenne, or Morefield, ſtretching from the Wall of the City, betwixt Biſhopſgate and the Poſtern called Cripplesgate, to Fensbury, and to Holywell, continued a waſte and unprofitable Ground a long time; ſo that the ſame was all letten for four Marks the Year, in the Reign of Edward the Second. But in the Year 1415, the third of Henry the Fifth, Thomas Fawconer, Maior, (as I have ſhewed) cauſed the Wall of the City to be broken toward the ſaid More, and builded the Poſtern called Moregate, for eaſe of the Citizens to walk that way upon Cauſeways into the Fields, towards Iſeldon and Hoxton. Moreover, he cauſed the Ditch of the City, and other the Ditches thereabout, from Sores ditch to Deep ditch, by Bethelem, into the More ditch, to be new caſt and cleanſed. By means whereof the ſaid Fenne or More was greatly dreined and dried. But ſhortly after, to wit, in 1477, Ralph Joceline, Maior, for repairing of the Wall of the City, cauſed the ſaid More to be ſearched for Clay, and Brick to be burnt there, &c. by which means this Field was made worſe for a long time.

Gardens without Moorgate, deſtroyed and made plain Ground. Ditches caſt to drein the Morefield.

Sluce to convey the ſtanding Water ou of the Moor.

Moorfields raiſed and Wind Mills ſet thereon.

In the Year 1498, all the Gardens which had continued time out of mind, without Moregate, to wit, about and beyond the Lordſhip of Fensbury, were deſtroyed: and of them was made a plain Field for Archers to ſhoot in. And in the Year 1512, Roger Atchley, Maior, cauſed divers Dikes to be caſt and made, to drein the Waters of the ſaid Morefields, with Bridges arched over them, and the Grounds about to be levelled. Whereby the ſaid Field was made ſomewhat more commodious, but yet it ſtood full of noiſome Waters. Whereupon, in the Year 1527. Sir Thomas Seymour, Maior, cauſed divers Sluces to be made to convey the ſaid Waters over the Town Ditch, into the courſe of Walbrook, and ſo into the Thames. And by theſe degrees was this Fenne or More, at length, made main and hard Ground, which before being overgrown with Flags, Sedges, and Ruſhes, ſerved to no uſe. Since the which time alſo, the farther Grounds beyond Fensbury Court, have been ſo overheightned with Layſtals of Dung, that now three Windmils are thereon ſet. The Ditches be filled up, and the Bridges overwhelmed.

Moorfields come to its Perfection in Sir Leon. Hallidays Maioralty.

J. S. Hows Abridgm.

Morefields, to the Time of Sir Leonard Halliday, Maior, Anno 1606. was but a noiſome Place, like a Layſtal, half environed with ſtinking Ditches, offenſive to the City and Paſſengers. But now it was converted into very pleaſant Walks, Gravelled, Planted on all ſides with Rows of Trees, and divided into Quarters, and railed in, to keep the Graſs from being trodden down, fenced on the Outſides with Brickwalls coped with Stone Alſo divers Vaults were made under Ground, partly to convey away foul Water, and partly to bring in freſh into the Town ditch, to keep it ſweet. For the forwarding of this good Work, Sir Leonard Halliday muſt have his Name recorded to his Praiſe.

New Artillery.

Hereabouts is the New Artillery Ground walled in, for the Exerciſe of the Militia of the City, after the Old Artillery without Biſhopſgate ſtreet went out of Requeſt.

Bunhil Fields

Here adjoining on the Weſt is a Place called Bunhil fields. Where, ſome time ago, was a large Piece of Ground encloſed for a Burying-place; for the convenience of ſuch as died of the Plague in the Year 1665. The Inſcription at the entrance on the Weſt ſide, is this:

‘This Churchyard was encloſed with a Brick-‘wall, at the ſole Charges of the City of ‘London, in the Maioralty of Sir John Laurence, Kt. Anno Dom. 1665. And afterwards ‘the Gates thereof were built and finiſhed ‘in the Maioralty of Sir Tho. Bloudworth, ‘Knight, Anno Dom. 1666.

A burying Place for Diſſenters.

Since then this Place hath been choſen by the Diſſenters from the Church of Engl. for the interring their Friends and Relations, without having the Office of Burial appointed by the Book of Common Prayer, ſaid at their Graves. There be a great Number of raiſed Monuments here with Vaults underneath; and Grave Stones with Inſcriptions not a few. The Price of Burial in the Vaults, I am told is 15 s. This Cœmitery lies Eaſt and Weſt.

Epitaph.

Here lies embalm'd in careful Parents Tears,
A Virgin Branch cropt in its tender Years.
Reader, as in a Glaſs thou perfectly may'ſt ſee
How all things here below vain and uncertain be.
Dear Virgin Child farewel, thy Mothers Tears
Cannot advance thy Memory (who wears
A Crown above the Stars) yet I muſt mourn,
And ſhew the World mine Offerings at thy Urn.
'Tis not, dear Child, a Stone can deck your Hearſe,
Or can your Worth lodge in a narrow Verſe:

No, no, bleſt Virgin, this Engravers Breath
Is not to ſpeak your Life, but weep your Death.
This here is only laid by th' careful Truſt
Of a ſad Mother, in honour of your Duſt.

T. M.

Reader, pay thy Tribute here,
A Tear, a Roſe, and then a Tear.
Grief may make thee marvel too,
Yet weep on, as Marbles do.
Gently let the Duſt be ſpread
On a gentle Virgins Head:
Preſt by no rude paſſer by,
Nothing but a Mothers Ey.
Sacred Tomb, with whom we truſt
Precious Piles of lovely Duſt:
Keep them ſafely, ſacred Tomb,
Till a Mother ask for room.
Happy Soul, thy Hearſe prepare,
Till ſhe comes and hugs thee there.
And when each Particle ſhall kiſs,
In her dear Arms, ariſe to bliſs.

Joſhua Brook, late Merchant Tayler of London, Jan. 16. 1696. in the 68 Year of his Age. Mary Brook, late Wife of Joſhua Brook, Aug. 4. 1687.

Rebecka Godolphin, Widow of John Godolphin, late Dr. of Laws, June, 4. 1697. Aged 56.

Here reſteth in Hope the Body of Hanna, Wiſe to Nehemiah Bourn, ſometime Commander at Sea, and Commiſſioner for the Navy. By whom he had four Sons and one Daughter. Who after She had lived with him, as a moſt affectionate Wiſe, 52 Years; during which Time She was a moſt ſuitable Companion to him in various and extraordinary Paths of divine Providence by Sea and Land, at home and in remote Parts; and an eminent Example and Pattern to all that knew her, as well in the ſeveral Exeellencies of a natural Temper, as thoſe of the ſpiritual and divine Liſe; being ripened for a better, She departed this World at Ebiſham in Surrey, upon the 18th of June. From thence She was brought to this Place, and buried the 21st in the Year of our Lord 1684. and of her Age 68.

In this Cœmitery was alſo buried, about the beginning of the Year, 1708. Dr. Eems, a Practiſer of Medicine, one of the Sect of the Propheſiers: of whoſe riſing again out of his Grave here, after a wonderful and terrible Manner, his Party confidently propheſied to happen on the 26 of May the ſaid Year. On which Day were Thouſands of Poople got together at his Tomb to ſee the Iſſue. But the Prophecy failed. The Propheſiers were very blank at it: Notwithſtanding they aſſirmed the Propheſy was from God; but that he had deceived them.]

Incloſures.

Edward Hall.

And now concerning the Incloſures of common Grounds about this City, whereof I mind not much to argue; Edward Hall ſetteth down a note of his time, to wit, in the fifth, or rather the ſixth of H. the 8.

Before this time (ſaith he) the Inhabitants of the Towns about London, as Iſeldon, Hoxton, Shoreſditch and others, had ſo incloſed the common Fields with Hedges, and Ditches, that neither the Young Men of the City might ſhoot, nor the ancient Perſons walk for their Pleaſures in thoſe Fields; but that either their Bows and Arrows were taken away or broken, or the honeſt Perſons arreſted or indighted, ſaying: That no Londoners ought to go out of the City, but in the Highways.

Hedges pulled down and Ditches filled up.

This ſaying ſo grieved the Londoners, that ſuddainly this Year, a great Number of the City aſſembled themſelves in a Morning, and a Turner in a Fools Coat came crying thorow the City, Shovels and Spades, Shovels and Spades. So many of the People followed, that it was wonder to behold; and (within a ſhort Space) all the Hedges about the City were caſt down, and the Ditches filled up, and every thing made plain; ſuch was the Diligence of thoſe Workmen.

The Kings Councel hearing of this Aſſembly, came to the Gray Fryers, and ſent for the Maior and Councel of the City, to know the Cauſe; who declared to them, the Injury and annoying done to the Citizens, and to their Liberties, which though they would not ſeek diſorderly to redreſs, yet the Communalty and young Perſons could not be ſtayed, thus to remedy the ſame. When the Kings Councel had heard their anſwer, they diſſimuled the Matter, and commanded the Maior to ſee that no other thing were attempted, but that they ſhould forthwith call home the younger Sort: who having ſpeedily atchieved their Deſire, returned home before the King's Councel, and the Maior departed, without more harm: After which time (ſaith Hall*) thoſe Fields were never hedged.*

Banqueting Houſes like Banquerouts, bearing great ſhew and little worth.

But now we ſee the thing in worſe Caſe than ever before it was, by means of Incloſure for Gardens, wherein are builded many fair Summer Houſes, and as in other Places of the Suburbs, ſome of them like Midſummer Pageants, with Towers, Turrets, and Chimney Tops, not ſo much for Uſe or Profit, as for Shew and Pleaſure; bewraying the Vanity of many Mens Minds, much unlike to the Diſpoſition of the ancient Citizens, who delighted in the Building of Hoſpitals, and Alms Houſes for the Poor; and therein both imployed their Wits and ſpent their Wealths in Preferment of the common Commodity of this our City.

Finsbery fields Rec. Turr. J. S.

Finſbury adjoining to Moreſields, I find mentioned in an old Record granted 20 Rich. 2. to Robert de Wylingham, under the Name of The Garden of Vyneſbury, Prebend in the Pariſh of St. Giles Cripplegate. Whence we may gather that this Place had been once a large Garden for Vines, or a Vineyard.]

Suburb without Cripleſgate.

But to come back again to Moregate, and from thence Weſt through a narrow Lane, called the Poſtern, becauſe it hath at either End a Door to be ſhut in the Night Seaſon, betwixt the Moreditch incloſed with Brick for Tenter Yards, and the Gardens of the ſaid Moreſield, to More Lane: A Part of the Suburb without Crippleſgate, and without this Poſtern called Crippleſgate, alſo lay a Part of the ſaid More, even to the River of Wells, as in an another Place I have ſhewed; and no Houſes were there builded, till the latter end of the Reign of William the Conqueror, and in the Reign of his Son William Rufus; about which Times, ſome few Houſes were there builded along Eaſt and Weſt, thwart before the ſaid Gate. One Alfune builded for the Inhabitants a Pariſh Church which is of St. Giles, ſomewhat Weſt from the ſaid Gate, on the Bank of the Town Ditch. And ſo was there a Street ſince called Foreſtreet, as ſtanding before the Gate.

Pariſh Church of St. Giles.

This Alfune in the Reign of Henry the Firſt, became the firſt Hoſpiteler of St. Bartholomews Hoſpital in Smithfield, as in another Place I have noted. And this Pariſh Church of St. Giles, being at the firſt a ſmall thing, ſtood in Place where now ſtandeth the Vicarage Houſe, but hath been ſince (at divers times) much enlarged, according as the Pariſh hath increaſed, and was at the length newly builded in a Place where now it ſtandeth. But the ſame new Church being large, ſtrongly builded, and richly furniſhed with Ornaments, was in the Year 1545. by Caſualty of Fire ſore burnt and conſumed: notwithſtanding, it was again (within a ſhort Space of Time) repaired as now it ſheweth.

Conduit.

Some little Diſtance from the Eaſt end of this Church, ſtandeth a fair Conduit caſtellated in Foreſtreet. Then had ye a Boſs of ſweet Water in the Wall of the Churchyard, lately made a Pump, but already decayed.

A Pool.

Then had ye a fair Pool of ſweet Water near to the Church of St. Giles, wherein Anne of Lodbury was drowned as I have before declared.

Grub ſtreet inhabited b Bowyers.

In the Eaſt End of Foreſtreet is More Lane: then next is Grub ſtreet, of late Years inhabited (for the moſt Part) by Bowyers, Fletchers, Bow ſtring Makers and ſuch like Occupations; now little occupied; Archery giving place to a Number of Bowling Allies, and Dicing Houſes, which in all Places are increaſed, and too much frequented.

John Fox. J. S.

In this Street lived the famous laborious John Fox, while he compiled and printed thoſe great Volumes of the Acts and Monuments of the Church, and the Martyrdoms of thoſe that were burned to death under Queen Mary for Religion.]

Everades We ſtreet.

White Croſs ſtreet.

This Street ſtretcheth North to Everades Well Street, which thwarteth it to Whitecroſs Street: The next from Fore Street, North is Whitecroſs Street, likewiſe extending it ſelf up to the Weſt End of Everades Well Street, and from the End thereof to Ealdſtreet.

Red Croſs ſtreet.

Beech lane.

Golding lane.

From the Weſt End of Fore Street lyeth Redcroſs Street. From the which Croſs, on the right Hand Eaſt lyeth Beech Lane, and reacheth to the Whitecroſs ſtreet. From that Croſs North lyeth Golding Lane, which ſtretcheth up to a Croſs in Ealdſtreet. Which Golding Lane (on both ſides) is repleniſhed with many Tenements of poor People.

Finsbery Manour. J. S.

All theſe Places lie in the Manour of Finsbury, commonly called Finsbury Fields. Which ſtretch along theſe North Parts of Crippleſgate through Moreſields, and reach to ſome Parts of Shoreditch Pariſh. The Survey whereof being ſomewhat too large to be inſerted here, is thought better to be laid in a Chapter by its ſelf. And ſo it is, following next after the Deſcription of the Manours of Stepney and Hackney.]

Barbican.

On the left Hand, and Weſt of the Redcroſs lieth a Street, of old time called Hounſditch, and of later time named Barbican, of ſuch Cauſe as I have before noted. And thus have you all the Suburb without Crippleſgate, being almoſt altogether in the Pariſh of St. Giles, which hath more than 1800 Houſholders, and above 4000 Communicants.

NOW bending toward the North-weſt we have theſe Suburbs. Without Alderſgate, on the left hand, is the Pariſh Church of St. Buttolph; on the North ſide of the which Church lieth a way called Little Britain ſtreet, towards the Priory of St. Bartholomew in Smithfield; but the Highway without Alderſgate, runneth ſtraight North from the ſaid Gate unto Hounſditch, or Barbican ſtreet on the right hand, and Long lane or the left hand, which runneth into Smithfield.

Then from the farther End of Alderſgate ſtreet, ſtraight North to the Bar, is called Goſwel ſtreet, repleniſhed with ſmall Tenements, Cottages, and Allies, Gardens, banqueting Houſes and bowling Places.

Beyond theſe Bars, leaving the Charter Houſe on the left Hand, or the Weſt ſide of the Way, ſtretcheth up towards Iſeldon commonly called Iſlington, a Country Town hard by. Which in the former Age was eſteemed to be ſo pleaſantly ſeated, that in the Year 1581. Queen Elizabeth in one of the twelve Days, on an Evening, rode out that Way, to take the Air. Where near the Town, She was invironed with a Number of begging Rogues, (as Beggars uſually haunt ſuch Places) which gave the Queen much Diſturbance. Whereupon Mr. Stone, one of her Footmen came in all haſt to the Lord Maior, and afterwards to Fleetwood the Recorder, and told them the ſame. The ſame Night did the Recorder ſend out Warrants into the ſame Quarters, and into Weſtminiſter and the Dutchy. And in the Morning he went abroad himſelf; and took that Day ſeventy four Rogues. Whereof ſome were blind, and yet great Uſurers, and very rich. They were ſent to Bridewel, and puniſhed.]

Eald ſtreet, or Old ſtreet.

On the right Hand or Eaſt ſide (at a red Croſs) turneth into Eald Street, ſo called, for that it was the old Highway from Alderſgate ſtreet, for the North-eaſt Parts of England, before Biſhopſgate was builded. Which Street runneth Eaſt to a Smith's Forge, ſometime a Croſs before Shoreditch Church, from whence the Paſſengers and Carriages were to turn North to Kings-land, Totenham, Waltham, Ware, &c.

Hoſpital without Alderſgate.

There was ſometime in this Suburb without Alderſgate, an Hoſpital for the Poor; but an Alien of Cluny, a French Order, and therefore ſuppreſſed by King Henry the Fifth, who gave the Houſe with Lands and Goods, to the Pariſh of St. Buttolph. And a Brotherhood of the Trinity was there founded. Which was afterwards ſuppreſſed by Henry the Eighth or Edward the Sixth.

A Windmil on the North Corner of this Suburb.

There is (at the fartheſt North Corner of this Suburb) a Windmil, which was ſometime by a Tempeſt of Wind overthrown, and in a Place thereof a Chapel was builded by Queen Katharine (firſt Wife to Henry the Eighth) who named it the Mount of Calvary, becauſe it was of Chriſt's Paſſion and was in the End of Henry the Eighth pulled down, and a Windmil newly ſet up as afore.

Giltſpur ſtreet.

Without Newgate lieth the Weſt and by North Suburb on the right Hand or North ſide whereof (betwixt the ſaid Gate, and the Pariſh of St. Sepulchre) turneth away towards Weſt Smithfield, called, Giltſpur ſtrett, or Knightriders ſtreet; then is Smithfield it ſelf, compaſſed about with Buildings, as I have before declared in Faringdon Ward without.

St. Johns ſtreet.

And without the Bar of Weſt Smithfield lieth a large Street or Way, called of the Houſe of St. John there, St. Johns ſtreet, and ſtretcheth toward Iſeldon.

Hicks Hall.

E. Howes Chron.

Here, in the middle of the Street. ſtandeth Hicks Hall, where the Juſtices of Peace for Middleſex have their County Courts and other Meetings. It was built in the ſeventh Year of King James the Firſt, by Sir Baptiſt Hicks, Knight, a Citizen of London: Whereas before the Juſtices uſed to meet at a Common Inn, called The Caſtle Inn near Smithfield Bars, very inconveniently, being annoyed with Carriers and many other Sorts of People. King James, June the 7. in the aforeſaid Year of his Reign, did infeoff fifteen Knights and Eſquires of the County of Middleſex of this Piece of Ground, to be for ever uſed and employed for a Seſſions Houſe; and for the keeping of a Priſon or Houſe of Correction for the ſame County. Upon which Piece of Ground and according to the Intent of the King's Letters Patents, Sir Baptiſt Hicks Knight, one of the Juſtices of that County, builded a Seſſions Houſe of Brick and Stone at his own proper Charges, with all Offices thereunto belonging. And upon Wedneſday the 17th Jan. 1612. the Houſe being then newly finiſhed, there aſſembled ſix and twenty Juſtices of the ſaid County, being the firſt Day of their Meeting there; where the Founder feaſted them all: And then, after they had conſidered what Name this Structure ſhould bear, they all with one Conſent gave it the Name of Hicks's Hall, in grateful Memory of the Builder: And he freely gave the Houſe to them, and their Succeſſors for ever. He was a Mercer in Cheapſide, and youngeſt Brother to Sir Michael Hicks, Secretary to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley.]

Charter Houſe.

On the right Hand whereof ſtood the late diſſolved Monaſtery, called the Charter Houſe, founded by Sir Walter Manny, Knight, a Stranger born, Lord of the Town of Manny in the Dioceſe of Cambrey, beyond the Seas, who for Service done to King Edward the Third, was made Knight of the Garter.

Charter Houſe; on what Occaſion founded.

This Houſe he founded upon this Occaſion: A great Peſtilence entring this Iland, began firſt in Dorſetſhire, then proceeded into Devonſhire, Somerſetſhire, Gloceſterſhire, and Oxfordſhire, and at length came to London, and overſpread all England; ſo waſting the People, that ſcarce the tenth Perſon of all Sorts was left alive; and Churchyards were not ſufficient to receive the Dead, but Men were forced to chuſe out certain Fields for Burials: Whereupon Ralph Stratford, Biſhop of London, in the Year 1348. bought a Piece of Ground, called No Mans Land, which he incloſed with a Wall of Brick, and dedicated for Burial of the Dead, builded thereupon a proper Chapple, which is now enlarged, and made a dwelling Houſe: and this buryiug burying Plot is become a fair Garden, retaining the old Name of Pardon Churchyard.

Sir Walter Manny's Purchaſe.

Spittle Croft.

New Church Haw.

50000 Perſons buried here in one Year.

After this in the Year 1349. the ſaid Sir Walter Manny, in Reſpect of Danger that might befal in this Time of ſo gteat a Plague and Infection, purchaſed thirteen Acres and a Rode of Ground, adjoining to the ſaid No Mans Land, and lying in a Place called Spittle Croft, becauſe it belonged to Saint Bartholomew's Hoſpital, ſince that called the New Church-Haw, and cauſed it to be conſecrated by the ſaid Biſhop of London to the uſe of Burials.

In this Plot of Ground there was (in that Year) more than 50000 Perſons buried, as I have read in the Charters of Edward the Third.

Alſo I have ſeen and read an Inſcription fixed on a Stone Croſs, ſometime ſtanding in the ſame Churchyard and having theſe Words:

Anno Domini, 1349. Regnante magna Peſtilentia, conſecratum fuit hoc Cœmiterium, in quo & infra ſepta præſentis Monaſterii, ſepulta fuerunt mortuorum corpora, pluſquam quinquaginta millia, præter alia multa abhinc uſque ad præſens; quorum animabus propitietur Deus, Amen.

That is in Engliſh.

A great Plague raging in the Year of our Lord, 1349. this Churchyard was conſecrated; wherein, and within the Bounds of the preſent Monaſtery, were buried more than 50000 Bodies of the Dead: beſides many other from thence to the preſent Time: Whoſe Souls God have Mercy upon. Amen.

Offerings made for the Dead (being 100000) 23 Years.

Bull of Pope Clement. Charter Houſe Churchyard prepared for the poor Sorts, ſo to remain for ever.

In Conſideration of the Number of Chriſtian People here buried, the ſaid Sir Walter Manny cauſed firſt a Chapel to be builded, where (for the Space of twenty three Years) Offerings were made. And it is to be noted, that above 100000 Bodies of Chriſtian People had in that Churchyard been buried. For the ſaid Knight had purchaſed that Place for the burial of poor People, Travailers, and other that were diſeaſed, to remain for Ever; whereupon, an Order was taken, for the avoiding of Contention between the Parſons of Churches and that Houſe, to wit, that the Bodies ſhould be had unto the Church where they were Pariſhioners, or dyed, and after the funeral Service done, had to the Place where they ſhould be buried.

A Houſe of Carthuſian founded on this Burying Place.

For Felons executed, and Selfmurderers

Fryery Cart.

And the Year 1371. he cauſed there to be founded an Houſe of Carthuſian Monks, which he willed to be called the Salutation, and that one of the Monks ſhould be called Prior, and he gave them the ſaid Place of thirteen Acres and a Rode of Land, with the Chapel, and Houſes there builded for their Habitation. But the three Acres of Land, lying without the Walls on the North Part, betwixt the Lands of the Abbot of Weſtminſter, and the Lands of the Prior of St. John; (which three Acres were purchaſed, incloſed, and dedicated by Ralph Stratford, Biſhop of London, as is afore ſhewed) remained till our Time, by the Name of Pardon Churchyard, and ſerved for burying of ſuch as deſperately ended their Lives, or were executed for Felonies. Who were fetched thither uſually in a cloſe Cart, vailed over and covered with black, having a plain white Croſs thwarting, and at the fore End a St. John's Croſs without, and within a Bell ringing [by ſhaking of the Cart,] whereby the ſame might be heard when it paſſed, and this was called the Friery Cart, which belonged to St. Johns, and had the Privilege, as Sanctuary.

Perſons buried in the Charter Houſe.

In this Charter Houſe be the Monuments of the ſaid Sir Walter Manny, and Magaret his Wife, Marmaduke Lumley, Lawrence Bromley, Kt. Sir Edward Hederſet, Knight, Sir William Manny, Knight, Dame Johan Borough, John Dore, Want Water, Knight, Robert Olney, Eſq; Katharine, Daughter to Sir William Babington, Knight, Blanch, Daughter to Hugh Waterton, Katharine, Wife to John at Poote, Daughter and Heir to Richard Lacie, William Rawlin, Sir John Lenthain, and Dame Margaret, his Wife, Daughter to John Fray, John Peak, Eſq; William Baron, and William Baron, Eſq; Sir Thomas Thawites, Knight, Philip Morgan, Biſhop of Ely; 1434.

Monuments of Bartholomew Rede, Knight, Maior of London, buried 1505. Sir John Popham, &c.

This Monaſtery, at the Suppreſſion in the 29th of Henry the Eighth, was valued at 642 l. 4 d. half Peny, Yearly.

The worthy Remembranc of Mr. Thom Sutton, the new Founde of the Chart Houſe.

J. S.

Here now I find fit Time, to commend to all ſucceeding Poſterity, the deſerved Praiſes of that worthy (and never to be forgotten) Gentleman, Maſter Thomas Sutton, the right Phænix of Charity in our Times. [Who after he had purchaſed this old Religious Houſe of the Earl of Suffolk, converted it into an Hoſpital, ſplendidly built, and endowed, for the Education of Youth, for the Relief of Aged Men, and for the Maintenance of the Service of God. And remains one of the greateſt Inſtances of late Ages, of a ſingle Mans Liberality, beyond any that hath happened in our Nation. But this being purpoſely diſcourſed of and deſcribed in the firſt Book, nothing more needs here to be ſaid.

In the Charter Houſe Chapel was buried James Sidgrave, Houſekeeper of the ſaid Hoſpital, April 26. 1707. To which Hoſpital he gave 50 l. and 50 l. more to the Poor of Clerkenwel Pariſh.]

Charterhou Lane.

Conduit by the Charter Houſe.

A little without the Bars of Weſt Smithfield is Charterhouſe Lane, ſo called, for that it leadeth to the ſaid Plot of the late diſſolved Monaſtery. In place whereof, firſt the Lord North, but ſince, Thomas Howard, late Duke of Norfolk, have made large and ſumptuous Buildings, both for Lodging and Pleaſure. At the Gate of this Charterhouſe is a fair Water-Conduit with two Cocks, ſerving the uſe of the Neighbours, to their great Commodity.

St. Johns Street, from the entring this Lane, is alſo, on both ſides, repleniſhed with Buildings up to Clerkenwell. On the left hand of which Street lieth a Lane called Cow Croſs, of a Croſs ſometime ſtanding there; which Lane turneth down to another Lane called Turnmill Street, which ſtretcheth up to the Weſt ſide of Clerkenwell, and was called Turnmil Street, for ſuch cauſe as is afore declared.

Which Briſet having firſt founded the Priory of Nuns at Clerks Well, bought of them Ten Acres of Land, giving them in exchange Ten Acres of Land in his Lordſhip of Welling Hall, in the County of Kent. St. Johns Church was dedicated by Heraclius, Patriarch of the Holy Reſurrection of Chriſt at Jeruſalem, in the Year 1185; and was the chief Seat in England of the Religious Knights of St. John of Jeruſalem. Whoſe Profeſſion was (beſides their daily Service of God) to defend Chriſtians againſt Pagans, and to fight for the Church; uſing for their Habit a black upper Garment, with a white Croſs on the fore part there-

This Priory, Church and Houſe of St. John was preſerved from Spoil or down pulling, ſo long as King Henry the Eighth Reigned, and was imployed as a Store Houſe for the King's Toyls and Tents for hunting, and for the Wars, &c. But in the third of King Edward the Sixth, the Church for the moſt Part, to wit, the Body and ſide Iles, with the great Bell Tower, (a moſt curious Piece of Workmanſhip, graven, gilt, and inameled, to the great beautifying of the City, and paſſing all other that I have ſeen) was undermined and blown up with Gunpowder, the Stone thereof was imployed in building of the Lord Protector's Houſe at the Strand. That Part of the Quire which remained, with ſome ſide Chapels, was by Cardinal Pool (in the Reign of Queen Mary) cloſed up at the Weſt End, and, and otherwiſe repaired; and Sir Thomas Treſham, Knight, was then made Lord Prior there, with Reſtitution of ſome Lands; but the ſame was again ſuppreſſed in the firſt Year of Queen Elizabeth.

This Jorden Briſet, gave alſo to that Houſe one Piece of Ground, thereby to build a Windmil upon. &c. Upon the Diſſolution of this Priory, it became a Pariſh Church, called St. James Clerkenwel. About the Year 1623 the Steeple fell down, having ſtood time out of Mind without any Reparation; nor among the Records of that Church could any Mention be found of any ſuch Thing. This Steeple in the rebuilding thereof, and being near finiſhing, fell again, upon the Undertakers Neglect in not looking into the Strength of that upon which he was to rear ſuch a Burthen. With the Steeple fell the Bells, their Carriages and Frames, beating a great Part of the Roof down before them, the Weight of all theſe together, bearing to the Ground two large Pillars of the South Ile, a fair Gallery over againſt the Pulpit, the Pulpit, all the Pews, and whatſoever was under, or near it.

But all theſe Decays and Ruins were recovered and made whole again, the Walls firm and fair; and a new Door made in the South Wall. And the Church furniſhed with all things new, and without and within beautified. And moreover the Steple begun from the Ground, and raiſed as high as the Roof of the Church. The Effigies on this Tomb, which was ſupported with Pillars, is the Sceleton of a Man moſt artificially wrought. It was intended to repreſent Sir William Weſton, the laſt Lord Prior of St. Johns of Jeruſalem, who dyed Ann. 1540. The Inſcription is fuller in Wevers Monuments: This was of late broken and ſunk. Mr. Howard in the Year 1704. being Churchwarden was minded to repair and make up this Tomb, and bade the Labourers dig where it was, in order thereunto. And near the Surface they met with a leaden Coffin with the Figure of a Croſs on the Top; the Lead was all firm, only a ſmall Hole on the Top towards the Feet. He ſtrictly commanded them to interr the ſaid Corps as they found it. But the Workmen among themſelves opened it, and found nothing (as they were ready to ſwear) but all decayed to Bones and Duſt; only they found a Liquid Matter at the bottom of the Coffin. Wever hath given a larger Account of this Religious Knight and his Monument.

On a Braſs Plate faſtned to this Monument, were theſe Words inſcribed;

Spes me non fallat, quam in te ſemper habebam,
Virgo, da facilem votis natum, &c.

And on another Plate.

Ecce, quem cernis, ſemper tuo nomini devotum,
Suſcipe in ſinum, Virgo Maria, tuum.]

With careful Mutes and mournful Accents ſounding,

Of dreiry Sorrow, and Hearts deepeſt wounding.
Conſuming Time, abridging Worlds deſire,
Inſulting Death, fearful, prodigious ſtrange,
Eclipſing, waxing heat of Natures Fire,
With waining forc'd, and neceſſary Change:
Since you have done your Worſt to date her Days,
Whilome the Worlds, now Heavens gracious Gheſt:
I, this ſad Memory of her lives Praiſe
Preſume to write, in skilful Arts the leaſt.
She was deſcended of right gentle Blood,
Kind, courteous, affable and mild by Nature,
Modeſt her Thoughts, her Diſpoſition good.
Her Mind Exchequers ſtore to every Creature,
Her Conſcience ſpotles, her Religion pure,
Her Life ſincere, her Study Contemplation:
Her Hope was Heaven, with Life aye to endure,
Her Faith was conſtant in her Souls Salvation.
Her vertuous Care her Children to direct,
Conform'd to reaſon in her Husband's Will:
Her Bounty to her Servants, Friends Reſpect,
Deſire to help, and wiſh no Neighbour ill.
Thrice happy then (breathleſs) in Tomb that lieſt:
Earth hath but Earth, thy better part ſurvives:
From wordly Warfare, ſummon'd to the higheſt,
Whoſe Death from Life, a ſecond Life derives.
Death Life confirms, Heaven Earth unites in one:

From the Worms Mouth the ſleeping Courſe to ſnatch,

Death (who inſidiates all things to betray,
Redeeming freely by his Care and Coſt,
Many a ſad Herſe, which Time long ſince gave loſt;
And to forgotten Duſt ſuch Spirit did give,
To make it in our Memories to live.

For where ſo e're a ruin'd Tomb he found,
His Pen hath built it new out of the Ground.

She hath to him, he bin to her like kind.
She was his Mother, he (a grateful Child)
Made her his Theme, in a large Work compil'd,
Of Funeral Reliques, and brave Structnres rear'd,
On ſuch as ſeem'd unto her moſt indear'd.

Sir William Wood lies very near this Stone,
In's Time of Archery excell'd by none.
Few were his Equals. And this noble Art

But how can Art ſecure? Or what can ſave
Extreme old Age from an appointed Grave?
Surviving Archery much thy Loſs lament,

Which is preached every Fryday Morning before the firſt Sunday in the Month. They chooſe their own Miniſter, and require him to preach twice every Lord's Day. For which they, beſide his Salary make a Collectiou in the Pariſh. And if he cannot conveniently preach himſelf, they allow him to take a Lecturer to be his Aſſiſtant; ſuch as they ſhall like of. And they have at preſent one who reads Prayers and Preacheth once a Day.

A Gift Sermon.

Add to the Charities belonging to this Pariſh, a Gift Sermon to be preached every Michaelmas Day. When theſe Payments are made:

To the Miniſter	1	0	0
To the Reader	0	2	6
To the Sexton	0	1	0
To forty Poor Widows at 6 d. apiece,	1	0	0
To be ſpent among the Miniſter, Churchwardens and Overſeers of the Poor	0	15	0

A late Gift, how improved.

Given of late to the Pariſh, 100 l. the Income whereof is for the Uſe of the Poor of the Pariſh, to be diſtributed in Bread every St. John Evangeliſts Day. Mr. Francis Loveday was the Donor. The Pariſhioners being ſomewhat ſtraitned for Room in the Church, Mr. Howard Churchwarden, thought it the beſt Way to improve this 100 l. by building a Gallery on the Weſt End of the ſaid Church; and the Pews or Places there to be let. From the Benefit whereof is reſerved for the Uſe of the Poor according to the Will of the Giver, 6 l. per annum, the full Intereſt thereof.]

The Priory.

This Priory was valued to diſpend 262 l. 19 s. by the Year: And was ſurrendred the 30 of H. VIII. Many fair Houſes for Gentlemen and others, are now builded about this Priory, eſpecially by the Highway towards Iſeldon.

So much of the Church which remaineth: (For one great Ile thereof, which fell down) ſerveth now as a Pariſh Church of St. James, not only for the Tenants and near Inhabitants, but alſo (as is aforeſaid) for all up to Highgate, Moſwell, &c.

Near unto this Church, beſides Clerks Well, lie divers other Wells, as I told you, namely, Skinners Well, Fogs Well, Tode Well, Loders Well, Rede Well, &c.

&c. now damned up. [And ſo remained, and altogether unknown, till within this 40 Years, or thereabouts; when upon ſome occaſion they, or ſome of them were new diſcovered; and being found Mineral Waters, of the nature of Tunbridge, they became greatly frequented by Citizens, and uſed as Chalybiate Waters for correcting Hypochondriacal Diſtempers.

The Well of Clerkenwel.

The old Well of Clerkenwel, and from whence the Pariſh had its Name, is ſtill known among the Inhabitants. It is on the right hand of a Lane that leads from Clerkenwel to Hockley in the Hole, in a bottom. One Mr. Croſs, a Brewer, hath this Well encloſed: but the Water runs from him into the ſaid place. It is encloſed with an high Wall, which formerly was built to bound in Clerkenwel-Cloſe: The preſent Well being alſo encloſed with another lower Wall from the Street. The way to it is through a little Houſe, which was the Watch-houſe, you go down a good many Steps to it. The Well had formerly Iron Work and Braſs Cocks, which are now cut off: The Water ſpins through the old Wall. I was there and taſted the Water; and found it excellently clear, ſweet and well taſted. The Pariſh is much diſpleaſed (as ſome of them told me) that it is thus gone to decay: and think to make ſome Complaint at a Commiſſion for Charitable Uſes, hoping by that means to recover it to common Uſe again, the Water being highly eſteemed thereabouts; and many from thoſe Parts ſend for it.

Skinners Well.

Skinners Well is almoſt quite loſt; and ſo it was in Stow's Time. But I am certainly informed, by a knowing Pariſhioner, that it lies on the Weſt of the Church, encloſed within certain Houſes there. The Pariſh would fain recover the Well again, but cannot tell where the Pipes lie. But Dr. Rogers, who formerly lived in an Houſe there, ſhewed Mr. E. H. late Churchwarden, two Marks in a Wall in the Cloſe, where theſe Pipes (as he affirmed) laid, that it might be known after his Death.]

The Ducking Pond.
R.

There was alſo a Ducking Pond near to Clerkenwell. At which Pond a ſad Miſchance once happened, Viz. the 19th of January 1633. Six pretty young Lads going to ſport themſelves here upon the Ice, the Ice brake, and they all fell in and loſt their Lives, to the great Grief of many that ſaw them dying, and many more that ſaw them dead, as well as of their Parents.]

Houſe of Correction built in Clerkenwel.
J. S

Bridewel:

E. Howes.

In the Year 1615 the Juſtices for Middleſex, by Licenſe from the King, built an Houſe of Correction for the County of Middleſex, near unto the Eaſt End of Clerkenwel, upon a large Garden Plot, purchaſed by the ſaid Juſtices. Which Houſe was for the Puniſhment and Employment of Rogues and Vagabonds of Middleſex: Who formerly uſed to be taken into Bridewel, as well as the Vagrants of London. But theſe Miſcreants ſo encreaſed now, that Bridewel could not contain them, nor employ them: neither were the Governors willing to receive them of Middleſex from the ſaid Juſtices; holding it contrary to the Charter of London and the Foundation of Bridewel. But the City gave unto this Houſe 500 l. in Money, at the Requeſt of the Council, to make a Stock for the Employment of the Poor. The Purchaſe of that Plot of Ground, and the Building coſt about 2500 l. Part of which was the free Gift of the Juſtices, and the reſt levied by the Inhabitants. The 500 l. which the City gave, inſtead of making a Stock, was employed in the building and furniſhing the Houſe. The Juſtices appointed over it two Maſters and Governours, and a Matron, who were to order and govern the Vagrants committed there; and to have a Salary of 200 l. a Year for their Pains. For which Salary they receive them and keep them at Work, without further Charge to the County, unleſs they be diſcharged thence by Order of the Juſtices of Peace.]

St. Sepulchres.

Port Pool Lane, or Greys Inn Lane.

Greys Inn.

Now to return to Giltſpur Street, where I firſt began with this Suburb, there ſtandeth the Pariſh Church of St. Sepulchre in the Bayly, as is before ſhewed, from this Street to Turnagain Lane, by Hoſier Lane, Cow Lane, and Holborn Conduit, down Snore Hill, to Holborn Bridge, and up to Holborn Hill, by Gold Lane on the Right Hand, and Lether Lane beyond it, up to the Bars; beyond the which Bars on the ſame ſide is Port Pool Lane, or Greys Inn Lane, ſo called of the Inn of Court, named Greys Inn, a goodly Houſe there ſituate: by whom builded, or firſt begun, I have not yet learned, but it ſeemeth to be ſince Edward the Thirds Time, and is a Prebend to Paul's Church in London.

This Lane is furniſhed with fair Buildings, and many Tenements on both the ſides, leading to the Fields towards Highgate and Hamſted.

Widow Alington her Building.

On the high Street have ye many fair Houſes builded, and Lodgings for Gentlemen, Inns for Travellers, and ſuch like, up almoſt (for it lacketh but little) to St. Giles in the Fields. Among the which Buildings, for the moſt Part being very new, one paſſeth the reſt in Largeneſs of Rooms, lately builded by a Widow, ſometime Wife to Richard Alington, Eſq; which Richard Alington deceaſed in the Year 1561. And thus much for that North ſide of Holborn.

South ſide of Holborn.

Now from Newgate on the left Hand or South ſide, lieth the Old Bayly, and ſo down by Seacole Lane end to Holborn Bridge, up Holborn Hill, by Shoe Lane, and Fewters Lane, to the Bars.

Shoe Lane, Fetter Lane, &c. when firſt paved.
J. S.

Theſe two Croſs Lanes, Shoe Lane and Feater or [Fewter] Lane, with the third, called Chancery Lane, (all which lie between the two high Streets, Fleetſtreet and Holborn, and are Paſſages from one to the other) were foul for Paſſengers and unpaved, until the 9 Edw. 2. An. 1315. When that King granted an Impoſition upon Commodities brought to the City, for the mending and paving thoſe Lanes, and likewiſe to pave and mend the High way from Portpole Bridge to Tyburn, and to Highgate. And alſo the ſame Grant extended from the paving between Temple Bar and Weſtminſter.]

Old Temple. Templers.

Beyond the Bars had ye (in old Time) a Temple, builded by the Templers, whoſe Order firſt began in the Year of Chriſt 1118. the 19 of Henry the Firſt. This Temple was left, and fell to ruin ſince the Year 1184. when the Templers had builded them a new Temple in Fleetſtreet, near to the River of Thames. A great Part of this old Temple was pulled down but of late, viz. in the Year 1595.

Relig. Spelm.

Adjoining to this old Temple, was the Biſhop of Lincolns Inn, wherein he lodged, when he repaired to this City; Robert de Curars *, Biſhop of Lincoln, builded it about the Year 1147. And John Ruſſel, Biſhop of Lincoln, Lord Chancellor, in the Reign of Richard the Third, was lodged there. It hath of late Years belonged to the Earls of Southampton, and therefore called Southampton Houſe. Which Houſe was conveyed in Fee to the Lord Wriotheſley, Earl of Southampton, and Lord Chancellor, in the Time of King Edward the Sixth. For which the Biſhop hath no other Houſe in or near London, as is thought.]

Ruines of the Old Temple.

One Maſter Roper hath of late builded much there; by means whereof, part of the Ruins of the old Temple was ſeen to remain, builded of Cane Stone, round in form as the New Temple, by Temple Bar, and other Temples in England.

New Street.

Houſe of Converts.

Beyond this old Temple and the Biſhop of Lincoln's Houſe, is New-ſtreet, ſo called in the Reign of Henry the Third, when he (of a Jews Houſe) founded the Houſe of Converts, betwixt the old Temple and the new.

Con-

Antiquities concerning this Houſe. J. S.

Concerning this Houſe of Converts ſome things have been ſpoken before in Farringdon Ward without. Let theſe Antiquities thereof be added here, for the better knowledge of this Place.

I find, that one Henry a Convert, bequeathed a Tenement to it ſituate over againſt this Houſe, in the Street called New-ſtreet, for the maintaining of a Luminary to the Holy Trinity in the Church of this Houſe. Which Tenement the Maſter of the ſaid Houſe and the reſt of the Brethren afterwards demiſed to Will. Ailemer, 9 Edw. II.

Women Converts.

I find, that Women Converts were admitted here, as well as Men. And Edward III. in the 18th of his Reign, admitted one Alioner M. who had not wherewithal to live, granting her to have ſo much in all things for her Suſtentation, as well in Money at the Exchequer, viz. One Peny a Day, and the Aiſiamenta, i. e. the Conveniences of the Houſes and Gardens, as any one of the other Women enjoyed; and alſo of the Deodands, and other Profits, as of the Rents and Tenements of the ſaid Converts of London, being within the Kingdom of England, as much as any other Convert Women partook thereof.

Deodands granted this Houſe.

Concerning the Deodands beforementioned, the ſaid King Edward III. in the 4th of his Reign, granted to the Maſter of the Houſe of Converts, the Deodands belonging to him.

The Kings Penſion.

The King preſented a Clerk to the Church of St. Dunſtans in Fleetſtreet, in the tenth of his Reign: But it was Salva penſione inde capiend. Regis in Domo Converſorum.

Children of Converts.

There was alſo Proviſion made for the Maintaining of the Children of ſuch as were of this Houſe. And there is a Patent, Anno 15 of that King, concerning providing for the Children of one of them deceaſed in the ſame Houſe.

Their Penſion.

And in the 20th of the ſame King the Converts were ordered to receive 10*d. ob.* every Week.

A Cuſtos of this Houſe. Rot. Edw. 1. in Turr. Mat. Hutt.

There was a Governour of this Houſe, who was called the Keeper of it, one John S. Denys, Archdeacon of Rocheſter, was Keeper there in the Time of King Edward I. Which King took a voluntary Oath to make Proviſion for them, Rex Johanni de St. Dionyſio Archino, Roff. Cuſtodi Domus Converſorium Lond. Salut. Quia ad augmentum Fidei, Nos, ut illi qui a Cecitate ad Lumen Eccleſiæ ſunt converſi, in ipſa Fidei Firmitate roborentur, & alii qui adhuc in errore perſiſtunt, lubentius ad graciam Fidei ſe convertant, depoſuimus in eorum ſuſtentationem ſalubriter providero.]

Chancery Lane.

The ſame Street hath ſince been called Chancery Lane, by Reaſon that King Edward the Third annexed the Houſe of Converts by Patent, to the Office of Cuſtos Rotulorum, or Maſter of the Rolls, in the 15th of his Reign.

Chancery Lane dirty and ſtopt up. J. S.

Baga de Quo Warrant. in the Exchequer.

This Chancellors Lane, (now called Chancery Lane) in Edward the Firſts Time was ſo foul and miry that John Briton, Cuſtos of London, had it barred up, to hinder any Harm that might happen in paſſing that Way: and the Biſhop of Chicheſter, whoſe Houſe was there, kept up the Bar for many Years. But after divers Years, upon an Inquiſition made of the Annoyanees of London, the Inqueſt preſented that John Biſhop of Chicheſter, ten Years paſt ſtopt up a certain Lane, called Chancellors Lane, Levando ibid. duas Stapulas cum una barra; i. e. by ſetting up there two Staples with one Bar, croſs the ſaid Lane; whereby Men with Carts and other Carriages could not paſs. The Biſhop ſaid, that John Breton, while he was Cuſtos of London, for that the ſaid Lane was ſo dirty that no Man could paſs, ſet up the ſaid Staples and Bar ad viam illam defutand. and he granted, that what was an Annoyance ſhould be taken away. And ſo the Sheriff was commanded to do it.

Curſitors Office in Chancery Lane.

In this Street, the firſt fair Building to be noted on the Eaſt ſide, is called the Courſitors [or Curſitors] Office, builded with divers fair Lodgings for Gentlemen, all of Brick and Timber, by Sir Nicholas Bacon, late Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, deceaſed in the Year 1578.

Biſhop of Chicheſters Gardens.

Near unto this Curſitors Office be divers fair Houſes and large Gardens, builded and made in a Ground ſometime belonging to one Great Houſe on the other ſide the Street, there made by Ralph Nevil, Biſhop of Chicheſter. This Ground he had by the Gift of Henry the Third, as appeareth hence, viz.

The King granted to Ralph, Biſhop of Chicheſter, Chancellor, that Place, with the Garden which John Herlirum forfeited in that Street, called New-ſtreet, overagainſt the Land of the ſaid Biſhop, in the ſame Street; which Place, with the Garden and Appurtenance was the Kings Exchete, by the Liberty of the City of London, as it was acknowledged before the King, in his Court of the Tower of London, in the laſt Pleas af the Crown of that City. Cart. 11. H. 3.

Moris Brown, Citizen and Fruiterer, by his Will, July 6. 1488, gave to Margery his Wife the Profits of his Tenements and Gardens; which he held to farm of the Biſhop of Chicheſter, lying in Chancellar Lane in the Pariſh of St. Dunſtan in the Weſt.]

Biſhop of Chicheſters Rents in Chancery Lane. J. Williams, Bp. of Chicheſter. J. S.

The Biſhop of Chicheſter hath ſtill a Propriety and Rents here for Grounds belonging to the See, on both ſides the Way. Firſt on the Weſt ſide from Lincolns Inn, in the Street Southward near the Pump to ——— Feet of Ground; comprehending two Thorowfares, viz. Biſhops Court, ſiding with Lincolns Inn; and ſometime taking in part of of it; (which ſaid Inn formerly paid 7*l. per Ann.* as an acknowledgment to the ſaid Biſhop:) And Chicheſter Rents, the other Thorowfare on that ſide. On the Eaſt ſide of the Street forwards, the ſaid Grounds extend from Whites Alley to the Rolls; and backwards Eaſt as far as Bonds Stables, with a Patch of Ground joining to it incluſive: comprehending all the Ground uſually called The Tenter Yard, and Simmons Inn, and ſiding on the Rolls Southwards. Part of this Land Eaſtward is already built upon, and the whole on that Side is deſigned to be improved by building after the ſame Way by the Care of the late Biſhop, the Right Reverend Father Dr. Williams: Who hath hitherto been at great Charges about it; intending to make a great and a ſmaller Square, as himſelf was pleaſed to impart unto me.

An Act for granting Leaſes of it.

And Anno 7. Regin. Annæ, there was an Act made, for explaining and making more effectual a former Act, Anno Reginæ 1. granting further Time to John Biſhop of Chicheſter and his Succeſſors, to make Leaſes of certain Houſes and Ground in and near Chancery Lane, belonging to the Biſhoprick of Chicheſter.]

The ROLLS LIBERTY.

The Houſes of the Rolls. J. S.

There were many old Houſes belonging to the Rolls: and to encourage and warrant the Tenents to rebuild or improve them, an Act was made 12 Charles II. to empower the Maſter of the Rolls to make Leaſes of them for Years. For before the Maſters could not grant ſuch Leaſes for Terms of Years as might prevail with Tenants to build their Houſes. And ſo they came much out of Repair; and not capable of Improvement.

A Tun of Wine to the Maſter of the Rolls.

Thomas Barrow was Maſter of the Rolls in King Richard III. his Reign. To whom that King gave a Grant of a Tun of Wine, to be taken in the Port of London. Which ſeemed to have been his Fee: as appears in a Ledger of that King.

The Rolls Liberty. R. B.

Which Rolls are a Liberty, tho' of no great Compaſs. To ſet down its Circuit or Bounds, The Bounds.

I ſhall begin at the Corner of Curſitors Alley, next to Chancery Lane, taking in the South ſide unto the Roſe Tavern; where it croſſes into Whites Alley, which it takes all in, and ſo into Bonds Stables. All which it takes alſo in, except two or three Houſes on each ſide next to Fetter Lane; and there it croſſes into the Rolls Garden, which it likewiſe takes in; and from thence runs into Chancery Lane by Sergeants Inn, and croſſing Chancery Lane runneth into Jackanapes Lane, about the middle of which it croſſeth into Popes Head Court, which it takes all in, as it doth the Eaſt ſide of Bell Yard, almoſt unto the End next Temple Bar, except ſome few Houſes on the back ſide of Crown Court, which is in the City Liberty. And then croſſing Bell Yard near Temple Bar, runs croſs the Houſes into Shear Lane, taking in all the Eaſt ſide: and again croſſing over to Lincolns Inn new Court, runs up to the Pump by the Palliſado Pales, where it croſſes over into Chancery Lane, taking in the St. John's Head Tavern, and thence to the Corner of Curſitors Alley, where I began its Bounds or Girt Line.

The Rolls.

The Rolls, formerly a Church, now uſed for the Cuſtody of the Rolls and Records of Chancery: as alſo made uſe of on Sundays in Term Time for Divine Service and Preaching. Here the Maſter of the Rolls always reſides. It is a large, but very old and decayed Houſe, much wanting new building, there being Room enough to erect a ſtate-Houſe thereon.

The Chapel.

In the Chapel, where Divine Service is performed, the Records are kept. This alſo would admit of new Building. In the Yard belonging to the Rolls, is the Examiners Office, being two in Number with their Clerks.

Chancery Lane.

Chancery Lane (wherein theſe Rolls are ſituate) (formerly called Newſtreet) is a Place of great Reſort and Trade, occaſioned by its Vicinity to the Rolls, the Six Clerks Office, Sergeants Inn, with Simonds Inn, and the other Inns of Court and Chancery. But the upper Part of this Lane next Holborn, lying in St. Andrews Pariſh, is beſt built and inhabited, having alſo the Proſpect of Lincolns Inn Gardens.

The particular Places in Chancery Lane, are theſe.

On the South Part, beginning next to Lincolns Inn is, Biſhops Court.

Biſhops Court, new built, with good Houſes, having a Freeſtone Pavement, and a Paſſage into Lincolns Inn. Where there is a pair of Gates with open Iron Bars.

Chicheſters Rents.

Chicheſter Rents, a pretty broad Court, with a Paſſage alſo into Lincolns Inn through a pair of Gates, ſhut up a Nights as thoſe at Biſhops Court. It is a Place not over well Inhabited, nor neatly kept, although it might be otherwiſe, as having a good Freeſtone Pavement. Next to this is a ſmall and narrow Place called Feathers Alley, which hath a Paſſage into the upper End of Bell Yard.

Feathers Alley.

Six Clerks Office.

The Six Clerks Office, is a large Building, the Office is kept above Stairs, where the Sixty Clerks in one large Room have their Seats, but the Six Clerks have there each their Apartments.

Enrolment Office.

Entring into this Six Clerks Office on the Right Hand is the Enrolment Office of the Chancery.

Maſters of Chancery.

The Maſters of the Chancery have their Office in Chancery Lane, near Jackanapes Lane, being a Room, where generally one or two attend in their Turns to take Affidavits, &c. and ſit for Buſineſs. It is ſituate in a Yard where the Queens Head and Rolls Tavern is kept. Their dwelling Houſes are elſewhere.

The Maſters of Chancery. J. S.

The Maſters of Chancery are twelve, Doctors of the Civil Law, who are Aſſiſtanrs to the Lord Chancellor. When Sir Thomas Smith writ his Commonwealth, there were but Six, beſides the Maſter of the Rolls. The Nature of their Office, and what Encroachments were made upon them a good while ago, may appear by a Letter Petitionary, preferred to the Lord Treaſurer, Anno 1608. drawn and ſigned by Sir John Tyndal and other of the Maſters: Complaining againſt extraordinary Maſters in Chancery, the Act of taking away the Rewards of Suitors, loſing the Benefit of the Alienation Office, and other Matters; which had greatly diminiſhed the Benefit of their Places. The Letter was as follows.

Right Honourable and our very good Lord,

Their Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer.

We, the Maſters of the Chancery, which be the Maſters of the Chancery in ordinary, and ſo known, (whoſe Names be hereunto ſubſcribed) on the Behalf of our ſelves, and our Fellow Maſters in ordinary now abſent, do moſt humbly and in all Duty ſhew unto your Lordſhip, that where by the antient Inſtitution of the High Court of Chancery, there were only twelve principal Aſſiſtants appointed to attend the Lord Chancellor in the Affairs of that Court, which be called The Maſters of the ſaid Court, of whom the Maſter of the Rolls is the chief: Unto which Number the noble Kings of this Realm, have given bountifully Allowance of Diet and Robes, and many great Things alſo towards the Charge of their Service, beſides many Fees of Right and Cuſtom belonging to their Places: So it is, Right Honourable, that as in many other Caſes, ſo of later Times, we know not by what deſerved Puniſhment, but by our Uuhappineſs (as it ſeemeth) all our antient Allowances in a Manner (in this extreme Encreaſe of Charges, when our Pains and Service by Reaſon of the Multitude of Suits are doubled and trebled) are taken from us, partly by Monopolies of great yearly Revenue, of ſuch Things as belonged principally to the ordinary Maſters, made by Patents, unto ſuch as have not at all ſerved in the ſaid Court; partly by a late ſevere Statute whereby all Reward from Suitors is taken from them, a Matter admitted in all other Commonwealths; and not a little by the making in theſe Times of many extraordinary Maſters, which originally were not at all: but in Proceſs of Time a very few were uſed only in the remoteſt Parts of the Land, for the Eaſe of thoſe Subjects. But now, tho' they be not of the Kings Fee, nor give Attendance in Court, do not only gleane, but carry away, whole Sheaves from the Ordinary Maſters. So as in Effect there is left unto the true Maſters towards their great Pains and Charge, a bare Yearly Stipend from the Kings Majeſty of about twenty Nobles towards their Robes, and certain petit Duties; which the Extraordinaries take upon them alſo, againſt all Right and Reaſon, to carry from them.

And for a plain Evidence thereof, may it pleaſe your Lordſhip, to be informed, that the Duties which are payable in the Alienation Office, whereof your Honor hath now under his Gracious Majeſty the Governance, which do belong to a Maſter of the Chancery, were ever before the Erection of that Office belonging only unto the Maſters, and at the firſt Erection of that Office a Maſter in Ordinary was placed there. But in the Time of the laſt Lord Treaſurer, we know not by what Means, but as we believe chiefly by not knowing any Difference between the two Functions, an Extraordinary was placed there; to the great Prejudice and Damage, and (if we durſt ſay it) to the Wrong of the Ordinary Maſters. Now foraſmuch as the ſame Perſon is yet employed in that Service in the ſaid Office, We therefore, the Ordinary Maſters of the ſaid Court of Chancery, his Majeſty's dutiful, faithful and moſt painful Servants in that Court, encouraged by the publick Fame of your admirable Diſpoſition to Juſtice and Equity, do humbly beſeech your Honour, to be a Means unto his Gracious Majeſty, that his moſt humble Subjects and Servants might in ſome reaſonable Sort, according to their Places and Service be reſpected; And your Honour in this very Particular Caſe, would be pleaſed to reſtore unto our Places, the Benefit of ſerving in the ſaid Office of Alienations.

And ſo ſhall we be found no leſs ready than we ſtand bound to employ our beſt Endeavours, in the ſame His Majeſty's Service, under you: And will alſo teſtify our humble Thankfulneſs, by yielding unto your Honour our moſt willing Duties, and by recommending you always to the gracious Favour of the Almighty.]

Jackanapes Lane.

Jackanapes Lane lately a bad, as well as frequent Paſſage for Coaches and Carts into Lincolns Inn fields, and thoſe Parts; being very troubleſome by reaſon of its narrowneſs, that two could not paſs by one another. But now by a late Act of Parliament this Lane is widened. On the South ſide, about the middle, there is a Paſſage into Popes Head Court, which is a pretty ſquare place, with a Freeſtone Pavement. And of this there is another Paſſage into Bell Yard, and another through the Popes Head Tavern.

Popes Head Court.

Bell-Yard.

Bell-Yard, a place of a good Thorowfare from Lincolns Inn into Fleetſtreet, and chiefly conſiſting of Publick Houſes.

Shear Lane.

Shear Lane cometh out of Little Lincolns Inn Fields, and falleth into Fleetſtreet by Temple Bar: the upper part hath good old Buildings, well Inhabited; but the lower part is very narrow, and more ordinary. In this Lane is a certain ſmall Court.

Curſitors Alley.

Then on the Eaſt ſide of Chancery Lane is Curſitors Alley, ſo called from the Curſitors Office there adjoining. This Alley, at the entrance into Chancery Lane, is but narrow, but openeth wider, where it hath good Houſes well Inhabited.

Whites Alley.

Whites Alley, or rather Alleys, (for there are ſeveral) which lead to Buildings all old, and generally ill Inhabited. Theſe Buildings have two Paſſages into Chancery Lane, the one called Three Crane Alley, and the other the Hole in the Wall, both very narrow and ordinary.

Three Crane Alley.
Hole in the Wall Alley.

Bonds Stables.

Bonds Stables hath a Paſſage into Whites Alley, and another into Symonds Inn, but the beſt into Fetter Lane, where there be ſome Houſes, the part towards Whites Alley being an Inn. In this place is a ſmall Court called Crack Pitcher Court.

Crack Pitcher Court.

Symonds Inn.

• Symonds Inn, lately new built, and now a pretty handſome Place, in which ſeveral Offices are kept, as the Regiſters Office, &c.]

Then was the Houſe of Converts, wherein now the Rolls of Chancery be kept.

Thus much for the Rolls and the Liberty thereof. Then is Sergeants Inn.

Six Clerks Office.
J. S.

On the Weſt ſide of Newſtreet was antiently and ſtill is, the Houſe and Office of the Six Clerks, of old called Harflu Inn. It belonged ſometime to Nocton Park Priory in Lincolnſhire. Upon the Diſſolution it came to King Henry VIII. who in the 30 of his Reign gave it to Charles Duke of Suffolk, and Katharine his Wife. It conſiſted of a Meſſuage, a Garden and Curtelage. And here the Six Clarks ſat. In the 31 H. 8. the ſaid Duke and Dutcheſs parted with it to the ſaid Six Clerks. In In which Year an Act of Parliament was made, whereby they were made a Corporation, under the Name of the Six Clerks of the Kings Court of Chancery: And for them to hold and enjoy the ſaid Meſſuage, Garden and Curtelage, to them and their Succeſſors, the Six Clerks of Chancery, for ever in Succeſſion; and to hold it of the King in Fealty.]

Black Fryers Church by Holborn.

On this Weſt Side of Newſtreet, towards the North end thereof, was (of old time) the Church, and Houſe of the Preaching Fryers: Of the which Houſe I find, that in the Year of Chriſt, 1221. the Fryers Preachers, thirteen in Number, came into England, and having to their Prior one named Gilbert de Fraxineto, in Company of Peter de la Roche Biſhop of Wincheſter, came to Canterbury: Where preſenting themſelves before the Archbiſhop Steven, he commanded the ſaid Prior to preach, whoſe Sermon he liked ſo well, that ever after he loved that Order. Theſe Fryers came to London, and had their firſt Houſe without the Wall of the City by Holborn, near unto the Old Temple.

Earl of Kent buried in the Black Fryers.

Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, was a great Benefactor unto theſe Fryers; and deceaſing at his Mannor at Banſted in Surrey, or after ſome Writers, at his Caſtle of Barkhamſted in Hartfordſhire, in the Year 1242. was buried in their Church. Unto the which Church he had given his Place at Weſtminſter; which the ſaid Fryers afterward ſold to Walter Gray, Archbiſhop of York, and he left it to his Succeſſors in that See, for ever to be their Houſe, when they ſhould repair to the City of London. And therefore the ſame was called York Place, which Name ſo continued, until the Year 1529. that King Henry the Eighth took it from Thomas Wolſey, Cardinal and Archbiſhop of York, and then gave it to name, White Hall.

White Hall.

Margaret, Siſter to the King of Scots, Widow to Geffery, Earl Marſhal, deceaſed 1244. and was buried in this Church.

Convocation of Black Fryers by Holborn, from all Parts of Chriſtendom.

In the Year 1250 the Fryers of this Order of Preachers, thorough Chriſtendome, and from Jeruſalem, were by a Convocation aſſembled together, at this their Houſe by Holborn, to entreat of their Eſtate, to the Number of 400, having Meat and Drink found them of Alms, becauſe they had no Poſſeſſions of their own. The firſt Day the King came to their Chapter, found them Meat and Drink, and dined with them. Another Day the Queen found them Meat and Drink: Afterward the Biſhop of London, then Abbots of Weſtminſter, of St. Albans, Waltham, and others. In the Year 1276. Gregory Rokeſly, Maior, and the Barons of London, granted and gave to Robert Kilwerby, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, two Lanes or Ways next the Street of Baynards Caſtel, and the Tower of Mountfichet, to be deſtroyed. On the which Place the ſaid Robert builded the late new Church, with the reſt of the Stones that were left of the ſaid Tower. And thus the Black Fryers left their Church and Houſe by Holborn, and departed to their new.

The Black Fryers remove thence.

This old Frier Houſe, (juxta Holborn ſaith the Patent) was by King Edward the Firſt in the ſixteenth of his Reign, given to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln. Next to this Houſe of Fryers, was one other great Houſe, ſometime belonging to the Biſhop of Chicheſter, whereof Matthew Paris writeth thus:

Biſhop of Chicheſters Inn.

Raph de nova villa, or Nevill, Biſhop of Chicheſter, and Chancellor of England, ſometime builded a Noble Houſe, even from the Ground, not far from the New Temple and Houſe of Converts, in the which Place he deceaſed, in the Year 1244. [His Gardens on the other ſide of the Street mentioned before. Matthew Paris called it the Biſhop of Chicheſter's Palace (ſuch it ſeems was the Magnificence of it,) and writes, that the Archbiſhop of Canterbury viſiting St. Bartholomews, did lie at this Houſe. It is ſaid to be Let in Leaſe by the Biſhop's Predeceſſors for divers Years. Here Spelman writes, that Sir Richard Read, ſometimes a Maſter of Chancery, and Mr. Atkinſon a Counſellor at Law, Men eminent in their Times, (viz. under Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth,) and others dwelt.]

In this Place after the deceaſe of the foreſaid Biſhop, and in Place of the Houſe of Black Fryers before ſpoken, Henry Lacy Earl of Lincoln, Conſtable of Cheſter, and Cuſtos of England, builded his Inn, and for the moſt Part was lodged there: He deceaſed in this Houſe in the Year, 1310. and was buried in the new Work (whereunto he had been a great Benefactor) of St Pauls Church, betwixt our Lincolns Inn Chapel.

A fair Chapel for the Uſe of this Inn of Court was built in the firſt Court Anno 1623. and Conſecrated upon Aſcenſion Day that Year, by the Lord Biſhop of London.]

Lincolns Inn an Inn of Court. This Houſe greatly encreaſed with new Buildings. Sir Thomas Lovel a Builder here.

This Lincolns Inn, ſometime pertaining to the Biſhops of Chicheſter, as a part of the ſaid great Houſe, is now an Inn of Court, retaining the name of Lincolns Inn, as afore; but now lately encreaſed with fair Buildings, and repleniſhed with Gentlemen, ſtudious in the common Laws. In the Reign of Henry the Eighth, Sir Thomas Lovel was a great Builder there. Eſpecially, he builded the Gatehouſe and forefront towards the Eaſt, placing thereon as well the Lacies Arms, as his own. He cauſed the Lacies Arms to be caſt and wrought in Lead, on the Lover of the Hall of that Houſe, which was in three Eſcutcheons, a Lyon Rampant for Lacie, ſeven Maſcules voided for Quincie, and three Wheat Sheaves for Cheſter. This Lover being of late repaired, the ſaid Eſcutcheons were left out.

The Chapel and Walk. J. S.

About the Year 1622. or 1623. the Chapel was built with an Ambulatory, or Walk, underneath paved with Free Stone, very convenient for ſtanding or walking in wet Weather; and where the Gentlemen of this Inn are buried: For whom there be numerous Inſcriptions. Over the Arch at the Eaſt End of the South Walk under the ſaid Chapel is placed the Coat of Arms of the Biſhop of London, who Conſecrated this Chapel; and theſe Words underneath,

It is a fair Chapel, built without any Pillars. The Windows all finely painted, with Apoſtles, Kings and Prophets. Lincolns Inn in four Pariſhes. R. B.

Lincolns Inn hath a conſiderable Part in the Pariſh of St. Clements; another Part in the Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields; another part in the Pariſh of St. Andrews Holborn; and a Fourth in the Liberty of the Rolls.

Much encreaſed and improved.

Of late Years it hath been much encreaſed by the additional Buildings, taken out of Little Lincolns Inn Fields: Conſiſting of three very good Rows, all taken up by Gentlemen of the Society, having fair and commodious Apartments; the ſaid three Rows encompaſſing three Sides of the Court: Which is ſpacious and neatly kept, and covered with Gravel, raiſed towards the middle, to caſt off the Rain Water, when it falls. In the midſt of the Court is a curious Stone Pillar artificially wrought; on which is a Dyal Clock, with four Boys ſpouting out Water out of Tritons Shells; and at the Bottom is a Fountain that receiveth the ſaid Streams of Water falling down from the Shells: all encompaſſed with handſome Iron Bars. The North ſide lieth open to the Gardens, which are now exceedingly improved with curious Walks, Graſs Plots, fine Rows of Shady Trees to walk under, and a Tarras Walk or Mount, which gives the Proſpect of Lincolns Inn Fields.]

Buildings propounded by Lincolns Inn Garden.

Here within the Bounds of Lincolns Inn, was lately propounded by Mr. Weedon, the erection of a beautiful Range of Building, to be only one Story, without Chimneys, and to be covered flat with Lead, all along by the dead Wall, on the Eaſt ſide of Lincolns Inn Garden, upon the waſte Ground between the ſaid Wall and the Gravel Walk, for the uſe of ſome, or all the Offices in Chancery, viz.

The Reaſon for ſuch a Building.

The Reaſons offered for this Erection, were, that the ſaid Building would be much more ſecure and ornamental to the ſaid Garden and all the Chambers in the ſame; defending them from Robbery, and the Duſt and Noiſe of the next adjoining Street. And a Row of fine, regular Saſh Windows would be a much pleaſanter Sight on the Garden ſide; than an old dirty black Wall. And it might yield a very conſiderable Ground Rent to the Society. And theſe Offices would be moſt conveniently ſituated, almoſt in the Centre of the Inns of Court, and Chancery. And the ſame Offices being thus joined together would be of very great Eaſe to all the Officers: and alſo to all Attorneys, Solicitors and Practiſers; as well as all other People that ſhould have occaſion to reſort to the ſame. Whereby all the Officers might have a mutual Correſpondency one with another. And the Situation being healthful, it might contribute not only to the great Eaſe, but the Health alſo of the ſeveral Officers and their Clerks: Eſpecially thoſe of the Six Clerks Office; who, the greateſt Part of the Year, write by Candle Light in the Day time, annoyed with the Smoak and Smell of Candlegreaſe: and are ſo many and ſo near crowded up together in little Boxes.]

The reſt of that ſide of the Street even to Fleetſtreet is repleniſht with fair Buildings.

High Holborn Street.

High Holborn paved, and Shoe Lane Fetter Lane. &c. 32. H. 8. J. S.

Now the High Oldborn Street, from the North End of New Street ſtretcheth on the left Hand (in building lately framed) up to St. Giles in the Fields. [But the Way leading from the Bars in Oldborn Weſtward towards the ſaid St. Giles, was very foul and full of Pits and Sloughs, and very perilous, and noyſome to all that repaired and paſſed that Way, as well on Foot, as on Horſe-back, or with Carriages. And ſo were other Lanes and Places that led out of, or into Holborn: as Shoe Lane, Feuter Lane, New Street, or Chancery Lane, Grays Inn Lane. Upon Complaint whereof, an Act was made in the 32 H. 8. An. 1542. to pave all thoſe Places with paving Stones; as alſo on the Eaſt of the City, the Way from Aldgate to Whitechapel Church, which had the ſame ill Paſſage. All to be paved and made convenient for Paſſengers, by the Feaſt of St. John Baptiſt, 1542. in Manner and Form as the Cawſey or Highway leading from Strandbridge to Charing Croſs had been made and paved.

The Extent of this Pavement in Holborn Street was unto the far End of it, unto St. Giles in the Fields.

Hoſpital of St. Giles.

Which St. Giles was an Hoſpital, founded by Matilda the Queen, Wife to Henry the Firſt, about the Year 1117. This Hoſpital, ſaith the Record of Edward III. the nineteenth Year, was founded without the Bar Veteris Templi London. & Converſorum.

The Kings Or der for Le prous Perſons

Moreover, ſaith the ſame Record, in the 20 of Edward III. the ſaid King ſent Commandment under his Great Seal, to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, willing them to make Proclamation in every Ward of the City and Suburbs; That all leprous Perſons within the ſaid City and Suburbs ſhould avoid within fifteen Days; and that no Man ſuffer any ſuch leprous Perſon to abide within his Houſe, upon Pain to forfeit his ſaid Houſe, and to incurr the King's farther Diſpleaſure. And that they ſhould cauſe the ſaid Lepers to be removed into ſome out-Places of the Fields, from the Haunt and Company of all ſound People. Whereupon it followed, that the Citizens required of the Gardian of St. Giles's Hoſpital, to take from them, and to keep continually the Number of fourteen Perſons, according to the Foundation of Matilda the Queen; which was for Leprous Perſons of the City of London, and the Shire of Middleſex. All this Paragraph is omitted in the later Editions of Stow.

William Dun thorn.

This Hoſpital of St. Giles for Lazars was confirmed by King Edward III. in the fourth of his Reign.

A Royal Chauntry here.

In this Hoſpital was a Chapel: Wherein King Edward I. in the firſt of his Reign, founded a Chauntry ('tis like, for his Father and Anceſtors) For which this Hoſpital took Yearly at the Exchequer, for the Maintenance of it 60 s. and 20 s. more at the Hand of the Sheriff of Surrey.

Alms due to this Hoſpital.

There were Alms due and accuſtomably paid toward this Hoſpital, in the City of London. And there was a Patent 15 R. 2. for the requiring and confirming them.]

This Hoſpital was founded, as a Cell to Burton Lazar, of Jeruſalem in Leiceſterſhire, as may appear by a Deed dated the twenty fourth of Henry the Seventh in theſe Words:

Burton Lazar, an Hoſpital in Leiceſterſhire.

Thomas Norton, Kt. Maſter of Burton Lazar of Jeruſalem in England, and the Brethren of the ſame Place, Keepers of the Hoſpital of St. Giles, without the Bars of the Old Temple of London, have ſold to Geffery Kent, Citizen and Draper of London, a Meſſuage or Houſe, with two Sollars above edified, in the Pariſh of Alhallows Hony Lane, in Weſt Cheap, adjoyning to the Weſt Part of a Tenement, called the Goat on the Hope, pertaining to the Drapers of London, for 31 l.

St. Giles Bowl.

At this Hoſpital the Priſoners, conveyed from the City of London towards Tyburn, there to be executed for Treaſons, Felonies, or other Treſpaſſes, were preſented with a Bowl of Ale, thereof to drink [at their Pleaſure] as their laſt refreſhing in this Life.

Suburb without Ludgate.

Now without Ludgate, lieth the South End of the Old Baily. Then down Ludgate Hill by Fleet Lane, over Fleet Bridge, up Fleet Street, by Shoe Lane, Fewters Lane, New Street, or Chancery Lane, and to Shear Lane, by the Bar on the Right Hand. And from Ludgate, on the left Hand or South ſide, by Bride Lane, Water Lane, Crokers Lane, Serjeants Inn, and the New Temple by the Bar, all which is of Faringdon Ward, as is afore ſhewed.

CHAP. IV.

The Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields. The Bounds and preſent State of it. Chapel in Great Queen Street. St. Giles's Church. New built. Monuments of the Dead there.

St. Giles Pariſh.

J. S.

THE ancient Hoſpital of St. Giles was taken notice of before by Stow, but the Pariſh not at all; becauſe, I ſuppoſe, it ſtood at ſuch a diſtance from the City in his time; but now being ſo exceedingly ſpread in Buildings, that it is become contiguous to the City, and ſo conſiderable for the Structures and Inhabitants, it is reckoned into the Suburbs.]

And the preſent ſtate of the Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields, ſtands thus:

R. B.

It is of a very large extent, and as populous, with a mixture of rich Inhabitants, to wit, of the Nobility, Gentry, and Commonalty; but withal, filled with abundance of Poor.

Its Bounds.

As to the Bounds or Girt-Line of this Pariſh, I ſhall begin on the back ſide of Portugal Row in Lincolns Inn Fields, towards Clare Market, at the Stone or Pariſh Mark. Thence it runs along the Stablings in the ſaid Row, taking in only the Houſes; from thence it croſſeth into Lincolns Inn New Court, where the Pariſh Mark is ſet up in the Wall, and ſo to the Pump that ſtands by the Garden Pales: and from this Pump it runneth Northward, in a direct Line, croſſing the Garden into Holbourn, by the Entry called Gridiron Alley, which is about ten Doors from Turnſtile. And from thence it runs on the South ſide as far as New Turnſtile Alley, where it croſſeth the Street to the North ſide, to the Houſe where the Stone Mark is at the Door, being ſix Doors from Kings-gate; and thence it croſſeth the Buildings into Eagle ſtreet, and turning to the corner of the ſaid Street, runs Northward by the Wall of the Gardens belonging to King ſtreet in Bloomsbury; and ſo ſtreight into the Fields to the Conduit called the Devils Chimney; and from thence two Fields Northwards beyond Lambs Conduit, where there is a Stone Landmark ſet up. And from thence it runs Weſtward to Tottenham Court Road, ſo to the Dog Kennel; and thence to St. Giles's Pound, where it croſſeth the Road into Hog Lane, running down the ſame to the corner of Monmouth Street. Where it croſſeth and paſſeth by the New Buildings formerly called Cock and Pye Fields; and from thence turns down into Caſtle Street, to the lower end thereof, taking in all the North ſide of the Street; and from the Red Lyon back Gate it runs croſs the Houſes into Drury Lane, four Doors from the corner of Brownlow Street. And there it croſſeth to the Eaſt ſide of Drury Lane, and runs down two Doors beyond the Horſhoe Tavern at the corner of Princes Street. And there it croſſeth the back ſide of the Houſes of Princes Street into Stanhope Street: where it croſſes and takes in the Tallow Chandlers and the other jetting-out Houſe. And from thence it runs down Duke ſtreet, as far as the Houſe, where the Pariſh Stone Mark is ſet up, oppoſite to the Turning into new Weld ſtreet. Then croſſing the Houſes it runs into Bear Yard; thence into Sheffield ſtreet which it croſſeth, and ſo into a Paved Yard, where there is an Entry or Paſſage by the Black Jack; and croſſing the Street brings to the Pariſh Stone Mark, on the Backſide of Portugal Row, where I began; and all the Streets, Alleys and Courts within this Girt Line are within this Pariſh; all which doth further appear in the Mapp thereof.

Now for the particular Deſcription of each Place.

I ſhall begin with Lincolns Inn Fields, and the Outlets, then with thoſe Streets contiguous to it, as Duke ſtreet, Princes ſtreet, Weld ſtreet, Drury Lane, with the Courts and Alleys therein. Then Great and Little Queen ſtreet, with Lutners Lane, and the other Places that fall into Drury Lane and Holborn. Then Brownlow ſtreet, Belton ſtreet, Caſtle ſtreet, Shorts Gardens, King ſtreet, Monmouth ſtreet, and the Streets going out of Hog Lane, as Denmark ſtreet, &c. Then again I ſhall begin at St. Giles Pound, and ſo run down all the South ſide unto Turnſtile, taking in the Courts and Alleys of Note, and the like on the North ſide; and ſo conclude with Blomsbury, or Southampton Buildings up to Tottenham Road.

Lincolns Inn Fields.

Lincolns Inn Fields, a very curious ſpacious Place, with an excellent Air, and therefore garniſhed with three Rows of very good Houſes, very well inhabited, viz. Portugal Row on the South ſide, the Arched Row on the Weſt ſide, and Holborn or Newmans Row on the North ſide. Of which the two firſt are very large, and for the generality taken up by the Nobility and Gentry. The Eaſt ſide lieth open to Lincolns Inn Garden, which gives a delightful Proſpect to the Inhabitants: It is a great Thoroughfare both for Horſe and Foot; and hath theſe Places for Paſſage; on the North ſide is great Turnſtile Alley, a great Thoroughfare which leadeth into Holborn, a Place inhabited by Shoemakers, Sempſters, and Milleners; for which it is of a conſiderable Trade and well noted; at the Entrance of this Alley and on the Back ſide of Holborn Row is Whetſtone Park, once famous for its infamous and vicious Inhabitants; which ſome Years ſince were forced away; and out of this Place there are ſeveral ſmall Alleys which lead into Holborn. And on the North weſt End there is a Paſſage into Holborn, through little Turnſtile Alley, very ordinary. Then Southwards there are two open Paſſages, the one into Lincolns Inn, and Little Lincolns Inn Fields, now converted into Buildings and the other at the Weſt End, leading into Clare Market through Sheffield ſtreet. And then Weſtwards, over againſt Portugal Row is a Paſſage into Bear Yard, with a Free Stone Pavement. The Chapel in Great Queens ſtreet.
J· S

There is a Chapel in Great Queens ſtreet, in this Pariſh of St. Giles lately erected, by the Means of one William Raguley pretending to be a Miniſter of the Church of England. Wherein for ſome Time he preached without Licence or Authority, conſecrated the Holy Sacrament, and adminiſtred the ſame. Wherefore in this Chapel the Biſhops of London and Peterborough cauſed two Declarations, Decemb. 22. 1706. to be read.

That of the Biſhop of London was, ‘That whereas he was credibly informed that Mr. Baguley gave out to the Congregation aſſembled in that Place, that he had his [the Biſhops] Permiſſion and Encouragement for what he did, he thought it neceſſary for the undeceiving of this Part of his Flock, with the Care of whoſe Souls the Divine Providence had entruſted him, to publiſh and declare that he had ſeveral Times ſent to the aboveſaid Mr. Baguley, and had ordered him to exhibit to him the Teſtimonial of his Ordination; that he might be the better enabled to judge of his Qualifications for the Miniſtry: But that the ſaid Mr. Baguley, tho' often called upon, had never given him any Satisfaction in this Particular. That he had Reaſon therefore to conclude that he had not been admitted into the Order of Prieſthood in the Church of England. And that therefore he was not duly qualified for the reading of the publick Prayers, or preaching of Gods Word, and adminiſtring of the holy Sacrament in the ſame. And that for this Reaſon all good Chriſtians ought to take care how they communicated with ſuch a Perſon, who proceeded in Contempt of the Epiſcopal Authority, and the good Diſcipline eſtabliſhed in the Church of England.

Henry London.

At the ſame Time was publiſhed the following Certificate under the Hand of the Biſhop of Peterburgh: Viz. ‘Theſe are to certify whom it may concern, that William Baguley offered himſelf to me this Day to be admitted to the Order of Prieſthood: which I refuſed him, there being Crimes of a very heinous Nature alledged againſt him. Witneſs my Hand this 21 Day of Decemb. 1706.

In this Street, on the Eaſt ſide beſides its Paſſage into Shorts Gardens, there is a ſmall Court called Taylors Court, which leadeth into Bowl Yard. And on the Weſt ſide there was a Place with Buildiag, called Cock and Pye Fields, which was made uſe of for a Lay Stall for the Soil of the Streets, but of late built into ſeveral handſome Streets, and ſo neatly contrived that every Street in a ſtreight Line fronts the Dyall placed in the midſt, which is raiſed on a high Pedeſtal and Pillar; Theſe Streets are thus named, Earls ſtreet, Queen ſtreet, White Lyon Street, and St. Andrews ſtreet; and beſides theſe principal Streets there is Tower ſtreet, which falleth into Caſtle ſtreet; and this is croſſed by another called Lombardſtreet; Then on the Part next to KingStreet and between Queenſtreet and St. Andrews ſtreet, are ſome Courts or Alleys deſigned to be built.

From St. Giles's by the Pound, I ſhall lead you down the South ſide unto great Turnſtile, taking in all the Places of Note not yet named; and after that ſhall do the ſame on the North ſide within the Limits of the Pariſh. And according to this Method, the firſt Place that offers its ſelf, is the Church, called St. Giles in the Fields, built in the Place where the antient Church ſtood; which was ſo decayed as not to be repaired. This good Work of building the Church anew was carried on and finiſhed by the charitable Contributions of the Inhabitants, and others: And afterwards the Churchyard was encloſed with the Brick Wall. And the Church and Steeple is alſo of Brick Work: Which is large and ſtrong built, and well adorned within, over the Top of the principal Churchyard Door is curiouſly carved the laſt Judgment. But to ſpeak more particularly of the new Church.]

St. Giles Church.

R.

I muſt briefly ſay of the old Church, that indeed it was very old: and by reaſon of the antiquity of it, ſtood ſtill in danger of falling: and ſome part of it did fall; foretelling the reſt to follow, if not ſpeedily prevented, by pulling it down to rebuild it; which, after a diligent ſearch, the neceſſity found, was done.

This Church new built An. 1625.

For this new Church began to be raiſed in the Year of our Lord God 1623, was finiſhed 1625, and encompaſs'd with a fair Brick Wall in the Year 1631.

Which take more amply in that abſolute delivery of it, that I find engraven over the Door on the North ſide of this Church; the words are theſe:

Quod felix bonumque ſit
Poſteris,
Hoc Templum loco veteris ex Annoſâ
vetuſtate
Collapſi, Mole & Splendore Auctum
Multo Parœcorum Charitas
Inſtauravit,
In quibus pientiſſimæ Heroinæ
D. Aliciæ Duddeley
Munificentia gratum marmoris hujus meretur eloquium.
Huc etiam acceſſit aliorum quorundam pietas,
Quibus proviſæ in Cœlo ſunt grates.

Opus	Surgere Cœpit	Anno	1623.
	Ad umbilicos deductum		1625.
	Muro undiquaque vallatum		1631.

Heus! Viator, an effœtum eſt bonis operibus hoc ſeculum?

To the raiſing, finiſhing, and (in every part of it) richly, and very excellently beautifying of this great Work, there were many good and great Benefactors. The Names of all, with their particular Gifts, my Time gave not leave to compaſs: Neither, for many of them, could any enquiry get them, they deſiring to be concealed, and by vertue of what they have done, obliging thoſe that know them, not to divulge or reveal them.

For the rich and coſtly Glazing of this Church, the Work and Workmaſters thus follow:

The painted Windows.

A very rich and beautiful Window in the head of the Chancel, of four ſeveral Panes or Parts: In the firſt, the figure of Abraham ſacrificing his Son: In the ſecond, Moſes with the Tables of the Commandments: In the third, the Figure of the Holy Prophet David: In the fourth and laſt, Solomon.

The Inſcription to the firſt is this:

Credidit Abraham Deo, & reputatum eſt illi ad Juſtitiam. Anno Dom. 1628.

Of the ſecond is this:

Erat vir Moyſes Mitiſſimus ſuper omnes homines qui morabantur in terra. 1628.

Of the third this:

Solum medium tutum. 1627.

Of the fourth this:

Dum Spiro, Spero. 1628.

The firſt of theſe, was the Charge of Abraham Speckart, Eſq;.
The ſecond, of Hamo Claxton, Eſq;
The third, of Sir John Fenner, Kt.
The fourth of Frauncis Lord Mount-Norris.

A very fair Window on the South ſide of the Chancel. At the top of it,

Jehovah.

Under the Figures in it,
Shelbery 1617. Shelbery and Wrothe.
Domine miſerere noſtri.

A very fair Window on the North ſide of the Chancel: two fair Figures in it; the one of the Virgin Mary, with Chriſt in her Arms; the other of Mary Magdalene.

Under this Window lieth buried, the Body of Mary Pill, of this Pariſh; which Window was ſet up at the Charges of Mary Maudit, her Daughter and Heir, 1629.

Under the firſt theſe Verſes:

From Mary's Tears to Mary's Joy,
This Mary is tranſlated:
And after threeſcore Years annoy,
In Heaven She is inſtated.
With this, She choſe the better Part,
Never to be repented;
And held her Saviour in her Heart:
Thus are her Joys augmented.

Under the other theſe.

This, ſought her Saviour at his Tomb,
His Feet with Tears bedewed,
That, bore our Saviour in her Womb,
Whereby our Joys renewed.
Then happy Soul, thrice happy this,
Happily intereſſed;
In Maries Tears, and Maries Bliſs,
Reſt thou for ever bleſſed.

Next to this downward, a very fair Window,

A fair Window next to this, the loweſt in the South Wall.
Glazed at the Coſt of William Perkins, of London Merchant Taylor, 1626.

At the lower End of this Ile, over the South-weſt Door, a very fair Window, bearing in it (very curiouſly done) the Figure of our Saviour.

Over his Head, as in a Garland ſupported by two Angels, theſe Letters:

I.H.S.

Round about him Clouds full of Chererubins.

On one ſide of him this,
I am the Door, by me if any Man enter in, he ſhall be ſaved, Joh. 10. 9.

On the other ſide.
Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you reſt, Matt. 11. 28.

Beckinghamus Boteler, Armiger fieri fecit. Anno Dom. 1627.

Over the great Weſt Door, is a fair Window, wirh the Carpenters Arms, and a fair Coat of Arms cloſe by it.

This Window hath no Name, or other Inſcription; it was (as I was told) the Gift of a Stranger.

One, that upon a Day that they made a Collection for it, being there, was (among the reſt) deſired to beſtow his good Will, he anſwered, He had no Money, but if the Glazing of a Window, if they had any yet undiſpoſed of, would be accepted of, he would be at the charge to do it. The Collectors giving him Thanks, and ſhewing this Window, he ſuddenly ſet a Glazier on work, and what he had promiſed he performed.

A very fair Window at the Head of the North Ile bearing the Figure of Chriſt crucified, as alſo (one on the one ſide, the other on the other) of the two Maries.

On the Right ſide of him this,

Woman, Behold thy Son.

On the left,

Behold thy Mother.

Glazed at the Coſt of Thomas Eſto, Cook, of this Pariſh, Anno Dom. 1625.

A very rich Window next downward, divided into three Parts, bearing the curious Figures of the three Theological Vertues, under them,

Fides, Spes, Charitas.

Under Faith this:

Faith Root, Hope Stock,
the Branch is Charity;
Faith ſees, Hope looks,
for Charity is free;
Faith knits to God, to Heaven Hope, Love to men;
Faith gets, Hope keepes,
and Love pours out agen.
1626.

Scriptum eſt, Juſtus ex Fide vivet, Rom. 1. 17.

Next to this downward, the laſt of this North Ile, is a plain Window, without either Colour or Inſcription.]

The Church of Brick. J. S.

This Church is built all of rubbed Brick, and ſo is the Steeple. The South Gallery was built in the Year 1671. by Gift, for the Benefit of the Poor; and made uniform to the other Galleries. The North and Weſt Galleries as they appear now, were begun 167$\frac{6}{7}$.

'William Bambrigg, late of this Pariſh Eſq; gave toward the Building of this South Gallery 3000 l. for the Uſe of the Poor, in the Year 1671.

Dutcheſs Dud-ley a great Benefactor to St. Giles.

But of all the Benefactors to St. Giles's Church and Pariſh, the Lady Alice Dutcheſs Duddeley muſt ſtand in the Forefront. She lived in her Houſe near the Church, and there ſhe died, at the Age of Ninety Years, and hath a Monument in the ſaid Church, tho' her Corps was conveyed to the Church of Stonely in Warwickſhire, and there entombed. In which Pariſh ſhe was born. But now to give a Catalogue of this Lady's Charities, as Dr. Boreman, ſometime Incumbent, took them out of the Churches Regiſter, and publiſhed them with her Funeral Sermon, Anno 1669.

When the former Church of St. Giles, which was decayed by Age, lay as it were in Rubbiſh, there being a void ſpace at the upper end of the Chancel, wherein were old Coffin-boards, and the Bones of dead Men thrown, ſhe being offended at that unhandſome Proſpect, erected a decent Skreen to divide the ſaid Chancel from that Place, to hide it from the Eyes of thoſe that paſſed by.

When the foreſaid old Church was fallen, with the fall whereof that Skreen was demoliſhed, the Pariſhioners erected a new Church in the room and place where the former ſtood. It began to be built Anno 1623, and was finiſhed with the Wall about it, Anno 1631. many Hundreds of good Chriſtians in other Pariſhes contributing to ſo good a Work. And then did this Lady give to the ſaid Work, and the Wall encompaſſing the Church, many Hundred Pounds. Of which her magnificent Bounty the then grateful Pariſhioners erected a Monument, which is placed over the great Gate on the North ſide of the Church. The Words engraven in a large ſquare Stone are theſe:

> Quod fœlix bonúmque ſit Poſteris, Hoc Templum loco Veteris ex annoſa Vetuſtate Collapſi, mole & ſplendore auctum multò, Parœcorum Charitas inſtauravit. In quibus pientiſſimæ Heroinæ D. ALICIÆ DUDDELEY Munificentia gratum Marmoris hujus meretur Eloquium. Huic etiam acceſſit aliorum quorundam pietas. Quibus proviſæ in cœlo ſunt Grates.

The Church being finiſhed, that the Inſide of it might correſpond with that which is without, the ſaid Lady gave Hangings of Watchet Taffata, to cover the upper end of the Chancel, and thoſe bordered with a Silk and Silver Fringe.

Item, For the back of the Altar, a rich green Velvet Cloth, with theſe three Letters in Gold, I.H.S. embroidered on it.

Two Service Books in Folio, emboſſed with Gold.

A green Velvet Cloth with a deep Gold Fringe, to cover the Altar on Sundays.

A Cambrick Altar Cloth, with a deep Bone-Lace round about.

Another fine Damask Altar Cloth.

Two Cuſhions for the Altar, richly embroidered with Gold.

A large Turky Carpet, to be ſpread on the Week Days over it.

A beautiful Skreen of carved Work: Which was placed where the former in the old Church ſtood.

Moreover, She gave a neat Pair of Organs, with a Caſe richly gilded.

Item, Very coſtly handſome Rails, to guard the Altar, or the Lords Table, from prophane Abuſes.

Item, The Communion Plate of all ſorts in Silver and Gilt, for that ſacred Uſe: Which is as large and rich as any in the City and Suburbs.

Beſides all this, She was at the Charge of paving the upper End of the Church with Marble. And gave the great Bell in the Steeple: which, as oft as it ringeth, ſounds her Praiſe. And was at the Charge of caſting and hanging the other five Bells.

Only this Bell, and the foreſaid Plate excepted, all the forenamed Ornaments of the Church (being counted Superſtitious and Popiſh) were demoliſhed and ſold (under pretence of relieving the Poor out of the Money received for them) by the Reformers (as they were called) in the Civil War time.

Beſides theſe Largeſſes and Chriſtian Liberalities to St. Giles, She gave long ſince to the Churches of Stonely, Manceſter, Leke Wotton, Aſhow, Kennelworth and Monks Kirby all in Warwickſhire, twenty Pounds and upwards per Ann. apiece, for a perpetual Augmentation to the poor Vicarages of thoſe reſpective Churches for ever.

Moreover, She beſtowed on the ſame Churches, and likewiſe upon the Churches of Bidford in the foreſaid County of Warwick, Acton in Middleſex, St. Albans in Hartfordſhire, Patſhil in Northampton; divers Pieces of fair and coſtly Plate, to be uſed at the Celebration of the Holy Communion in each of them.

Beſides all this, She purchaſed a fair Houſe and Garden near the Church of St. Giles aforeſaid; and gave it for a perpetual Manſion to the Incumbents after three Lives, whereof two were expired, Anno 1669.

She alſo allowed a Yearly Stipend to the Sexton of this Church, to tole the great Bell, when the Priſoners condemned to die, ſhall be paſſing by, and to ring out after they ſhall be executed.

She likewiſe gave great Sums of Money for the repairing of the Cathedral Church at Litchfield; and for the re-edifying of St. Sepulchres in London.

All theſe, with many more were the Products and Fruits of her noble Charity, while ſhe lived. And at her Death, ſhe made theſe following Bequeſts.

I. For the Redemption of Chriſtian Captives from the Hands of Infidels, 100 l. per ann. for ever.

II. To the Hoſpital ſituate near the Church here in St. Giles, 400 l. for 20 l. a Year, for ever.

III. Fot the placing out for ever of poor Pariſh Children of St. Giles's Apprentices, 200 l. to purchaſe a Piece of Land at 10 l. per Ann. And two to be put out every Year.

IV. To the Poor of the aforeſaid Pariſhes of Stonely, Kenilworth, Leke-Wotton, Aſhow, Bidford, in the foreſaid County of Warwick; and Patſhil, Lichborow, and Blakeſley in the County of Northampton, 100 l. per Ann. to be diſpoſed and diſtributed among them, in ſuch ſort and manner as her Will directs her Executrix. And

V. Upon the day of her Funeral 50 l. to be diſtributed among the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh of St. Giles's, and other adjoining Pariſhes.

VI. To fourſcore and ten Widows, according to the number of Years ſhe lived, ſhe bequeathed to each a Gown and a fair white Kerchief, to attend the Hearſe wherein her Body was carried; and one Shilling a piece for their Dinner after that Solemnity was performed: Which was on the 16th Day of March 1668.

VII. She appointed by her Will 5 l. to be given to every Place or Town, where her Corps ſhould reſt in its Paſſage from London unto Stonely; where ſhe had a Noble Monument long ſince prepared by her ſelf.

VIII. She ordered that Six-pence ſhould be given to every poor Body that ſhould meet her Corps on the Road.

IX. She gave to Blakſley, Litchborough and Patſhil 10 l. a piece, to be diſtributed among the Poor the ſame Day her Corps was interred.

X. To the Pariſh of Stonely 50 l. Which was diſtributed the ſame Day.

There is a Monument ſet up for her in St. Giles's Church thus inſcribed:

And yet if any ſhall require the Homage, to find whether he or they were the Son or Daughter, or Sons or Daughters of ſuch a one or no, and the Homage knowing, or well informed of the Truth, that he or they ſhall be the Son, or Sons or Daughters of him or her, that dyed ſeized of the Lands then in Queſtion: The Homage ought therein to preſent the Truth: But not to preſent, whether he or they ought to have the Premiſſes, or any Part thereof, to the which another Perſon is already preſented. But in ſuch Caſe, he or they ſhall be driven to his or their Suit or Plaint, as aforeſaid; for Recovery of their ſaid Right, if any Right they have. And for Lands deſcended from the Part of the Father; the next Couſin of the Part on the Mother, not able to inherit thoſe Lands, ought to be Gardian. And if the Lands came from the Part of the Mother; then the like Couſin of the Part of the Father ought to be Gardian, if that Perſon will accept thereof. And upon their Refuſal, or not praying to be admitted Gardian, at the firſt or ſecond Court after that Infant ought to be admitted; then may the Steward admit any other of the Kindred of the Infant (to whom his Lands cannot deſcend) to be Gardian. And if None of the Kindred will accept of the Gardianſhip; then may another be admitted. And every Gardian ſhall account to the Heir of the Profits, and Repair the Copyhold Tenements of him whoſe Gardian he is: And upon Admittance ſhall be bound to the Lord for the Time being, with Condition for Performance thereof, in ſuch Sum as the Homage of the ſaid Court, or the greater Part thereof ſhall like of. NExt without the Bar and Liberty of the City of London, the New Temple is a Liberty pertaining to the Dutchy of Lancaſter: Which beginneth in the Eaſt on the South ſide or left Hand, near unto the River Thames, and ſtretcheth Weſt to Ivy Bridge, where it endeth. And again, on the North ſide or right Hand, ſome ſmall diſtance without Temple Bar in the High Street, from a Pair of Stocks there ſtanding, ſtretcheth one large middle Row or Troup of ſmall Tenements, partly opening to the South, partly towards the North, up Weſt to a Stone Croſs, now headleſs, over againſt the Strand.

The May Pole in the Strand. J. S.

In the room of which Croſs of later Years was placed a May Pole, commonly called The May Pole in the Strand, being above 100 Foot in Height. This being grown old and decayed, was Anno 1717, obtained by Sir Iſaac Newton, Kt. of the Pariſh; and being taken down, was carried away thro' the City in a Carriage of Timber, unto Wanſted in Eſſex. And by the Leave of Sir Richard Child, Bar. Lord Caſtlemain, granted to the Reverend Mr. Pound Rector of that Pariſh, was reared up and placed in his Park there; the Uſe whereof is for the raiſing of a Teleſcope the largeſt in the World, given by a French Gentleman to the Royal Society; he being a Member thereof. It had not long been ſet up there, but theſe witty Verſes were faſtned upon it by an unknown Hand.

Verſes ſet up on the May Pole, removed to Wanſted Park.

Once I adorn'd the Strand.
But now have found
My Way to POUND,
In Baron Newton*'s Land.*
Where my aſpiring Head aloft is rear'd,
T'obſerve the Motions of the Æthereal Herd;
Here ſometimes rais'd a Machine by my ſide,
Thro' which is ſeen the ſparkling Milky Tide:
Here oft I'm ſcented with a balmly Dew,
A pleaſing Bleſſing which the Strand ne'er knew.
There ſtood I only to receive Abuſe,
But here converted to a nobler Uſe:
So that with me all Paſſengers will ſay,
I'm better far than when the Pole of May.]

And theſe are the Bounds of this Liberty.

But to go over the Bounds again, with the modern Names of the Places, for the better underſtanding thereof, according to a late Survey.

Record Tu

In the Reigns of Edward the Firſt and Second, were many vacant Pieces of Land, from Temple Bar and ſo toward the Strand, lying in the Pariſhes of St. Clement Danes and St. Mary Strand, which were then granted and built upon. Theſe I have met with: In the 29 Edw. I. 'Walter Le 'Barbur had granted him a void Place in the High 'Street in the Pariſh of St. Clement Danes without 'the Bars of the New Temple. The ſame Year 'Robert Le Spencer had another vacant Place of 'Ground in the ſame Pariſh, containing forty Foot 'in Length and forty in Breadth. The 2 Edw. 2. The Care fo this Liberty Regard of th Plague. J. S.

This Liberty of the Dutchy, lying between London and Weſtminſter, was lookt upon as ſome Security to the Court, when any Plague ſhould happen to be in the City, by the Care that ſhould be taken to keep it thence. And therefore when the Plague came among the Citizens, great Care was taken to keep it from ſpreading Weſtward. In the Year 1577. the City being infected, and the Court removed to Windſor and elſewhere, in this Dutchy was appointed one Ledſham, Bailiff; who who had been negligent in taking care of the Dutchy. The Earl of Leiceſter hearing of the Encreaſe of it there (where he alſo had an Houſe) grew very angry with him: and threatned the ſaid Ledſham (who was his Servant) to pluck his Coat from his Back, and to puniſh him otherwiſe for his Negligence: And for the Sick there he offered very honourably, to give as much as any ſhould for their Relief. But Fleetwood, the Recorder, an active and a good Man, having ſomething to do in that Liberty alſo, was very comfortably diligent, weekly himſelf ſurveying the Dutchy; and took order there to ſtop the Encreaſe of it. Who was the firſt Builder thereof, I have not read; but that Walter Stapleton, was a great Builder there, in the Reign of Edward the Second is manifeſt: for the Citizens of London, when they had beheaded him in Cheap, near unto the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, they buried him in a heap of Sand or Rubbiſh, in his own Houſe without Temple Bar, where he had made great Building. Edmond Lacy, Biſhop of Exceſter, builded the great Hall in the Reign of Henry the Sixth, &c. The ſame hath ſince been called Paget Houſe, becauſe the Lord William Paget enlarged and poſſeſſed it: [obtained from John Biſhop of Exeter (who made a great Spoil of his Churches Revenues) and was confirmed to Sir William Paget, and alſo a certain Parcel of Land within the Garden of the Middle Temple, London.]

THE SAVOY.

Savoy Houſe firſt builded by Peter, Earl of Savoy and Richmond.

Then next is the Savoy, ſo called of Peter, Earl of Savoy and Richmond, Son to Thomas, Earl of Savoy, Brother to Boniface, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Uncle unto Heleanor, Wife to King Henry the Third.

Pedigree of the Houſe of Savoy.

He firſt builded this Houſe in the Year 1245. And here is ſome Occaſion offered me, for ſatisfying of ſome deniers thereof, to prove that this Peter of Savoy was alſo Earl of Savoy. Wherefore out of a Book of the Genealogies of all the whole Houſe of Savoy, compiled by Phillebert Pingonio, Baron of Guzani, remaining in the Hands of William Smith, alias Rouge dragon, Officer of Arms, I have gathered this.

Thomas, Earl of Savoy, his Pedigree by Occaſion.

Thomas Earl of Savoy, had Iſſue by Beatrix, Daughter to Aimon, Earl of Geneva, nine Sons and three Daughters: Amadis, his firſt Son, ſucceeded Earl of Savoy, in the Year 1253. Peter, his ſecond Son, Earl of Savoy and of Richmond, in 1268. Philip, his third Son, Earl of Savoy and Burgundy, 1284. Thomas, the fourth, Earl of Flanders, and Prince of Piemont. Boniface, the Eighth, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Beatrix his Daughter, married to Reymond Beringarius of Aragon, Earl of Province and Narbone, had Iſſue, and was Mother to five Queens. The firſt, Margaret, Wife to Lewis, King of France; the ſecond, Eleanor, Wife to Henry the Third, King of England; the third, Sanctia, Wife to Richard, King of the Romans; the fourth, Beatrix, Wife to Charles, King of Naples; the fifth, Johanna, Wife to Philip, King of Navarre.

Beatrix, Siſter to Peter, Earl of Savoy, Mother to five Queens.

Fratres de Monte Jovis, or Priory de Cornuto, by Havering at the Bower. Henry Knighton.

To return again to the Houſe of Savoy: Queen Eleanor, Wife to King Henry the Third, purchaſed this Place afterwards of the Fraternity or Brethren of Mountjoy, unto whom Peter of Savoy (as it ſeemeth) had given it, for her Son Edmond, Earl of Lancaſter, as Maſter Camden hath noted out of a Regiſter Book of the Dukes of Lancaſter. Henry Duke of Lancaſter repaired, or rather new builded it, with the Charges of 52000. Marks, * which Money he had gathered together at the Town of Bridgerike.

* 34666 l. 3*s.* 4 d.

John, the French King was lodged there, in the Year, 1357. and alſo, in the Year, 1363. for it was (at that time) the faireſt Manour in England.

The Savoy burnt.

Henry Knighton.

In the Year, 1381. the Rebels of Kent and Eſſex burnt this Houſe, unto the which there was none in the Realm to be compared in Beauty and Statelineſs, (ſaith mine Author.) They ſet Fire on it round about, and made Proclamation, that none, on Pain to loſe his Head, ſhould convert to his own Uſe any thing that there was; but that they ſhould break ſuch Plate and Veſſel of Gold and Silver, as was found in that Houſe, (which was in great Plenty) into ſmall Pieces, and throw the ſame into the River of Thames. Precious Stones they ſhould bruiſe in Mortars, that the ſame might be to no Uſe, and ſo it was done by them: One of their Companions they burned in the Fire, becauſe he minded to have reſerved one goodly Piece of Plate.

Rebels more malicious than covetous ſpoil all before them.

Liber Manuſcript. French. Barels of Gunpowder found in the Savoy.

They found there certain Barrels of Gunpowder, which they thought had been Gold or Silver, and throwing them into the Fire, more ſuddenly than they thought, the Hall was blown up, the Houſes deſtroyed, and themſelves very hardly eſcaped away.

This Houſe being thus defaced, and almoſt overthrown by theſe Rebels, for the Malice they bare to John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, of later time came to the King's Hands, and was again raiſed and beautifully builded, for an Hopital of St. John Baptiſt, by King Henry the Seventh, about the Year 1509. For the which Hoſpital, retaining ſtill the old Name of Savoy, he purchaſed Lands, to be imployed upon the relieving of an hundred poor People.

The Royal Founder by his laſt Will, dated April, 10. 1508. aſſured to this Hoſpital, and for Proviſion of two hundred Beds, and other Things for the Chapel there; five hundred Mark Land. And for building and finiſhing the ſaid Chapel and Hoſpital were delivered to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, Ten thouſand Marks in Money.]

Hoſpital of Savoy, ſuppreſſed.

This Hoſpital being valued to diſpend 529 l. 15 s. &c. by Year, was ſuppreſſed the tenth of June, the ſeventh of Edward the Sixth; the Beds, Bedding, and other Furniture belonging thereunto, with ſeven Hundred Marks of the ſaid Lands by Year, he gave to the Citizens of London, with his Houſe of Bridewel, to the furniſhing thereof, to be a Workhouſe for the Poor and idle Perſons, and towards the furniſhing of the Hoſpital of St. Thomas in Southwark, lately ſuppreſſed.

Savoy Hoſpital viſited, 5 Edward 6. J. S.

Account of that Viſitation.

Before this Hoſpital was ſuppreſſed in the fifth of King Edward the Sixth, a Viſitation of it was appointed by a Commiſſion to Sir Roger Cholmely, Kt. Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and ſeveral others his Collegues; and Inquiry to be made by them upon five Articles.

The firſt Article was, to inquire and ſearch by all good Ways and Means, how and in what ſort the Foundation, Statutes and Ordinances of the ſaid Hoſpital have been, and be obſerved.

The Anſwer was, that they had been kept and obſerved ſince the Death of the firſt Maſter; except in ſuch Points of the Foundation and Statutes as were not agreeable with the King's Laws and moſt godly Proceedings; as Maſs Service, Prayer for the Dead, Anniverſaries, and ſuch like, which had been omitted: and the Order ſet forth by his Majeſty obſerved. The Statutes and Ordinances for Apparel, Diet, and for certain Treaſure, to be continued and kept for good Purpoſes in the ſame Statutes mentioned, have not, nor be obſerved: that is to ſay, Apparel for the Superſtition thereof taken away by Viſitation, and uſed according to the Appointment of the Viſitors; their Diet being appointed and allowed for every of the Chaplains, but after the rate of twenty Shillings the Week, they ſtrained by Dearth, have been allowed of the Revenues of the Houſe more largely. The Treaſure appointed by Foundation and Statutes of the Houſe, was by the firſt Maſter conſumed clearly; and ſo nothing remaineth thereof.

The ſecond Article was, wherein the ſame did agree with the common Orders and Proceedings of the Realm, in Cauſes of Religion.

The Anſwer. The Foundation Statutes and Ordinances do agree with the King's Majeſty's Proceedings, except in ſuch things as were before declared.

The third and fourth Articles were, How the Miniſters, both Men and Women gave Attendance, and did their Duties in their ſeveral Offices and Vocations. And of the Life, Behaviour and Converſations of the Miniſters aforeſaid.

The Anſwer. It appeareth unto us by all ſuch Scrutiny and Search as we could make, that there is no Default, nor yet Diſorder concerning any thing in the Articles aforeſaid.

The fifth and laſt Article was of the State of the Houſe, and Order of the Lands.

The Anſwer was, That that appeared by a Scedule annexed, made by the Auditor of the ſame Houſe.]

Hoſpital of Savoy, a new Foundation thereof.

This Hoſpital of Savoy was again new founded, erected, corporated and endowed with Lands by Queen Mary, the third of November; in the fourth of her Reign, one Jackſon took Poſſeſſion, and was made Maſter thereof in the ſame Month of November. The Ladies of the Court, and Maidens of Honour (a thing not to be forgotten) ſtored the ſame of new with Beds, Bedding, and other Furniture, in very ample Manner, &c. and it was by Patent ſo confirmed at Weſtminſter, the ninth of May, the fourth and fifth of Philip and Mary.

Thurland Maſter of the Savoy, deprived.
J. S.

In the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, this Hoſpital continued. Then Thomas Thurland was Maſter and the four Chaplains were John Park, John Hodgeſon, William Neel and Thomas Chambers. The foreſaid Maſter embezelled the Revenues exceedingly, made many Leaſes and Sales privately without the Knowledge and Conſent of the Chaplains. He ſold away divers Chantries (ſettled perhaps by Queen Mary upon the Hoſpital) to the Sum of 53 l. per Annum. Inſomuch that a Viſitation of this Hoſpital was made about the Year 1570. Grindal, Biſhop of London, was one of the Viſitors, who took great Care about it. And at length he was deprived. See more of this Hoſpital in the firſt Book.]

he Precinct f the Savoy, nd the Pariſh iſtinct.
J. S.

This Pariſh is called St. Mary Le Strand, alias Savoy. It is diſtinguiſhed into the Precinct of the Savoy, who chooſe two Chapel Wardens, and have Veſtry Men; and the Pariſh of St. Mary Le Strand, which have their diſtinct Churchwardens and Veſtry Men alſo. The Precinct is peculiarly under the Government of the Maſter of the Savoy, and the Chapel belonging to the Precinct is called the Chapel of St. John Baptiſt in the Precinct of the Savoy; which is made uſe of for the Pariſh Church.

laſter of the avoy's Order r the Precinct.

Dr. Henry Killigrew, Maſter of the Savoy, about the Year 1665. made this Order in Purſuance of an Agreement between him, the Maſter of the Hoſpital, and the Churchwardens and Overſeers, and other Officers of the Pariſh: That the Collectors for the Poor of the Precinct ſhould gather the charitable Benevolence of the Congregations aſſembled in the Chapel belonging to the Savoy, for three Months, viz. March, April and May; and from and at the Expiration of thoſe three Months, he permitted the Collectors for the Poor of the Pariſh of St. Mary Le Strand, to gather and receive the Charities of the Congregations there; that is, for the other nine Months, for and towards the Relief of their Poor. He further in a Writing under his Hand, dated March, 2. 1666. authorized and empowered the Collectors of the Poor of the Precinct, to gather, receive and take of the Congregations aſſembled there for the three Months of June, July and Auguſt in that preſent Year 1666. and the three Months of March, April and May, the next ſucceeding Year; and ſo ſucceſſively from time to time: and the Money collected to be employed to the Uſe of the Poor of the ſaid Precinct. And he empowered and authorized them further, not to permit any Briefs or other thing whatſoever, that ſhould tend to ſtir up the People there to be aſſembled, to beſtow their Charity towards the Relief of any Diſtreſſed therein mentioned, upon any Sunday, Holyday, Thankſgiving, or Faſt Day, during the Continuance of the ſaid three Months, unleſs Liberty be firſt obtained from him the Maſter. This Order was ſigned by Dr. Killigrew's Hand, and hung up in a Table in the Veſtry.

Savoy Buildings.

This Savoy Houſe is a very great and at this preſent a very ruinous Building. In the midſt of its Buildings, is a very ſpacious Hall, the Walls three Foot broad at leaſt, of Stone without, and Brick and Stone inward. The Ceiling is very curiouſly built with Wood, and having Knobs in due Places hanging down, and Images of Angels holding before their Breaſts Coats of Arms, but hardly diſcoverable. On one is a croſs Gules between four Stars, or elſe Mullets. It is covered with Lead, but in divers Places periſhed, where it lies open to the Weather. This large Hall is now divided into ſeveral Apartments. A Cooper hath a Part of it for the ſtowing of his Hoops, and for his Work. Other Parts of it ſerve for two Marſhalſeas for keeping Priſoners, as Deſerters, Men preſt for military Service, Dutch Recruits, &c. Towards the Eaſt End of this Hall is a fair Cupolo with Glaſs Windows, but all broken, which makes it probable the Hall was as long again; ſince Cupoloes are wont to be built about the middle of great Halls.

In this Savoy, how ruinous ſoever is, are divers good Houſes. Firſt, the King's Printing Preſs for Proclamations, Acts of Parliaments, Gazets, and ſuch like publick Papers; Next, a Priſon. Thirdly, a Pariſh Church, and three or four other Churches and Places for Religious Aſſemblies; viz. For the French, for Dutch, for High Germans, and Lutherans, and Laſtly, for the Proteſtant Diſſenters. Here be alſo Harbours for many Refugees, and poor People.

Popiſh Schools in the Savoy ſet up, 1687.

In the Year 1687. Schools were ſet up and ordained here at the Savoy: The Maſters whereof were Jeſuits. Rules were provided for theſe Schools, and publiſhed in print. It was declared therein, that the Intention of them was to teach Youth, Vertue and Learning: That thoſe that came thither ſhould be taught gratis, and to be at no further Charge than in buying of their own Pen, Ink, Paper and Books: That theſe Schools ſhould be common to all of what Condition ſoever, and none to be excluded, when they ſhould be thought fit to begin to learn Latin, and writ ſufficiently well. In theſe Schools, to be taught Greek and Latin, Poetry and Rhetorick. And whether Catholicks or Proteſtants came to theſe Schools, yet in Teaching no Diſtinction to be made, but all to be taught with equal Diligence and Care: And neither neither by Maſters or Scholars any tampering or meddling, to perſuade any one from the Profeſſion of his own Religion. But few there were but did believe, nay could not believe otherwiſe than that this pretended charitable Project was for the Advantages hereby to be compaſſed for the promoting the Roman Religion. Theſe Schools were ſoon diſſolved, upon the ceaſing of the Government of King James: And the Clock that was made for the Uſe of this Savoy School, was afterwards bought and ſet up upon a Gentleman's Houſe in Low Leyton, as was ſaid.

Families of French Proteſtants placed in the Savoy.

In this Savoy were placed by King William the Third, many Families of poor French Proteſtants; and where they that had Skill in Trade and Manufacture, wrought to get ſomething for their Livelihood; however they were oppoſed and complained of by many of the Tradeſmen of London, as hindring and prejudicing them. Here alſo was, and is, a Church for them. The late Biſhop of London came thither himſelf ſometimes, and paſſionately deſired their Good, and maintained many of their Proſelytes. The poor French here inhabiting with their Families had many of them three Shillings Allowance Weekly, and ſome four. To countenance them the more, to this Church came many of the ſaid Kings Privy Counſellors, Secretaries of State, and other great Officers of the Kingdom. And thro' them and their Contributions, the Church chiefly was able to ſubſiſt. They uſe the Liturgy of the Church of England, turned into French; and their Miniſters are Epiſcopally ordained.]

Dean of Weſtminſter, Viſitor.

The Deans of Weſtminſter hold themſelves Viſitors of the Savoy. And when ſome Exchange of Lands, belonging to this Hoſpital was in Hand, Anno 1565. with Mr. Fanſhaw, Dr. Goodman, the Dean, out of his great Care, that no Wrong might be done to that charitable Foundation, thereby wrote an earneſt Letter to the Lord Treaſurer, 'That being in Conſcience much bound to that 'poor Hoſpital, and conſidering the good meaning of the moſt noble Founder, he deſired him for 'God's Sake, that in that Bargain of Exchange, that 'was towards, nothing might paſs to the Prejudice 'thereof. Suſpecting, it ſeems, and not without Cauſe, the Integrity of that Maſter, which is more particularly mentioned in another Book.]

The Chapel of this Hoſpital, ſerveth now as a Pariſh Church, to the Tenements thereof near adjoining, and others, and is called St. Mary Savoy.

This is but a ſmall Pariſh, and yet hath a Diviſion, to wit, the Liberty of the Savoy, which is only the Houſe of the Savoy, and that of the Pariſh; and each have their Pariſh Officers apart; likewiſe one ſide of the Church belongs to the Savoy, and the other to the Pariſh, but the Miniſter and Clerk are for the whole.

The Church.

The Church now made uſe of as the Pariſh Church is ſeated in the large Court, which is deſcended to by Steps; a fair Church, and in Dr. Horneck's Time, a pious Man and excellent pathetick Preacher, much reſorted to: And his Death by his Pariſhioners and other his Auditors, much relented.

Repaired. R.

The repairing and trimming of this Church (which was performed with great Coſt and Beauty) was in the Year of our Lord God 1600, at the ſole Coſt and Charge of the Pariſhioners.

The Bounds of this Pariſh. R. B.

This Pariſh begins by the Naked Boy near Strand Bridge, and runneth to the Savoy on the South ſide, and on the North ſide of the Strand, from Wimbleton Houſe to the Corner of Katharine Street. And ſo up that ſide of Katharine Street to the Fountain Tavern: where it croſſes the Street into little Katharine Street, taking in the South ſide, with that Part of Eagle Court towards White Hart Yard: and ſo down the South ſide thereof unto Drury Lane. And againſt Wich Street it croſſeth and takes in the South ſide thereof unto the Five Bell Inn; and from thence croſſeth into the Strand by the Cheeſemongers, and from thence all the North ſide of the Strand to Katharine Street Corner; as appears by the Mapp.

That Part of the Strand, which is in this Pariſh, is the beſt Part of it, both for the Largeneſs of the Street and the Goodneſs of the Buildings, and Ability of the Inhabitants, who drive a conſiderable Trade, being ſo near the Court.

Strand Bridge.

Then in the High Street in the Strand, there was a fair Bridge, called Strand Bridge, and under it a Lane, or way to the Water ſide, which ſaid Lane is yet remaining; but nought remains of the Bridge, but that the Place yet retains the Name. This Part of the Strand is of ſome Note, for its Maypole in the Strand.

Somerſet Houſe.

Deſcribed.

May Pole, the Parts about it bearing the Name of the Maypole in the Strand; but its Beauty is loſt, there being nothing ſtanding but the lower Part which is about twenty Foot high; Nor is that now ſtanding, a new Church being erected there. Here is a Watch Houſe for the better Security of the Streets in the Night, as being ſo great a Throughfare: And adjoining to the Watch Houſe is a Conduit, but diſuſed: Here the Street begins to enlarge it ſelf Weſtward, and ſo continueth unto Exeter Exchange, and both ſides are garniſhed with good and lofty Buildings, eſpecially the South ſide, having a ſtately Pile of new Brick Houſes on both ſides of Somerſet Houſe; which much eclipſe that Palace. So that tis pity it were not beautified, eſpecially that Part that fronts the High Street. Which Houſe, being now of later times in the Crown, hath been uſed as the Palace, or Court of the Queen Dowagers: It belonged of late to Katharine, Queen Dowager the Wife of King Charles the Second. At the Entrance into this Court out of the Strand is a ſpacious ſquare Court garniſhed on all ſides with Rows of Free Stone Buildings, and at the Front is a Piazza, with ſtone Pillars which ſupport the Buildings, and a Pavement of Free Stone. Which ſaid Place leadeth into the great Hall or Guard Room, and ſo into other Rooms, aſcended up by a large Stair Caſe into the Rooms of State. Beſides this firſt Court, there are other large ones, which are deſcended towards the River by ſpacious Stairs of Free Stone. The outward Beauty of this Court appears by a View from the Water, having a good Front, and a moſt pleaſant Garden, which runs to the Water ſide. More Weſtwards is a large Yard adjoining to the Savoy, made uſe of for the Coach Houſes and Stables; at the bottom of which is a Pair of Stairs much uſed by Watermen, this being a noted Place for landing and taking Water at.

The Savy.

Wards for Soldiers.

A French Church here.

Next on this South ſide is the Savoy, a good Part whereof ſtill remaineth, built of Free Stone and Flint, and of one Story in Height, and leaded at the Top with Battlements. Which ſaid Buildings are now for the moſt Part ſevered into private dwelling Houſes; except that Part made uſe of, as Wards for the Soldiers to lodge in, as was in the Reigns of King Charles the Second, and King James the Second, and that Part converted into the French Church at the bottom of the Dutchy Lane, which is made a neat Church, and hath a Pair of Organs: And beſides the ancient Free Stone Buildings, here are divers new ones diſperſed up and down, as the Houſes fronting the Strand, and on the Back ſides thereof, alſo thoſe in Savoy Alley, in Dutchy Lane, and in the Courts near adjoining and towards the Water ſide.

Bell Inn.

This Part of the Strand in this Pariſh, begins on the North ſide of Bell Inn, being a Throughfare into Wich Street; and is a Place of great Reſort for Horſe, Coaches and Waggons.

Wich Street.

The Part of Wich Street in this Pariſh, which begins at the Bell Inn, runs into Drury Lane, and is chiefly inhabited by Upholſters, for ſecond Hand Goods.

Little Drury. Lane.

Wilſons Court.

Denhams Yard.

George Inn.

Feathers Court.

Little Drury Lane, which from the Strand runneth up to Great Drury Lane; this Part being but narrow, is troubleſome by the Paſſage of Coaches and Carts, it being a great Throughfare, and the Houſes being but ordinary, makes it to be ill inhabited. On the Eaſt ſide is a ſmall Court called Wilſons Court. Then on the Weſt ſide is Denhams Yard, indifferent large, paved with Free Stone, and out of this Court is a Paſſage by Sufferance into the Strand. Next to this is the George Inn, which is well reſorted unto. Then higher up, and towards White Hart Yard, is a pretty handſome Place called Feathers Court, with well built Houſes and a Free Stone Pavement.

White Hart Yard.

White Hart Yard, a Place of ſome Trade, it goeth out of Drury Lane, and falleth into Katharine Street. Of this Place the South ſide unto Eagle Court is in this Pariſh. Which Court falleth into the Strand, as doth Swan Yard, a little more Eaſtward; both which are in St. Clements Pariſh.

Katharine Street.

Blakes Court.

Katharine Street, a very large and handſome Street, with good Houſes, well inhabited chiefly by noted Tradſemen, eſpecially the Eaſt ſide not many Years ſince built. This Street cometh into the Strand againſt Somerſet Yard Gate. On the Weſt ſide is a pretty handſome Court, with a Free-Stone Pavement, neatly kept, called Blakes Court, as built by Sir Richard Blake the Owner thereof.

Swan Yard.

Windſor Court.

Eagle Court.

Childs Court.

Little Katharine Street.

Helmet Court.

Then in the Strand is Swan Yard, a good large Place, and a conſiderable Throughfare, that Part towards White Hart Yard, being the narroweſt is paved with Free Stone. Windſor Court, a good handſome open Place, with good Buildings. Eagle Court, a good large and long Court, with a Free Stone Pavement, falling into White Hart Street. It is indifferently well built and inhabited. On the Eaſt ſide, is a pretty open Place with a Free Stone Pavement called Childs Court; and on the Weſt ſide is Little Katharine Street, which falls into Great Katharine Street, being a Place of ſmall Account. Then Helmet Court near to the Corner of Katharine Street, alſo paved with Free Stone, and the Houſes new built of Brick, which are only on the Weſt ſide.]

Biſhop of Carliſles Inn.

Bedford Houſe.

The next was ſometime the Biſhop of Carliſles Inn, which now belongeth to the Earl of Bedford, and is called Ruſſel, or Bedford Houſe.

Exchanged. by Biſhop Aldridge. Reliq. Spelm.

J. S.

Sir Robert Cecil.

About the 27 H. 8. or after, the Biſhop of Rocheſter's Houſe in Lambeth Marſh, being ſome Way or other the Kings, was conveyed to Robert Aldridge, Biſhop of Carliſle, and his Succeſſors, in exchange for his Houſes near Ivy Bridge (afterwards the Earls of Woroeſters and Salisburies) and other Houſes there toward the Street; and of a Yearly Rent of 16 l. or thereabout, out of thoſe Houſes given to the Biſhop of Carliſle, and his Succeſſors, for thoſe Houſes formerly called Carliſle Place. But the ſaid Biſhop Aldridge leaſed the Houſe of LambethMarſh for ſome ſmall and not valuable Rent, for many Years.] It ſtretcheth from the Hoſpital of Savoy, Weſt to Ivy Bridge. Where Sir Robert Cecil, principal Secretary to Queen Elizabeth, did then raiſe a large and ſtately Houſe of Brick and Timber, as alſo levelled and paved the High Way near adjoining, to the great beautifying of that Street, and Commodity of Paſſengers.

Cecil Chapel.

J. S.

Here or hereabouts (as it ſeems) Sir Julius Cæſar, Kt. Chancellor of the Exchequer, afterwards dwelt. For on this North ſide of the Strand, he built a Chapel, which was called Cecil Chapel; and was conſecrated by Biſhop King, May 8th 1614.]

And thus far on this South ſide the High Street is of the Liberty of the Dutchy of Lancaſter.

Ivy Bridge.

Ivy Bridge, in the high Street, which had a Way, or low going down under it, ſtretching to the Thames. The like as ſometime had the Strand Bridge, before ſpoken of. It is now taken down, but the Lane remaineth as afore, or better, and parteth the Liberty of the Dutchy, and the City of Weſtminſter on that South ſide.

Temple Bar to the Savoy paved.

This whole Street from Temple Bar to the Savoy was commanded to be paved, and Tole to be taken towards the Charges thereof in the 24th Year of Henry the Sixth. And Richard the Second, long before, in the eighth of his Reign, granted Licence to pave with Stone the High-Way, called Strand Street, from Temple Bar to the Savoy, and Tole to be taken toward the Charges.

The Pariſh Church of St. CLEMENT DANES.

Now to begin again at Temple Bar, over againſt it, in the high Street ſtandeth a pair of Stocks, and then one large middle Row of Houſes and ſmall Tenements builded, partly opening to the South, partly towards the North, ſtretching to a Stone Croſs, now headleſs, againſt the Strand. Amongſt the which ſtandeth the Pariſh Church of St. Clement Danes, ſo called, beeauſe Harold, a Daniſh King, and other Danes, were buried there, and in that Churchyard.

St. Clement Danes. King Harold buried in Clement Danes.

This Harold, whom King Canutus had by a Concubine, reigned three Years, and was buried at Weſtminſter, but afterward, Hardicanutus, the lawful Son of Canutns, in revenge of a Diſpleaſure done to his Mother, by expelling her out of the Realm, and the Murder of his Brother Alured, commanded the Body of Harold to be digged out of the Earth, and to be thrown into the Thames, where it was by a Fiſherman taken up and buried in this Churchyard. But out of a fair ledger Book, ſometime belonging to the Abbey of Chartſey, in the County of Surrey is noted, as in Francis Thinn, after this ſort.

Liber Chartſey.

Francis Thinn.

In the Reign of King Ethelred, the Monaſtry of Chartſey was deſtroyed, ninety Monks of that Houſe were ſlain by the Danes, whoſe Bodies were buried in a Place near to the old Monaſtry. William Malmeſbury ſaith, They burnt the Church, together with the Monks and Abbot; but the Danes continuing in their Fury (throughout the whole Land) deſirous at the length, to return home into Denmark, were (by the juſt Judgment of God) all ſlain at London, in a Place which is called the Church of the Danes.

William Malmesbury. Danes ſlain at St. Clement Danes.

Clement DANES, whence ſo called. J. S.

There is yet another reaſon given of this Denomination of the Chnrch from the Danes. Namely, that when the Danes were utterly driven out of this Kingdom; and none left but a few, who were married to Engliſh Women; Theſe were conſtrained to inhabit between the Iſle of Thorne (that which is now called Weſtminſter) and Caer Lud, now called Ludgate. And there they builded a Synagogue. The which being afterwards conſecrated, was called Eccleſia Clementis DANORUM. This Account of the Name did the learned Antiquarian Fleetwood, ſometime Recorder of London, give to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, who lived in this Pariſh.

Watches uſually ſet here for Diſturbances.

Here, about this Church and in the Parts adjoining, were frequent Diſturbances, by reaſon of the Unthrifts of the Inns of Chancery, who were ſo unruly a Nights, walking about to the Diſturbance and Danger of ſuch as paſſed along the Streets, that the Inhabitants were fain to keep Watches. In the Year 1582. the Recorder himſelf with ſix more of the honeſt Inhabitants ſtood by St. Clements Church, to ſee the Lanthorn hanged out; and to obſerve if he could meet with any of theſe outragious Dealers. About ſeven at Night they ſaw young Mr. Robert Cecil, the Lord Treaſurer's Son (who was after Secretary of State to the Queen) paſs by the Church; and as he paſt, gave them a civil Salute. At which they ſaid, Lo! you may ſee, how a Nobleman's Son can uſe himſelf, and how he putteth off his Cap to poor Men. Our Lord bleſs him. This Paſſage the Recorder wrote in a Letter to his Father, adding, "Your Lordſhip hath cauſe to thank God for ſo "vertuous a Child.]

Biſhop of Bath and Wells Inn. E. A.]

In this Pariſh was the Biſhop of Bath and Wells his Place in former Times: ſo it is found in the Biſhop of London's Regiſter of Wills and Teſtaments. Hoſpitium Reverendiſſimi Domini Epiſcopi Bathon. & Wellen. in parochia Sancti Clementis Dacor.

John Fabian, St. Clemene Danes. Regiſt. Law.

John Fabian, of St. Clements Danes, Gent. by his Will, March 16. 1541. bequeaths to his Siſter Martha four Nobles Yearly out of his Lands he purchaſed in Ovington in Eſſex, for her Life. Lady Marney to have all his Books of Meditation, and his Chronicles. Lady Sperte, his Siſter. The Right Honourable the Earl of Southampton, his Maſter. This Memorial I inſert of Fabian, that ancient Citizen and Hiſtorian.]

Repairs of this Church. R.

The Care of thoſe that, by an annual Succeſſion, have the Charge and Overſight of this Church, hath continually been ſuch, as upon the leaſt Defect or Failing, either in Strength or Beauty, it hath inſtantly been imployed, both in Repairs and Adornment.

And firſt, we begin with that great coſtly Repair, in the Year of our Lord God, 1608. At which time, upon ſix and twenty Foot of the Churchyard in Length, and twenty Foot in Breadth (taking in at the Eaſt End of the Church) they built up a very fair Chancel. The Charge of this Building and Repairing, amounting to the Sum of 1000 l. and upward.

In rhe Year of our Lord, 1616. there was laid out upon the Steeple, in repairing and inlarging of it, with ſome other needful Things in the Church, the Sum of 496 l.

In the Year of our Lord God, 1631. ſome Parts of this Church were again repaired, and the whole Body covered with a fair and beautiful Roughcaſt, the Charge of it 40 l.

In the Year 1632, and this preſent Year 1633, this Church was within, throughout richly and very worthily beautified. The charge of it 50 l.

The Sum of all theſe Repairs, all being the ſole coſt of the Pariſhioners, 1586 l.]

New built. J. S.

This Church of St. Ccement Danes hath lately been new built, and ſo hath the Steeple alſo. There is an extraordinary fine Pulpit wrought with Carved Work. The Cieling is arched with Fret-Work. A good Organ.

Its Bounds, or Girt-Line.

To give the Girt Line, or preſent Bounds of this Pariſh, I muſt in abundance of Places run through, or croſs Houſes, nay long Piles of Buildings, as doth appear by the Map of the Pariſh. I ſhall begin at the Weſt End of Portugal Row in Lincolns Inn Fields, where the Pariſh Stone Mark is ſet up; and from thence it runs croſs the backſides of the Houſes in Portugal Row, taking in the Playhouſe, and the Stablings into the new Court in Lincolns Inn almoſt to the Pump placed at the Palliſado Pales by the Garden; and from thence ſtreight croſs the Court and the row of new Buildings into Shear Lane, and down the ſame to the Gate by Temple Bar; taking in all the Weſt ſide thereof. Then it runs from Temple Bar, croſs to the Cock Alehouſe on the other ſide of the Way, and ſo to the River Thames; taking in all the Buildings, except the Temple: Which the Templers and Bariſters claim a Juriſdiction unto. So that it paſſes from the Cock Alehouſe in the Street ſide, unto all the Buildings to the Palſgraves Head Court, which it takes in, and ſo down into Devereux Court, with all Eſſex Buildings on both ſides to the River Thames; Then along the Banks of the River from Eſſex Stairs unto Strand Bridge; and there it turns Northwards taking in the Eaſt ſide, with part of the Weſt ſide, at the upper end: where it joins to the Garden Wall of Somerſet Houſe. Which Buildings it croſſes, and ſo up to Three Helmet Court over againſt the May Pole in the Strand, and there it croſſeth the High Street to the Stone Cutters by the Bell Inn. Thence thro' the ſaid Inn and croſſes Wich Street to May Pole Alley; from whence it paſſeth by Craven Houſe on the Eaſt ſide of Drury Lane to the Cheeſmongers two Doors on this ſide the Horſhoe Tavern; and there it croſſeth the Houſes on the back ſide of Princes Street, and ſo croſs Stanhope Street, and the Tallow Chandlers, with the other jetting out Houſe, and then runs down the South ſide of Dukes Street, unto the Houſe where the Pariſh Stone Mark is ſet up; and from this Houſe it croſſes the Houſes into Bear Yard, and ſo into Sheffield Street by Clare Market next the Oyl Shop; where it croſſes the Street to the Glaziers, and ſo thro' the Houſes; and again croſſing by the Sign of the Black Jack, unto the Pariſh Stone Mark, on the back ſide of Portugal Row, where I began. And this is the Girt Line, of the Pariſh, which lieth encircled together, as appears by the Map. But there is a conſiderable Part of the Pariſh ſeparate from the reſt, and that part begins at Wimbleton Houſe in the Strand, over againſt Dutchy Lane and ſo runs to the Corner of Exeter Exchange, and from thence up Burleigh Street, taking in Exeter Court, with Exchange Alley, and the back Buildings againſt Exeter Street, with all the Eaſt ſide of Burleigh Street, except two or three Houſes by the Corner of Exeter Street. Then again from the Corner of the ſaid Exchange it runs croſs the Strand, taking in Fountain Court down to the River Thames, with all Beauford Buildings, and the Eaſt ſide of the new Street called Cecil Street, built out of Great Salisbury Houſe: all which ſaid Buildings it takes in, and this is the extent of this Pariſh.

Pariſh Stone Mark.

The Deſcription of the Streets and Lanes.

The Strand.

Croſs Key Alley.

Palſgraves Head Court.

Devereux Court.

Now for the Deſcription of the Streets, Lanes, Alleys, and Courts in this Pariſh, with their Buildings of Chief Note, I ſhall firſt begin at Temple Bar, and ſo Weſtward. And then the firſt is the Strand, on both ſides to the May Pole; and here this Srreet is not ſo broad as by and beyond the May Pole; but being ſo great a Throughfare is well inhabited by Shop Keepers. The Cock Alehouſe, adjoining to Temple Bar, is a noted Publick Houſe. Thence paſſing Weſtward is Croſs Key Alley, very ſmall, the Roſe Tavern, a well cuſtomed Houſe with good Conveniences of Rooms and a good Garden. The next Place that offers it ſelf, is the Palſgraves Head Court, very handſome, large, well built and inhabited, with Free Stone Pavement, aſcended by Steps, which cauſeth it to lie dry and clean: it hath an out-let into the Temple with a Door to it, and at the Entrance out of the Strand, there is another Door made open with Iron Bars, to ſhut up on occaſion, for the Security of the Inhabitants and Lodgers. Next to this is a ſmall Alley not worth the naming. Then through a ſmall Paſſage is an Entrance into Devereux Court, which leadeth to the Temple Back Gate. It is a large Place with good Houſes, and by reaſon of its vicinity to the Temple, hath a good Reſort, conſiſting of Publick Houſes and noted Coffee Houſes; from this Court is a Paſſage into Eſſex Street.

Eſſex Street, or Buildings.

Eſſex Stairs.

Almoſt againſt St. Clements Church is an open Paſſage for Coaches into Eſſex Street, or Building, being a broad, clean, and handſome Street, eſpecially beyond the turning into the Temple, where it croſſeth Little Eſſex Street into Milford Lane; it conſiſts of two Rows of good built Houſes, well inhabited by Gentry; at the bottom of which Street is a Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water ſide, where Watermen ply. This Place, before its being converted into Buildings, was a large Garden with one great Houſe, firſt called Exeter Houſe, as belonging to the Biſhops of Exeter. Afterwards it came to the Earls of Eſſex, and was called Eſſex Houſe. Which Name it retained, altho' afterwards poſſeſſed by Seymour Marqueſs of Hartford. At length it was purchaſed by Dr. Barbon, the great Builder, and by him and other Undertakers converted into Buildings as now it is: Of late the Paſſage into it out of the great Street is widened, and made more convenient.

Little Eſſex Street.

Milford Lane.

Greyhound Court.

Piſſing Alley.

Milford Stairs.

Out of this Eſſex Street Weſtward is a ſmall Street or Paſſage for Carts, called Little Eſſex Street, which leadeth to Milford Lane, which openeth out of the Strand, againſt St. Clements Church, and this Lane runneth down on the back ſide of Eſſex Street to the Water ſide, a Place much peſtered with Carts and Carrs, for the bringing Coals and other Goods from the Wharfs by the Water ſide. And therefore this Lane is but ill inhabited, with old Buildings, and the rather for that the Entrance into it out of the Strand is ſo narrow. On the Weſt ſide of this Lane and oppoſite to Little Eſſex Street is Greyhound Court, a pretty handſome new built Place, which hath a Paſſage into Water Street on the back ſide of Norfolk Buildings. Then lower down in Milford Lane, near the Wood Wharf, is a ſmall Place called Piſſing Alley, a very proper Name for it, and this Alley goeth down to Milford Stairs, and alſo up into Water Street being aſcended by Steps.

Crown Court.

Talbot Inn.

Betwixt Milford Lane, and Arundel Street is Crown Court, very ſmall. Then betwixt Norfolk Street, and Surrey Street in the Strand is Angel Court, containing two or three Houſes, and hath a Freeſtone Pavement. Then beyond Surrey Street is the Talbot Inn, well reſorted unto, which hath a Paſſage into Surrey Street next to Mr. Foxes Houſe.

Strand Bridge.

Strand Bridge goeth down to the Thames ſide, a Place of ſome Note, for its Stairs to take Water at; the Eaſt ſide of this Lane joins to Surrey Street, into which there is a Paſſage up Stone Steps: and the Weſt ſide hath a Brick Wall belonging to Somerſet Houſe Garden.

Three Halbert Court.

Beyond Strand Bridge towards Somerſet Houſe is a ſmall Court called Three Halbert Court. Which is the extent or out Bounds of this Pariſh Weſtward.

Norfolk Buildings.

Contains four Streets.

Arundel Street.

Water Street.

Piſſing Alley.

Greyhound Court.

Now back to Norfolk Buildings, formerly the Biſhop of Bath's Inn: Which in Proceſs of Time came to the Family of the Howards, Dukes of Norfolk, the late Duke dwelling there. It then was a very large and old built Houſe; with a ſpacious Yard for Stablings, towards the Strand, and with a Gate to encloſe it, where there was the Porters Lodge; and as large a Garden towards the Thames. This ſaid Houſe and Grounds was ſome Years ſince converted into Streets and Buildings, and contains four large Streets graced with good Buildings which are well inhabited and reſorted unto by Gentry; three of which in a ſtreight Line from the Strand, runs down to the River Thames: where there are good Stairs for taking Water, viz. Arundel Street, Norfolk Street, and Surrey Street; and the fourth, viz. Howard Street runs croſs about the midſt. The firſt of theſe Streets Eaſtward is Arundel Street which hath the beſt Buildings towards the Thames; on the Eaſt ſide is a Street called Water Street, chiefly for Coaches and Stablings, at the bottom of which is a pretty handſome Houſe, with a Garden towards the Thames: and under the Houſe there is a Paſſage into the Thames for the watering of Horſes. Out of this Street are two Paſſages into Arundel Street, one of which is broad for Coaches, and the other narrow, which is called Piſſing Alley. And out of this Place there are two Paſſages into Milford Lane, the one towards the bottom very ſmall and bad, being deſcended by Steps, very ill built and inhabited; the other is called Greyhound Court already mentioned in the Diſcription of Milford Lane. At the upper End of this Street is the Crown Tavern, a large and curious Houſe with good Rooms and other Conveniences fit for Entertainment.

Norfolk Street.

Norfolk Street, very large and ſpacious, lieth in the midſt, and is eſteemed the beſt both for Buildings, and Pleaſantneſs of a Proſpect into the Thames.

Surrey Street.

Surrey Street, alſo repleniſhed with good Buildings, eſpecially that of Neviſon Fox, Eſq; towards the Strand, which is a fine, large and curious Houſe of his own Building; and the two Houſes that front the Thames; that on the Eaſt ſide being the Houſe of the Honourable Charles Howard, Eſquire, Brother to Henry Duke of Norfolk, both fine Houſes with pleaſant, tho' ſmall Gardens towards the Thames.

Howard Street.]

Howard Street, alſo a large open Street, running croſs as aforeſaid, but not ſo well inhabited as the others.

The North ſide of the Strand.

The North ſide of the Strand begins at Temple Bar, from thence runneth to the Butcher Row, which goeth to the Paſſage into St. Clements Inn, thence to the Angel Inn, and ſo on the Back ſide of St. Clements Church unto the May Pole in the Strand.

St. Clements Church.

Pariſh Alms Houſes.

The Pariſh Church of St. Clements, is lately new built, a comely and curious Structure, both as to its Pillars, Galleries, Pews and Pulpit within; and for its outward Adornment, having a fine Porch aſcended by Steps, and covered at the top Cupulowiſe, and ſupported by Freeſtone Pillars. It alſo hath a fine Steeple, with a good Ring of Bells, and Chimes to them. To this Church adjoins a fair Churchyard ſevered from the Strand by Freeſtones ſet in the Ground Breaſt high, and handſomely ſhaped taperwiſe. On the Eaſt ſide are ſix Pariſh Alms Houſes.

St. Clements Inn.

Near unto this Church, on the North ſide is St. Clements Inn, being one of the Inns of Chancery. It hath three Courts one within another, all old Buildings, except a Row in the Garden, which is well built with a Proſpect into the Garden, as alſo into that of New Inn adjoining to it, with a Door to open into the ſaid Inn a Days, but ſhut at Nights; and here is a back Door which gives Paſſage into Clare Market.

St. Clements Lane.

St Clements Pump.

Plough Alley.

Horſhoe Court.

Yates Court.

Pigmy Court.

St. Clements Lane, comes out of Butchers Row, and fronts Clements Inn. And near the Gate is the Lamb Inn of ſome Note and Trade. Then paſſing by St. Clements Inn, and Boſwel Court, it runneth Northwards into Clare Market, and in its Paſſage takes in St. Clements Pump, or Well, of Note for its excellent Spring Water. A little above this Pump, is Plough Alley, which with three Turnings, goes into a Street by the Plough Stables, which fronts the Play Houſe by Lincolns Inn Grange, in little Lincolns Inn Fields. More towards Clare Market, is Horſhoe Court, a pretty handſome Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, having a Ptoſpect into St. Clements Inn Garden. And oppoſite to this Court is Yates Court, not over good, nor large; and then nearer to Clare Market on the right Hand, is a very ſmall Place, with a narrow Entrance, called Pigmy Court.

The Butcher Row.

Ship Yard.]

Knights Court.

Between Temple Bar and the Turning into St. Clements Inn on the North ſide of the Butcher Row, (ſo called from the Butchers Shambles on the South ſide) are ſeveral Courts, moſt of which are but ſmall. The firſt is Ship Yard, a Throughfare into little Shear Lane, with a pretty broad Paſſage; on the Eaſt ſide is an open Place going into a ſmall Court, called Chair Court wlth a fair Freeſtone Pavement. This Yard ſeems to take its Name from the Ship Tavern at the Entrance thereof. Next to Ship Yard are theſe Courts, Swan Court, very ſmall. Star Court, indifferent good and large with an open Air. White Hart Court, long, but narrow. Lock Alley, but ſmall. Windmil Court, very ſmall, and inconſiderable. Crown Court hath an open Air about the midſt, and leadeth into little Shear Lane. Bear and Harrow Court, ſo called from ſuch a Sign, a noted Eating Houſe, at the Entrance into it. This Court, (or rather Alley, for its Length and Narrowneſs) runs into Boſwel Court. In this Hollowel Street is Lyons Inn, another of the Inns of Chancery, which is but ſmall and old. It hath a back Door into Wich Street; and againſt the fore Door is a ſmall Paſſage into the Strand, called Piſſing Alley, perhaps in contempt.

Witch Street

New Inn.

Wich Street begins at the Angel Inn, and ſo runs into Drury Lane; it is a Street much taken up by Upholſters for the Sale of Bedding and ſecond hand Houſhold Goods. In this Street is New Inn, another of the Inns of Chancery, and here the Students of Strand Inn ſettled, when that Houſe was pulled down in the Reign of Edward the Sixth, for the the building of Somerſet Houſe. This Inn is of late much encreaſed by the new Buildings in the Garden Part; which is ſevered in with Palliſadoes, and neatly kept with Graſs Plats and Walks, ſet with Rows of Trees, ſo that the Chambers (which all front the Garden) are very pleaſant and airy. Thro' this Inn there is a Paſſage into Haughton Street, and another into St. Clements Inn.

Near unto New Inn is Wickham Court and Wich Alley, both very ſmall: and on the North ſide, next to Lyons Inn, is Ogdens Court, alſo but ordinary. May Pole Alley hath a narrow Paſſage into Stanhope Street, but meanly inhabited, On the Eaſt ſide, and the Weſt ſide is taken up by the back Buildings of Craven Houſe. Out of this Yard is an Alley which leadeth into Lincolns Inn Fields againſt Portugal Row, and another Paſſage into Shefford Street adjoining to the Market, a Place of ſome Trade.

Clare Market.

On the Back ſide of Portugal Row, is a Street which runneth to Lincolns Inn Gate, which uſed ro paſs without a Name, but ſince the Place is encreaſed by the new Buildings in Little Lincolns Inn Fields, and the ſettling of the Play Houſe it may have a Name given it, and not improperly, Playhouſe Street. Fronting the Play Houſe, is a Street which goeth to Plough Stables; which alſo had no Name, unleſs one may call it Grange Street, from the Grange Inn, a Place of good Note; nigh to which is the Pariſh Round Houſe, on the Back ſide of which is a Churchyard alſo belonging to the Pariſh.

Sir Thomas Cook's Buildings.

Lincolns Inn Street.

Hookers Court.

The new Buildings made by Sir Thomas Cook in Little Lincolns Inn Fields, now make a large Street with good built Houſes and before likewiſe had no Name; but now may be called Lincolns Inn Street; at the upper End of this Street is Plough Alley and Stable Alley, already ſpoken of. Then Hookers Court, a very fine large Court, with very good Buildings, well inhabited; It hath a Paſſage down Steps into Boſwel Court, and to both Paſſages or Entrances are Gates to ſhut up in the Nights, for Security of the Inhabitants.

Hemlock Court.

Hemlock Court, a neat Court with a Freeſtone Pavement, lately new built with pretty good Houſes; It hath a Paſſage into Lincolns Inn, and fronts Ship Yard.

Shear Lane.

Shear Lane, very narrow towards Temple Bar, but upwards againſt Little Shear Lane it groweth wider, hath better Buildings and well inhabited: Of this Lane, only the Weſt ſide is in this Pariſh, the other being in the Liberty of the Rolls.

Cooks Court.

Serles Street, hath on the Eaſt, the new Row of Buildings of Lincolns Inn, and on the Weſt that large Pile of Buildings which takes up the reſt of Little Lincolns Inn Fields; and in the midſt of which is Cooks Court, which is a very handſome and cleanly Place, with good Buildings, very well inhabited.

As for the Deſcription of the Buildings in Lincolns Inn which are in this Pariſh, I ſhall ſpeak of them, when I come to treat of the other Parts.

Wimbleton Houſe.

I ſhall next ſhew the Buildings lying Weſtwards and ſeparate from the Body of the Pariſh; to wit, In the Strand, beginning at Wimbleton Houſe, a very handſome large Houſe, and ſo all the Houſes, with Exeter Exchange and Court, and the Houſes adjoining, the Eaſt ſide of Burleigh Street, except ſome few Houſes, together with all the back Buildings unto the Fountain Tavern in Katharine Street, and the Courts within the ſame, as aforeſaid. Likewiſe all Beauford Buildings, and the Eaſt ſide of Cecil Street, built on Part of great Salisbury Houſe, and Garden.

Exeter Exchange.

Land Bank.

Exeter Court.

To begin with Exeter Exchange, with Exchange Alley, Exeter Street, and Burleigh Street, &c. Theſe formerly belonged to Exeter Houſe, and Garden until thus built, being a large Houſe belonging to the Earls of Exeter, and was antiently ſaid to be a Covent, or Monaſtery, and that Covent Garden, then unbuilt, was the Gardens and Fields belonging to it. This Exchange contains two Walks below Stairs, and as many above, with Shops on each ſide, for Semſters, Milleners, Hoſiers, &c. The Builders judging it would come in great Requeſt but it received a Check in its Infancy, I ſuppoſe by thoſe of the New Exchange, ſo that inſtead of growing in better Eſteem, it became worſe and worſe; inſomuch that the Shops in the firſt Walk next the Street can hardly meet with Tenants, thoſe backwards lying uſeleſs, and thoſe above converted to other Uſes; and here the Managers of the Land Bank keep their Office. Adjoining to this Exchange Eaſtwards in the Strand is Exeter Court, very handſome, and well inhabited, with a good Freeſtone Pavement.

Burleigh Street.

Exchange Alley.

Burleigh Street comes out of the Strand, and runs up to Exeter Street; a Place not over well inhabited. And behind the Exchange is Exchange Alley, which hath one Paſſage into this Street, another into Exeter Street, and a third into the Change. The Court is indifferent large and well inhabited.

Beauford Buildings.

Fountain Court.

Beauford Houſe burnt down, and re built.

Then on the South ſide of the Strand, near adjoining to the Savoy, but more Weſtwardly, is Beauford Buildings; which formerly was a very large Houſe with a Garden towards the River Thames, with waſt Ground and Yards behind it Eaſtwards, called Worceſter Houſe, as belonging to the Earls of Worceſter, and deſcending to Henry Duke of Beaufort; his Grace finding it crazy, and by its Antiquity grown very ruinous, and altho' large, yet not after the modern Way of Building, thought it better to let out the Ground to Undertakers, than to build a new Houſe thereon, the Steepneſs of the Deſcent to the Thames rendring it not proper for great Courts, nor eaſy for Coaches, if the Houſe were built at ſuch a Diſtance from the Street, as would have been proper: And having at the ſame time, bought Buckingham Houſe at Chelſey, in an Air he thought much healthier, and near enough to the Town for Buſineſs. However his Grace cauſed a leſſer Houſe to be there built for himſelf, to diſpatch Buſineſs in, at the End of a large Street leading to it, and having the Conveniency of a Proſpect over the Thames. On both ſides are now very fair and good Houſes built, well inhabited, generally by Gentry, eſpecially in the Part next the Thames, which is much broader, than at its Entrance out of the Strand. The front Houſes in the Strand, which are lofty and well built, are inhabited by Tradeſmen; with one very fine Tavern, which hath the Sign of the Fountain, very conveniently built for that Purpoſe, with excellent Vaults, good Rooms of Entertainment, and a curious Kitchin for dreſſing of Meat, which with the good Wine there ſold makes it to be well reſorted unto: cloſe by this Tavern is an Alley that leadeth to Fountain Court, a very handſome Place, with a Freeſtone Pavement, and good Buildings which are well inhabited. Out of this Court is a Paſſage into the Street, where the Dukes Houſe ſtood, which gave the Name to Beauford Buildings; This Houſe of the Dukes, with ſome others, was lately burnt down; by the Careleſneſs of a Servant in one of the adjacent Houſes. This is now again built into a very handſome Court: On the Weſt ſide of this Houſe is a Paſſage out of the Strand for Carts and Cars, that belong to the Wharfs adjoining to the Thames.

Concerning

The Occaſion of building the Earl of Worceſters

Concerning building the old Houſe, there goes this Story; That there being a very large Walnut Tree, growing in the Garden, which much obſtructed the Eaſtern Proſpect of Saliſbury Houſe near adjoining, it was propoſed to the Earl of Worceſter's Gardiner, by the Earl of Saliſbury, or his Agent, that if he could prevail with his Lord to cut down the ſaid Tree, he ſhould have 100 l. which offer was told the Earl of Worceſter, who ordered him to do it, and take the 100 l. both which was performed to the great Satisfaction of the Earl of Saliſbury, as he thought: But there being no great Kindneſs betwixt the two Earls; The Earl of Worceſter ſoon cauſed to be built in the Place of the Walnut Tree, a large Brick Houſe, which then took away the whole Eaſt Proſpect.

Saliſbury Houſe.

Near unto this Houſe, was Saliſbury Houſe, already ſpoken of; built by Sir Robert Cecil, Kt. (principal Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, made Lord Treaſurer and Earl of Saliſbury by King James the Firſt,) being both large and ſtately, and called Saliſbury Houſe; and to make it commodious for Paſſengers he cauſed the High Street of the Strand, near adjoining to be levelled and paved.

This Houſe afterwards became two, the one being called, Great Saliſbury Houſe, as being the Reſidence of the Earl, and the other Little Saliſbury Houſe; which was uſed to be let out to Perſons of Quality; being alſo a large Houſe; and this was above 28 Years ago contracted for, of the then Earl of Saliſbury for a certain Term of Years to build on, and accordingly it was pulled down and made into a Street, called Saliſbury Street, which being too narrow, and withal the Deſcent to the Thames too uneaſy; it was not ſo well inhabited as was expected.

Saliſbury Street.

Another Part, viz. that next to great Saliſbury Houſe and over the long Gallery, was converted into an Exchange, and called the Middle Exchange, which conſiſted of a very long and large Room, (with Shops on both ſides,) which from the Strand run as far as the Water ſide; where was a handſome Pair of Stairs to go down to the Water ſide to take Boat at, but it had the Ill Luck, to have the nick Name given it of the Whores-neſt: Whereby, with the ill Fate that attended it, few or no People took Shops there, and thoſe that did, were ſoon weary and left them. Inſomuch that it lay uſeleſs, except three or four Shops towards the Strand; and coming into the Earl's Hands, this Exchange, with great Saliſbury Houſe, and the Houſes fronting the Street are pulled down, and now converted into a fair Street called Cecil Street, running down to the Thames, having very good Houſes fit for Perſons of Repute; and will be better ordered than Saliſbury Street was. And the Houſes next the Strand, which are lofty and good, will no doubt be taken up by good Tradeſmen. The Eaſt ſide of this Street is only in this Pariſh, the Weſt ſide being in that of St. Martins in the Fields.]

Middle Exchange.

Churches and great Houſes in this Liberty.

Thus much for the Bounds and Antiquities of this Liberty. Wherein I have noted Pariſh Churches twain, ſometime three: Houſes of Name, ſix; to wit, the Savoy, or Lancaſter Houſe, now an Hoſpital, Somerſet Houſe, Eſſex Houſe, Arundel Houſe, [which two laſt are now built into fair Streets down to the Water ſide,] Bedford or Ruſſel Houſe, and Sir Robert Cecil's Houſe, [afterwards called Saliſbury Houſe, now built into Streets alſo, as the other Houſes,] beſides Cheſters Inn, or Strand Inn ſometime an Inn of Chancery, &c.

Chancellor of the ſaid Dutchy, and one of his Majeſty King James the Firſt, his Privy Counſellors.] There is under him a Steward that keepeth Court and Leet for the King, he giveth the Charge, and taketh the Oaths of every under Officer.

Officers of the Dutchy.

Then are there four Burgeſſes, and four Aſſiſtants, to take up Controverſies; a Bailiff, who hath two or three under Bailiffs, that make Arreſts within that Liberty; four Conſtables, four Wardens, that keep the Lands and Stock for the Poor: four Wardens for High Ways: a Jury or Inqueſt of fourteen or ſixteen, to preſent Defaults; four Alecunners, which look to the Aſſize of Weights and Meaſures, &c. Four Scavingers, and a Beadle. And their common Priſon is Newgate.

Fifty Men here always ready to ſerve the King.

There is in this Liberty fifty Men, who are always to be at an Hours Warning, with all neceſſary Furniture, to ſerve the King as Occaſion ſhall require. Their Charge at a fifteen is 13 s. 4 d. Thus much for the Suburb in the Liberty of the Dutchy of Lancaſter.

Hanover-Square. J. S.

Among theſe Suburbian Territories on this ſide, in the Way towards Tyburn, there are certain new and ſplendid Buildings, called, in Honour of his preſent Majeſty, HANOVER-SQUARE: Some finiſhed, and ſome erecting; conſiſting of many compleat, noble Houſes. One whereof is taking by my Lord Cowper, late Lord High Chancellor of England. And it is reported, that the common Place of Execution of Malefactors at Tyburn, ſhall be appointed elſewhere, as ſomewhere near Kingſland; for the removing any Inconveniences or Annoyances, that might thereby be occaſioned to that Square, or the Houſes thereabouts.

A SUR-

A SURVEY OF THE CITY of LONDON.

BOOK. V.

Containing an Account of the GOVERNMENT, and Governours, of the ſaid CITY; Its Corporations and Trades; Its Laws, Orders, and Cuſtoms; and Militia.

CHAP. I.

The Government of the City of LONDON. And firſt of the Eccleſiaſtical State. Catalogue of all the Biſhops of LONDON; And of the Pariſhes and Churches. An ancient Liſt of them. Their Patrons and Tenths. Religious Houſes, Hoſpitals, &c. Tables of the late or preſent Incumbents, Lecturers, Values, &c. of all the Pariſhes in LONDON and WESTMINSTER, with the Out-Pariſhes. Table of the daily Hours of Prayer, &c. in every Church. Weekly Lectures. BOYLE's Monthly Lecture. Anniverſary Sermons.

HAving thus run through the Deſcription of this City of London, as well in its original Foundation, as in its Increaſe of Buildings and Ornaments, together with ſuch Incidents of ſundry Sorts, as are before, both generally and particularly, diſcourſed; it remaineth that ſomewhat be noted by me, touching the Policy and Government, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, of London; the Order whereof is maintained by the Cuſtoms thereof, moſt laudably uſed before all the Time of Memory.

W. Malmesbury.

Antiquities of Glaſton.

And firſt to begin with the Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction; I read, that the Chriſtian Faith was firſt preach'd in this Iſland (then called Britain) by Joſeph of Arimathea, and his Brethren, Diſciples of Chriſt, in the Time of Arviragus, then Governour here, under the Roman Emperor. After which time, Lucius, King of the Britains, ſent his Ambaſſadors, Elvanus and Meduvinus (two Men learned in the Scriptures) with Letters to Eleutherius, Biſhop of Rome, deſiring him to ſend ſome Devout and Learned Men, by whoſe Inſtruction, he and his People might be taught the Faith and Religion of Chriſt. Eleutherius baptized thoſe Meſſengers, making Elvanus a Biſhop, and Meduvinus a Teacher; and ſent over with them into Britain, two other famous Clerks, Faganus and Deruvianus *; by whoſe diligence, Lucius and his People of Britain, were inſtructed in the Faith of Chriſt, and baptized; the Temples of Idols were converted into Cathedral Churches, and Biſhops were placed, where Flamines before had been: At London, York and Carleon upon Uske, were placed Archbiſhops, &c. The Epiſtle ſaid to be ſent by Eleutherius to King Lucius, for the eſtabliſhing of the Faith, ye may read in my Annals, Summaries and Chronicles, truly tranſlated and ſet down, as mine Author hath it; for ſome have curtailed and corrupted it, and then fathered upon Reverend Bede, who never wrote Word thereof, or otherwiſe to that Effect, more than this as followeth:

Lib. conſtitut. Eleutherius died in the Year 186, when he had been Biſhop 15 Years.

* Deuvianus 1ſt Edit.

Liber Cuſtom.

Bede.

In the Year 156 Marcus Aurelius Verus, the 14th Emperor after Auguſtus, governed the Empire, with his Brother Aurelius Commodus. In whoſe time, Eleutherius, a Holy Man, being Pope of the Church of Rome, Lucius King of Britains wrote unto him, deſiring that by his Commandment, he might be made a Chriſtian: which his Requeſt was granted him; whereby the Britains receiving then the Faith, kept it ſound and undefiled in Reſt and Peace, until Dioclesian the Emperor's time.

Thus far Bede; which may ſuffice to prove the Chriſtian Faith then to be received here. And now of our London Biſhops, as I find them.

This is before ſet down in Cornhil Ward.

There remaineth in the Pariſh Church of St. Peter upon Cornhil in London, a Table wherein is written, that Lucius founded the ſame Church to be an Archbiſhop's See, and Metropolitan and chief Church of his Kingdom, and that it ſo endured the Space of four hundred Years, until the coming of Auguſtine the Monk, and others from Rome, in the Reign of the Saxons.

Joceline of Furnes. Britiſh Biſhops of London.

The Archbiſhops Names I find only to be ſet down by Joceline of Furnes, in his Book of Britiſh Biſhops, and not elſewhere. Thean (ſaith he) was the firſt Archbiſhop of London, in the Time of Lucius, who builded the ſaid Church of St. Peter, in a Place called Cornhil in London, by the Aid of Ciran, chief Butler to King Lucius.

2. Elvanus was the Second, and he builded a Library to the ſame Church adjoining, and converted many of the Druides (learned Men in the Pagan Law) to the Chriſtian Faith.

3. Cadar was the Third: Then followed,
4. Obinus.
5. Conan.
6. Paludius.
7. Stephen.
8. Iltute.
9. Dedwin, [or Theodwin]
10. Thedred.
11. Hillary.
[12. Reſtitutus.]
13. Guidelium, [or Guiteline.]
[14. Faſtidius.]
15. Vodimus, ſlain by the Saxons.

16. Theanus, the fourteenth [or the 16th] and laſt; for he fled with the Britains into Wales, about the Year of Chriſt, 587. Thus much out of Joceline of the Archbiſhops: the Credit whereof I leave to the Judgment of the Learned. For I read of a Biſhop of London (not before named) * in the Year of Chriſt 326, to be preſent at the ſecond Council, holden at Arles, in the Time of Conſtantine the Great, who ſubſcribed thereunto in theſe Words:

* Reſtitutus.

Ex Provincia Britanniæ Civitate Londinenſi Reſtitutus Epiſcopus, as plainly appeareth in the firſt Tome of the Councils. He writeth not himſelf Archbiſhop, and therefore maketh the Matter of Archbiſhops doubtful, or rather overthroweth that Opinion.

Tom. I. Concil.

Converſion of the Saxons.

The Saxons being Pagans, having chaſed the Britains with the Chriſtian Preachers into the Mountains of Wales and Cornwal, and having divided this Kingdom of the Britains amongſt themſelves; at length, to wit, in the Year 596, Pope Gregory, moved of a godly Inſtinction (ſaith Bede) in the 147th Year, after the Arrival of the Angles (or Saxons) in Britain, ſent Auguſtine, Melitus, Juſtus and John, with other Monks, to preach the Goſpel to the ſaid Nation of the Angles in Britain.

Theſe landed in the Iſle of Thanet, and were firſt received by Ethelbert, King of Kent, whom they converted to the Faith of Chriſt, with divers other of his People, in the 34th Year of his Reign. Which Ethelbert gave unto Auguſtine, the City of Canterbury.

[The Metropolitane See being eſtabliſhed at Canterbury, theſe that follow, were ſucceſſively Biſhops of London, to this preſent Time.]

Saxon Biſhops of London.

This Auguſtine in the Year of Chriſt 604, Conſecrated Melitus and Juſtus, Biſhops; appointing Melitus to preach unto the Eaſt Saxons, whoſe chief City was London. And their King Sebert, Nephew to Ethelbert, by preaching of Melitus, received the Word of Life.

St. Paul's Church in London firſt founded. Melitus firſt Biſhop of London, Ann. 619.

I. And then Ethelbert, King of Kent, builded in the City of London, St. Paul's Church, wherein Melitus began to be Biſhop, in the Year 619, and ſate five Years. Ethelbert by his Charter gave Lands to this Church of St. Paul: So did other Kings after him.

King Sebert, through the good Life, and like Preaching of Melitus, having received Baptiſm, to ſhew himſelf a Chriſtian, builded a Church to the Honour of God and St. Peter, on the Weſt-ſide of London, which Church is called Weſtminſter: but the Succeſſors of Sebert, being Pagans, expelled Melitus [out of their Kingdoms.]

Juſtus 624.

II. Juſtus the Second, Biſhop for a time, and then Melitus again; after whoſe deceaſe, the Seat was void for a time. At length Sigebert (Son to Sigebert, Brother to Sebert) ruled in Eſſex: He became a Chriſtian, and took to him a holy Man, named Cedde, or Chadde, who wan many, by Preaching and good Life, to the Chriſtian Religion.

Cedde Biſhop of London, 658.

III. Cedde (or Chadde) was (by Finan) Conſecrated Biſhop of the Eaſt Saxons, and he ordered Prieſts and Deacons in all the Parts of Eſſex, but eſpecially at Ithancaſter, and Tilbury.

Ithancaſter. Raphe Cogſhall.

This City of Ithancaſter (ſaith Raphe Cogſhall) ſtood on the Bank of the River Pante, that runneth by Maldum in the Hundred of Daneſey; but now that City is drowned in Pante, ſo that nothing remaineth, but the Ruin of the City in the River. Tilbury (both the Weſt and Eaſt) ſtandeth on the Thames ſide, nigh over againſt Graveſend.

Tilbury.

Wina, 666.

IV. Wina, expelled from the Church of Wincheſter by Cenewalche the King, was adopted to be the fourth Biſhop of London, in the Reign of Wolferus, King of Mercia, and ſate nine Years.

Erkenwald, 680. Croteſey, or Charteſey.

V. Erkenwald, born in the Caſtle or Town of Stallingborough in Lindſey, firſt Abbot of Croteſey, was by Theodore, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, appointed to be Biſhop of the Eaſt Saxons, in the City of London. This Erkenwald, in the Year of Chriſt 677, before he was made Biſhop, had builded two Monaſteries, one for himſelf, (being a Monk) at Croteſey, in the Iſle of Crote in Surrey, by the River of Thames, and another by his Siſter Edilburga, being a Nun, in a certain Place called Berching in Eſſex: He deceaſed at Berching, in the Year 697, and was buried in Paul's Church; and was from thence tranſlated into the new Church of St. Paul, on the 18 Kalends of Decemb. in the Year One Thouſand, One Hundred Forty Eight.

Waldhere, 697. King Sebba became a Monk in Paul's Church.

VI. Waldhere, [or Walthere] was Biſhop of London: Sebba, King of the Eaſt Saxons, came to this Waldhere, Biſhop of London, and at his Hands received the Habit of a Monk: For at that time there were Monks at Paul's Church, as writeth Radulphus Diceto, and others. To this Biſhop he brought a great Sum of Money, to be beſtowed and given to the Poor, reſerving nothing to himſelf; but rather deſired to remain poor in Goods, as in Spirit, for the Kingdom of Heaven, when he had reigned thirty Years: He deceaſed at Paul's, and there buried, and lieth now in a Coffin of Stone, on the North Side of the Iſle next the Quire.

Ingwaldus, 716.

VII. Ingwaldus, Biſhop of London, was at the Conſecration of Tatwine, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; and he confirmed the Foundation of Crowland, in the Year Seven Hundred and Sixteen, (ſaith Ingulfus) and deceaſed in the Year 744, as ſaith Hoveden.

VIII. Engulfe. [called alſo Egwolfe, or Egnaldus] Biſhop of London. 746.

IX. Wichet, or Wigerus, Biſhop of London. 754.

XVIII. Caulfe, [Renulfe, or Ceorulfe] Biſhop of London. 841.

XIX. Swithulfus, Biſhop of London; he likewiſe was Witneſs to a Charter of Crowland, 851. 850.

XX. Ed-

860. XX. Edſtanus, Biſhop of London, Witneſs to a Charter of Crowland, 860.

870. XXI. Ulfius [Wulfius, or Wolfius,] Bp. of London.

878. XXII. Ethelwardus, Biſhop of London.

886. XXIII. Elſtanus, Biſhop of London, died in the Year 900, ſaith Aſſer; and all theſe, ſaith the Author of Flores Hiſtoriarum, were buried in the old Church of St. Paul, but there remaineth now no Memory of them.*

* But there remaineth Memories there. First Edit.

900. XXIV. Theodoricus, Biſhop of London: This Man confirmed King Edred's Charter made to Wincheſter in the Year 947, whereby it ſeemeth, that he was Biſhop of London of a later time than he is here placed.

922. XXV. Welſtanus, [Wulſtanus] Biſhop of London.

941. XXVI. Brithelme, Biſhop of London.

960. XXVIII. Ealſſtanus, Biſhop of London, the 28th in number.

981. XXIX. Edgare, Biſhop of London; he confirmed the Grants made to Wincheſter and to Crowland, 966, and again to Crowland 970; the Charter of Etheldred, concerning Ulfrunhampton, 996.

1044. XXXIII. Robert, ſeven Years a Monk of Gemeriſins † in Normandy, afterward tranſlated from London to Canterbury.

† Gemet, 1st Edit.

1050. XXXIV. Specgaſius elected, but rejected by the King.

1051. XXXV. William, a Norman, Chaplain to Edward the Confeſſor, was made Biſhop of London in 1051, ſate ſeventeen Years, and deceaſed 1070. He obtained of William the Conqueror the Charter of Liberties for the City of London, as I have ſet down in my Summary, and appeareth by his Epitaph in Paul's Church.

1070. XXXVI. Hugh de Orwell, [or Orivall] Biſhop of London; he died of a Leproſie, when he had ſitten fifteen Years.

1085. XXXVII. Mauricius, Biſhop of London, in whoſe time (to wit, in the Year 1086) the Church of St. Paul was burnt, with the moſt part of this City; and therefore he laid the Foundation of a new large Church, and having ſitten twenty two Years, he deceaſed 1107, ſaith Matthew Paris.

1108. XXXVIII. Richard Beames, or Beamor, [called by ſome Richard Bearvis] Biſhop of London, did wonderfully increaſe the Work of this Church begun, purchaſing the Streets and Lanes adjoining of his own Money. And he founded the Monaſtery of St. Oſyth in Eſſex. He ſate Biſhop nineteen Years, and deceaſed 1127.

1127. XXXIX. Gilbertus Univerſalis, a Canon of Lyons, elected by Henry the Firſt; he deceaſed 1141, when he had ſitten fourteen Years.

1142. XL. Robertus de Sigillo, a Monk of Reading, whom Maud the Empreſs made Biſhop of London, where he ſate eleven Years. Jeffrey de Magnavile took him Priſoner at Fulham, and he deceaſed 1152.

1152. XLI. Richard Beames, Archdeacon of Eſſex, Biſhop of London ten Years, who deceaſed 1162.

1163. XLII. Gilbert Foliot, Biſhop of Hereford; from whence tranſlated to London, ſate three and twenty Years, and deceaſed 1186.

1189. XLIII. Richard Fitz Nele, the King's Treaſurer, Archdeacon of Eſſex, elected Biſhop of London at Pipwell 1189. He ſate nine Years and deceaſed 1198. This Man alſo took great Pains about the building of Paul's Church, and raiſed many other goodly Buildings in his Dioceſe.

1199. XLIV. William S. Mary-Church, a Norman [commonly called, William de Sancta Maria] Biſhop of London, who was one of the three Biſhops that by the Pope's Commandment executed his Interdiction or Curſe upon the whole Realm of England. But he was forced (with the other Biſhops) to flie the Realm in 1208, and his Caſtle at Stortford in Eſſex was by Commandment of King John overthrown, 1210. This William, in Company of the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and of the Biſhop of Ely, went to Rome, and there complained againſt the King, 1212, and returned ſo, as in the Year 1215, King John in the Church of St. Paul, at the Hands of this William, took upon him the Croſs for the Holy Land. He reſigned his Biſhoprick of his own Voluntary, in the Year 1221, ſaith Cogſhall.

XLV. Euſtachius de Faulconbridge, Treaſurer of the Exchequer (ſaith Paris) Chancellor of the Exchequer (ſaith Textor and Cogſhall) Biſhop of London, 1223. Whilſt at Chelmesford he was giving Holy Orders, a great Tempeſt of Wind and Rain annoyed ſo many as came thither; whereof it was gathered, how highly God was diſpleaſed with ſuch as came to receive Orders, to the end, they might live a more eaſy Life, of the Stipends appointed to the Churchmen; giving themſelves to Banqueting, and ſo with unclean and filthy Bodies, but more unclean Souls, preſume to miniſter unto God, the Author of Purity and Cleanneſs. Falcatius de Brent was delivered to his Cuſtody in the Year 1224. This Euſtachius deceaſed in the Year 1228, and was buried in Paul's Church, in the South ſide, without, or above, the Quire. 1221.

XLVI. Roger Niger, Archdeacon of Colcheſter, made Biſhop of London. In the Year 1230 (ſaith Paris) upon the Feaſt-day of the Converſion of St. Paul, when he was at Maſs in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, a great multitude of People being there preſent, ſuddenly the Weather waxed dark, ſo as one could ſcantly ſee one another, and an horrible Thunder-clap lighted on the Church, which ſo ſhook it, that it was like to have fallen; and therewithall out of a dark Cloud proceeded ſuch a Flaſh of Lightning, that all the Church ſeemed to be on Fire; whereupon ſuch a Stench enſued, that all Men thought they ſhould have died; Thouſands of Men and Women ran out of the Church, and being aſtoniſhed fell upon the Ground void of all Senſe and Underſtanding. 1229.

None of all the Multitude tarried in the Church, ſave the Biſhop and one Deacon, which ſtood ſtill before the high Altar, awaiting the Will of God; and when the Air was cleanſed, the Multitude returned into the Church, and the Biſhop ended the Service.

This Roger Niger is commended to have been a Man of worthy Life, excellently well learned, a notable Preacher, pleaſant in Talk, mild of Countenance, and liberal at his Table. He admoniſhed the Uſurers of his Time, to leave ſuch Enormities, as they tendred the Salvation of their Souls, and to do Penance for that they had committed: But when he ſaw they laughed him to ſcorn, and alſo threatened him, the Biſhop generally excommunicated and accurſed all ſuch, and commanded ſtrictly that ſuch Uſurers ſhould depart farther from the City of London, which hitherto had been ignorant of ſuch Miſchief and Wickedneſs, leſt his Dioceſe ſhould be infected therewithall. He fell ſick, and died at his Mannor of Biſhops-Hall, in the Lordſhip and Pariſh of Stebunheth, in the Year 1241, and was buried in Paul's Church, on the North ſide of the Presbyterie, in a fair Tomb coped of grey Marble. Matth. Paris.

XLVII. Fulco Baſſet, Dean of York, Biſhop of London by the Death of Gilbert Baſſet, poſſeſſed his Lands, and was then made Biſhop of London, deceaſed on the 21ſt Day of May, in the Year 1259, (as ſaith John Textor) and was buried in Paul's Church. 1241.

XLVIII. Henry de Wingham, Chancellor of England, made Biſhop of London, deceaſed in the Year 1259.

1262 (ſaith Textor) and was buried in Paul's Church on the South ſide without of above the Quire, in a Marble Monument, cloſe at the Head of Faulconbridge.

1262. XLIX. Richard Talbot, Biſhop of London, ſtraightways after his Conſecration deceaſed, ſaith Everſden.

1262. L. Henry Sandwich, Biſhop of London, deceaſed in the Year 1273, as the ſame Author affirmeth.

1273. LI. John de Chiſhull, Dean of Paul's, Treaſurer of the Exchequer, and Keeper of the Great Seal, was Biſhop of London, and deceaſed in the Year 1279, ſaith Everſden.

1280. LII. Fulco Lovel, Archdeacon of Colcheſter, elected Biſhop of London, but refuſed the Place.

1280. LIII. Richard de Graveſend, Archdeacon of Northampton, Biſhop of London. It appeareth by the Charter-Warren granted to this Biſhop, that (in his Time) there were two Woods in the Pariſh of Stebunheth, pertaining to the ſaid Biſhop: I have, ſince I kept Houſe for my ſelf, known the one of them by Biſhops Hall; but now they are both made plain of Wood, and not to be diſcerned from other Grounds. Some have fabled, that this Richard Graveſend, Biſhop of London, in the Year 1392, the 16th of Richard the Second, purchaſed the Charter of Liberties to this City; which thing hath no Poſſibility of Truth, as I have proved; for he deceaſed in the Year 1303, almoſt 90 Years before that time.

Fable of Richard Graveſend reproved.

1303. LIV. Ralph de Baldocke, Dean of Paul's, Biſhop of London, conſecrated at Lyons by Peter, Biſhop of Alba, in the Year 1307. He was a great Furtherer of the new Work of Paul's, to wit, the Eaſt End, called our Lady-Chapel, and other adjoining. This Ralph deceaſed in the Year 1313, and was buried in the ſaid Lady-Chapel, under a flat Stone.

1313. LV. Gilbert Segrave, was Conſecrated Biſhop of London, and ſate three Years.

1317. LVI. Richard Newport, Biſhop of London, ſate two Years, and was buried in Paul's Church.

1362. LXI. Simon Sudberry, Biſhop of London, ſate thirteen Years, tranſlated to be Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in the Year 1375.

1375. LXII. William Courtney, tranſlated from Hereford to the Biſhoprick of London; and after tranſlated from thence to the Archbiſhoprick of Canterbury, in the Year 1381.

1381. LXIII. Robert Breybrooke, Canon of Lichfield, Biſhop of London, made Lord Chancellor in the ſixth of Richard the Second, ſate Biſhop twenty Years, and deceaſed in the Year 1404. He was buried in the ſaid Lady-Chapel at Paul's.

1405. LXIV. Roger Walden, Treaſurer of the Exchequer, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was depoſed, and after made Biſhop of London. He deceaſed in the Year 1046, and was buried in Paul's Church, by Alhallows Altar.*

* At St. Bartilmew's Priory in Smithfield, First Edit.

1422. LXVII. John Kempe, Fellow of Martin College in Oxford, was made Biſhop of Rocheſter, from whence removed to Chicheſter, and thence to London. He was made the King's Chancellor in the Year 1425, the fourth of Henry the Sixth, and was removed from London to York, in the Year 1426. He ſate Archbiſhop there twenty five Years, and was tranſlated to Canterbury; he was afterwards made Cardinal in the Year 1452. In the Biſhop of London's Houſe at Fulham he received the Croſs, and the next Day the Pall, at the Hands of Thomas Kempe, Biſhop of London: He deceaſed in the Year 1454.

The Pariſh-Churches unſainted. R. S.

Theſe Pariſh Churches are honoured with the Names of ſeveral Saints prefixed to them; to whom, whether holy Men or Women, they were dedicated at their Founding: And ſo they ſtand in our Weekly Bills of Mortality. The firſt Bill wherein the Pariſhes had the Title SAINT put before each Saint's Name, was that which bore Date January the 15, 1634, to the 22d of the ſame; according to the Obſervation of Richard Smith, a late diligent Antiquary; which continued for ſome Years, until afterwards in the Mayoralty of Alderman Pennington, the Saints were thrown out of Doors, and the Pariſhes unſainted. For in the Year 1642, the Title of Saint in the Weekly Bills of Mortality in London, was commanded by the Authority then prevailing, to be expunged for the future; the bleſſed Virgin Mary, (ſaith R. S.) the holy Apoſtles, (nay, and our Saviour himſelf, nor the Holy Trinity ſpared) whom no Chriſtian dare deny to be holy Saints in Heaven, being for Company unhallowed and unſainted alſo. This divorcing of the Pariſhes from their Saints in the ſaid Bills continued until the Year 1660; when at the Reſtoration of King Charles II. they were again reſtored; and ſo it hath continued hitherto.]

Reaſons why Additions ſhould be made to the Tithes formerly paid.

Reaſons.

1. That the Rates for Tithes heretofore were far greater, and ſank thus low as they have been of late Years, as by other Ways, ſo ſpecially by letting Houſes at under Rents with Quarterly Fines.

2. That the Tithes thus leſſened are a ſlender and incompetent Maintenance to invite and encourage Perſons of ſuch Worth, as it is fit the City of London ſhould from time to time be ſupplied withal.

3. That theſe Rates of Tithes thus diminiſhed, would have been as plentiful a Maintenance an hundred Years ago, as the ſame now doubled.

4. That the Shortneſs of the ſettled Maintenance, making voluntary Contributions neceſſary for a Livelihood, hath been, and may be, a Temptation to Popular Compliances.

5. That the Glebes, which were formerly a conſiderable Advance, are ſince the Fire generally leſſened in their Rents two Thirds, and the Parſonage and Vicarage Houſes being demoliſh'd, they muſt either be rebuilt with great Charge, or others taken at great Rents.

6. That the Charge of a Family are much greater in the City than elſewhere.

7. That the ſhort and diſcouraging Maintenance of the Orthodox and Conformable Clergy tends to the Encouragement and Upholding of Conventicles.

8. That it is upon good Grounds believed, that the Rates propounded, together with the reſerved Dues of Impropriators, will not in the whole, one Place with the other, exceed Sixpence in the Pound of yearly Rent moderately eſtimated.

This Scheme, with the Reaſons annexed, were intended by the Clergy of London, to be preſented to the Parliament in the Year aboveſaid: And ſo they were. But the Citizens made a ſtrong Party againſt it. And the Clergy, eſpecially thoſe of them that were the chief Promoters of it, got the Ill-Will of many. And, they ſay, it was thrown out of the Houſe.

The ACT for ſettling the Maintenance of Miniſters belonging to the burnt Churches in London, eſtabliſhed the Sums to the Incumbents of each Pariſh, as follows.

Williams* (afterwards the Right Reverend Biſhop of Chicheſter) deceaſed, and by his Allowance in his Time, and Leave granted to publiſh. To which is ſubjoined by the ſame exact Hand, an Account of the Preachers then to the Inns of Court, the Lectures endowed, and the Anniverſary and Monthly Sermons, upon ſeveral Occaſions, and the Churches where, and the Days when, they were preached.

TABLES containing the Names, Incumbents, Lecturers, Values before the Civil Wars, preſent Values, Values in the King's Books, and Procurations, of all the Pariſhes in London and Weſtminſter, and within the Bills of Mortality. Collected by J. W. D. D. ſhewing the Incumbents and Lecturers of the reſpective Pariſhes, when thoſe Tables were drawn; which, for the preſerving of their Memories, and to preſent the whole, as it was delivered me, I would make no Alterations in.

Note, That in the Pariſhes united, the Mother Church is placed firſt there, where the Incumbent, Lecturer, &c. are annexed.

Note, That of the 135 Pariſhes in and about London, within the Bills of Mortality, about 70 are in the Gift of the Church, 15 in the King, 17 in Societies, viz. The Companies and Corporations of the City, 8 in the Gift of the Pariſh, 12 in Lay Patrons, 13 uncertain.

THUS

Opportunities of Grace in London.

THUS this City is ſignally bleſſed in reſpect of the Means and Opportunities of Grace that it enjoyeth. So that what Dr. Hall (afterwards the moſt pious Biſhop of Norwich) obſerved of it an hundred Years ago in a Spittal Sermon, is much more applicable to it now. "I cannot but thankfully congratulate the Happineſs of this famous City; which if in other Riches it equalizeth the beſt, I am ſure in this it exceeds all. There is not a City under the Cope of Heaven ſo wealthy in the Spiritual Proviſion; yea, there are whole Countries in Chriſtendom that have not ſo many Learned Preachers as are within theſe Walls and Liberties. Hear this, ye Citizens, and be not proud, but thankful. Others may exceed you in the Glory of outward Structures, in the Largeneſs of Extent, in the uniform Proportion of Streets, or Ornaments of Temples; but your Pulpits do ſurpaſs theirs, and your Preaching can lift up Cities to Heaven." I may add, that now in thoſe other Accompliſhments this City will ſcarce give place to any.]

Spittal Sermon 1618.

CHAP. II.

The State of the Pariſh Prieſts and Pariſhioners of London anciently. The Offerings to be paid them. Pope Nicolas's Bull for that Purpoſe. More Conteſts about Offerings. Articles for a Viſitation of the Pariſhes, Anno 1498. Inquiſition in St. Magnus Pariſh upon thoſe Articles.

The ancient State of the Pariſhes of London. J. S.

AND thus at preſent it ſtands with the Churches and Pariſhes. But ſince our Buſineſs is alſo to repreſent the ancient State of London, it muſt be inquired, in what Condition things ſtood with the Pariſh Prieſts and their Pariſhioners in former times. And here we ſhall ſpecify two Particulars that we meet with; viz. The Benefits accruing to the Incumbents of the Pariſh Churches by Offerings, and what Things were chiefly inquired into, and preſentable in the Parochial Viſitations.

The Payments due to the Pariſh Prieſts for Offerings.

Becauſe the Pariſh Curates in former times made conſiderable Benefits by the Offerings of the Pariſhioners, which were to be made to God in their Churches upon certain Occaſions and Days; and were the Prieſts Dues, but great Conteſts happened about the Quantity and the Offering Days: Roger, ſirnamed Niger [the Black] Biſhop of London, a wiſe and grave Man (poſſeſſing the Epiſcopal Chair from 1229 to 1241) made Conſtitution for this Purpoſe between the Prieſts and the Pariſhioners within the City and Suburbs; the Tenour whereof was, That according to the yearly Rent that the Inhabitants paid for their Dwelling Houſes, ſo their Offerings ſhould be; that is, after the rate of a Farthing for a Houſe rented at 10 s. a Year, and an Halfpenny for a Houſe rented at 20 s. a Year; and ſo proportionably. And theſe Offerings payable on all the Sundays, Holydays and double Feaſts throughout the Year

Bp. Roger's Conſtitution about them.

Confirmed by Thomas Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

But this Biſhop Roger's Conſtitution was not ſo exact, but that afterwards many Citizens contended with their Curates about theſe Offerings. For becauſe in the ſaid Conſtitution he that inhabited an Houſe of 40 s. Rent was to pay a Penny on all the Offering Days; and it was not mentioned in the Conſtitution, that according as the Rent advanced higher, ſo ſhould the Payments due to the Prieſt; they refuſed to pay more than a Penny, were their Rents never ſo much above 40 s. This occaſioned Thomas Arundel, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, to confirm Biſhop Roger's Conſtitution, and to add an Explanation of that Particular contended about, which was in the Year 1327, by way of Letter to the Maior, Aldermen and Citizens; wherein he pronounced all liable to be curſed with the great Sentence that ſhould diſobey.

And by the Pope. Hiſt. de Ep. Lond. per H. Whart.

And this was procured to be ratified and ſtrengthened by Letters from Pope Innocent VII. Anno 1404.

Afterwards a Pretence aroſe to defraud the Prieſts of ſome of theſe Offerings, by urging, that they were to be paid only on Sundays and the Feaſts of the Apoſtles. Hence one Robert Wright of the Pariſh of St. Edmund's Lombardſtreet, refuſed Payment of Offerings on the Days of St. Stephen, St. John, St. Innocents, the three Days in Eaſter and Whitſontide, the Circumciſion, the Epiphany, &c. This occaſioned a great Proceſs againſt Wright, and at length the Cauſe being removed to Rome, final Sentence was given againſt him. And this occaſioned a ſevere Bull of Pope Nicolas V. Anno 1453, wherein he confirmed the Archbiſhop's Letters, and made farther Proviſion in favour of the Curates of London for time to come; and the other Offering Days were eſtabliſhed by the ſaid Bull. And a Power was alſo given to all Ordinaries to make Inquiſition about the due Payment of theſe Offerings, and to excommunicate ſuch as were faulty therein.

Pope Nicolas's Bull in behalf of Offerings.

A Compoſition for Offerings.

This produced a ſolemn Arbitration made between the London Prieſts and the Laity, for the aſcertaining of theſe Offerings, and final Settlement of this Matter: And the Arbitrators were ſeveral Learned Civilians; viz. Laurence Booth (afterwards Biſhop of Hereford) William Radclyf, Lucas Laycock, &c. and they at laſt made this Compoſition following:

Old Book of Cuſtoms.

Almighty God, to whom belongeth [the World, and all thingys] therto, and all that is theryn, commaundythe that Tenthis ſholde be giuen him, and wolde be honoured Spiritually with Offryngis; and therefore the Reuerende Fader, Roger Nyger, late Biſſhop of London, made a Conſtitucion, (as we find in our Viſitacion) upon offring on Sondayes and ſolempne and doubly Feſtis, and nambly of the Appoſtils, whoes Vigils ben faſtid, by the Inhabitantis of Houſes, Hoſtries, and Shoppis within the Cyte of London: that is to ſay, that all and euery Inhabitantes Houſes, Hoſtries, or Shoppes; for an Houſe, Hoſtrie, or Shoppe, whoos Penſion is x. s. by Yere, a Ferthing; and ſo forth, if it aſſende to xl. s. a Peny. Some yet hauing lytell regarde to their Soules, conſtrued, that if the ſaid Penſion never ſo moch excedyd xl. s. that hee ſhall pay but one Peny. We therefore, wylling that all Alteracion as touching that ſholde be remoued, Will by the Autoryte of this Letters, that if the ſaid Penſion excede xl. s. by x s. that he ſhall pay one Peny Ferthing, and for euery x. s. aſſending, a Ferthing. And for as moche as we will not hereafter ony forward [froward] Expoſicion of this Confirmacion to be had, We will that all tho that hereafter will not obey and follow this our Expoſicion, ſtonde accurſed by the gret Sentence by the ſame Dede. And for as moche as no Man ſhall excuſe himſelfe by cauſe of Ignoraunce, We will and ordaine, that all Curatis within the ſaid Cyte, four times in the Yere in the Maſſe time, publiſſhe and expowne [the ſame]: and moreouer, we ordain and giue power to all Perſones and Vicars of the ſaid Cyte, to cite all the Offenders of the ſaid Conſtitucion to appere afore vs, or our Officiall, there to obey the Law as Reſon will. To the which Officiall by this Preſentis Wee giue our Power. In Witneſs whereof, &c. No Man therfore offende this Ordinaunce, for if he doe it, he ſhall ronne in the Indignacion of God and his holy Appoſtolis, Peter and Powle. Giuen at Rome at Saint Peter's the xvj. And after the ſame Robert appelyd to the Pope hymſelf. The whych affyrmed, in every thing, the Sentence of the ſaid William de Fundera, and condempned the Defendant in Expenſys in the laſt Appele.

The LETTER of Innocent, Biſhop of Rome.

Pope Innocent's Letter Confirmatory.

WHEREAS for the Parte of the Curatys of the Cyte of London, Petycion was made to us, that a Conſtytucion [about Offeringes] the which was made by one Roger Byſſhop of London, for the Wel bothe of the Paryſſhens and the Curatis, the which wes uſed the tyme out of mynd, yet ſome uſed to conſtrew the ſaid Conſtytucion otherwiſe than it ought to be, after thir froward Mynd; and the which Conſtytucion the ſaid Thomas Archbyſſhop of Canterbury, and mony his Predeceſſors, hath approued and confyrmed, I, inclyned by theyr Petycion, conferme al the ſaid Conſtytucion by the Authoryte Apoſtolik, and fulfylle al defautis, yf ony be.

And then follow the Tenor of the Archbiſhop's Letters afore ſet down.

The Copy of the BULL for the Offerings to the Curates of the Pariſhes of the City of London, in Latin and Engliſh.

NICOLAUS Epiſcopus, ſervus ſervorum Dei, ad perpetuam rei memoriam, &c.

In Engliſh thus:

The whole Bull in Latin is extant in the Old Book of Cuſtoms.

OVR holy Fader Pope Nicolas, for perpetuall memory of the thyng, wylleth to ſequeſter and avoyed all Doughtis, by the whiche Stryues, Dyſcordes, and grete Loſſys, that is feryd to happen to Curatis and their Peryſſhens, leſt that if it be not remedyid, grete hurt might happen bothe to the Curatis and Peryſſhens, as well in things Temporal as Spyrituall. So it is, that now of late, after that the Right Honourable Thomas Archbiſſhop of Canterbury, had ſhewed, that as he rode in his Viſitation, one Roger, Byſſhop of London, had made a Conſtytucion upon Offryngis on Hooly Dayes and ſolempne and doble Feſtis, and namely of the Appoſtles, whoos Vygyls ben faſted by the Inhabitants of Houſes, Hoſtryes and Shops, howſoever they be occupyed within the Cyte of London; that is to ſay, that all Inhabitants and every of them, occupyenge the ſaid Houſes, Hoſtryes, or Shoppis, and pay for the yerly Rent of them x. Shill. ſhal offer a Farthing; and yf his Rente be xx. Shill. a Halfpeny, and ſo upward, as it hath ben uſed to bee payd by the ſayd Peryſſhes tyme out of mynde of Man. And that the ſame Conſtytucion was good and lawfull, it appereth by that, that divers of the Predeceſſours of Archbiſſhops of Canterbury, by theyr Letters Patents, hath it confirmed and approuyd. And whan ſome evyll dyſpoſed of the Peryſſhens wolde labour and ſtudy to conſtrue this Conſtytucion to other Senſys than it was made for, they made Explanacions of the ſame, and ordained, that the Mayre and Aldyremen of the ſaid Cyte, and all the Inhabytants that wolde bee rebell thereto, ſholde ſtonde accurſyd by the ſame Dede, and many other things than expreſſed and ordayned, our Holy Fader and Predeceſſour Innocentius VII. ratefyenge and confermynge the Letters of the ſaid Thomas Archbyſſhop, addinge and amendynge Defaultys, if ony were, as more plainely apperyth by the Letters of the foreſaide Innocent, wherin be contayned the Letters of the foreſaid Thomas. And after, as it hath been ſhewed vs of diuers credible Perſones, that though the Mayre, Shereſs, Aldyrmen, the Cytizens, and the Inhabytantes aforeſaid, of the more part of them, [have done] after the olde and laudable Cuſtume in their Offryngys on Sondayes, and other ſolempne and double Feſtys of the Appoſtles, namely whoſe Euyns ben faſted, yet within foure Yeres, or there aboute, diuers having litell regard to the Well of their Soules, and vnkinde to their Moder the Holy Chyrche, couetinge be litell and litell to miniſhe and take away the foreſayd Offryngis, (The which, yf they were deuoute, they ſholde encreaſe and freely giue) refuſe to offyre but onely on Sondayes, and on the ſolempne Feſtys of the Appoſtles, whoos Euens been faſtyd.

And as for other ſolempne Dayes, whiche be many, they ſayd, that it was not expreſſed in the Letters of Roger Byſſhop, nor in the ſaid Conſtytucion, that they ought to offyre on them, nother in the Letters of Innocent, nor Thomas Archbyſſhop, there was no parfight Senſe; wherfore they thought they were but voyde.

And alſo where we vnderſtonde that three Senſenſys haue been giuen agaynſt one Robert Wright, that is to ſay, one in this Partyes, and in the Court of Rome; for as moche as he refuſed to offer accordinge to the Rate as aforeſaid; as on Sondays, Feſtis of the Appoſtles, whoos Vygyls ben faſtyd: but as for thes three Natiuities, of Saint Stephen, Saint Johan, and in the Innocentis, he vtterly refuſed; and as many Dayes in Eſter, and as many Dayes in Whitſontide, and the Circumciſion, Epiphanye, and Aſcencion of our Lorde, and Corpus Chriſti, and foure Vygyles of our Lady, Philip and Jacob, and the Tranſlacion of Saint Edmonde.

And for as moche as it were painfull to all Curatys, if they ſholde ſue for euery particular Cauſe, if their Pariſſhens wolde be frowarde: And for as much as we vnderſtonde, that our welbelouyd Herry King of England, wolde that all Stryfs and Dowte touchinge the ſaid Offryngys ſholde be auoyed: WE will, and by our Poure Apoſtolick do confirme the Letters of the fore-

ſaide Innocent our Predeceſſour, and Thomas Archbyſſhop, contayninge the Conſtitucyon of the ſaid Robert to bee obſerued and kepte for euer.

And ouer that, by this Preſentys, We will and ordaine, that all inhabitantys Houſes, Hoſtryes, Shoppys, foure Yeres paſte, and that after this ſhall inhabit, paye their Offryngys according to the rate aforeſaid in the three Natiuites of St. Stephen, St. Johan, and the Innocentis, and as many Daies in Eſter and Whitſontide, Circumciſion, Epiphanye, and Aſcencion of our Lord, Corpus Chriſti, foure of our Lady, and Philip and Iacob, and euery Dedicacion Daye, and euery Sonday, and the Feſtys of the Appoſtles whoos Vygyls ben faſtyd, and other double and ſolempne Feſtys.

As more plainely apperyth in the Letters of Innocent and Thomas Archbyſſhope aforeſaide, and in all Dayes they have vſed to offere foure Yeres paſt to the Pariſſhe Chyrche. Within the Bondys whereof the foreſaid Houſes, Hoſtryes, or Shoppes ben ſette vpon the paine of Excommunicacion, contained in the Letters of the ſaid Archbiſſhop, and of the which he ſhall not be aſſoiled, but yf hee ſatysfie the ſaid Offrings, or elles friendly agree with his Curat, but yf it bee in the point of Dethe; ſo that yf it hapned him to live, or his Eyers make dew Satisfaction. And alſo we giue Power to the Ordinaryes of the ſaid Chyrches where ſuch Offryngys be not paid, that they may without Citacion ſummarily enquire of the ſaid Offryngys; and yf they finde that be vnpaide, to accurſe the Offenders, and them to puniſh according to this Ordinance; ony maner Bulle graunted, Writing generall or ſpeciall, now knowen, or hereafter to be knowen, notwithſtandinge.

Act of Com-
cil.

But this Bull, which the Curates procured of the Pope for the ending of former Controverſies about their Offerings, did not yet make an End. For tho' there was an Act of Common Council in the 14th of Edward IV. acquieſcing in the Order of this Bull; yet afterwards out of this Papal Deciſion ſprung another Doubt about theſe Offerings: viz. That in caſe any Citizen rented about 10 s. a Year, and under 20 s. as for Example, a Mark, or 15 s. the Curate would then require more than a Farthing; and ſo if the Rent was upward of 20 s. but not 30, they demanded a Halfpenny, and ſomewhat more proportionably. This the Citizens would not comply with; and it cauſed a great Diſturbance. They urged, it was the Contents of the Bull, all Compoſitions laid apart; and that for mean Sums between ten and ten, there was no mention made thereof in the Bull. Only that he that paid 6 s. 8 d. Rent, or any higher Sum under 10 s. uſed to pay his four Offering Days, and no more, according as every one that received the Communion was bound to do. And that he that ſat at the Rent of a Mark, or any higher Sum under 20 s. paid but after the rate of 10 s. and that for the odd Money he was not chargeable by the Bull. And for the deciding this Difference, and any other that might ariſe hereupon, the Compoſition before mentioned was made.

But to ſee what Value by means of the Offerings the Churches in London brought in to the Pariſh Prieſts in thoſe ancient times, I ſhall ſet down here, for an Inſtance, the Value of the Benefice of St. Magnus at London Bridge, advanced yearly to the Parſon, according to a Reckoning made thereof Decemb. 1. 1494. The Rents in this Pariſh amounted to 434 l. 12 s. 8 d. the Offerings to 75 l. 8 s. 8½ d. The Rents and Offerings are ſet down diſtinctly againſt each Pariſhioner's Name in the old London Book of Cuſtoms, after this manner:

Beſides, there were Offerings due from thoſe that had Shops and no Houſes, or in other Place than their Houſes ſtood, and from ſuch whoſe Rents amounted not to 10 s. yearly, who were bound to offer only four times a Year.

So that to recollect and procede in this Account and Hiſtory of the London Prieſts Subſiſtence, gained out of their reſpective Pariſhes.

The Tithes of the Pariſh Prieſts of London.
Edward Brewſter, Eſq;

The Tithes due to the Clergy of London (as appears by the old Book, called The Cuſtoms of London, and a Manuſcript Treatiſe friendly communicated to me by Samuel Brewſter, Eſq;) conſiſted not in Glebe and Lands, as they pertained to the Churches in the Country, but of Payments by ancient Cuſtom iſſuing out of the Houſes of the Pariſhioners, according to the true Value of the Rents; which were called Oblations, becauſe they were Offerings to God and the Church, each Pariſhioner offering a ſmall Piece of Money according to the Houſe he lived in, on certain Holidays. Which Cuſtom was uſed for many Ages and time out of mind; and was afterwards confirmed and declared by Roger Niger Biſhop of London, about the Year 1230, 15 H. III. or thereabouts. Theſe Oblations amounted yearly to 3 s. 6 d. in the Pound. But by an Act of Parliament about 25 H. VIII. theſe Oblations or Tithes were altered and ſettled at 2 s. 9 d. in the Pound, to the great Diſadvantage of the London Clergy; the Citizens alſo contending to pay after the old Rents, not according to preſent Improvements.

Roger Niger's Conſtitution.

The foreſaid Roger Niger's Conſtitution was this, That all and every the Citizens and Inhabitants of London, ſhould pay or offer to God and the Church, and to the Rectors and Parſons of the ſame, upon every Sunday throughout the Year, and upon every ſolemn and double Feaſt, eſpecially and by name upon the holy Apoſtles Days, whoſe Eves were faſted, for every 10 s. Rent or Penſion, one Farthing; for every 20 s. one Halfpenny; and for every 30 s. three Farthings; and for every 40 s. one Penny; and ſo aſcending after the rate aforeſaid, as had been of long time accuſtomed, and lawfully preſcribed. This Conſtitution is recited by Thomas Arundel Archbiſhop of Canterbury, remaining on Record, and in the Bulls of Innocent VII. and Nicolas IV. and in Linwood the great Canoniſt and Dean of the Arches, who lived in the time of Henry V. about the Year 1400.

The Occaſion thereof.

Dr. Tildeſly againſt Selden of Tithes, in Dr. Brian Walton's Treatiſe of Payment of Tithes.

The Occaſion of this Conſtitution was, to aſſiſt the Pariſh Prieſts that received great Damage by the Enchroachments of the Dominicans and Franciſcan Friars, who being not long before come over, drew much People after them. Who, admiring them for their Strictneſs and ſeeming Sanctity of Life, thought all too little which they could confer upon them; and drawn in by the Doctrine of ſome of thoſe Mendicants, that Tithes were mere Alms, and that People might withdraw them from their Parſons, if they were unworthy: And as the People flocked to the Houſes of theſe Friars, making them their Confeſſors, and neglecting both their own Churches and Parſons; ſo they gave thoſe Offerings or Tithes to theſe new Teachers, which were due to their Pariſh Prieſts, that had the Cure of their Souls. Which Abuſe they complaining of at a Synod, hereupon this Conſtitution was made, expreſſing what and how much every one ought to pay to his own Church.

Perſonal Tithes.

Beſides theſe Oblations the Pariſh Prieſts of London had Perſonal Tithes, which was the Tenth Part of the clear Gains of Merchants, Traders and Artificers.

Chantries.

They had alſo Benefits from Chantries; which were certain Lands or Houſes, or Sums of Money iſſuing thence, left by the Wealthier ſort of deceaſed Perſons, that their Souls, and the Souls of their Parents and Anceſtors, might continually be prayed for in the Churches where they were buried: Where ſome ſmall Chapels were built with Altars for that purpoſe: And there was ſcarce a Church in London but had one of them, and ſome three or four. Theſe were often beneficial to the Parſon of the Church, who was ſometimes ſolely endowed with the Lands given for that Purpoſe, and ſometimes together with the Churchwardens. And there were ſome ſmall Pariſhes in this City, where the Tithes were not above 80 l. per Annum; when as the Chantry Lands belonging anciently thereto (taken away by the Statute of 1 Ed. VI.) were then worth 500 or 600 l. per Annum.

Four Offering Days: And other Benefits of Pariſh Prieſts.

There were likewiſe accruing anciently to the Pariſh Prieſts, Offerings to the Image of our Lady, the four Offering Days, the Money for Maſſes, which the Friends of the Deceaſed bought, to deliver their Souls out of Purgatory. And there were alſo voluntary Offerings of well-diſpoſed Perſons. For People came not empty handed to God.

Privy Tithes.

There were alſo due to them, beſides Predial and Perſonal, Privy Tithes; that is, Dues upon Burials, Weddings, and Chriſtnings, &c. What theſe Perquiſites and Benefits were, may be underſtood by a Bill put up in the Star-Chamber by ſome Citizens 25 H. VIII. againſt their Prieſts: Which, for the better underſtanding of theſe Matters, and for Antiquity ſake, I ſhall here ſubjoin, as I find it in Dr. Walton's Treatiſe above mentioned.

Of all Servants that take Wages, the Tenth Part of their Wages for the Privy Tithes. And for their Houſel at Eaſter, 2 d.

Mens Devotions on divers Days.

At all principal Feaſts, as Chriſtmas, All Souls Day, Creeping to the Croſs on Good Friday, Eaſter Day; in Confeſſions at Lent; and other times of the Year, as the Patrons of the Church; divers offer, ſome Wax, ſome Money, which comes to the Parſon's Uſe.

Secondly, Where a Saint's Image ſtands without the Quire, to which a Brotherhood belongeth, the Wardens of the Brotherhood compound, ſome for 3 s. 4 d. 5 s. 6 s. and 8 d. or more per Annum, to have the Brotherhood kept in the Church.

Leaſes.

For ſealing a Leaſe of a Houſe belonging to the Church, 20 s. 40 s. 3 l. 4 l. or more.

THESE Duties, although the Citizens complained of in the Star Chamber, yet the Lords Referrees (as it ſeems) ſaw ſo little Reaſon to alter any of them; that tho' they altered the Tithe to 2 s. 9 d. in the Pound, yet they let them remain as they were.

Glebe.

That which we now call Glebe (which was another Benefit alſo to the Incumbent) was for the moſt part at the firſt either Part of the Parſonage Houſe; which in latter time the Parſon was forced to divide and let out for his better Maintenance, and ſo to confine himſelf to a leſſer Part; or elſe ſome Chambers built at firſt upon part of the Churchyard, for the Prieſts that uſed to aſſiſt in Divine Service, or for other Uſes, which in Proceſs of Time, by repairing and enlarging, became convenient Houſes: Some of which in ſome few Pariſhes yet remain to the Parſons; the moſt part being either ſeiſed by the Crown by vertue of the Act of Chantries, 1 Ed. VI. or invaded by the Pariſhioners ſince the Reformation: Which in many Pariſhes have left for the Parſon neither Glebe nor Dwelling-houſe, but have converted all into Pariſh Lands.

The Oblation for a Noble.

There happened a Controverſy ſometime between the Citizens and the Pariſh Prieſts concerning the Tithe or Oblations under 10 s. as a Noble; and for this they paid antiently in London, 14 d. This in Henry the Eighth's Time paſſed into a Conteſt; and one Robert Hearne of St. Mildred's Poultry was cited by John Smith, Rector of that Church, into the Arches, for Refuſal of the Payment of this 14 d. in the Noble, before Dr. Ligham, L. L. D. Official of the Court of Canterbury; and Sentence was given againſt him the 18 H. VIII. An. 1527, and he was declared to have incurred the great Excommunication.

Suits between the Prieſts and Citizens.

About this Time a Suit began between the Citizens and the Prieſts about Tithe (wherein all the City concerned themſelves) which laſted thro' divers Kings and Queens Reigns; which underwent divers Arbitrations, provoked many Petitions, cauſed ſome Acts of Parliament, and was never fully accorded till the Act of Parliament under King Charles II. after the Great Fire, for ſettling the Tithe of the conſumed Churches. But by the Advantages the Citizens got of the Prieſts by one means or other, the City Clergy (eſpecially in the Times of the Reformation) became much impoveriſhed; and the Livings came at laſt to ſo mean and poor a Value, that in one of their Petitions they complained, that it had been better for them if their Friends, inſtead of ſending them to the Univerſities, had put them Apprentices to Taylors or Shoemakers, or ſome ſuch mechanical Trades; for then they might have been able to maintain themſelves and their Families, which now they were not by their Livings.

How Tithes were diminiſhed.

The Means ſome of the Citizens uſed to defraud the Miniſters of their Tithes in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, was, that to abate Tithes formerly paid, or to prevent any Increaſe of them, they reſerved what had been formerly paid as Rent, by other Names; as, Yearly and Quarterly Fines, Annuities, Newyears Gifts, Intereſt of Money for Improvement, or Houſehold Stuff. Some reſerved it by ſeveral Bonds; ſome by double Leaſes, wherein was mentioned a ſmall Rent, by which the Parſon muſt have his Tithe; another, wherein was reſerved the full Rent, after which they paid the Landlord: And when any Controverſies ſhould ariſe concerning Tithes, it was provided by a Law, that the Lord Maior ſhould judge and decide theſe Matters; who commonly favoured the Citizens againſt the Parſons.

A Bill in Parliament for Miniſters Tithes.

This was long a Grievance; and at laſt was the Cauſe of a Bill put up in King James the Firſt's Parliament, Anno 1604. Upon opening the Matter, the whole Houſe took Notice of it; and Sir Henry Billingſley, Knight and Alderman, and Mr. Richard Gore, Members of Parliament for the City, ſpake to the Bill: But it was caſt out by one or two Voices; the Occaſion of which was thought not fit to be mentioned, ſaith mine Author. However, the ſaid Billingſley plainly declared it; and he promiſed afterwards to get the Bill again put up by the Court of Aldermen at their own Charge: But the Parliament haſting to an End, nothing was done; and the Religious Intention of that good Man came to nothing.

Dr. Brian Walton's Treatiſe.

The London Miniſters Petition to K. James I.

To all this I ſhall add a Petition put up by the Miniſters of London to King James, Anno 1615; wherein their lamentable Condition, and the Hiſtory of it may appear. They complained, that their Maintenance was taken away from them; and that they were brought to great Poverty by ſecret Frauds and Tricks, lately deviſed and put in Practice by ſome covetous Perſons, to the Diſhonour of God, and utter Ruin of the Church of God in this Honourable City, if not in time ſuppreſſed. And, among many other things, they ſhewed what the Benefices in London were in times paſt: which they found to have been the beſt in the Kingdom, by reaſon of their Tithes, Oblations, Church-Lands, Obits, Mortuaries, &c. and therefore were ſo highly rated in the Exchequer, as they then were, to wit, at 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 100 Marks per Annum. For Tithes the Citizens paid the Tenths of their Perſonal Employments, which if they ſtill paid, one Rich Man ſhould pay more than ſome of their Benefices in the whole were now worth. For Oblations they paid a Farthing for every 10 s. Rent, Penſion, or Payment, upon every Sunday, and certain other Holidays in the Year; which amounted to 3 s. and 6 d. in the Pound, being 9 d. in every Pound more than they at preſent had. That for diſcovery of Rents, Freeholders Houſes were to be valued, and Offerings or Oblations paid accordingly; whereby no ſuch Frauds could be put upon their Predeceſſors as were put upon them. That for Recovery of Oblations it was without Suit of Law, the Ordinary being to enquire of the Detention of them ſummarily without Citation, and to pronounce a Curſe upon the Offenders. And laſtly, that Men made Reſtitution in their laſt Wills and Teſtaments for Tenths and Oblations omitted, [to free their Conſciences in caſe they had made default in the due Payment of them in their Lives time.]

That this was the State of the Benefices in London, until 27 H. VIII. about which time all their antient Conſtitutions and Confirmations were diſannulled; and a new Order and Decree made, pretending their Good, but indeed that it was the beginning of their Bane. For that thereby they had only 2 s. and 9 d. appointed to be paid out of every Pound Rent of all Houſing, but no means to recover or know any Man's Rent; ſo that the Miniſters Maintenance was concealed, and a thing inviſible: And they were deprived alſo thereby, as ſome thought, of the Protection of their Biſhops, who could not help them, as they did their Predeceſſors; and were put under the Government of the Lord Maior, being both Judge and Party in his own Cauſe for the moſt part. That their Church Lands alſo, that did remain, were taken from them, inſomuch that many of them had no Parſonage Houſes, and became for the moſt part Pariſh Lands, belonging to the Maſters of the Pariſhes. That afterwards the Oath for Perſonal Tithes was taken away; by which means the Citizens detained thoſe Tithes from the Miniſters; ſuppoſing no Man to be bound to pay Tithes of their Perſonal Employments, or God's Bleſſing on their Labours, but Shepherds and Husbandmen. And laſt of all, that their Offerings that were left them were embezzled and purloined by divers fraudulent and covetous Devices. By which means aforeſaid, and the like, the Benefices of London within the Walls were the pooreſt in the Kingdom: And tho' the Miniſters were equal to the beſt Commoners in the City in all Charges, as Subſidies, Arms, &c. (beſides Firſt Fruits and Tenths;) yet their Incomes were ordinarily leſs than the meaneſt Tradeſmen; their Livings not exceeding 20, 25, 30, 40, and moſt of them 50 l. per Annum, and not many above 80 l. within the Walls.

An. 2 Ed VI.

And to King Charles I.

And in ſhort, the Clergy of London in the Year 1634, addreſſed again to King Charles I. ſetting forth to him, how the Benefices of London, an hundred Years ſince were very great, but that they were then very ſmall and mean; many of them not worth 40 l. per Annum, the moſt not an 100 l. And then ſhewing the Cauſes thereof.

This Petition the King referred to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, the Earl Marſhal, the Lord Biſhop of London, and others. Upon this ſix Citizens, ſuch as were moſt faulty by double Leaſes and other Frauds, were warned to appear before the Lords at the Council Table, January the 9th. And the Lords did expreſs themſelves againſt the Practices of the City, as mere Frauds. Afterwards Committees met on each ſide to treat of ſome Accommodation; three Aldermen being appointed for the City, and three Parſons nominated by the Biſhop of London for the Clergy: viz.

Sir Chriſtopher Clithero,
Sir Edward Bromfield, } Aldermen;
Mr. Abdy,
Dr. Holdſworth,
Dr. Brough, } Parſons.
Dr. Walton,

Some time after the King declared he would hear the Cauſe himſelf. This Buſineſs was in hand and tranſacting for ſeveral Years, viz. to the Year 1638, and nothing brought to any Concluſion. And then the Troubles coming on, greater things were to be lookt after.

How Matters ſtand in the City as to Sobriety and Charity. J. S.

NOW as an Appendix to the Eccleſiaſtical Conſideration of this City, we ſhall ſhew and ſet forth Two very material Things with relation hereto: Namely, in what State Religion and Good Manners ſtand here at preſent; and what Helps and Proviſions are made, either by the Magiſtrates Care, or good Citizens Charities, for the poorer ſort of People.

Societies for Sobriety and Religion.

As for the former, no ſmall Care hath been of late Years taken for reducing the Inhabitants to Sobriety and Religion. And as the Citizens have uſed to combine and enter into Societies for the furthering and more convenient regulating of their Trade and Traffick; ſo in the Reign of King William, many well diſpoſed Perſons united themſelves into Societies for this End and Purpoſe, to contrive the more effectually to put a Check to the open Vices of Drunkenneſs, Whoredom, Cuſtomary Swearing and Curſing, and Profanation of the Lord's Day; and alſo to find out Ways for the bringing into uſe the Practice of the Chriſtian Religion, in the National Way and Service of the Church of England. Thus there is a Society ſet up in London for the promoting of Chriſtian Knowledge, and another for the Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts, and chiefly in the Plantations of America. Another Rank of Societies of Young Men, that meet together at ſet Times for Religious Exerciſes.

Citizens religiouſly diſpoſed.

It muſt be ſaid for the Honour of London, that the Citizens have generally had a Concern for Religion: And how they have of late Years ſtood diſpoſed towards it, evidently appears, by their conſtituting, to their great Charge, ſo many Societies and Funds for promoting Chriſtianity and Vertue in themſelves and others, which I cannot better enumerate than in the Words of a late Sermon. “There be ſet up of late many open Offices of doing Good. Worthy Men formed into Societies for ſeveral noble and excellent Ends; viz. for the private Exerciſes of Religion, for the Publick Reformation of Manners, for the propagating Chriſtian Knowledge, for the erecting Parochial Libraries, for the maintaining Schools of Charity, for ſupporting the conſtant Morning and Evening Prayers of the Church, and for encouraging more frequent Communions. And beſides theſe voluntary Societies, there be other fixed and legal Corporations to carry on many admirable Works of Piety and Charity; viz. for Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts; for Stocks and Work-houſes to enable the Poor to labour and live; for Relief of the Widows and Orphans of the poorer Clergy; and for governing her Majeſty's Royal Bounty, and receiving other Benefactions, to augment in time their ſmall and inſufficient Cures.” Theſe noble Deſigns he calls deſervedly the Glory of our Age, I may ſay, and of our Nation, but eſpecially of our Metropolitan City.

Duke of Devon's Funeral Sermon by Dr. White Kennet.

Society for the Reformation of Manners.

The firſt Society, which is called The Society for the Reformation of Manners, conſiſting of good and zealous Citizens, and many of them of no mean Wealth and Rank, was deſigned to controul Looſeneſs, and to prevent the Youth of the City from being ſpoilt by Harlots and looſe Women, and from ſpending their Time in Taverns or Alehouſes, and diſtempering themſelves by Exceſs of Drink, and breaking the Sabbath. Theſe Perſons, either by their own Perſonal Pains, or by their Purſes, employing Conſtables and others, to watch ill Houſes, and take ſtraggling looſe Perſons, and bring them before the Magiſtrates, and inform againſt them, for the better putting the good Laws of the Land in Execution againſt all ſuch Evil-doers.

The Beginning and Progreſs of this Society.

This Society began at firſt in the Year 1690, after this Manner: Five or ſix private Gentlemen, Members of the Church of England, met ſometimes, and conſulted together by adviſable Methods to put the Penal Laws in Execution againſt certain notorious Sins, which were too publickly and openly practiſed in the Streets. Againſt which were ſeveral good Laws: But the Failure was, that for want of Information, and the Diſcharge of the Duty of Conſtables, and ſuch like Officers, they were not executed. They entered therefore into a Fraternity for the remedying of this. This afterward ſhewn and offered to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Judges, a conſiderable Number of them approved thereof under their Hands: And moſt of the Biſhops occaſionally countenanced this Society by their extraordinary Circular Letters printed in 1699. And King William having this Affair laid before him by one of the Chief Miniſters of State, promiſed the Societies his Protection and Countenance. And the late excellent Queen Anne ſince, iſſuing her Proclamation againſt Vice and Profaneneſs, was pleaſed to ſignify her Approbation of this Work; as is ſhewn in an Account of this Society, and the Progreſs of it, printed Anno 1703, and divers times before and ſince; together with another Book, giving an Account of the Progreſs of the Reformation of Manners.

The good Effect of it.

This hath done much Good, and put ſome conſiderable Stop to Vice, that was running on in a high and deſperate Degree in the Nation. And, to the Honour of the City, other Nations have followed the City's Example, or highly approved of this Courſe. For the furthering this Good, a Book came forth, entitled, Eſſays upon the Execution of the Laws againſt Immorality and Profaneneſs, the Author John Diſney, Eſq;

This Society do appoint and encourage Conſtables and other diſcreet Perſons, to go about Streets and Markets, and other publick Places, to take up Drunkards, Swearers and Curſers, and ſuch like openly ſcandalous Perſons, Men or Women: And on the Lord's Day to inſpect Victualling Houſes, to prevent Tippling, and for taking up Drovers or Carriers that travel on that Day; and ſuch as carry Goods and Wares about the Streets to their Cuſtomers, or ſuch as are found at unlawful Sports and Paſtimes.

Oppoſed, but ſucceeds.

This Deſign was at firſt violently oppoſed by the Champions and Advocates for Debauchery: Yet by the Favour of King William and Queen Mary, and Countenance of the Clergy of the greateſt Figure in the Church, and particularly his Grace John, then Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, by his Circular Letters, and ſince by Queen Anne's favouring thereof, and the Zeal of the Perſons concerned in it, it hath proſpered in a degree exceeding great, and beyond what Human Wiſdom did or could expect. And many virtuous Perſons, of the ſeveral Denominations of Proteſtants, readily agreed to join Hearts and Purſes in the Proſecution thereof: So that more than twenty thouſand Perſons, divers Years ago, have been convicted for Swearing, Curſing, Drunkenneſs, or Profanation of the Lord's Day, in and about the City of London and Weſtminſter.

Sermons preached before this Society.

Before this Society are Sermons preached quarterly, by ſome of the eminent Preachers of the Town, and ſometimes by Biſhops, in Bow Church in Cheapſide; where are vaſt Aſſemblies preſent. In theſe Sermons the Members of the Society are encouraged to go on in the good Work, and not to be diſheartened with the Oppoſitions they ſometimes meet with from Evil Men. And for the more common Profit, the ſaid Sermons are uſually made publick.

The Succeſs of the Society for Manners.

The Fame of this Society for the Reformation of Manners, hath ſpread far and near to a Wonder, (and that with much Credit and Approbation to them that are concerned therein) not only about the Parts of England, but in Scotland and Ireland; and in Foreign Parts among all Proteſtants, in Holland, Germany, Switzerland, the Griſons, &c. So that the Zeal of theſe Reformers hath provoked many to do as they have done, for the putting ſome Check to the open-faced Impieties of the Age, ſo ſcandalous to Chriſtianity. Theſe Endeavours, for the Honour of the City of London where it began, have been applauded and recommended in a publick Manner (as fit to be imitated by other Chriſtian States) by the Commiſſioners of ſeveral French Churches, who were appointed to take this Affair into their Conſideration; and approved likewiſe by the Commiſſioners of the General Aſſembly in the Church of Scotland. And there were ſome Years ago thirteen of theſe Societies ſet up in Scotland.

Account of the Progreſs of the Reformation of Manners, printed in 1703.

The Book of the Account of theſe Societies hath been tranſlated into French and High Dutch, and Latin, for the propagating the ſame Deſign in other Nations. And many Learned and Pious Perſons in divers Parts of Europe and America are already ſucceſsfully engaged in promoting this Work by Societies, after the Example begun here; as in New England, Jamaica, &c. Letters came from Switzerland, Ann. 1700, that they were making ſome Progreſs in this Undertaking: From Schaffhuſen, that they rejoyced to hear of this Zeal in England, and that they had Examples of the ſame ſort of Societies: From the Divinity Profeſſor of Hall in Saxony, that it had a particular good Effect at Nurenburgh, where there was a Society of a great number of Citizens that had begun to meet at each other's Houſes, upon a Religious Account.

At Neufchaſtel they bought up ſome Hundreds of Copies of the Account of the Societies; which were ſent to all the Conſiſtories of that State, in order to diſpoſe them to a Reformation of Manners. At Zurick it was recommended to a Meeting of a Synod of Divines. And the Account of the Religious Societies was tranſlated and printed there; and Orders were given from other Proteſtant Cantons for buying up ſome Numbers of them. One had put it into the German Language, and it was intended to be dedicated to the States; and Care was taken to make it known all over Germany.

In the Country of the Griſons an Aſſembly of Divines met, where an Account of theſe Deſigns of Reformation was given, and would be laid before their Synod, when they met. An Envoy of a great Prince to the Cantons ſignified from Bern, that they all bleſſed God for the Succeſs of this Holy and Religious Society, and were themſelves inclined to enter into a Correſpondence, &c. A Propoſal was made at Berlin for tranſlating the Account of the Society into the Daniſh and Swediſh Languages; and a Deſign was there laid, of ſetting up and carrying on of Societies in Denmark and Sweden. And the King of Denmark's Chaplain ſent hither into England Order, to ſend him over the Books relating to the Reformation, in order to the ſetting forward the ſame Deſign in that Kingdom.

By Dr. Kennet, An 1701. now Lord Biſhop of Peterburgh.

In one of the Sermons preached divers Years ago before theſe Societies, it is declared, that more than thirty thouſand Perſons had been convicted by this means for profane Curſing and Swearing; and near the ſame number of Lewd and Diſorderly Perſons brought to a merciful Puniſhment, and were thereby reclaimed from their Vices, or reſtrained from the Publick Scandal of them. And that above an hundred thouſand of Books of Religion, and Diſſuaſives from the Vices of the Age, have been given away by Order of theſe Societies; and that the Inhabitants of this City could atteſt this Truth, that of late Years Lewdneſs and Profaneneſs hath viſibly decreaſed.

Their Account for the Year 1708.

This Society (that the Benefit thereof might the better appear) does yearly ſet forth an Account of the Progreſs made in ſuppreſſing of Profaneneſs and Debauchery, by their means. The fourteenth Account came out Decemb. 1, 1708; wherein the Number of Perſons proſecuted and proceeded againſt by the Magiſtrates for the Year before, was as follows:

Lewd and Diſorderly Men and Women,		1255
Keepers of Bawdy and Diſorderly Houſes,		51
Keepers of common Gaming-Houſes,		30
Perſons for	Exerciſing their Trades or ordinary Callings on the Lord's Day,	1187
	Profane Swearing and Curſing,	626
	Drunkenneſs,	150

The Benefit of this Society.

And by the Endeavours of the ſaid Societies, many Thouſands of Lewd and Scandalous Perſons have been brought to Legal Puniſhment. Great Numbers have been convicted in the Court of King's Bench, and at the Seſſions, for keeping Bawdy or Diſorderly Houſes, and puniſhed by Fine, Impriſonment, &c. And many others being indicted, have left their Houſes and abſconded, to avoid the Puniſhment of the Law. By theſe means the Streets have been much cleanſed of the Night-Walkers, and other publick Places, of the Gangs of deteſtable Sodomites: And even thoſe Parts of the Town which were formerly notorious for the number of Bawdy-Houſes, and the harbouring of Wicked Perſons, have been very much cleared. And many Thouſands of good Books have been diſperſed throughout the Kingdom by theſe Societies, and put into the Hands of lewd and vitious Perſons, to awaken them to a Senſe of their Sins. And it hath been obſerved, that there have been ſundry Examples of ſuch, who have been brought to a Senſe of their Sin and Danger; and many who were at firſt exaſperated againſt thoſe that were the Inſtruments of awakening them out of their dreadful Lethargy, and ſtopping them in their ſinful Courſes; yet have afterwards bleſſed God for their Recovery, and heartily thanked thoſe who have by thoſe Means brought them to Sobriety.

Account of Vice puniſhed, An. 1714.

And of late, how this Society have, in Purſuance of their Deſign in proſecuting Sin, namely from December 1714 to December 1715, appears by this Liſt, printed by the Society's Order.

Subjoining theſe remarkable Words, “That if Impiety and Debauchery had gone on, ſpreading and encreaſing amongſt us for the laſt ſix and twenty Years, at the prodigious Rate they did for many Years before, we had aſſuredly been one of the moſt profligate Nations in the Chriſtian World; and that under the cleareſt Light, and greateſt Advantages for knowing and practiſing our Duty, of any other Nation: Which muſt probably have reduced us to a very miſerable Condition long before now. But by the Bleſſing of God upon the various Endeavours of the Societies, of ſeveral ſorts, for promoting Religion and Reformation of Manners, a wonderful Check hath been given to the Prevalency of the moſt ſcandalous Vices, and in many Inſtances a viſible Reformation hath enſued.

Some Conſtables of this Society vindicated.

In the Month of February, Anno 1717, a Cauſe was tried before the Lord Chief Juſtice King, between ſome Conſtables of the Society for the Reformation of Manners, and one Ingram of Fleetſtreet, upon an Action of falſe Impriſonment. The former proved, that on May 24, 1716, at Night, as they had taken up ſome ill Perſons in Fleetſtreet, and were carrying them to Bridewell, the ſaid Ingram, who was then Conſtable for the Night, not ſatisfied with the Legal Authority which they ſhewed him upon Demand for the Execution of their Office, brought out his Watch, ſtopt them, carried both them and the Perſons they had taken, to the Compter, where they committed them Priſoners all Night. This being fully proved by ſeveral credible Witneſſes, and the Evidence on the other ſide being very contradictory and trifling, the Lord Chief Juſtice gave a very handſome Charge to the Jury; wherein he repreſented the ill Conſequence that might attend the diſcouraging ſo laudable a Society, as that for the Reformation of Manners. And the ſaid Ingram was thereupon caſt in 20 l. Damages.

One of th Society mu thered. John Dent.

One John Dent, in St. Clement's Pariſh without Temple Bar, was of this Society for the Reformation of Manners; a good Man, zealous for the Honour of God, and a great Hater of Sin and Wickedneſs; employing himſelf for 17 or 18 Years, in aiding and aſſiſting at the apprehending and proſecuting of ſeveral Thouſands of Lewd and Profligate Perſons; and alſo of Sabbath-Breakers, profane Swearers, and Drunkards. In which Cauſe he was courageous, and feared no Encounter. He was the firſt that took into his Arms John Cooper a Conſtable, who about ſeven Years before was murthered in the Execution of his Office, in ſuppreſſing the publick Lewdneſs and Diſorders at May Fair, though there were then above forty Soldiers with their Swords drawn about him. At laſt he himſelf, having endured many Abuſes, Blows and Wounds, was barbarouſly murdered by three private Soldiers in March 1708, in the Execution of the Laws againſt Immorality and Profaneneſs. As the laſt Honourable Reſpect to this Man dying in God's Cauſe, his Funeral was ſolemnized at St. Clement Danes Church the 24th of March 1708, with a Sermon preached by Thomas Bray, D. D. upon 1 Tim. 6. 12. Fight the good Fight of Faith, &c. He was accompanied to his Grave with about 30 Conſtables and Beadles, and between 20 and 30 of the Reverend Clergy, all going before his Corpſe; and 12 Juſtices of the Peace holding up the Pall, and immediately following it, and a great Train of other Gentlemen of Quality, and among them ſome Aldermen of the City; and laſtly, above a Thouſand worthy Citizens and others conducting him to his Grave. It was a Sight, ſaid the foreſaid Preacher, at which, he was perſuaded, the Powers of Darkneſs did tremble.

Care taken for Reforming the Stage.

And here let me inſert another Reſtraint put upon Vice; and that is, in regard of the Stage, exceedingly reſorted to, eſpecially by the younger ſort of Gentry. Thoſe Plays had contributed not a little to looſe Principles and Practices. For the reforming hereof the late Queen Anne had taken Care; who, for the Correction of the Stage, did on the 14th of December 1704, ſet forth this Declaration.

“Whereas We have thought fit, for the better Reforming the Abuſes and Immoralities of the Stage, that a new Company of Comedians ſhould be eſtabliſhed for our Service under ſtricter Government and Regulations than have been formerly. We therefore, repoſing ſpecial Truſt and Confidence in our Truſty and Well-beloved John Vanbrugh and William Congreve, Eſqs; for the due Execution and Performance of this Our Will and Pleaſure, do Give and Grant unto the ſaid John Vanbrugh and William Congreve, full Power and Authority to form, conſtitute and eſtabliſh for Us, a Company of Comedians, with full and free Licenſe to act and repreſent in any convenient Place during our Pleaſure, all Comedies, Tragedies, &c. and to ſettle ſuch Rules and Orders for the good Government of the ſaid Company, as the Chamberlain of our Houſhold ſhall from time to time direct and approve. Given at our Court at St. James's the 14th Day of December, in the third Year of our Reign.

Society for promoting Chriſtian Knowledge.

And further, for the promoting of good Religion, as well as ſtopping the Courſe of Immorality and Profaneneſs, there is another Fraternity in London, called The Society for the promoting Chriſtian Knowledge; and this both at Home and Abroad. For this Purpoſe other Perſons of Honour and Quality have united themſelves, who have applied themſelves to form Methods, to find out Means of accompliſhing ſo good an Undertaking; regulating themſelves always by Eccleſiaſtical Conſtitutions, as the Society for Reformation do themſelves by the Temporal Laws of England. Thus about March, Anno 169$\frac{8}{9}$, began this Society, which ſince hath been daily increaſed by the Acceſſion of many Perſons: So that at preſent it conſiſteth of Biſhops, eminent Clergymen, Lawyers, &c. Beſides their Correſpondents, who are carrying on the ſame Work in all the Counties of England and Wales, and in the Plantations beyond Seas. Many little portable Books of ſmall Price, that coſt but little Money, are printed frequently in London, and given away privately to poor Families and poor People, and of late at the Church Doors, being printed and bought out of the publick Stock, given by well diſpoſed Perſons: That ſo Piety and Knowledge, and Devotion, might be brought in among the Poor and Ignorant; many whereof, of themſelves well diſpoſed, want only Means and Opportunities of Inſtruction. Thus on Good Friday, 1704, were given away at the Churches of London and Weſtminſter, and ſeveral other Pariſhes near London, many Thouſands of ſuch good Books; viz.

Good Books printed and given away.

A Paſtoral Letter, being an earneſt Exhortation to take Care of the Soul.

The Neceſſary Duty of Family Prayer.

Account of the Progreſs of the Reformation of Manners.

The preſent State of the Charity Schools.

The Repreſentation of the Immorality of the Engliſh Stage.

There be alſo printed for theſe Religious Purpoſes, Books of Preparation for the Receiving the Holy Sacrament; ſmall Books for the Uſe of Seamen in their Voyages, and Soldiers in their Camps and Services.

What Good this Society hath done.

This Society meets Weekly to deliberate about what is expedient for the carrying on their pious Ends; and they have made a Progreſs beyond what could in Probability have been hoped for in ſo ſhort a Time. They have, by their own Subſcriptions, and of others which they have procured, bought a great Number of uſeful Books for the furniſhing of the Plantations with Parochial Libraries, to invite worthy Clergymen to thoſe Parts. They have diſperſed great Numbers of Good Books for the inſtructing of poor Families in the true Principles of Chriſtian Religion, as was mentioned before. They are uſing Means for the providing Catechetical Libraries in the ſmaller Pariſhes of the Land, to enable the Inferiour Clergy the better to perform their Duty of Catechizing according to the 59th Canon; and the greater Pariſhes with learned Libraries: Which will be of great Uſe to the poorer Clergy, to aſſiſt them in their ſucceſsful Oppoſition of Errors and Hereſies. And they have particularly applied themſelves to the ſetting up of Schools for the Education of poor Children. Many of which are erected, and now erecting, in the Country. And in and about London and Weſtminſter are many ſet up, in which near a Thouſand poor Children of both Sexes are taught to read the Bible, and to repeat and underſtand the Church Catechiſm. The Boys are taught to write and caſt Accompt, to fit them for Trades; and the Girls to knit, work with the Needle, &c. And by this means we have a fair Proſpect of a great Reformation of the poorer ſort, by bringing up ſuch Numbers of them piouſly and honeſtly; and ſo in future time to become ſerviceable to the Publick. Of theſe Schools more will be ſaid hereafter.

Charity-Schools.

Conſtant Publick Prayers, and Lectures every Day.

I might ſubjoin here the great Advantages thoſe that live in the City have for their publick Devotions. For there be ſet up in the Churches the Uſe of Publick Prayers ſaid, not only every Day, but almoſt every Hour of the Day, at one Church or other. That ſo, if a Man's Occaſions do obſtruct his going to Church, to pay Almighty God his Devotions at one Hour, he may at his greater Leiſure do it at another. Lectures are likewiſe performed by Learned and Excellent Preachers every Day in the Week, in one Church or other; ſome in the Morning, and ſome in the Afternoon, or Evening, for the Comfort and Edification of all that will pleaſe to reſort thither. And eſpecially in Lent be Sermons preached Wedneſdays and Fridays in four Churches in London and Weſtminſter, according to the pious Appointment of the Biſhop of London; as alſo are the Preachers appointed by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury out of peculiar Pariſhes in London. Such Helps there be now in the City to Religion and a good Life.

Society for Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts.

But again to return to the Societies. Another is ſet on foot in London by a generous and moſt extenſive Charity, to carry Religion all the World over; and it is called, The Society for Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts. This Society hath obtained a Patent for making them a Corporation from King William, whoſe Letters Patents bore Date at Weſtminſter the 16th of June, in the 13th Year of his Reign. The Cauſe whereof, as mentioned in the ſaid Patent, was, that in many of the Plantations, Colonies and Factories beyond the Seas, belonging to England, the Proviſion of Miniſters is very mean, and many others of them wholly deſtitute and unprovided of a Maintenance for Miniſters and the Publick Worſhip of God. And that for lack of Support and Maintenance of ſuch, many of the King's Subjects wanted the Adminiſtration of God's Word and Sacraments, and ſeemed to be abandoned to Atheiſm and Infidelity. And alſo for want of Learned and Orthodox Miniſters to inſtruct his ſaid Subjects in the Principles of true Religion, divers Romiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits were the more encouraged to pervert and draw them over to Popiſh Superſtition and Idolatry.

This Society therefore was erected for a ſufficient Maintenance to be provided for an Orthodox Clergy to live among them, and ſuch other Proviſions to be made, as might be neceſſary for the Propagation of the Goſpel in thoſe Parts.

The Members incorporated by theſe Letters into this Society, under the Name of The Society for the Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts, were the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ninety three others both of the Biſhops, Clergy, Nobility and Gentry; enabling them to purchaſe 2000 l. per Annum, Inheritance, and Goods, and Chattels of any Value.

Upon the Third Friday in February yearly, to meet at ſome convenient Place, and to chuſe one Preſident, one or more Vice-Preſident or Preſidents, one or more Treaſurer or Treaſurers, two or more Auditors, one Secretary, and ſuch other Officers, Miniſters, and Servants, as ſhould be thought convenient for the Year enſuing.

The firſt Preſident to be Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury; who within thirty Days after the paſſing of this Charter, was to cauſe Summons to be iſſued to the ſeveral Members to meet, and procede to the Election of one or more Vice-Preſidents, Treaſurers, two or more Auditors, a Secretary and other Officers; to continue until the third Friday in February, which ſhould be in the Year 1701.

They and their Succeſſors, on the third Friday in every Month yearly, or oftner, if occaſion require, to meet and tranſact the Buſineſs of the ſaid Society. That at any ſuch Meeting they may elect ſuch Perſons to be Members of the ſaid Corporation, as they, or the major Part, ſhall think beneficial to the charitable Deſigns thereof.

No Act to be valid, unleſs the Preſident or Vice-Peſident, and ſeven others of the Members be preſent, and conſenting thereunto.

Such as ſhall be preſent at the firſt or ſecond Meeting of the ſaid Society, or at any Meeting on the third Fridays in the Months of November, February, May, and Auguſt yearly for ever, may ordain and make Conſtitutions, Laws, Statutes, &c. and alſo to execute Leaſes for Years.

Lawful for them to depute ſuch Perſons, as they ſhall think fit, to take Subſcriptions: and to gather and collect ſuch Monies as ſhall be by any Perſons elected for the ſaid Purpoſes.

The ſaid Society every Year to give an Account in Writing to the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, the Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, or the Lord Chief Juſtice of Common Pleas, or any two of them, of the ſeveral Sums of Money by them received and laid out by vertue of theſe Preſents, &c. and of the Management and Diſpoſition of the Revenues and Charities.

The firſt Preſident was the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury.

Treaſurer, Mr. John Trimnel, Merchant.

Auditors, William Melmoth, Eſq; living at Lincoln; and John Hedges, Merchant.

Secretary, John Chamberlayne, Eſq; in Petty-France, Weſtminſter.

The Seal of this Society.

The Seal of this Society hath theſe Words round the Edge; SIGILLUM SOCIETATIS DE PROMOVENDO EVANGELIO IN PARTIBUS TRANSMARINIS. It is the Repreſentation of a Ship under full Sail, making up towards a Foreign Land; the Natives all about near the Shoar, with their Hands ſtretched out, or lifted up, and ſome on their Knees. A Miniſter in a Gown in the fore part of the Ship looking towards them, with the Goſpel open in his Right Hand. And a Label in the middle of the Seal thus inſcribed, TRANSIENS ADJUVA NOS: The Sun in the Firmament brightly ſhining out.

The Progreſs this Society hath made.

This Society hath already made conſiderable Progreſs, having, beſides Books and other Things, ſent ſeveral Miniſters of the Church of England into his Majeſty's Dominions and Colonies in the Weſt Indies, to be by Letters ſent from thence to the Places where they are to reſide. But there is great need of many more, to inſtruct the Engliſh and ſuch Indians as live under them, or near them, in the Principles of Chriſtian Religion, and to miniſter the Word and Sacraments, and to do other Spiritual Offices among them. And for this Purpoſe, in a general Meeting of the Society held Jan. 15, 1702, they did agree, that all the Biſhops in the Realm, who were Members of this Society, ſhould be earneſtly deſired to recommend it to their Archdeacons and their Officials, that Publick Notice might be given at their next Viſitations, that ſuch Clergymen as had a Mind to be employed in this Apoſtolical Work, and could bring ſufficient Teſtimonials, according to a certain Form thereunto annexed, that they were duly qualified for it, might give in their Names to their reſpective Biſhops, in whoſe Dioceſes they lived, or to their Archdeacons, to be communicated by them to the Society; who would conſult with the Biſhop of London, in order to the ſending them to ſuch Places as had moſt need, and where they might do moſt good. And the Society would take Care, where there was not a ſufficient Maintenance already ſettled, that they might not only have a competent Subſiſtence, but alſo ſufficient Encouragement, due to thoſe that devoted themſelves to the Service of Almighty God, and our Saviour, in that Reſpect.

And for the furthering of this extenſive Chriſtian good Work, were ſet forth,

PROPOSALS for the Encouragement and Promoting of Religion and Learning in the Foreign Plantations; and to induce ſuch of the Clergy of this Kingdom, as are Perſons of Sobriety and Abilities, to accept of a Miſſion into thoſe Parts.

WHEREAS the Propagation of the Chriſtian Faith, and the Increaſe of Divine Knowledge, amongſt all ſorts of Perſons in his Majeſty's Foreign Plantations, are the Wiſhes, Deſires, and Prayers, of all pious and ſerious Chriſtians, and ſuch as are zealous of God's Glory, and the Salvation of Mens Souls: And whereas that bleſſed Work, next under God, does principally depend upon the Abilities of the Clergy in thoſe Parts, the Exemplarineſs of their Lives, and their Induſtry in Teaching others: Whereas alſo, the Clergy that are already in the Plantations, as well as thoſe who are to be ſent thither, cannot (humanely ſpeaking) be ſo capable of informing themſelves, and of inſtructing others in the Deſign of Chriſtianity, in the Nature of the Covenant of Grace, in the Meaning and Importance of the Articles of our moſt Holy Faith, and in the Nature and Extent of all Chriſtian Duties, without the Aſſiſtance of ſome good Commentators upon the Holy Scriptures; and one at leaſt, or more of thoſe Authors, who have beſt treated upon each, and every of thoſe Points: Whereas alſo for the ſupply of that Want, Men of Parts and addicted to Study, will hardly be induced to leave the Expectations they may have of better Encouragement and Improvement in their Native Country, to go to remote Parts and Climates leſs agreeable, without ſuch Advantages, as will over-balance all Conſiderations inclining them to ſtay at Home; and eſpecially, not without a competent Proviſion of ſuch Books, as are neceſſary for their Studies in thoſe Places where they are to ſerve; few of them that go over from hence being able to furniſh themſelves with ſo many Books as they ſhall need: And laſtly, whereas Inſufficiency and Scandal in the Clergy of thoſe Places, in all Probability, would be moſt ſucceſsfully prevented, both in this and future Ages, ſhould every Parochial Miniſter in the Plantations have a Library of well choſen Books, of all thoſe Kinds before mentioned, in which he might ſpend his Time to his own Satisfaction, and with Improvement and Profit both to himſelf and others:

To promote therefore ſo Bleſſed and Noble an End, as the Propagation of Chriſtian Knowledge in thoſe Parts; and, as well to encourage thoſe who are there already employed in the Miniſtry, as alſo to invite other able Miniſters over, and to furniſh both with proper Means for accompliſhing ſo good a Work: It is humbly offered to all that are hearty Well-wiſhers to the Souls of Men, and the Honour of their Saviour, to conſider, and, as they ſhall ſee Cauſe, to favour theſe Propoſals following.

Parochial Libraries.

1. That the Lord Biſhop of London be pleaſed to make a Catalogue of what particular Books his Lordſhip ſhall judge moſt immediately and neceſſarily uſeful, to make up a ſufficient Library to a Parochial Miniſter in any Plantation, wherewith he may be ſufficiently enabled both to inform himſelf, and to inſtruct others, in all the Neceſſary and Eſſential Parts of Chriſtianity.

2. That ſo many of ſuch Libraries be ſent by the Lord Biſhop of London, by the hands of ſuch as his Lordſhip ſhall commiſſion for that Purpoſe, to be appropriated and affixed, one to each Pariſh in the Foreign Plantations, particularly thoſe of Mary-Land and Virginia; and farther as the Fund to be raiſed ſhall enable.

3. That every Parochial Library ſhall be affixed in a decent and large Room of the Parſonage-Houſe of ſuch Pariſh, there to remain to the ſole Uſe of the Miniſter thereof for the time being, unto all future Generations; and to be as Unalienable as any other the Rights and Dues of the Church, which are aſcertained by Law.

4. That in order to the Preſervation of every ſuch Library to ſucceeding Ages without Loſs, as far as can be humanely provided in any thing of that kind, there be made an exact Catalogue of the Books belonging to the Library of each Pariſh; and that every ſuch Catalogue be fairly written in Four Books of Vellum provided for that purpoſe: The firſt whereof to be left with the Lord Biſhop of London for the time being; a ſecond with his Commiſſary, or ſome chief Clergyman in every of thoſe Plantations where ſuch Libraries are provided; and a third to remain in the reſpective Libraries themſelves; and a fourth to be depoſited in the Veſtry of each of the ſaid Pariſhes.

5. That the Commiſſary be obliged, at leaſt once in three Years, Perſonally to make a Parochial Viſitation: And then, beſides the Charge of this Duty in other reſpects, that it be incumbent alſo upon him, particularly to inſpect the Parochial Libraries, and to ſee that none of the Books be imbezelled or loſt: And that the Church-Wardens of each Pariſh be alſo obliged, every Year, before the Viſitation, to inform themſelves in what Condition the ſaid Books are, and to preſent accordingly at the Viſitation.

6. That for further Security to preſerve them from Loſs and Imbezelment, and that they may be known where-ever they are found, in every Book, on the one ſide of the Cover ſhall be lettered theſe Words, SUB AUSPICIIS WILLIELMI III; on the other ſide the Name of the Pariſh to which theſe Books do belong, EX. GRA. E BIBLIOTHECA DE MARY-TOWN, E BIBLIOTHECA DE JAMES-TOWN, &c.

7. That the Miniſters of each Pariſh, their Heirs and Adminiſtrators, may be obliged, by vertue of an Act of Aſſembly, provided and made for that purpoſe, to make good what Books ſhall be imbezeled or loſt by his Fault.

MEANS of Obtaining ſuch Parochial Libraries.

1. THAT Application be made to the Nobility, Clergy, and Gentry, for their Charitable Contributions to ſo Pious a Work; and eſpecially that the Merchants and Traders to the Foreign Plantations be earneſtly called upon, as Perſons principally concerned, to encourage this Deſign: It being moſt reaſonable to expect, that in Gratitude to God, and the Inhabitants of thoſe Plantations, the more plentifully they have reaped of their Temporal Things, the more liberally they ſhould ſow to them in Spiritual Things.

2. That Application be alſo made to ſuch Learned Authors as are now living, that they would beſtow ſome of their own Books, which ſhall be judged uſeful to the Purpoſes aforeſaid.

3. That for the general Satiſfaction of thoſe who have advanced either in Books or Money to ſo pious a Deſign, a full Account ſhall be publiſhed what Books have been given, what Sums have been obtained, and how the ſame have been laid out to the Purpoſes aforeſaid.

Laſtly, In Gratitude to the Benefactors towards this Pious Deſign, all thoſe who ſhall contribute any thing thereunto, ſhall have their Names and reſpective Sums, and the Authors ſhall have the Number of Books given by them, tranſmitted to Poſterity, by being Regiſtred in a Book kept for that purpoſe in each of the Libraries. And moreover, the principal Benefactors, whether publick Societies, Companies, or private Perſons, ſhall have their Names endorſed in Golden Letters, upon ſo many Folio's and Quarto's as ſhall amount to the Sum given by them reſpectively; and the Words EX DONO AUTHORIS, ſhall be in like manner endorſed upon all thoſe Books given by their reſpective Authors.

> We do look upon this Deſign, as what will very much tend to propagate Chriſtian Knowlege in the Indies, being it will, in all likelihood, invite ſome of the more Studious and Virtuous Perſons out of the Univerſities, to undertake the Miniſtry in thoſe Parts, and will be a means of rendring them uſeful when they are there. And therefore as we ſhall contribute chearfully towards promoting of thoſe Parochial Libraries, ſo we hope that many Pious Perſons will be found, who, out of Love to Religion and Learning, will alſo contribute thereunto.

What the Society hath done and deſigns to do.

IN a Paper printed Anno 1704, by order of the Society, an Account is given what this Society deſigns to do upon further Encouragement by annual Subſcription, or preſent Benefaction, or future Legacies.

And what great Progreſs was made in Mary-land in the Time of King William, will appear by this Paper following.

The Preſent State of the Proteſtant Religion in Maryland.

Progreſs of Religion in Maryland.

IN the Year 1691, his Majeſty having graciouſly thought fit to take the Government of Mary-Land into his own Hands, and the Province into his immediate Care; In May, 1692, an Act of Aſſembly paſſed for the Eſtabliſhment of the Proteſtant Religion there, and for dividing the Ten Counties thereof into Five and twenty Pariſhes, each of which, one with another, are endowed with a yearly Income of nigh Twenty Thouſand Pounds of Tabaco, to be raiſed perpetually by a yearly Aſſeſment of Forty Pound per Pole, upon all the taxable Perſons in the Country; the Profits of which Tabaco, till ſuch time as a ſufficient Supply of Miniſters ſhall be ſent, (viz. All which will ariſe over and above what ſhall go for the Maintenance of Six Divines ſent thither already, with the preſent Governour, by my Lord Biſhop of London's pious Care, there being but three before in the Country) are appointed for the Building of Churches in every Pariſh. But the Execution of that Act hath been in a manner wholly neglected, till it pleaſed his Majeſty to confer the Government on the moſt Worthy and Excellent Perſon, Francis Nicholſon, Eſq; who ſince his Arrival in Aug. 1694, with an indefatigable Induſtry and Zeal to promote his Majeſty's Honour, the Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Good of the whole Province, hath revived and reinforced the ſaid Act, by another additional one, for the Increaſe and Maintenance of Religion; hath collected the Arrears, and is now Building a fine Church at Annapolis in Arundel County, and by Midſummer next will (beſides four or five which were begun before) have nine or ten Churches in good Forwardneſs, with as many Parſonage-Houſes. To the Building of each of which, as of all the reſt, his Excellency hath given 50 l. Sterling; and his Majeſty's Secretary Ten Thouſand Pounds of Tabaco to ten of the ſaid Houſes, viz. one in each County.

Annapolis. A Church;

And School there. And that a perpetual Succeſſion of Proteſtant Divines of the Church of England may be provided for the Propagation of the true Chriſtian Religion in the ſaid Colony, his Excellency hath, by the Conſent of the Council and Burgeſſes in Aſſembly, promoted a Law, veſting a Power in certain Truſtees for erecting one Free School in each County: One of which is already begun at Annapolis, towards the Building of which, his Excellency hath given 50 l. Sterling, the Secretary 5000, the Council 15000, and the Burgeſſes 45000 Pounds of Tobacco. And it is to be Endowed with 100 l. Sterling per Annum for the Maintenance of one Maſter, and two Uſhers, to whom his Excellency will at preſent allow 25 l. Sterling per Annum, during his Government, and the Secretary 2000 Pounds of Tobacco, ſo long as he continues in his Office, for inſtructing the Youth of the ſaid Province in Arithmetick, Navigation, and all uſeful Learning; but chiefly for the fitting ſuch as are diſpoſed to ſtudy Divinity, to be further educated at his Majeſty's College Royal in Virginia; in order, upon their Return, to be ordained by the Lord Biſhop of London's Suffragan reſiding in the Province, both for that purpoſe, and to ſuperviſe the Lives of the Clergy thereof; for whoſe Support alſo, at the Requeſt and Recommendation of the Aſſembly, his Excellency hath ſettled a fair and competent Maintenance.

The Perſon now deputed by the Lord Biſhop of London, to be his Commiſſary in Maryland for the Propagation of our moſt Holy Religion amongſt the Infidels, for the Inducement of ſober and ſerious young Divines to go to the foreign Plantations, and for the better qualifying them for ſo Noble and Chriſtian an Employment, is now wholly buſied in collecting of Parochial Libraries of choice and uſeful Books, for the perpetual Uſe of ſuch of the Clergy, who ſhall now undertake that Voyage, and for all thoſe who ſhall ſucceed them. And certainly a more ſuitable Encouragement to Men of good Parts and Inclinations, to go upon ſo bleſſed a Miſſion, could not be thought of: For as it is Books alone which will encourage the moſt Studious, Vertuous, and conſequently the moſt uſeful Perſons to go over; ſo it is an Encouragement that is in a manner neceſſary to be provided in foreign Plantations; ſince few or none at their firſt going over, are in a Condition to provide themſelves therewith; and when they are there, Books are hardly to be met with by thoſe who ſhall be able to buy them. And yet without a Competent Proviſion of ſeveral uſeful and neceſſary Books, it is morally impoſſible that any ſhould be enabled to inſtruct their People.

And now that ſuch excellent Works are jointly begun, and carrying on, What a happy Conjuncture is this (which perhaps may not again recur) for Perſons who are piouſly diſpoſed, to give their helping Hand towards ſuch bleſſed and glorious Deſigns, as the propagating of true Chriſtian Knowledge and Practice in Places formerly ſo much uncultivated therewith. Sure if he who Converteth a ſingle Sinner from the Error of his Ways, ſhall hide a Multitude of Sins, what abundant matter for comfortable Reflexions upon a Death Bed, ſhall that Perſon lay up, who ſhall contribute towards providing of the moſt proper and genuine Means, next to the divinely inſpired Writings, of Converting many poor Souls, not only in this, but in future Generations, even ſo long as the Sun and Moon endureth.

THOMAS LAURENCE, Secretary of MARYLAND.

Benedicat Deus Operi & faventibus.

Upon the Death of King William, the Founder, Addreſs being made by the Society to Queen Anne, ſhe anſwered them, that ſhe ſhould be always ready to do her Part, towards the promoting and encouraging ſo good a Work. And ſhe ſhewed her Favour to it by her Princely Magnificence, when the Affair was in private Hands. The Work hath ſince gone on with great Succeſs. Correſpondences begun, Deputations ſettling at home; many Subſcriptions made, ſeveral Benefactions brought in; and divers prudential Ways and Means taken for the Converſion of the Indians, and ſettling the State of Religion in the Queen's Foreign Dominions, by ſupplying with able and good Miniſters the Natives, as well as the Engliſh; appointing Catechiſts and Schoolmaſters for the Slaves with other ignorant Perſons; and ſending over Libraries for the Uſe and Improvement of the Clergy, as well as practical Treatiſes for the Laity.

The numerous Places to be ſupplied with Miniſters. Places to be thus ſupplied with Miniſters, and Schools and Libraries in the Engliſh Dominions on the Continent of North America, are from North-Eaſt and South-Weſt, with the Indian Nations bordering upon them; the five Nations of the Iroquois, commonly called The praying Indians; New England, or Maſſachuſets, with the neighbouring Colonies; New York, wherein are five Engliſh Counties, and five Dutch; New Jerſey, Eaſt and Weſt Penſylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, North and South; the Yammon Sea Indians, Newfoundland, Rhode Iſland, belonging to New York, Long Iſland belonging to New England, Jamaica, Antegoa, Montſerrat. Beſides Factories in Europe, Moſco, and Amſterdam.

Suffragan. There are earneſt Addreſſes from divers Perſons of the Continent and Iſlands adjacent, for a Suffragan, to Viſit the ſeveral Churches, Ordain Miniſters, Confirm the younger Sort, and Conſecrate Places for Divine Worſhip. Accordingly the Society intended to have ſix Suffragans, and hoped to allow them 600 l. a Year.

Itinerant Miſſionaries. George Keith, and John Talbot his Aſſiſtant, were ſome Years ago Itinerant Miſſionaries, and had an honourable Allowance, ſuitable to their expenſive Undertaking. Keith after ſome time came back.

Brief Account of this Miſſion. The ſaid Mr. Keith and Mr. Talbot went out on this Miſſion in April, Anno 1702, and returned back Auguſt, Anno 1704. They travelled on the Continent of North America, between Piſcataway River in New England, and Caratuc in North Carolina, a ſpace extending in length about 800 Miles. Within which Bounds were ten diſtinct Colonies and Governments, all under the Crown of England. They went twice over moſt of thoſe Governments, and preached often in many of them; particularly in Penſylvania, Weſt and Eaſt Jerſey, and New York Provinces; where they continued longeſt, and found the greateſt Occaſion for their Service. His and his Fellow Talbots Succeſs was, that the People were generally well affected to the Doctrine that they preached, and joined with them decently in the Liturgy, and publick Prayers, and Adminiſtration of the Sacraments after the Uſage of the Church of England. And where Miniſters were wanting, as there were in many Places, the People earneſtly deſired them to preſent their Requeſts unto the honourable Society, to ſend Miniſters unto them; which accordingly Mr. Keith, ſince his Return home, hath done. And the Society hath ſent to ſuch Places as ſeemed moſt to want it, conſiderable Numbers of Miſſionaries. Keith's Journ. p. 82. print. 1706.

Many that had been Strangers to the Way of the Church of England, after they obſerved it in the publick Prayers, and in reading the Leſſons of the holy Scriptures, and the manner of the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, and the Lord's-Supper, were greatly affected with it. Many of thoſe who had the Name of Separate Quakers (that is, thoſe that believed the Fundamentals of the Chriſtian Faith, concerning the way of Salvation by Faith in Jeſus Chriſt, and believed that he came in the Fleſh, and died for our Sins; which Mr. Keith had preached to them, when himſelf was a Quaker about the Year 1692.) thoſe they found had now joined with the Church of Enggland Congregation at Philadelphia, before their Arrival. Theſe received them with great Joy, and had great Satiſfaction in hearing them preach that which tended to their own Confirmation in the Chriſtian Faith, and in Communion with the Church of England.

500 Quakers baptiz'd.

Mr. Evans, Miniſter of the Church of England Congregation at Philadelphia in Penſylvania, told Keith, he had baptized 500 Quakers and their Children, and ſuch as were Quakerly affected; beſides conſiderable numbers of Converts were baptized by Clayton, the former Miniſter: And ſince their coming into Penſylvania, Weſt and Eaſt Jerſey and New York Provinces, at leaſt 200 Perſons that were Quakers, and their Children and Servants were baptized. And many who had been baptized in their Infancy, and had profeſſed Quakeriſm afterwards, were come off, and joined themſelves to the Churches in theſe Countries, ſince their Travels and Preachings among them.

Numbers of Churches in Penſylvania, &c.

In Penſylvania, where formerly there was but one Church of England Congregation (viz. that at Philadelphia) they found five Churches ſupplyed with Miniſters. In the North Parts of America, are thirteen Miniſters, all placed within theſe two Years laſt paſt; and generally ſupported and maintained by this Society. This briefly is enough to ſhew the bleſſed ſpreading Benefit of the ſaid Society.

Some Common Prayer Books, with other Devotional and Practical Tracts, are very much needed by the People in thoſe Places. All which Matters lay before the Society to take care of.

They have an annual Fund now of 800 l. per Annum, with the Acceſſion of 1700 l. occaſionally ſubſcribed. A Lady unknown hath lately ſent them a 1000 l.

Allowance to the Miſſionaries.

They commonly allow the Miniſters they ſend thither, 50 l. a Year, and 20 l. at their firſt going out, and 15 l. for Books. As they had two Miſſionaries beforementioned at very great Expence; ſo they are ſolliciting Maintenance of the Crown for four more: So many more at leaſt being needful for the Converſion of the foreſaid praying Indians of Canada. The Place they take for the Object of their Chriſtian Care, is, a Continent well Peopled under ſeveral Governments, two Hundred Miles in length upon the Sea-Coaſt. This is the large and noble Project of this Society.

The Succeſs of this Society with the Natives.

And theſe Chriſtian Purpoſes and Labours are now found to be very ſucceſsful for the Converſion of the Natives and Negroes, as well as the Subjects of England in thoſe Parts. Accounts whereof are yearly publiſhed at the End of the Sermons preached at the Anniverſary Meetings of this Society.

General Codrington's Gift towards this pious Purpoſe, to the Society.

But that which is like to render this religious Deſign in after Times more effectual, is the noble Gift of General Codrington, lately Governour of Barbadoes; who died April the 7th, Anno Domini 1710. and by his laſt Will bequeathed his two Plantations in the ſaid Iſland; and alſo part of the Iſland of Barbuda to this Society; and by his ſaid Will, deſiring, that the Plantations ſhould continue entire; and that 300 Negroes at leaſt, always kept thereon; and that a convenient number of Profeſſors and Scholars ſhould be maintained there: Who are to be obliged to ſtudy and practiſe Phyſick and Chirurgery, as well as Divinity. That by the apparent Uſefulneſs of the former, (as the Will ran) they might endear themſelves to the People, and have the better Opportunities of doing good to Men's Souls, while they are taking Care of their Bodies. This Gift is valued at 2000 l. per Annum, clear of all Charges.

The Society have already reſolved, to inſtruct thoſe Negroes in the Principles of the Chriſtian Religion: And are now about building a College to this End at Barbadoes.

Meetings of the Society.

They meet once a Month, or oftener, as there is occaſion, at the late Archbiſhop Teniſon's Library at St. Martins in the Fields. And ſeveral Committees of the Society beſides, are appointed to meet at the Chapter Houſe at St. Pauls.

Sermons preached before this Society.

This Society have yearly Meetings, and Anniverſary Sermons in the Month of February at St. Mary le Bow Church, whereof the firſt was February 20. 170$\frac{1}{2}$, Richard Willis, D. D. The Sermon preached in this Anniverſary Aſſembly, Feb. 17$\frac{12}{13}$, was performed by John late Biſhop of Ely. The Sermon before this incorporated Society, Feb. Anno 1715, was preached by Dr. Tho. Sherlock, Dean of Chicheſter; and the next Year, Feb. 1716. by Mr. Tho. Haley, Canon Reſidentiary of Chicheſter.

N. B. The Society allow Ten Pounds Worth of Books to each Miſſionary for a Library, and Five Pounds Worth of ſmall Tracts to be diſtributed among their Pariſh; and ſeveral other Parcels of Books, as the Society think them wanting.

The Aſſiſtance given for the Converſion of the Heathen in Malabar.

We muſt not omit the great Aſſiſtance this Society, together with the Former, hath given to the Propagation of the Goſpel in Malabar, on the Coaſt of Coromandel in the Eaſt Indies: Begun by ſome Danes in the Town of Tranquebar, belonging to the King of Denmark, about the Year 1705. For when in the Year 1710, Letters ſent from thence by their Miſſionaries to their Correſpondents in Germany, concerning their Progreſs made in this Chriſtian Work, being tranſlated in Engliſh, and Dedicated to this Corporation, they were very aſſiſtant to them, who wanted Helps and Means to carry them on in the Converſion of theſe Heathen Idolaters. And herein, the other Society for Promoting Chriſtian Knowledge, employed themſelves more particularly, as not foreign to their own Concernments. And firſt, they drew up a Propoſal in Sept. 1710, with a View chiefly of procuring an Impreſſion of the New Teſtament in Portugueſe, for the Uſe of the Miſſionaries, together with a Supply of Money, for the enabling them to ſet up Charity Schools among theſe Malabarians. Theſe Propoſals ſucceeded very well within two or three Months. And becauſe of the vaſt Labour and Charge of getting School Books, and other Treatiſes for inſtructing the Heathen in the Doctrines of Faith, they ſupplied the Miſſionaries with a Printing-Preſs, and all the neceſſary Utenſils, ſix hundred ℔ of Roman and Italian Types, one hundred Ream of Paper; and procured one Jonas Fink, a Native of Sileſia, a Printer, to go over with the ſaid Preſs. And before his ſetting out, they ſupplied him with a good Number of Practical Books in Latin, Engliſh, and High Dutch, both to diſperſe, and ſee them tranſlated into ſuch Languages as might be moſt uſeful in India. And the New Teſtament in Portugueſe, was now alſo in the Preſs, to be ſent over to the Miſſionaries with all ſpeed. The Goſpel of St. Matthew being printed already, 250 Copies were ſent by the Eaſt India Fleet, as a preſent Help for the Children of the Portugueſe-School. This was accompanied with a Preſent of Money in foreign Silver, together with ſome Sums in Bills of Exchange, to enable the Miſſionaries to carry on more effectually their Deſign. And all theſe Goods, together with the Perſon attending them, were embarked Freight-free on one of the Ships of the Honourable Eaſt India Company, who have all along granted a free Paſſage to ſuch Perſons and Goods as were deſigned for a Support to this Work.

Anno 1711, The New Teſtament in Portugueſe was printed off, amounting in all to 1250 Copies. And a competent Number of them was tranſmitted to the Miſſionaries the next Fleet. There was a brief Inſtruction in Portugueſe, containing the firſt Principles of Chriſtianity, drawn up by Plutſcho, one of the firſt Miſſionaries, which might ſerve inſtead of a Primer in the School of Tranquebar. The Company ordered a Thouſand Copies of this Book to be immediately printed off, and half of them to be ſent by the firſt Fleet, going to India.

Anno 1712, The Printer that was ſent the Year before dying in his Voyage, three young Men of Hall, an Univerſity in Saxony, were by the Society ſent over; whereof Two were to be Printers, and the Third a Schoolmaſter. They carried with them a Font of Malabaric Types, brought over from Germany; and being recommended to the Aſſiſtants of the Society, they obtained the Favour to have Paſſage in the Eaſt India Fleet; and had 70 Rheme of Paper given them for the Service of the Miſſion, with ſome Portugueſe Books. They embarked about the latter End of January 1713.

The ſaid Printing Preſs was immediately ſet up at Tranquebar. And a Primer was Printed in Portugueſe, and a Specimen about the Method of Salvation, of which they have ſent ſome Copies to England. They call this Treatiſe The Firſt Fruits of the Word of God, beſtowed on the Heathen by Benefactions in England, with ſeveral other Books printed there; Copies whereof they have ſent over to the Society. The Titles whereof may be ſeen in the Tract called, The Propagation of the Goſpel in the East Indies. Part III.

What hath been further done for the Aſſiſtance of theſe Miſſionaries at Malabar, and what good Progreſs hath been ſince made, will be ſhewn hereafter in this Chapter.

Care by a Society, for Converts from Popery.

And here alſo we muſt not paſs without the mention of another laudable Society, entred into and ſet on foot more lately, by divers well-diſpoſed Perſons in and about London, for the Relief and Maintenance of poor Proſelytes that are Converts from the Popiſh Religion. The Riſe and Occaſion of this Charitable Purpoſe was, to prevent the Diſcouragement of ſuch as were convinced of the dangerous Errors of that Religion, and were minded to come into the Boſom of this Proteſtant Church; but were like to ſtarve if they ſhould: Eſpecially Foreigners, not knowing how to ſubſiſt, being rejected by their Popiſh Friends and Relations: and coming into a Country where they neither undeſtand the Language, nor have any way of procuring to themſelves a Living. There is an Account ſet forth in Print, this Year 1718, of this Affair, and of the Eſtabliſhment of Commiſſioners for the Relief of theſe poor Converts. Wherein is thus related the Occaſion of this Undertaking: “That the want of a regular Method in Great Britain for relieving ſincere Converts from the Church of Rome, had been too juſtly complained of ever ſince the Reformation, &c. But the happy Settlement of the “ Crown in the Proteſtant Line, excluſive of Papiſts for ever, hath left the Nation at more Liberty to take under its Care theſe Converts, in like manner as hath been ſo very laudably done in ſeveral other Proteſtant Churches —— And it ſeems to be a more ſeaſonable Undertaking at this Time, now there being a more general Diſpoſition among many Learned and other conſiderable Perſons in Popiſh Countries, to embrace the Reformation: And that the Eyes of ſuch throughout all Europe are turned upon this happy Church under its preſent Proteſtant Settlement, as their moſt deſirable and ſafe Aſylum.

It was an Obſervation, that ſome that had been convinced of the Romiſh Errors, were compelled for Want of Bread, to make their Peace with the Church of Rome, after they had publickly, and after a very ſolemn manner, renounced her. So that among the many Checks the Reformation hath received of late Years, the want of a Fund, to relieve ſuch as for pure Conſcience forſake the Romiſh Communion to embrace the Proteſtant Faith, is none of the leaſt.

A Grant from the King of 400*l.* per Annum to ſuch.

His Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Biſhop of London, have been very inſtrumental in this good Work by their Counſel and Advice: And eſpecially by their humble Application to his Majeſty King George, to aſſiſt theſe Objects of Charity, who have hitherto been unprovided for, till ſome other Means could be found; by charging the Fund of 15000 l. per Annum, granted out of the Civil Liſt for the Relief of the poor French Proteſtants, with the Sum of 400 l. per Annum: Which his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to grant, as a Foundation for a Fund towards the Relief of Converts of any Nation from the Church of Rome.

A Commiſſion to certain to diſtribute it, and to take Collections of others.

Their Lordſhips were pleaſed, in Conjunction with the two Lord Chief Juſtices, purſuant to his Majeſty's Gracious Intentions, to authorize by a Commiſſion bearing Date the 24th of April, 1717, a certain number of Perſons, both of Clergy and Laity, to diſtribute the ſame to ſuch as ſhould appear to be truly worthy of it, and Objects of Charity within Rules preſcribed in their Commiſſion: And at the ſame time did impower them to invite other Perſons to their Aſſiſtance, as well as to receive the Benevolence of any private well-diſpoſed Perſons towards the ſame.

Rules and Orders.

There are ſet down in the ſaid printed Account, the Rules preſcribed for the ſaid Commiſſioners: And Orders, which the ſaid Commiſſioners drew up for the neceſſary Officers, and other Regulations fit to be obſerved in executing their Commiſſion: Other Orders, relating to the Committee, to the Treaſurer, to the Secretary, and to the Proſelytes.

In the beginning of this Commiſſion, the Commiſſioners laboured under very great Difficulties: The numbers of Petitioners amounting to above Fourſcore the firſt Month; the extreme Difficulty to know each Perſon's true Character; and who uncapable of getting their own Livelihood; how to diſpoſe of Eccleſiaſtical Proſelytes, which abounded; and above all to ſeparate the Tares from the Wheat, the true Proſelytes from the Cheats.

The Treaſurer's Account.

From the State of the Treaſurer's Accounts at the Cloſe of the Year, that is, from the 30th of April 1717, to the 30th of April 1718, it appears there hath been paid into his Hands,

The great Encreaſe of Proſelytes.

The Number of the Proſelytes encreaſes ſo faſt on the Commiſſioners Hands, that without ſome additional Supplies, it will be next to impoſſible to carry on this good Deſign. Which made the Commiſſioners apply lately to the Government, to have ſome Parts of the Eſtates forfeited (for having been applied to Superſtitious Uſes) ſet apart for the Encouragement of the Proteſtant Religion as by Law Eſtabliſhed, and for the Support of Converts from Popery.

The Religious Societies, their Riſe.

Beſides all theſe Societies before ſpoken of, there be the Societies termed The Religious Societies, voluntarily entred into by ſome good People of the City, on purpoſe to employ a Part of their Time in Religion, and to quicken one another in Good Things. Theſe had Methods and Orders to be obſerved among them. Which being laid before the late Queen, and the late Archbiſhop Tillotſon, were enquired into and approved by both; and greatly eſteemed by ſeveral of the Archbiſhops and Biſhops ſince. Theſe are ſuperior in Time to any of the other Societies, and perhaps gave occaſion to the reſt. The Beginning of them was thus: When in King Charles II's Time, there were many infamous Clubs of Atheiſts, Deiſts, Socinians, &c. ſet up; (too many of which, by their ſcandalous Lives, endeavoured to deſtroy all Senſe of Divine Things, and of the Difference of Good and Evil) Some ſerious Perſons of the Church of England thought it neceſſary to oppoſe the Proceedings, and formed themſelves into Societies that ſhould aſſiſt one another in their moſt holy Faith, and in a Practice agreeable thereunto. Theſe Conſiderations, and the like, brought together a conſiderable Number of pious Perſons about the Year 1680, who met often to pray, ſing Pſalms, and read the holy Scriptures together; and to reprove, exhort, and edify one another by religious Conferences. And their Number daily ſo encreaſed, that they made about the Year 1700, Thirty Nine Societies in and about London and Weſtminſter. And their Examples have been followed in divers Parts of this Nation, and in Ireland, eſpecially Dublin; where there were five or ſix Years ago about Ten Societies.

Societies of Young Men.

And laſtly, there be Societies of Young Men, that enter themſelves voluntarily into Companies, on purpoſe to preſerve and keep up in themſelves a Senſe of God: And have their ſet Meetings, both in private, for Religious Conference: Wherein they have the Counſel and Conduct of ſome grave pious Miniſter of the Church of England, for the directing of their Conſciences; and for the inſtructing of them in any Matters of Doubt or Scruple; for the better keeping of a good Conſcience both towards God and Man; and obſerving Juſtice and Truth in all their Dealings and Callings. And alſo meet publickly in ſome of the Churches of London and Weſtminſter, commonly on Sundays, at five or ſix a Clock in the Afternoon; where they have Lectures preached to them by ſome Godly Miniſters, appointed and paid by themſelves: And in ſome Places the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper adminiſtred to them.

The Charitable Proviſions for the Poor of the City.

Chap. 26.

Now in the next Place, becauſe ſhewing Compaſſion and the Works of Humanity, is ſo great a Point of Religion; and ſo may belong to the Spiritual Conſideration of this City: I ſhall proceed to ſhew what large Proviſion is made for the Poor and Needy, and the ſeveral Ways uſed for their Relief: Beſides the Publick Hoſpitals and Workhouſes mentioned in the firſt Book; and the great Store of Liberal Gifts, and many of them Annual, that belong to the ſeveral Pariſhes, and are peculiar to the Poor thereof.

To what Sum the Charity amounted formerly

Dr. Willet, in his Synop. Papiſm.

And firſt, to ſee what the Charity beſtowed upon the Poor in the ſeveral Pariſhes was in former Times, and what it is at preſent. It was computed by one that lived an hundred Years ago (in the beginning of the Reign of King James I.) to ariſe in the City and Suburbs to 5000 l. or 6000 l. by the Year; that is, reckoning 120 Pariſhes, and one Pariſh with another to give in Money, Bread, Fewel, &c. 50 l. per Annum.

Priſons and Compters.

But as to the preſent State of the City's Charities, the Priſons and Compters have conſiderable Donations ſent them Quarterly from the Companies of London; which were left by Benefactors, and intruſted to thoſe Corporations.

Private Charities.

Many well-diſpoſed Citizens do frequently ſend the Priſoners Relief, unknown who they be; and diſcharge poor Debtors, by agreeing with their Creditors, and paying their Debts, and ſetting them free. And ſeveral Miniſters in London, eſpecially ſuch as belong to the great Pariſhes in the Suburbs, that abound with poor Houſekeepers, have conſiderable Sums ſent them by good Chriſtians (often unknown) to diſtribute according to their Directions; and where they ſhall ſee moſt need.

Likewiſe the Bread that is found not ſizable, and the Fleſh brought to the Markets, that is not good, and ſo become forfeited, the Lord Maior is accuſtomed to ſend to the Priſons and Compters for the ſupply of the Priſoners there.

Bread, Cloaths, Fewel, Money, given.

There is almoſt in every Pariſh a Quantity of Bread weekly, or oftner, given to the Poor of the ſaid Pariſh, and Cloaths and Coals for Firing yearly beſtowed, and oftentimes Money too, for their Relief and Subſiſtence. So that by theſe Charities given by the Laſt Wills of Perſons deceaſed, as alſo by many of the Wealthier ſort that are alive; and by many Hoſpitals and Almshouſes, it is rarely or never heard of, that any die in this City merely of Famine, or periſh in the Streets for Want, as in many other Countries they do.

Collections in the Winter.

And for the better Supply of the poor Tradeſmen in the Dead of the Winter, when there is little Work ſtirring, and great need of Firing as well as Food, it is cuſtomary for the King or Queen, by the Motion of the Biſhop of London, or Lord Maior, to ſend their Letter to them, to take Order that a Collection be made through London and the Suburbs, and Lines of Communication in all the Pariſhes, and that the Officers go from Houſe to Houſe to gather every Man's Charity. And the King or Queen themſelves contribute alſo. And the Biſhop accordingly ſends his Letters to the reſpective Miniſters, with the King's or Queen's. Which Letters they read to the Congregation. Whereby ſome Thouſands of Pounds are ſeaſonably collected in the Depth of Winter, and brought into the Chamber of London, and divided again to every Pariſh according as they have need.

To give an Inſtance of theſe Letters in the Year 1715, when Sir Charles Peers was Maior.

To our Right Truſty and Well-beloved, Sir Charles Peers, Knight, Lord Maior of our City of London.

GEORGE R.

RIGHT Truſty and Well-beloved, We Greet you well. Being informed that the poorer ſort of our Subjects, in and about our City of London, do ſuffer great Hardſhips at this Time, and being graciouſly diſpoſed to do all that lies in Us for their Relief and Support: We have thought fit to ſignifie Our Pleaſure to the Right Reverend Father in God, John Lord Biſhop of London, that he take Care for Publication to be made in all the Pariſh-Churches within our ſaid City and Liberties thereof, the Lord's Day next following the Date of theſe Preſents; for the Church-Wardens and Overſeers of the Poor of each Pariſh, to collect the Benevolence of Charitable and Well-diſpoſed People, at their reſpective Dwellings within each Pariſh, for and towards the Support and Relief of our ſaid poor Subjects; and to cauſe the Money ſo collected to be paid immediately into the Chamber of London; to be diſtributed to the ſeveral Pariſhes, as You and the ſaid Lord Biſhop ſhall think fit and direct. And to the end Our Intention may be the more effectual, We have thought fit to recommend the ſame to You, that by your Encouragement and Endeavour, our good Subjects, inhabiting in our ſaid City and Liberties, may be induced to more than ordinary Demonſtration of their Compaſſion and Liberality on this Occaſion: And ſo We bid you farewel. Given at Our Court at St. James's the 21ſt Day of November, 1715, in the Second Year of Our Reign.

By his Majeſty's Command,

TOWNSHEND.

This was accompanied with the King's Letter to the Biſhop of London.

To the Right Reverend Father in God, Our Right Truſty and Well-beloved Councellor, John Lord Biſhop of London.

GEORGE R.

RIGHT Reverend Father in God, our Right Truſty and Well-beloved Councellor, We Greet you well. Being informed that the Poorer ſort of our Subjects in and about our City of London, do ſuffer great Hardſhips at this Time; and being graciouſly diſpoſed to do all that lies in Us for their Relief and Support; We have thought fit heartily to recommend it to You, and do hereby expreſly require you to take care that Publication be made in all the Pariſh-Churches within our ſaid City and Liberties thereof, the Lord's Day next following the Date of theſe Preſents; that the Church-Wardens and Overſeers of the Poor, do the Week following collect the Benevolence of Charitable and Well-diſpoſed People, at their reſpective Dwellings within each Pariſh, for and towards the Support and Relief of Our ſaid poor Subjects; and that the Miniſters in each Pariſh do effectually excite their Pariſhioners to a Charitable Contribution, and to cauſe the ſeveral Sums ſo collected to be paid immediately into the Chamber of London, to be diſtributed to the ſeveral Pariſhes, as the Lord Maior of our ſaid City and You ſhall think fit and direct. And that Our own Example may not be wanting, Our further Pleaſure is, That you call upon our Commiſſioners of our Treaſury for ſuch Sum of Money as We have directed and appointed to be paid to that End, and to diſpoſe the ſame as aforeſaid: And ſo We bid you heartily farewel. Given at Our Court at St. James's, the 21ſt Day of November, 1715, in the Second Year of our Reign.

By his Majeſty's Command,

TOWNSHEND.

In Obedience whereunto, this was the Biſhop's Letter to the City Clergy.

Reverend Brother,

HIS Majeſty has been Graciouſly pleaſed, as you will obſerve by the foregoing Letter, to anticipate the uſual Time for diſpenſing the annual Royal Bounty to the poorer ſort of People in and about this great and populous City, to the end that they may be relieved at the dead time of the Year, when their Neceſſities are moſt preſſing, and they leaſt able to help themſelves: My Duty it is, as you ſee, to require of you, that his Majeſty's Letter be read in your Church the firſt Lord's Day after the Date of it: And it is yours, to take the Occaſion to move your Hearers in the moſt preſſing manner, not only to render Thanks to God for this Pious and Charitable Example, which his Majeſty is pleaſed to give them, but alſo to imitate it, according to the Ability wherewith the Lord had bleſſed them. They can ſcarce need, at leaſt it is not poſſible you can want Arguments to convince them of the Duty of being ready to give, and glad to diſtribute; of the great Danger of with-holding their Charity, and even diſpenſing it grudgingly and of neceſſity, and of the many Bleſſings promiſed in the Word of God to the liberal and chearful Giver. Upon theſe Heads you will therefore take Care to enlarge, and be very earneſt with your Hearers; as alſo in your Prayers to God for his Bleſſing, as well upon your Endeavours, as upon all thoſe whoſe Charity ſhall be ſtirred up by them. I muſt alſo requeſt of you to notifie to thoſe appointed to make theſe Collections, that they uſe all requiſite Diligence, and that without delay what they have gathered be paid in; to the End the Diſtribution be made ſo ſoon and ſeaſonably, as to anſwer his Majeſty's pious Intention, and the Needs of thoſe that are to partake of his Charity.

JOH. LONDON.

His LETTER alſo ſoon after to his Clergy within the Bills of Mortality, to ſend in their Collections, was as follows.

REVEREND BRETHREN,

I Can't but hope you have already complied with his Majeſty's Pleaſure, lately ſignified to you, and earneſtly recommended and preſſed the making of ſpeedy Collections for the Relief of the Poorer ſort in and about this City: But it not yet appearing, that the Diſpatch required in tranſmitting thoſe Collections into the Chamber of London, in order to a ſpeedy Diſtribution thereof, has been uſed; I think it my Duty to put you in mind, that (as you have been told) his Majeſty's Gracious Intention is, That as well his own Royal Bounty, as the Charity collected in your Pariſhes, ſhould, without any delay, be applied to the Relief of the Neceſſitous, in this rigorous Seaſon of the Year, and Time of their great Need. And accordingly I can't but be very earneſt with you to take all poſſible Care that the ſaid Collections be paid in, on or before the Fifteenth Day of the next following Month, and that the ſame be done not only in Part, as in ſome Places has been practiſed, but in the Whole, according to the true Amount of the Collector's Liſts; to the end that the Light of this pious Work be not diminiſhed by defective Returns, to the Diſhonour of God, and the Diſparagement of the Charity of this great City.

To prevent this Abuſe, I think it moſt adviſable that You, together with three or four of the principal Inhabitants of your Pariſh, to be choſen by a Veſtry, or in other proper manner, do call for the Liſts of the ſaid Collections, and obſerve the Amount thereof, and take Care that the Whole be paid in to the Chamber of London, without any Defalcation upon what Pretext ſoever.

I muſt alſo add, that I very much wiſh and hope that You, my Brethren, together with the ſaid three or four of the principal Inhabitants of your Pariſh, will in the mean time be forming a Liſt of the ſeveral poor Houſekeepers and others, in your reſpective Pariſhes, for whoſe preſent Relief this Charity is deſigned; to the end, that when the Sum to be allotted to your Pariſh ſhall be ordered and received, you and the ſaid principal Inhabitants may be ready, immediately to ſubdivide and diſtribute it to the Parties.

And let it enter into your Hearts to believe and be aſſured, that this your Labour of Love will find a gracious Acceptance with our good God, to whoſe Mercy and Protection I commit you, and am,

Reverend Brethren,

Somerſet Houſe,
Dec. 29, 1715.

Your Affectionate Brother,

JOH. LONDON.

King George's Annual Bounty.

THE King's Annual Bounty towards the Relief of poor Houſekeepers in and about the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, is about 1000 l. which with 900 l. collected for the ſame Purpoſe in the City and Suburbs, Ann. 1717, was diſtributed in the Month of March.

Proviſion of Coal made for the Poor.

For the better providing for the Poorer ſort in reſpect of their Firing, in the Winter Seaſon eſpecially, this notable Care was taken by an Act of Common Council, in the Year 1665, to this Tenour: That for a conſtant Store and Proviſion of Seacoal, for ſupply of the City, and eſpecially for the Benefit of the Poor in Time of Dearth and Scarcity, (which hath often happened by reaſon of Wars and Troubles at Sea, or by the ſubtil Practices and Combinations of Retailers at Home, for their private Gain and Profit) it was Enacted, That, beſides the general Stock employed by this City for Proviſion of Coals for Benefit of the Poor, there ſhall be provided yearly hereafter at the beſt hand, between Lady Day and Michaelmas, by the ſeveral Companies of this City, the ſeveral Chaldrons hereafter mentioned: viz.

By the	Mercers,	488	Chaldron.
	Grocers,	675
	Drapers,	562
	Fiſhmongers,	465
	Goldſmiths,	525
	Skinners,	315
	Merchant Taylors,	750
	Haberdaſhers,	578
	Salters,	360
	Ironmongers,	255
	Vintners,	375
	Clothworkers,	412

And ſo particular Numbers of Chaldrons are appointed to every one of the reſt of the Companies, ending with the Glaziers.

And the ſaid Quantity of Seacoal, to be ſtored or laid up in convenient Places by every the ſaid Companies: And to be brought out, ſold and uttered at ſuch other hard and dear Seaſons of the Year, in ſuch manner, and at ſuch Price, as the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen ſhall judge moſt requiſite, and as by their Precept in Writing they ſhall direct; ſo as the Companies be not ordered to ſell the ſame Coals to Loſs.

Propoſals for a Charitable Fund.

There were Propoſals made by ſome Charitable Citizens, and ſet forth in Print, Anno 1706, for eſtabliſhing a Charitable Fund in the City by voluntary Gifts and Loans of Money, for theſe good and pious Purpoſes following: viz. To relieve Neceſſitous Perſons from the Oppreſſions and evil Practices of ill Men: To provide poor People within the Pariſhes of the Bills of Mortality, with Coal and other Neceſſaries at a cheap Rate in the Winter, and Times of War [or Dearth:]

Dearth :] To maintain thoſe that are not able to get their Livelihoods : To ſet other Poor to work : viz. In employing them to ſweep and clean the Streets and other Places within the ſaid Pariſhes, in clearing them from Beggars, in making convenient Walks, in repairing the Highways in the Avenues of the ſaid City, &c. after the manner of the Corporation of Guardians in the City of Briſtol.

Poor German Proteſtants fly hither, Anno 1708.

Ann. 1709.

The kind Entertainment of poor Strangers fled hither for Religion, deſerves to be mentioned here. Anno 1708, many Proteſtants of the Palatinate on the Rhine, by reaſon of Perſecution, conveyed themſelves over hither, whom Queen Anne graciouſly provided with all Neceſſaries, and ſent them over to our Plantations in the Weſt-Indies. And by this Encouragement, between two or three Thouſand more of the ſame Country, Men, Women, and Children, Anno 1709, came over, and appeared miſerable Objects in and about London, imploring her Majeſty's Protection. And Orders were given for defraying their Charges: And the Rope-houſes at Deptford, and other convenient Places, were prepared to receive ſome Hundreds of them that landed thereabouts. The reſt were diſpoſed of by the Care of ſome Charitable Perſons in and about St. Katharine's and Aldgate, and in Camberwel and Lambeth, ſeveral large Barns were hired for them. And the late Prince's Chaplains, the Miniſter of the German Congregation in the Savoy, and others, voluntarily preached and read Prayers to them two or three times a Week, according to the Forms of the Church of England, at the Churches of Aldgate and St. Katharine's. And they were much relieved by private Charities, beſides the Queen's.

Charity Schools.

There is yet another ſort of Charity in this City (maintained by the Society before mentioned, viz. for promoting Chriſtian Knowledge) very ſingular and extraordinary; the like whereof is hardly practiſed in any City of Chriſtendom beſides, and for which the Citizens concerned therein deſerve to ſtand upon laſting Record: And that is, the erecting of Schools in many Pariſhes of London and Weſtminſter, (eſpecially the great Pariſhes in the Suburbs) called Charity Schools, for the free Education of poor Boys and Girls, and alſo for their Maintenance in Apparel; and afterwards diſpoſing of them abroad in honeſt Callings.

Charity Schools in Wales founded by Citizens.

This Favour of the Londoners toward poor Children began divers Years ago in North and South Wales. When about the Year 1670 the Poverty and Ignorance of thoſe Parts raiſed a Compaſſion in the Hearts of many good Citizens (which muſt be recorded to their Honour:) So that they and their Intereſt contributed ſuch Sums of Money, as maintained a great number of poor Welch Children at School, to Read Engliſh, Write, and caſt Accompts. And Schools for that purpoſe were erected and ſettled in many Places in thoſe Countries. And this pious Practice ſo flouriſhed, that in the Year 1674, or 1675, Certificate was made, that in 86 of the Chief Towns and Pariſhes in Wales, 1162 poor Children were put to School, over and above 200 put to School the laſt Year by the Charity of others. And this Charity had already provoked divers Landlords, and Inhabitants of ſeveral Towns and Pariſhes in Wales, to put 863 of the pooreſt Welch Children to School upon their own Accounts. So that 2225 in all were already put to School to learn, as before.

Pious Books in Welch diſtributed there.

Truſtees.

Mr. Gouge.

And this Charity extended not only to the poor Children, but to the reſt of the poor Welch Inhabitants, to furniſh them with Chriſtian Knowledge. For by this Charity they had diſtributed freely among them a great number of pious Books tranſlated and printed in the Welch Language. So that in the Year 1674, there had been bought and diſtributed in ſeveral Families 32 Welch Bibles, and 479 Welch New Teſtaments: Which were all that could be bought up in London or Wales: Beſides 500 Whole Duties of Man, bought and diſpoſed in like manner. And 2500 Practices of Piety, with ſome Hundreds of other Licenſed Treatiſes, tranſlated into Welch, were then printing, and almoſt finiſhed; which were to be freely given alſo to the Poor People in thoſe Parts. This became a Truſt, and was committed to ſeveral eminent Miniſters of London; viz. Dr. Tillotſon, afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Dr. Whichcote, Dr. Simon Ford, Dr. Bates, Dr. Outram, Dr. Patrick, afterwards Biſhop of Ely, Dr. Stillingfleet, afterwards Biſhop of Worceſter, Dr. Fowler, afterwards Biſhop of Glouceſter, Mr. Durham, Dr. Meriton, Dr. Hezekiah Burton, Mr. Baxter, Mr. Matthew Poole, and Mr. Thomas Gouge, ſometime Vicar of St. Sepulchres, London. Which laſt alſo devoted himſelf and his Eſtate to this Service and Labour of Love: Going himſelf divers Years ſucceſſively into Wales from Place to Place, enduring in his old Age all the Fatigues of Travelling in that Mountainous Country, to over-ſee and manage this great Publick Work. There were alſo in the ſame Truſt ſome eminent Citizens of the Laity, as Thomas Firmin, Henry Norton, John Du Bois, and ſome few others. But this Charity, however it leſſened in Wales, afterwards began nearer Home: As I proceed now to ſhew.

Ann. 1704, theſe Boys and Girls met at Holborn Church.

It was a wondrous ſurpriſing, as well as pleaſing Sight, that happened June the 8th, 1704, when all the Boys and Girls maintained at theſe Schools, in their Habits, walked two and two with their Maſters and Miſtreſſes, ſome from Weſtminſter, and ſome through London, with many of the Pariſh Miniſters going before them, and all meeting at St. Andrew's Holborn Church. Where a ſeaſonable Sermon was preached by the Reverend Dr. Richard Willis, upon Gen. xviij. 19. I know him, that he will command his Children, &c. the Children being placed in the Galleries: They were about Two Thouſand, and each had a ſmall Piece of Paper faſtened to their Breaſts or Sleeves, ſhewing to what Pariſh they belonged; and a printed Paper in their Hands, giving an Account of theſe Schools. The Sum whereof was, That theſe poor Children were all taught; the Boys, Reading and Writing, and Caſting Accompts; the Girls, Sewing and Working: And alſo all diligently inſtructed in the Catechiſm, in which they are publickly examined in the Churches on the Lord's Day after the Evening Sermon. There were then fifty four of theſe Schools ſet up, and maintained, partly by voluntary Subſcription of annual Sums, partly by Collections made at the Church Doors after the Sermon, and partly by other Gifts. The Subſcriptions amounted to about 2164 l. Collections at the Sermons to about 1042 l. Gifts to each School from the beginning, 3199 l. 10 s. Boys and Girls put out Apprentices from theſe Schools, from the Beginning to the Year 1704, 306 Boys, 75 Girls. All theſe Schools were ſet up within the Space of eight or nine Years laſt paſt, except one or two, which were ſet up three or four Years before: Whereof one was that in Norton Folgate, and another that in St. Margaret's Weſtminſter.

The Beginning of theſe Schools.

The Beginning of this ſort of Charity was thus. Divers Miniſters, or other ſober Pariſhioners, obſerved abundance of Children in their Pariſhes deſtitute, and neglected in their Education, either by reaſon of the Poverty of ſome Parents, or the Careleſneſs as well as Poverty of others. This made them bethink themſelves of ſetting up Pariſh Schools for the Uſe of theſe Children, to bring them up in the Knowledge and Practice of the Chriſtian Religion, as profeſſed and taught in the Church of England; and likewiſe for the teaching them to Work, and accuſtoming them to Employment, both to prevent an Habit of Idleneſs, and to enable them to live honeſtly, and provide Subſiſtence for themſelves hereafter. Hereupon in ſome Places the Miniſter of the Pariſh himſelf made this good Motion to ſome of the diſcreeteſt of his Pariſhioners; and ſometimes two or three Pariſhioners propounded it to the Miniſters, and ſuch others of the Neighbours, who were more likely to eſpouſe ſo good a Deed, and to join with them. And when four or five had agreed thereon, they drew up the Deſign in a Roll of Parchment in a few Lines, ſhewing the great Need and ſpecial Uſefulneſs of ſuch a Courſe. And to this each ſubſcribed their Names, and the Sums by them promiſed to exhibit yearly, during Pleaſure, towards the Charge: And generally the Miniſter ſubſcribed firſt. And then ſhewing the ſaid Roll to others, they that pleaſed ſubſcribed alſo.

Rules and Orders for the Schools.

When this Deſign came to be more and more known, it met with very good Succeſs. Inſomuch that ſome Subſcribers have been able to ſet up a School in 7 or 8 Months Time. After Subſcriptions were thus finiſhed, they agreed upon ſettling certain Rules and Orders for the Governing the ſaid Schools, the better to effect the Ends of the Charity, for the Satiſfaction of all concerned, and that no Offence might be taken. They concluded upon divers good Rules for the Maſters that were to teach, and for the Scholars that were to learn. The Maſters to take particular Care to inſtruct the Children in the Church Catechiſm twice a Week, to bring them to Church twice every Lord's Day, with their Bibles and Common Prayer Books with them; to diſcourage and correct any Beginnings of Vice in them, particularly, Lying, Swearing, Curſing, and Profanation of the Lord's Day. The Children to wear always their Caps, Bands, Cloaths, and other Marks of Diſtinction; whereby the Truſtees and Benefactors might know them, and ſee what their Behaviour is Abroad.

The Subſcribers Time of meeting.

The Subſcribers meet at the School-Houſe every firſt Wedneſday after every Quarter Day. They have a Treaſurer and ſix Truſtees, always choſen on the Wedneſday in Eaſter Week; who, with the Miniſter, have the immediate Care and Government of the Schools. And they report the State and Condition of the Schools at their Quarterly Meetings.

The ordinary Charge.

The ordinary Charge of a School for 50 Boys Cloathed, is computed to come to about 75 l. per Annum. For which a School-Room, Books and Firing are provided, a Maſter paid; and to each Boy is given yearly three Bands, one Cap, one Coat, one Pair of Stockings, and one Pair of Shoes. The ordinary Charge of a School for 50 Girls Cloathed, comes to about 60 l. taking in the Rent of the School-Room, the Miſtreſs's Salary, Books and Firing, and Cloaths bought for them.

Anniverſary Sermons fo the Schools.

The Gentlemen concerned in promoting and upholding theſe Schools, have Anniverſary Sermons the Thurſday in Whitſun Week, preached by Divines of the eminenteſt Quality (at which all the Scholars are preſent) in order to the keeping up, and exciting to, this good Work. The firſt whereof was preached by Richard Willis, D. D. at St. Andrew's Holborn, as was ſaid before. The next Year, viz. 1705, on the Thurſday in Whitſun Week, this Anniverſary Sermon was preached at St. Sepulchre's Church (where it is ever ſince preached.) The Preacher then was George Stanhope, D. D. Dean of Canterbury. At the third Meeting Dr. Kennet, Archdeacon of Huntington, when near 3000 Children were preſent. Theſe Sermons are uſually printed for the more common Benefit. And at the End of them is given, An Account of the Methods, whereby the Charity Schools in the Parts of Great Britain and Ireland, have been erected and managed; and of the Encouragements given to them. And likewiſe a particular Account of the Schools in London and Weſtminſter, and a Liſt of thoſe erected elſewhere; with an Appendix of divers other things relating thereto.

But behold a particular Scheme of the Charity Schools, as they ſtood in the Year 1704, and much augmented ſince in the Number of them, as will appear by what follows.

Brought to the Publick Aſſemblies.

By White Kennet, D.D. at St. Sepulchre's.

THESE Charity-Children are conſtantly brought to the Publick Aſſemblies; in which they learn (to uſe the Words of the Sermon preached at their Anniverſary Meeting, An. 1706) “to behave themſelves with Awe and Reverence, under the Eyes of their Governours, and as in the Sight of God; praying, reading, ſinging, reſponding in ſo good an Order, that in many of our Churches theſe Charity-Children are a conſiderable Part of our Congregation; and are an Example to many of Grey Hairs. Adding, That the goodly Appearance of them here, often raiſeth up Benefactors to them. And the Auditors are ſo delighted with their good Performance, that they have gone home with Admiration, reflecting upon it with a freſh Comfort. And ſo God hath ſtirred up their Hearts to beſtow ſome conſiderable Gift or Legacy upon them.

Their Quarterly Exerciſes.

In ſome of theſe Schools they have Quarterly, on Sunday Evening, Exerciſes of Letters and Religion, in a moſt edifying manner. Some ſpelling the hardeſt Words: Some reading with an Emphaſis and clear Pronunciation: Others making Speeches, or holding Dialogues, or by turns rehearſing ſome choſen Parts of Scripture, or reciting ſome particular Clauſes in the Acts of Parliament, reſtraining Vice and Immorality.

Theſe Schools encreaſe yearly.

This kind of Charity employed for the Education of Poor Youth doth greatly take both in the City and Suburbs, and neighbouring Towns, and through the whole Nation: As appears from the yearly Encreaſe of theſe Schools, and the Numbers of Children taught there. For which Purpoſe let this Abſtract of the three following Years be obſerved.

To have an Idea of the Extent of this uſeful Deſign, it may be proper to conſider,

That, according to the above Eſtimate, the Number of Schools in London, and the Places adjacent, are in proportion to thoſe in the Country, as 1 to 9; but the Children taught in London are to thoſe taught in the Country, neareſt as 1 to 5. The Reaſon of which Difference is, becauſe there are generally 40 or more Children in the London Schools; but not above half that Number in the Country Schools, one with another.

By the Account of Charity Schools in and about London, there have been put out from them to Apprenticeſhips and Services, at leaſt	3915
And with regard to the abovementioned Proportions, it is not unreaſonable to ſuppoſe, that there have been ſent out from the Schools in the Country, about	19585

Note, In the Year 1712, the London Account of Schools being much ſwelled, ſeveral of the more diſtant Schools that could not attend the Anniverſary Meeting of the Children at London, were inſerted in the Account of Schools in their reſpective Counties: So that what was abated in the London Account that Year, was added to the Account of Schools in the Country.

Charity School Lectures, and Examinations.

To all that hath been told concerning theſe Charity Schools, it ſhall not be amiſs to add the ſeveral Lectures that belong to them, and the Examination of the Children therein taught. There be many Churches wherein ſuitable Sermons are preached, and Collections then made for the Schools: And there are ſpecial Times appointed, wherein the Scholars are publickly examined, for the Satisfaction of all ſuch as pleaſe to take notice of their Proficiency.

Letters ſent yearly from the Society to the Correſponding Members.

It hath been the Cuſtom of this Society to ſend yearly to their Correſpondents abroad in the Country, Accounts of the good Progreſs of theſe Schools, with particular Intelligence of their Affairs, and the Succeſs of the laudable Endeavours of this and other Religious Societies: And withal to convey to them divers little Books and Pamphlets, printed at their Charge, for the Uſe of Young Perſons and others, in order to the promoting Chriſtian Knowledge and Godlineſs. Thus in the Year 1715, this following was the Circular Letter ſent to the ſaid correſponding Members (one whereof the ſaid Society favoured me withal.)

LONDON HOUSE,
Dec. 3. 1715.

Reverend Sir,

THE Account of Charity Schools having increaſed to a large Volume, and the Variety of Methods uſed for promoting them in different Places, being in a manner univerſally known, from the Diſtribution which has been made of theſe Accounts to all Parts of the Kingdom, for above ten Years paſt, it has been now thought ſufficient to preſent the Well-wiſhers to this Deſign, with a View only of the Rules generally obſerved by the Truſtees, the Maſters, the Miſtreſſes, and the Children; the Number of Schools; and the Number of Children taught in them; diſtinguiſhing thoſe that are cloathed from thoſe that are not.

But in order to make this Method more compleat, it is requeſted, That you would not only inform the Society of the Number of Children generally taught at thoſe Schools, where the Account is ſilent for want of Information; but alſo of the Number of Children that have been educated, and placed out of all the Schools within your Knowledge from the firſt erecting of them; and that you would be pleaſed at the ſame Time to ſignifie, as near as you can, when each School was ſet up.

Husbandry and Services at Sea.

To prevent too great an Increaſe of Mechanick Tradeſmen iſſuing from theſe Schools, it has been wiſhed by ſome, that a greater Number than are provided for, were encouraged to go to Husbandry, or to Services at Sea; but the Circumſtances of Places being ſo very various, there is hardly any Rule can be adapted to all Places; except the recommending it to the Conſideration of the Truſtees of each School reſpectively, to regard, as much as they can, the Publick Intereſt, in the Diſpoſition they make of their Charity Children.

This Conſideration has induced ſeveral Perſons in the Seafaring Towns, to find means to teach ſome of the Children the Art of Navigation; and the Experiments that have been made in London have anſwered ſo well, that a charitable Gentleman has agreed to endow a School on purpoſe for teaching the Art of Navigation to ſuch Children as are of the brighteſt Parts, being ſelected out of the Charity School of St. Dunſtan's in the Weſt, and five or ſix other adjacent Schools.

There cannot well be a ſurer Indication of the Divine Bleſſing on the Deſign of theſe Schools, than that moſt of them have been ſet up, and liberally maintained, whilſt the Nation was engaged in a bloody and expenſive War. And that, notwithſtanding the unhappy Diviſions that have prevailed of late Years, it has pleaſed God ſo to order it, that they have very rarely affected the Charity Schools. And when a flouriſhing School has been threatened with a Diſſolution, from the intemperate Heats of thoſe that ſhould ſupport it, Providence has wiſely interpoſed, and made their Strife the Means of providing for a larger Number of Children, and ſupporting two Schools inſtead of one.

But to prevent the Miſchief that may accrue to this Deſign by our unreaſonable Animoſities, it is earneſtly recommended to you to diſcourage, as much as poſſible, all Party Diſtinctions in carrying on this Work; and to reſtrain the Children from aſſembling together in any rude or diſorderly manner, on Publick Days of Rejoicing; as being utterly inconſiſtent with that meek and ſubmiſſive Deportment to every body, which will render them amiable to all their Benefactors, however they may differ in their Sentiments..

Proteſtant Miſſionaries in the Eaſt Indies.

Progreſs of Religion at Malabar.

The Proteſtant Miſſionaries in the Eaſt-Indies continue their uſual Application to further the good Work they were ſent about; and do ſignify to the Society, in their Letter of the 17th of September, 1714, that 28 Perſons have been admitted by Baptiſm into their Communion laſt Year; that their Schools conſiſt of the ſame Number of Children as mentioned in their former Letters, viz. about Fourſcore; which are as many, or rather more than the uncertain Fund they have will afford to maintain; that their Congregation increaſes ſo, that they are in great want of a larger Building to receive them, as well as of Houſes to accommodate the Children under their Care, and to receive the Printing Preſs, the Foundry for Caſting of Letters, and the Artificers belonging to each; and that they hope for Aſſiſtance from England, to erect theſe Fabricks that are ſo neceſſary. They have finiſhed the Tranſlation of the New Teſtament into the Malabarick Language, and printed as far as the Four Evangeliſts and Acts of the Apoſtles, and are going on with the reſt. They have likewiſe begun to tranſlate the Old Teſtament into Malabarick; and have, partly by their own Labour, and partly from the help of others, made themſelves Maſters of a Copy of almoſt all the Books of the Old Teſtament, except the Apocryphal, tranſlated into Portugueze.

Notwithſtanding this happy Progreſs, it has been thought neceſſary, for the Service of the Miſſion, that one of the Miſſionaries ſhould come to Europe, to repreſent in Perſon what could not ſo well be done by Letter. And accordingly Mr. Ziegenbalgh being appointed for it, he is ſafely arrived at the Court of Denmark, where he has been graciouſly received by the King; and had ſuch Aſſurances of his Majeſty's Royal Favour and Protection, that he is now preparing to return by the next Ships to India.

Encouraged in Denmark.

Tranquebar.

How well the Court of Denmark are diſpoſed to countenance this Miſſion, may be better known from the King's own Directions about the Management of it; and the Sentiments of a College, or Society, which his Majeſty has lately erected at Copenhagen, on purpoſe to promote it; a Tranſlation of which you will find in a little Book ſent in this Year's Packet. Nor will you be leſs pleaſed to know the Induſtry and Zeal of the Miſſionaries at Tranquebar, from their Letter to the Reverend Mr. Lewis, late Chaplain to the Engliſh Garriſon at Fort St. George; a Tranſlation of which from the Portugueze, is likewiſe ſent in this Year's Packet.

Neufchatel.

The Reverend Mr. Oſtervald, an eminent Divine of the Church of Neufchatel, having tranſmitted to the Society a Work entituled, The Arguments of the ſeveral Books and Chapters of the Old and New Teſtament, with Practical Obſervations; and promiſed the ſame of the New: The Society is of Opinion, that it is highly deſerving to be recommended to all Families, as uſeful for promoting Chriſtian Knowledge; and have therefore procured the ſame to be tranſlated; which is now in the Preſs, and with all convenient Speed will be publiſhed by Joſeph Downing in Bartholomew-Cloſe, London.

The Daniſh Eaſt-India Miſſionary comes to the Society in London.

The Year 1716, the Circular Letters of the Society informed their Correſpondents, that in December laſt Mr. Ziegenbalgh aforeſaid, the principal Daniſh Miſſionary, who came the laſt Year into Europe, about Matters relating to the Proteſtant Miſſion (as was mentioned before) came to London, and received the Congratulations of the Society: To whom he made a Speech in Malabaric, ſuch was his Proficiency in that Language. Which he afterwards ſpake in Latin, and was anſwered again by another Speech in Latin by Nicolls, in the Name of the Society. Both which were ſoon after printed.

The laſt Letters the Society received from thoſe Parts did import, that ſuch as were formerly moſt averſe to encourage the Miſſion, were now become ſtrenuous Promoters of it. And that a Paper Mill was ſet up at Tranquebar, partly to employ the Children of the Heathen, and partly to anſwer the Ends of the Printing Preſs ſent thither by the Society.

A Charity School in Fort St.George.

As for other Parts of the Eaſt Indies, which are under the Engliſh, viz. Fort St. George, Bengal, and Bombay; the Engliſh Chaplains there exert themſelves in their Stations to encourage this laudable Deſign. And by the Favour of the Engliſh Government a Charity School is erected at Fort St. George for teaching, cloathing and wholly maintaining thirty Children of the poor Inhabitants of that Garriſon, upon ſuch a Foundation as gave Hopes of a conſiderable Enlargement.

Books by the Society printed and diſperſed.

I gave a Hint before of one Part of this Society's good Cuſtom, not a little expenſive, viz. of printing and diſperſing great Numbers of ſmall uſeful Tracts, for the furthering of Practical Religion. Such are the Anniverſary Sermons preached to the Societies; Liſts of the Charity Schools in Great Britain and Ireland; Accounts of theſe Schools diſtinctly: Theſe are printed yearly. The two laſt Years were printed, among others, The Practice of true Devotion; An Exerciſe to be uſed in the Charity Schools againſt Lying; An Exerciſe for theſe Schools, explaining the Nature of Confirmation; Orders to be obſerved by the Maſters and Miſtreſſes of theſe Schools; Prayers and Devotions to be uſed by the Children; The Hiſtory of the Bible; An Earneſt Exhortation to Houſe keepers, to ſet up the Worſhip of God in their Families; A Short Refutation of the principal Errors of the Church of Rome, &c.

The Society printing the Bible in Welch.

They have alſo been at the Charge of printing Books in other Languages, as in the Malabaric, for the uſe of that People. And now at this time they are printing the Bible and Common Prayer in Welch, for the Benefit of the poor People and Children in Wales. The Propoſal for doing it, having been recommended by the Society in their Circular Letter 1714, received ſuch Encouragement, that an Impreſſion of above 7000 Copies is now in hand with, and printing at the King's Printing-Houſe, and wrought off as far as the Book of Job incluſive.

Reformation of ſinging Pſalms in Churches.

And together with the other Particulars of the good Progreſs of Religion in London, it may deſerve a Place here, to mention what Reformation hath been of late made in ſinging of Pſalms in our Churches. Which Proteſtants were ever exerciſed in, as one of the great Parts of their Publick Devotions; to extol and praiſe our Great Maker by the joint Voices of the whole Congregation. This Part of Service had been wont to be performed very undecently, by the Unskilfulneſs of ſome of the Common People: So that in the Aſſemblies there would be nothing but Diſcord in Singing, and inſtead of Harmony, Confuſion; ſome ſinging in one Tune, and ſome in another, and ſome quite out of Tune; to the great Offence of the Devout Chriſtian, and Diſhonour of God. Inſomuch that in ſome Churches, that Part of God's Service was thought convenient to be wholly laid aſide, and no Pſalms in Metre to be ſung at all. Therefore to remedy this, Organs have been ſet up in many of the Churches, for directing thoſe that ſing, to keep Time and Tune. And Care hath been taken, that Maſters ſkilled in ſinging have been procured in moſt Pariſhes to teach the Youth Gratis, and any others that were willing to learn, to ſing tunable the ſeveral Tunes appropriated to thoſe Pſalms according to the Metre they are put into, and are printed and bound up at the End of our Engliſh Bibles. Whereby it is now come to paſs, that there is a great Amendment generally in the Churches in that Reſpect; and much better Melody to the Glory of God.

Commiſſioners for Augmentation of poor Miniſters Maintenance.

Farther, in favour to the Clergy, whoſe proper Office it is to miniſter to, and aſſiſt the Peoples Devotions, in this City of London or Weſtminſter, Commiſſioners for Augmentation of ſmall Livings ſit from time to time for the tranſacting this great Bounty of her late Gracious Majeſty Q. Anne, granting her Firſt-Fruits and Tenths for that good Uſe and Purpoſe. The Governours of this Noble Charity were, by the ſaid Queen's Letters Patents, made a Corporation by the Name of The Governours of the Bounty of Queen Anne, for the Augmentation of the Maintenance of the Poor Clergy. It bore Date the 3d of November in the third Year of her Reign; and it was opened the 14th of December at the Prince's Lodgings. The Commiſſioners were many; and among the reſt, the Lord Maior and Aldermen of London. The Lord Keeper was to iſſue out Writs of Enquiry, to find out the Value of the Livings in England and Wales of 80 l. a Year and under; their Diſtances from London; and which of them were Market Towns, and which not. Theſe Letters to be laid before the Commiſſioners, as capable of Augmentation.

Queen Anne's Bounty.

The Biſhop of London makes Enquiry for ſmall Livings in his Dioceſe.

The late Biſhop of London, not long after, ſent his Letters to the Rural Deans of his Dioceſe, (and to me among the reſt, for the Deanry of Barking) to ſend him up the Names of ſuch ſmall Livings, and their true Values, within their ſeveral Deanries, and to return them in to this Commiſſion.

What Progreſs is ſince made in this Royal Charitable Purpoſe, may appear by theſe Papers: Which were diſtributed to the Clergy by the preſent Biſhop of London's Order, at the Archdeacon's Viſitation at Rumford, April 27, 1714. The like, I ſuppoſe, diſperſed in the other Dioceſes by the reſpective Biſhops.

Fifty New Churches to be built.

To all which we muſt add the late pious Act of Parliament in the Reign of Queen Anne (a Princeſs ſo forward to further and countenance every good Motion) for the Building of Fifty new Churches within the City and Suburbs; ſo neceſſary for the keeping up of a Senſe of God, and his Publick Worſhip, among the People, too numerous to be received in the Churches and Chapels already built. For the more effectual finiſhing whereof, Commiſſioners are appointed. And who they are, may be read in the Preſent State of Great Britain. Page 640.

An hundred Chalder of Coals every Year brought into the Port of London for the Uſe of Chelſea Hoſpital, ſhall not be charged with this Duty.

The next Year, viz. 1712, 10 Annæ Reg. another Act was made in relation to the Fifty New Churches; intitled, An Act for Enlarging the Time given to the Commiſſioners appointed by her Majeſty, purſuant to an Act for granting her Majeſty ſeveral Duties on Coals, for building Fifty New Churches, and other Purpoſes therein mentioned: And alſo for granting the ſaid Commiſſioners further Powers for better effecting the ſame. By vertue whereof, the Time, limited by the Queen's Letters Patents mentioned, 9 April, being expired, was enlarged; and the Commiſſioners, or any Five of them, empowered to meet as often as they ſhall have Occaſion, and perform every thing in the former Act, and in this Act required, for building the ſaid Churches, until they have compleated the ſame.

Until ſuch Settlement can be made of the Right of Patronage, the Crown ſhall preſent upon any Avoidance.

The firſt and all ſucceeding Rectors of every new Church (except the preſent Preacher of a Chapel) ſhall be preſented, inſtituted, collated and inducted, as other Rectors are.

Some of theſe Churches now in building are, One in the Strand near finiſhed, another in Spittal Fields near Bricklane, another at Limehouſe, another near Ratcliff Highway. And ſome old Churches by vertue of this Act pulled down, and rebuilt and enlarged; as St. Mary Woolncth in London, that at Greenwich, and that at Deptford.

St. Giles in the Fields to be one of the Fifty.

A Petition was preſented to the Parliament ſitting January 1717, by ſome of the Pariſh of St. Giles in the Fields, that the ſaid Pariſh Church, which is old and ruinous, may be one of the Fifty Churches ſo appointed to be built. Which was granted.

A Piece of Ground in Oldſtreet purchaſed.

The Commiſſioners for building the Fifty new Churches did about the Month of January, Ann. 1717, purchaſe of the Ironmongers Company a Parcel of Ground in Oldſtreet for 1000 l. in order to erect a Church there; and were contracting for Materials to lay the Foundation; which is to be begun in the Spring, the Scite being already marked out.

There is alſo a Piece of Ground in St. Paul's Shadwel, allotted for one of theſe Churches.

The Scots Corporation, Ann. 1664.

I end this Chapter with an Account of another Charitable Society, erected for thoſe of the Scottiſh Nation here in London, reduced to Poverty and Need. The well diſpoſed wealthier ſort, Natives of thoſe Northern Parts of Great Britain, have by their Diligence and voluntary Contributions, raiſed a conſiderable Eſtate of yearly Income for that good Purpoſe. It is called, The Scots Corporation at London, founded by King Charles II. Anno 1664. The Occaſion this. A Perſon, Native of Scotland, about the Year 1664, in a Fit of Sickneſs, and in a Danger of Death, reſolved to communicate Part of what he had gotten by his honeſt Pains and Induſtry, to the Poor of his Country, whom he found to be numerous, and many of them under great Streights. But his Charity having a farther Proſpect, than for a preſent Supply to ſuch indigent Perſons, conſulted with ſome proper Perſons about laying a Method of a ſtanding Stock for ſuch Objects of Charity for future time. The Effect of this was, that Letters Patents were gotten for the erecting of a Corporation of Scots in London; whereby they might have the Privileges of a permanent and authorized Society. This they obtained by the Intereſt of the Earl of Lauderdale, then Secretary of State for Scotland.

By Letters Patents of 16 Car. II.

The Contents thereof.

An Hoſpital to be erected.

The Patent took Place the third of September 1665. This Patent recited a former Patent dated the 30th of June, 17 Car. II. allowing an Hoſpital to be erected within Weſtminſter, or the Liberties thereof, to be called The Scots Hoſpital of King Charles II. To be governed by eight honeſt Men, Natives of Scotland, and Inhabitants of London and Weſtminſter, or Liberties thereof. Out of which eight, one is yearly to be choſen the Thurſday day next after the Feaſt of St. Michael, by the major Part of the eight, for Maſter. Which Perſons, and their Succeſſors ſo elected, were declared a Corporation and Body Politick, impowered to purchaſe Lands and Moveables, &c.

This Patent, after Recital as above, of the firſt, granteth Leave to the Corporation to erect an Hoſpital within the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, or Liberties thereof; appoints eight honeſt Men, Natives of Scotland and Inhabitants of London, Weſtminſter, or Liberties thereof, for Governours of the ſaid Hoſpital; with Power to elect Aſſiſtants, not to exceed 33: All to be Scots Men, or of Scots Extraction. Which Aſſiſtants are yearly, on the 30th of November, called St. Andrew's Day, or the next Day after, to preſent to the Governours two of the Governours Number, who have not been Maſters, &c. out of the which two, the Governours, or major Part, to chooſe one for Maſter.

The Lands, &c. and Profits thereof to be applied to the Supportation of old, honeſt and decayed Perſons; and in inſtructing and employing poor Orphans, being all Scots, or come of Scots, but by no means of vagrant Beggars, or deſolate Perſons, &c.

The Charity of this Society to the Scots in the Plague Year.

One particular Inſtance of the Charity ariſing from this Corporation was, that during the Sickneſs Years, when their Beginnings were but ſmall, there were 300 Scots, or of Scots Extraction, who died of the Plague in and about London, buried at their Charge, with as much Decency as the Publick Calamity would permit. And many of the Infected were maintained, and taken Care of, until they recovered, and by God's Bleſſing the Contagion ceaſed.

Their Hall in Black Friers.

Wanting a Hall for their Meeting, at length, in the Year 1670, a pious Lady being told the good Uſe to be made of it, granted a Leaſe of the Ground to the Corporation for a Thouſand Years; ſituate in Black Friers.

Their Buildings; finiſhed, 1672.

After many Collections made, and voluntary Gifts, they were enabled gradually to build, firſt, Four Dwelling-houſes, which front the Street in Black Friers that leads to the River; with an Inſcription on the Frontiſpiece, declaring them to be for the Uſe of the Poor of their Country: And next, the Hall it ſelf, and a Houſe contiguous to it, with an Emblem of Charity cut in Stone upon the ſide of the Hall facing Fleet-Ditch. Which were finiſhed in the Year 1672. And afterwards another Houſe was built upon a Parcel of diſputed Ground, with a Kitchen and two Rooms over it, for a Dwelling-houſe for the Beadle; finiſhed in the Year 1676. The Charge of all amounting to about 4450 l. Sterling.

Benefactors.

There is a large Table, hung up in the Hall, of the Names and particular Benevolences of all thoſe that were Contributors.

In the Year 1718, the ſaid Society thought fit to publiſh in Print, the Original Deſign and Preſent State of this Corporation. To which is added, A Liſt of the Maſters, Aſſiſtants, Treaſurers, and all the Benefactors: From which I have extracted what is above written. Among the Benefactors is placed Gilbert, late Lord Biſhop of Sarum, a Native of Scotland: Who gave to this Corporation 30 l. and 5 l. per Annum.

CHAP. IV.

An Account of the Gifts and Charities committed to the Truſt of the Twelve Companies, and the Names of the Donors; Appropriated to Hoſpitals, Alms-Houſes, Free Schools, Livings endowed, Lectures, Exhibitions, Annual Gifts, &c.

THAT the extenſive Charity of this City may more appear, it is worth while to have recourſe to the ſeveral Companies of London; with which are entruſted very ample Donations, by ſuch as have been Members of thoſe Companies, or others, confiding in their Faithfulneſs and Integrity: Which are yearly, or otherwiſe, to be diſtributed for ſuch and ſuch Charitable Uſes, according to the Wills and Directions of the Benefactors. And for this Purpoſe, with no ſmall Pains, I have gotten a brief Account of the Charities lodged in the Twelve Companies (except ſome few more modern) with the Names of the ſeveral Benefactors; which will appear in the Tables following.

N. B. Thoſe that have this Mark (†) before their Names, were the largeſt Benefactors.

The yearly Diſburſements of this Company in Charities amounts to 3000 l. or thereabouts.

From ——— Eſſington, Eſq; Clerk of this Company.

SINCE this Scheme, Mr. Crump, belonging to the ſaid Secretary, communicated to me the Account following, viz. of two later Benefactions, entruſted with this Company.

Poor Men and Women to be diſcharged out of the Priſons of Ludgate, Woodſtreet-Compter, and the Poultry-Compter, by Mr. John Rand's Gift, of the Moiety of three Freehold Meſſuages or Tenements in Towerſtreet, not exceeding 40 s. to each Priſoner, ſo far as the neat Profits of the ſaid Houſes ſhall extend; deducting 4 l. per Annum for the Maſter and three Wardens, for their Trouble in attending to ſee the Charity honeſtly diſtributed——— as per his Will, dated 27 Aug. 1706.

Mr. John Kellesby's Will, dated 4 Aug. 1709. wherein he gives to the Worſhipful Company of Mercers 120 l. to be paid them after his Wife's Death; deſiring that the Intereſt or Profits thereof may be annext to, and go towards the Augmentation of the Salary belonging to the Maſter of Mercers Chapel School for ever.

The Mercers Benefactors to Catharine Hall:

Catharine Hall, a College in the Univerſity of Cambridge, hath formerly partook of ſome liberal Benefaction from this Company of Mercers. In perpetual Remembrance whereof, they do ſend cuſtomarily, time out of mind, one of their Members yearly, to preach a Sermon on Good Friday before the Company at their Chapel. Beſides which ancient Benefaction, the ſame Company have been bountiful Benefactors to them of later Times, in aſſiſting them with their Charity in their new Buildings. And that the World may know as well the Liberality of the Society of Mercers to the ſaid College, as the grateful Acknowledgment of the College to the Society, I will here repeat what was once on Good Friday, in the Year 1688, ſaid by my ſelf; who was both a Member of that College, and educated at their School at St. Paul's, and received one of their beſt Exhibitions, when I removed thence.

Remembred yearly on Good Friday, in the Chapel.

"Before I proceed farther, Gratitude and Ingenuity oblige me to declare the Cauſe of my " preaching this Sermon. God hath uſually " raiſed up Benefactors to Learning. The Honourable Company of Mercers have been eminently ſuch to Catharine Hall, that ancient Seminary of good Learning in the Univerſity of " Cambridge. They have of late ſhewn themſelves " ſuch, in a very noble piece of Munificence toward the expenſive new building of the College: Beſides what particular Members of the " ſame worthy Society have generouſly done. " But that was not the firſt time the Mercers " have been Friends to that College. For anciently, beyond our Memory, they have been liberal unto the ſame. For which, as a laſting " Remembrance of their Benefaction, the ſaid " College is obliged to ſend them a Preacher " yearly on Good Friday, to commemorate in this " Place the great Benefaction of Jeſus Chriſt to " the World, in giving himſelf for it.

"This Burthen is now caſt upon me, being " one of thoſe that owe my Education to that " Houſe. And indeed I was the readier to undertake it, in regard of my own private Obligation to the ſaid Honourable Company; " having been bred in a famous School in this " City, ſtill flouriſhing under their Patronage; " and having for divers Years received from them " a fair Exhibition towards the Maintenance of " my Studies, at my Election from their ſaid " School to the Univerſity. Which I muſt never " forget; and am very glad of this Opportunity " of making a Publick Acknowledgment of the " ſame.]

Among theſe ought to be numbred Drugo Barentine, Maior, An. 1398. Who is ſaid to have given fair Lands to the Goldſmiths.

 Mr. Strelly abovenamed in this Catalogue of Benefactors, beſides many liberal Gifts to the Company for Charitable Uſes, inveſted them in an Eſtate of 5 or 600 l. per Annum, with this Truſt, To make a Leaſe of it to a Relation of his own Name for fourſcore and nineteen Years, if he ſhould live ſo long. And upon his Deceaſe the like Leaſe to his Heir for fourſcore and nineteen Years, if he ſhould live ſo long; and ſo ſucceſſively. By which politic Means this Eſtate is perpetual to the Family, and is put out of the Power of a Spendthrift to alienate it, or to cut off the Entail, and ſo beggar the Poſterity. And of this ſome of the Heirs are ſo ſenſible, that when they have come to the Company for their Leaſe, they have thanked God, that put it into the Heart of their Anceſtor ſo to tie the Eſtate; which otherwiſe, they have acknowledged, ſuch an extravagant Father or Relation, that went before, had certainly deſtroyed; as John Smith, Eſq; a late worthy Member and Benefactor of the ſaid Company hath related to me.

The Charities by theſe abovenamed given, are ſome for the Relief of the Poor of this Company, ſome for the City Hoſpitals, ſome for the Poor of certain Pariſhes, but chiefly St. John Zachary's, where formerly the Goldſmiths eſpecially lived, and where the Hall ſtands. Beſides the other Charities for Schools, Almeſhouſes, Exhibitions, &c. already mentioned.

The Diſburſements of this Company in Charities amounts to about 1400 l. per Annum.

Drawn up by Mr. Chaſe, Clerk of this Company.

So

The Companies Charities ranked under three Heads.

So that, in fine, from theſe foregoing Tables we may obſerve, that the Companies Charities conſiſt principally in theſe three Ranks of good Works: viz. 1. In the Sums of Money lent to poor Tradeſmen. 2. In yearly Relief to the Poor. 3. In Exhibitions to Scholars ſent to either Univerſity.

Sy nopſ. Papiſ.

If any be curious to know, whether, and how theſe Charities do encreaſe in the City, he may be aſſiſted in his Enquiries by taking notice what they were near an hundred Years ago, as they are ſet down by Dr. Willet. Viz. Of the firſt ſort, viz. the Loans of Money in thoſe Times from the Companies, might be gueſſed to be about 30000 l. per Annum; unleſs there be added one Cypher too much by the Fault of the Printer. The ſecond ſort of their Charities, viz. Almes Gifts to poor People, might be ſet at 1200 l. by the Year. And thirdly Exhibitions (not ſo few as Eighty Scholars being then maintained at both Univerſities) might be rated at 300 l. per Annum. I leave the ingenious Reader to make his Calculations hence, in what Proportion theſe Charitable Gifts are now advanced and augmented, beyond what they were in thoſe Days.]

THE Temporal Government.

CHAP. V.

Of the Temporal Government of this City. PORTGRAVES, MAIORS, SHERIFFS, ALDERMEN: Divers Remarks concerning them and their Privileges: Their Election in former Times: Controverſies of late about Election of Sheriffs, ſettled by an Act of Common Council, Anno 1703. Their Cuſtoms: and the Exerciſe of their Offices.

A Scheme of the Relation of the Temporal Government. J. S.

NOW from the SPIRITUAL we proceed to the TEMPORAL Government of our City: Wherein many Things are to be ſhewn. And firſt, ſuch as are more General, and then more Special and Particular.

Under this firſt Part ſomething is to be ſpoken of the Temporal Government by the Chief Governours. Then ſhall be given a continued Catalogue of the Chief Annual Magiſtrates, Maiors and Sheriffs, fetch'd from the earlieſt Memory, to the preſent Time. Deſcending next to the Aldermen, and the reſt of the City Officers. Then, to the Cuſtoms to be obſerved by theſe Magiſtrates of the City upon Feſtival Days, and other ſolemn Times throughout the Year. Then ſhall be declared the ſeveral Corporations and Societies, which we commonly call The Companies of the City: Which ſubordinate Government contributes much to the peaceable, flouriſhing and good Order of the Whole. From theſe more general Matters, the Diſcourſe ſhall proceed to the Laws, Uſages, and Cuſtoms, and divers other more particular Relations of things remarkable pertaining to this City.

This Government of the City is by a Maior, two Sheriffs, ſix and twenty Aldermen of as many Wards, into which the City is divided or parted out: Each having ſubordinate Officers under them. The Recorder alſo is a great Officer, and of great Uſe.

The Government by Maior, Sheriffs, Aldermen.

To thoſe who are inquiſitive into the ancient Government of the City, it will be acceptable, to ſhew them, who and what theſe Magiſtrates were in former Times; their Election; their Power; their Buſineſs, with remarkable Events happening to them. Theſe we ſhall ſet down as we have found them in ſome authentic Writings, in the Records of the City, or the Tower, or the Exchequer. The more modern State of theſe chief Rulers will follow in due place.

MAIOR.

AND firſt we begin with the Maior. He is chief and principal Magiſtrate, and the King's immediate Locum tenens, i. e. Lieutenant or Deputy in the City of London; ſo conſtituted from and before the Time of William the Conqueror; yet going under various Denominations. That King called this his Lieutenant in the ſame City by the ancient Name PORTGRAVE, as appears by his Charter, the Tenor whereof is in the Book of Cuſtoms.

Fol. 187.

PORTGRAVE, or Portgreve,

Portgrave. Lib. Albus Lib. Cuſtomar. fo. clxxxvij.

A SAXON Word, as appears from the ſaid Book of Cuſtoms: Port ſignifying a City: Grave in the ſame Saxon or Teutonic or Almain Tongue, Comes, a Count or Earl; ſounding, the Earl of the City. Whence the Honour due to a Count, as well in the King's Preſence as elſewhere in London, was due to this chief Officer, while he was in his Office. And thence is the reaſon of the Sword being carried before him. The Names of ſeveral of theſe Portgraves will be mentioned in due place.

Afterwards the People called him Portreve, but corruptly, for Portgreve, for the word Reve debaſeth this great Officer, ſignifying no more in Saxon than Villicus, i. e. Bailiff.

I find the chief Magiſtrate was called Portgrave, Anno 1184. For 31 Hen. II. there was a Patent granted the Weavers, wherein the Portgrave or principal Magiſtrate was ordered to burn certain Cloth, weaved with Engliſh and Spaniſh Wool mixed.

Juſticer.

This Officer was intitled by Henry the Son of King William, JUSTITIARIUS in his Charter. Wherein he granted the Citizens the County of Middleſex to Farm, granting them therein a Licence to chooſe Juſtitiarium de ſeipſis ad cuſtodienda placita Coronæ ſuæ: i. e. A Juſticer of themſelves, to keep the Pleas of his Crown. And hence this Officer is ſo ſtiled in the Book of Cuſtoms.

Maior.

Lib. Cuſtom. fol. lxxxix.

In the Charter of King Henry, Son of King John, the Governour of London begun to be called MAIOR. For ſo it ran, Sciatis nos conceſſiſſe, &c. “Know ye that We have granted, and by Our “preſent Charter have confirmed to Our Barons “of Our City of London, Quod eligant ſibi MAJOREM: i. e. That they may chooſe to “themſelves a MAIOR out of themſelves each “Year, who may be faithful to Us, diſcreet and “fit for the Government of the City.

Chamberlain.

Lib. B. f. 3, 9 & mult. ſeq.

Lib. B. fol. xxxviij.

Maior and Chamberlain of the City formerly were the ſame. For Sir Gregory de Rokeſlee, Maior, was called CHAMBERLAIN, as appears in the Book B. And when Henry le Galleys, Maior, took a Journey towards Lincoln, about earneſt Buſineſs of his own, and he put in his place William de Bethonia and Geffry de Norton, they were called in the King's Letter Camerarii Civitat'; i. e. Chamberlains of the City. And it appears in the ſame Book, that the Maior ſupplied the Office of Coroner under the name of Chamberlain of the City.

Cuſtodes.

Lib. C. fol. lxxxiiij.

There were once four Cuſtodes or Keepers of the City, choſen by the Aldermen and other Citizens, by vertue of a Letter from King Edward, Son of King * Edward, the 34th Year of his Reign, under

* Miſtaken for K Henry.

Anno. 1306.

under his Privy Seal ſent to them to chooſe four Cuſtodes pro tempore, i. e. for the time; wherein John le Blount Maior ſhould be a Soldier in the Company of Edward his eldeſt Son. And Richerus de Reſham, John le Wengrave, Walterde Finchingfeld, Will. de Combmarten, Thomas Romain, and Nicholas de Fardon, Aldermen, were by Vertue of that Letter choſen Keepers of the City in the room of the Maior pro tempore. [Here be four, and two over: It may be for the King to chuſe four out of this Number.]

In Chronicis Majoris. Lib. Horn.

The Cauſe of the City's being Governed by a Cuſtos.

Ann. 1280, [1286] 14 Edw. Son of Henry, Gregory de Rokeſly Maior, the Sheriffs and Aldermen and other the great Men of London, were ſummoned to appear in the Feaſt of the Apoſtles Peter and Paul, before John de Kirkeby Treaſurer, and other Juſtices of the Lord King, in the Tower of London, to make Inquiſition. Then the ſaid Gregory the Maior by Counſel, at Berking Church depoſed himſelf, and laid down his Maioralty, and delivered the Common Seal of the City to one Stephen Aſwy and other Aldermen. And ſo entred the Tower with the reſt, not as Maior, but as an Alderman and Neighbour of the Citizens: alledging for the City, that by ancient Liberties, they were not bound to go into the Tower of London to make Inquiſitions, nor to appear there pro judicio, unleſs they were warned forty Days before.

Maiors Office and the Liberties ſeized.

Eighty Citizens arreſted at Weſtminſter, and more impriſoned

Cuſtodes appointed.

Whereupon the ſaid John Kirkeby ſeized the Maior's Office and the Liberties of London into the King's Hands, becauſe the City was without a Maior. Whereupon the Citizens afterwards appearing before the King at Weſtminſter, were arreſted to the number of eighty Men, and the reſt of the Citizens that were the Day before with the Maior at Berking Church and the Tower, were impriſoned. But all were ſet at liberty the fourth Day after, except Stephen Aſwy. And the King gave them a Cuſtos in place of their Maior, Viz. Sir Radulph de Sandwico Knight, and commanded him that he ſhould keep and govern the Citizens according to their Cuſtoms and Liberties. This Cuſtos remained in the Office of Cuſtos till the next Day after the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin, Anno 14. And John Breton, Cuſtos, ſucceeded him unto the Feaſt of St. Margaret, 15. An. And then again Ralph de Sandwich was made Cuſtos, and continued many Years, viz. to the 22*th* incluſive. [Yet not Cuſtos every Year during that Space.]

Dict. Libr. & in fin. Libr F.

Sheriffs appointed by the Treaſurer and Barons.

Under which Cuſtody, Sheriffs were ſometimes aſſigned to the City by the King's Treaſurer and the Barons of the Exchequer; becauſe the Liberties of the City were ſeized into the King's hand. And ſometimes they were choſen by the Citizens. Afterwards 18 Edw. Son of Henry, in the room of the ſaid Ralph, ſucceeded again Sir John Breton, continuing to the twenty ſixth Year incomplete [yet not Cuſtos every Year during that Space.] Of this Man it is written, how he called together the Aldermen and Six of the better and diſcreeter of each Ward, declaring to them, how in the King's Abſence he had been appointed Cuſtos by Lord Edward the King's Son, and by other Lords; by whom it was commanded him by an Oath impoſed upon him, that he ſhould keep inviolate all the Liberties and ancient Cuſtoms, as the Citizens were of old accuſtomed to have and enjoy: and that he ſhould be in all things as Maior, except the Name: and that he ſhould bear the Name of Cuſtos inſtead of the Name of Maior.

Lib. B. Fol. xxxv.

Declaration of the Cuſtos by the King's Order.

The Common Seal of the City.

Whence it ſeems that the Common Seal was heretofore in the Cuſtody of the Maior ex officio, as his proper Office, until the Citizens obtained of the King, that the Common Seal of the City ſhould remain in the Cuſtody of two Aldermen and two other Commoners, to be choſen by the Commoners of the City, &c. as in the Charter of the ſame King Edward Son of King Edward, [Henry] made to the Citizens Anno 12. of his Reign.

Lib. Cuſtom fol xciiii.

Maiors reſtored to be Elected by the City.

In the twenty ſixth Year of the ſame King, Wedneſday in Eaſter Week, all the Aldermen and other honeſt Men of the City were before the King at Weſtminſter. And there the King with his Council granted them the Election of the Maior. And they the Friday next following with twelve Men of each Ward, choſe Henry de Galeys for Maior. Who Wedneſday next at the next Court, was preſented to the King at Fulham, and was accepted. Thurſday next following he was admitted, and ſworn before the Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer at Weſtminſter. And the next Day being Friday, he took his Journey towards Lincoln, for the diſpatching of his urgent Affairs, and put in his room William de Beton, and Galfrid de Norton, as appears in the Book B.

A Maior goes to Lincoln.

Lib. B. fo. 3

There were then two Commiſſions from the King directed: one to Sir John Breton, to reſign his Office of Cuſtos or Keeper; the other to the Citizens to chuſe a Maior.

Libr. B. fol. xxxviii.

But this that followeth is remarkable. Becauſe the ſaid Appointment of a Cuſtos or Keeper and Seizure of the Liberty of the City into the King's hand for the Tranſgreſſion of one Perſon, ſeemed rather Voluntaria quam legitima; i. e. proceeding from his Will, than any Law: therefore leſt this ſhould happen to prejudice the City again, our Lord King Edward III. granted by his Charter exemplified in the Book F. "That for any perſonal Tranſgreſſion or perſonal Judgment of any Miniſter of the ſame City, the Liberty of that City ſhould not be taken into the Hands of the King or his Heirs, nor a Cuſtos be deputed on that Occaſion in the ſame City.

The Liberties not henceforth to be ſeized for any Perſonal Tranſgreſſion.

Fol. cv.

The Office of the King's Eſcheator in London was anciently diſtinct, but now comprized in the Maior's Office: as appears by the Charters of King Edward III. to the City, Annis 1. and 15 Now proceed we to Eſcheator's Office in the Maior.

The Election of MAIORS, as alſo SHERIFFS.

OF ancient Time there uſed to be a great Conflux of Citizens at Guild-hall to theſe Elections. Whence aroſe great danger of Tumults and Diſturbances. For the preventing whereof, the Maior and Aldermen uſed to meet ſome Days, before the Day for the Election of the Maior, (as likewiſe of the Sheriffs) as they are wont now to meet and to confer together, how the Election ſhould be managed peaceably without popular Tumult and Murmur. Hence out of every Ward they ſummoned ſome more diſcreet and ſufficient Citizens to make up ſuch a Number as to them ſeemed competent. Who were cited by Name, to preſent at the Election of the Maior on St. Edward King and Confeſſor his Day.

Certain diſcreet Perſons out of every Ward to Elect

Election on St. Edward's Day.

And becauſe many times on the Day of Election, People not ſummoned crowded into Guild-hall, the Maior and Aldermen ſometimes, by the Authority of their Offices, as appears in one of the Books; and ſometimes of the Kings Writ, they cauſed to be proclaimed on St. Edward's Eve through the City, that none ſhould under a great Penalty come on the Morrow to Guild-hall at the Time of the Election, unleſs more eſpecially cited.

Lib. F. fol. ult.

Lib. D. fo. & Lib E. fo 41. &c.

And ſometimes againſt the Time of an Election of a Maior, the King himſelf iſſued out his Letters for a Proclamation, Quod Electio fiat ſine tumultu & ſtrepitu populari; & quod nemo interſit, qui jus non habeat ſuffragii: i. e. That the Election be made without Tumult and Noiſe of People; and that none be preſent who have not a Right of Voting. And ſuch an Order was made 8 Edw. II. for for the Election of both Maiors and Sheriffs; that it ſhould be done modo congruo & conſueto, ſine populari ſtrepitu & tumultu. i. e. in the agreeable and accuſtomed manner, without popular Noiſe and Diſturbance.

And that you may ſee what great Reaſon there was for this Order, and what ſeditious Meetings and Cabals of the Ordinary Sort uſed to be got together againſt the Time of Elections, and the Danger of Inſurrections occaſioned thereby, I ſhall produce a Letter of King Edward II. in the ſame eighth Year of his Reign, (taken from the Records of the Chamber) Commanding that none be preſent at ſuch the Elections, but ſuch as ſhould be ſummoned, to prevent Confuſions.

King Edward to the Maior, for quiet and orderly Elections. Lib. Horn fo. 332. b.

EDWARDUS Dei gratia, &c. EDWARD by the Grace of God, &c. To the Maior and Sheriffs of London, Greeting. Whereas by the Charters of our Progenitors, Kings of England, it was granted to our Citizens of our City aforeſaid, that they ſhould chooſe a Maior and Sheriffs from themſelves, when they would; and preſent them (We not being at Weſtminſter) to the Treaſurer and Barons of our Exchequer; and there to be admitted according to Cuſtom: And ſuch Election by the Maior and Aldermen and more diſcrete Perſons of the ſaid City, ſpecially ſummoned and warned for this Purpoſe, hath been accuſtomed in former Times: And now We have underſtood, that ſome of the Popular and Plebeian ſort, making a Conſpiracy among themſelves, cauſing Contentions, Differences, and innumerable Miſchiefs Day and Night in the ſaid City, and making among them clandeſtine Conventicles in private Places, and being not called nor ſummoned, do thruſt and mingle themſelves of their own accord into ſuch Elections; and by Threatnings and Clamours hindring the due making of ſuch Elections, endeavour to chooſe ſuch as for Time to come may favour their Errors; that their Wickedneſs by Defect of congruous Government may paſs unpuniſhed, under Diſſimulation, by ſuch Perſons ſo elected, to the Hurt of our Crown and Dignity, and the Subverſion of the State of the foreſaid City, and the manifeſt Oppreſſion of our Citizens, abiding in it:

WE willing to provide for the Quiet and Tranquility of the People under us, as We are bound; and to meet with ſuch Malice, COMMAND, firmly enjoyning you, that before the Time of the Election of the Maior and Sheriffs next to be choſen, Ye cauſe it to be publickly proclaimed through the whole City, and firmly to be forbid, that none, unleſs he ſhall be to this eſpecially called or ſummoned, or is bound thereto, come thither at the Time, nor intrude himſelf in making the Election, nor hinder it any way, under Pain of Impriſonment: From which he may not eſcape without our ſpecial Command. And that the foreſaid Election be made by the Aldermen and other the more diſcrete and powerful Citizens of the ſaid City, as in the ſame it hath been anicently accuſtomed to be done. Taking notice for the future, that if ye ſhall preſent any Elect otherwiſe than is mentioned before, to the Treaſurer and Barons of our Exchequer aforeſaid, We will by no means admit them. Witneſs My Self at Weſtminſter the fourth Day of July, in the eigth Year of our Reign.

By Vertue of which Brief of the King, there was a Proclamation made to the ſame Purport: beginning thus in French, Pour ceo que noſtre Seigneur le Roi ad entendre, que aucune gent du poeple de ſa Citee, &c.] e Origi- Method Elections Maiors Sheriffs.

Briefly therefore concerning the Original of the Elections of Maiors and Sheriffs and the Practice thereof from time to time, theſe things may be here obſerved. At firſt they were made tumultuouſly by all the Citizens without reſtraint. Which occaſioned great Uproars and Diſturbances. Wherefore theſe Magiſtrates were choſen afterwards by ſo many of the diſcreteſt and wealthieſt Men out of each Ward, ſometimes more, ſometimes leſs. And this ſelect Number was called The Commonalty. The Election by theſe peculiar Men laſted from Edward I. (and probably began before) unto Edward IV. And then after ſome Time in his Reign, the Election was by the Liveries of the Companies: and ſo the Number of Electors encreaſed. And of later Times (viz. in the Times of the Uſurpation) an attempt was made, that all Freemen of the City in general ſhould have a Power of electing. This may be ſeen more at large from the Collections of Dr. Brady out of the City Books, which I ſhall abbreviate thence.

Lib. A. B. C. Dr. Brady's, Collect.

The firſt Commonalty in theſe Books mentioned, was made up of two Perſons in every Ward. And theſe were choſen by the good Men of the reſpective Wards: the good Men, that is (as that word is in thoſe Books varied and explained) the diſcreter, wiſer and better ſort of the Ward. Afterwards the Number of this Commonalty amounted to more than two, viz. to four, to ſix, even to twelve, to be taken out of every Ward: out of ſome Wards more, out of ſome leſs, according to the Bigneſs of it; and this as the Maior in his Summons to the Ward directed and appointed the Number. But notwithſtanding this ſtinted Number, more Citizens ſometimes would crowd in, to give their Votes at theſe Elections: Which as it once occaſioned a Letter from King Edward II. to forbid it, as was ſhewn before, ſo King Henry VI. in the twenty ſecond of his Reign ſent to the City to the ſame Intent: Purporting, that tho' according to Cuſtom the Maiors uſed 'To be choſen by the Aldermen and certain more diſcrete Perſons of the ſaid City, ſpecially ſummoned and warned for that purpoſe; yet ſome that had not, nor ought to have, any Intereſt in ſuch Elections, came, and with their Noiſe and Clamour diſturbed them; with intention to chooſe ſuch who might afterwards favour their evil Doings and Errors. He therefore willing to provide for the Quiet and Peace of his Subjects, and to apply a ſuitable Remedy on this behalf, did command aud firmly enjoyn the Maior and Sheriffs to make Proclamation through all the City and Liberty, before the time of the Election of the Maior, ſtrictly forbidding, that none be preſent at ſuch Election, or any way, or under any colour, thruſt himſelf into it, but ſuch as by right, and according to the Cuſtom of the City ought to be there: And that ſuch Election be made by the Aldermen and other, of the more diſcrete and able Citizens, eſpecially warned and ſummoned according to the Cuſtom aforeſaid. Letting them know for certain, that if any, ſome other way elected, were preſented to him, or his Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer, they would by no means admit him. And that they ſhould arreſt and commit to Priſon all thoſe who ſhould act contrary to the ſaid Proclamation and Prohibition.

Maior and Sheriffs choſen in Edward I. his time.

In the twenty ninth Edw. I. John Blund was choſen Maior (a) by the Common Council of Elye Ruſſel then Maior, and the Aldermen there named: and the Sheriffs, with the Aſſent of twelve honeſt Men of each Ward. (b) In the thirty firſt of the ſame King, as alſo in the thirty ſecond and thirty third, John Lincoln and John Blund the third and fourth time choſen by twelve good and lawful Men ſummoned of every Ward.

a) Lib. C. f. 62. b.

b) Ib f. 111, 112, 113.

(c) Lib. C. fo. 111. b.

In that thirty firſt Year Will. de Coumb-Martin and John de Burford were (c) elected Sheriffs by the Maior and Aldermen, in the preſence of twelve of each Ward, ſummoned to chooſe and take their Sheriffs.

(d) Lib. D. f. 3. a.

In the ſixth Edw. II. (d) William Wellesford and another were choſen Sheriffs, by the Maior, Aldermen, and twelve ſummoned out of every Ward. Wellesford dies, and Adam Ludkin was choſen by ſix and more of each Ward.

(e) Ibid b.

In the ſeventh Edw. II. (e) Nicolas Farendon was choſen Maior, by the Maior, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and by the Commonalty aſſembled: And ſo the Sheriffs the ſame Year are ſaid to be choſen.

(f) Lond. Liberties, &c. f. 2. & f. 11.

But I find there was a Variation as to the Number of twelve called out of each Ward; ſo many out of the twenty five Wards having been found perhaps to tend too much towards the begetting of Heats and Animoſities in the Elections. Therefore 20 Edward III. it was agreed, (f) That from thenceforth there ſhould come the Maior, Aldermen, and alſo out of every Ward of the City twelve, eight, or ſix, according as the Ward ſhall be great or ſmall: and they of the Richeſt and Wiſeſt of each Ward; to intermeddle and chooſe a Maior and Sheriffs for the Year enſuing.

The Liveries empowered to Elect.
(g) Ibid. f. 2.

In the fifteenth Edw. IV. (g) the Maſters, Wardens and Liveries of the Several Companies were taken in, to aſſiſt at the Elections of the foreſaid Magiſtrates. And ſince that time the Election of the Maiors and Sheriffs, &c. is made by the Maior, Aldermen, Common Council and Liveries, according to the Act of Common Council then made.

All Freemen claim a Liberty of Election, An. 1650.

But in the Year 1650 there was a great Controverſy, about the Right of electing: whether it reſted in the Lord Maior, Aldermen, Common Council, Maſters, Wardens and Liveries of the ſeveral Companies, or in the Lord Maior, Aldermen and the Freemen in general, by their Repreſentives to be choſen in every Ward. The Conteſt was managed before the Lord Maior, Court of Aldermen, and Common Council, by Hales and Maynard of Counſel for the Liveries; and Maior John Wildman, and one Price Agents and Speakers for the Freemen. How this was carried in the New Commonwealth that was then ſet up in this Nation, when many other ancient Laws and Cuſtoms were violated, I cannot tell: but when the ancient Kingly Government was reſtored, the old Cuſtom of Election prevailed, as it ſtill doth: and the Liveries are the Electors.

Bills to the Aldermen upon Elections.

But now to return to the ancient Practice, as we find them in the Books and Records of the Chamber:

It appears alſo that on Monday next before the Feaſt of the Tranſlation of St. Edw. 24 Ed. III. a certain Bill was ſent to every Alderman by the Maior, enjoyning them under the Fealty they owed to the King, to be preſent the ſaid Feſtival Day at Guild-hall for the Election of a Maior: and that they ſhould cauſe four of the better ſort of Men of their Ward to be ſummoned for the ſame Cauſe: and that he ſhould then have their Names endorſed on the ſame Bill.

Four of a Ward to be ſummoned to elect.

Election of old, on Sim. and Jude's day.

It is to be noted, that of ancient Times the Maior was choſen on the Feaſt of the Apoſtles Simon and Jude. As it was in the Election of Thomas Romayn for Maior, in the third Year of Edward the Son of King Edward, who was choſen by the Aldermen and twelve of each Ward, ſummoned for this End. And on the morrow was preſented to the Barons of the Exchequer at Weſtminſter, and accepted.

Lib. D. f. 2.

And the cauſe wherefore the Election was changed to another Day was becauſe of the encreaſing of Expences and other cauſes.

In whom the Election is. And how the Election was managed.

The Aldermen once abſent themſelves from an Election.

THE Aldermen on the Feaſt of the Apoſtles Simon and Jude ought to meet at Guild-hall, for the Election of a Maior. But once they abſented themſelves, fearing to admit the Office of the Maioralty at the Inſtance of William de Ilford, then common Sergeant for the Commonalty of the ſaid City, Richard Lacer being Maior. But from henceforth it was ordered, that every Year on the Tranſlation of St. Edward the King, the Maior and Aldermen, who were pro tempore, ſhould meet at Guild-hall London; and alſo of each Ward twelve, eight or ſix, according as the Ward was great or ſmall, of the Richer and Wiſer of each Ward: And that none came unleſs ſummoned, nor intruded themſelves in ſuch Election of Maior and Sheriffs.

Conteſt between Aldermen and Commoners about Election of Maior.

Controverſy often aroſe in the Election of the Maior, between the Aldermen and Commoners: in that the Commoners thought that both the Nomination and Election belonged to them only. And therefore after they had agreed in the Weſt part of Guild-hall (viz. in the Place where the Sheriffs are wont to hold their Courts) they would preſent one Perſon only of the City to the Maior and Aldermen, ſetting on the Eaſt End of Guild-hall (viz. in the Huſtings) for their elected Maior for the enſuing Year. But the Aldermen oppoſed, ſaying, that they were alſo Citizens and of the Commonalty of the City; nor was it juſt, that on the account of the Prerogative that pertained to their Offices, they ſhould be deprived from having a Voice in the Choice of the King's, chief Vicegerent in the City. Hereupon it became a Cuſtom by the common Conſent as well of the Aldermen as of the Commoners, that the Commoners ſummoned for the Election, after the Cauſe of their ſummoning was declared to them by the Recorder, on the behalf of the Maior and Aldermen, they paſſed to the other End of the Hall, as was ſaid before; and there nominated two Aldermen, whereof both had been Sheriffs, and were fit for the Office of Maior. Which being done, they returned; and by one that was their common Mouth they preſented to the Maior and Aldermen the Names of two, and praying them to admit either of them, whom they would, to the Office of Maior for the Year enſuing.

Then the Maior and Aldermen going up into the upper Chamber, choſe by plurality of Voices in ſcrutiny (the Common Clerk noting by the Superviſe of the Recorder) one of them, and coming down again to the People in Guild-hall, declared by their Recorder, who was elected Maior for the next Year.

Concerning the Cuſtom of ſome Maiors continuing divers Years in the Maioralty.

IN former Times when a Maior had well governed, the Commonalty willingly continued him Maior; as appears in Henry Fitz Alwyn the firſt Maior, who continued five and twenty Years in his Office; and the next Maior, Sir Roger Fitz Alan continued three Years; Andrew le Bukerel ſeven Years; Thomas Fitz Thomas four; Gregory de Rokeſly ſeven, viz. from the third Year of the foreſaid Edward Son of King Henry incluſive, to the End of the ninth Year of the Reign of the ſaid King incluſive, viz. the firſt as well as the laſt being computed. John le Blount continued Maior ſix Years, as in the Book F. is more fully contained, that treats of Maiors and Sheriffs.

But

Little Charges to the Maior anciently.

But note, that anciently the Maiors ſpent little or nothing more in the Time of their Maioralty, than in another Time; being contented with one, or at moſt with two Serjeants at Arms with them in their Family. Yea, becauſe then they gave not * Liveries the ſame Day wherein they were choſen, they went on Foot either by Land, or or by Water in a Boat to Weſtminſter, or the Tower; and there they were burthened with their Charge, and accepted. But great Coſts and Expences increaſing about the ſaid Office of the Maioralty, the Citizens obtained from King Edward, Son of King Edward, in the twelfth Year of his Reign, towards the End thereof, a Charter, that the Maior ſhould not remain above one Year together in his Office, as appears in the Book of Cuſtoms; and the ſame Charter exemplified in the Book E.

* Veſturam.

A Charter for Maiors yearly.

Fo. 90. On what Account obtained.

Lib. E. fo. 146. & fo. 148.

Some believe this Article was obtained on this Account, becauſe before, ſome Maiors had Commiſſions from the King to remain in their Office as long as the King pleaſed. Which the People took heavily; as Nicolas Farnedon had. Such a Commiſſion alſo had Hamon de Chikewelle. When therefore he that was Maior one Year could not be Maior the Year following, unleſs perhaps he were very inſtantly required thereunto, and with his own Good Will; ſo that he could not be compelled to undergo the Burthen two continued Years by the Liberty of the City, both Aldermen and Commons were wont in peaceable Elections to chuſe ſome other to be Maior.

And no Maior by the Liberty of the City can be compelled to hold his Office two Years. But if any had obtained ſo much Favour with the Citizens, as to commend him, for his good Government, and inſtantly to pray him by their common Speaker, to take upon him the Burthen of the Maioralty for the following Year, and he finally refuſed ſo to do; then the Commoners preſented to the Aldermen the Names of two other Aldermen, the preſent Maior not being nominated at all. Of which two they accepted one for Maior, whom they would, as was ſaid before.

The Ceremony of going out of the Chamber into the Hall, when the new Maior was declared.

The Recorder declares the new Maior.

WHO being ſo accepted, in the going out of the Chamber, the Maior going down into the Hall, was wont to go before, leading by the Hand with him the Maior for the Year enſuing. And the Maior and Aldermen ſitting in their Places, the Recorder declared to the People the Name of the Maior Elect for the Year then next following; ſignifying alſo to the People, that they ſhould prepare to ride with their Maior towards Weſtminſter on the Morrow of the Feſtival of St. Simon and Jude next, for the Honour of the chief City: Which being done, the Maior and Aldermen roſe, and departed out of the Hall, the People following.

If the Elect were not preſent, the Maior and Aldermen with the Sheriffs were wont to go to his Houſe, to warn him there preſently, to provide himſelf with Requiſites for the Office of the Maioralty: and to be preſent at Guildhall on the Feaſt of Simon and Jude next following, to take his Oath, as anciently was wont to be done. And then every one went home.

ON the Feaſt of Simon and Jude, about Ten of the Clock by the Bell, the Maior and all the Aldermen in their Violet Gowns, and many Commoners aſſembled, and Peace and Audience being proclaimed by a Common Cryer, viz. a Sergeant at Arms, the Recorder ſitting on the Right Hand of the Maior, recited to the People the ancient Cuſtom of the City, viz. that that Day the Maior for the enſuing Year ſhould take his Oath; and he uſed to recommend to him ſuch things as wherein the former Maior had well deſerved. And if the Maior would ſay any thing, he was heard. Which being done, the Maior went out of his Seat; and the Maior that was to be, aſcended the ſame. And the Maior that had been, ſat next him on the Left Hand. And then the Common Serjeant at Arms, holding a Book to him with the Kalendar and the Effigies of the Crucifix on the outſide, the Common Clerk read to him, holding his Hand upon the Book, the ſame Oath that he was to make on the Morrow in the King's Exchequer: Which Oath is ſet down in the Book D. Which being promiſed, and the Book kiſſed, the old Maior delivered him the Seal of the Statute of the Merchants Strangers [from whom the Maior received conſiderable Benefit] together with the Seal of the Maioralty, in two Purſes: And the new Maior was heard (if he were minded to ſpeak any thing) praying for Aſſiſtance to be given him from his Brethren the Aldermen, the Sheriffs, and all honeſt Men for his Time, in his Government of the City, &c. Which being done, they roſe and went out, the People following. But the Sword was carried before the laſt Maior, leading the Maior that was to be, by the Hand with him, the Aldermen and People following, unto the Houſe of the ſaid Maior to be. And from thence the Sword went before the paſt Maior unto his Houſe. And neither of the two Maiors were wont to appear in Publick any more that Day. Yet Neceſſity urging, the paſt Maior was bound that Day to exerciſe his Office outwardly and in publick: Becauſe he is not fully diſcharged from his Office, until the following Maior be accepted in his Place by the King, or the Barons of the Exchequer, or the Conſtable of the Tower.

Of the Swearing of the Maior at the Exchequer.

ON the Morrow of the Feaſt of St. Simon and Jude, ſo it were not Sunday, (for then it was put off to Monday next) as well the new Maior as the old, and the Aldermen alſo, were wont to meet together on Horſeback in a Place without Guildhall about nine a Clock, in one Suit of Garments*, with the Sheriff, and as many as were of the Maior's Livery, and many of the Myſteries or Companies in their Suits†, the Sword being carried up before the new Maior. From thence they rode together thro' Cheapſide, and ſo without Newgate, turning into Fleetſtreet, and ſo to Weſtminſter. Whither being come, the Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs alight from their Horſes, and the Macebearers and the Swordbearer going before them, they went up into the Exchequer, where were the Chancellor of the Treaſury, the Keeper of the King's Privy Seal, with the Barons of the Exchequer. And the Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs ſtanding at the Bar, the Recorder declared, how the City of London, according to their ancient Cuſtoms and Liberties, had choſen N. Maior for the Year following: praying the Barons, on behalf of the City, to accept him ſo Elect, perſonally then before them. And it being anſwered by the Chief Baron, or one in his Place, according as he pleaſed, the Book was brought to the Maior; upon which he laying his Hand, was burdened with the ſame Oath which he took at Guildhall. Which being done, the Chief Baron, on the Part of the King and the Lords, was wont to charge the Maior, eſpecially to keep Peace and Quietneſs in the City. And then that he ſhould have a reſpect to thoſe that ſold all ſorts of Victuals. That according to his Power the People might not be burthened by reaſon of Dearth.

After that, the Maior was wont to offer himſelf there to his Account for the Office of Eſcheator; and was ſworn to render a good and faithful Account of the ſaid Office; and appointed there one whom he pleaſed for his Attorney ad computand', i. e. to make the Accompts.

Attorneys appointed.

The Maior alſo and Aldermen for the City appointed one of the Exchequer, Attorney of the ſaid City ad calumpniand' & clamand' i. e. to complain and to claim their Liberties, if, and when their Neceſſity required. And thus, having Licence from the Lords, departed. And ſo in the Common Pleas they appointed one of that Place, Attorney of the City. But in the King's Bench they appointed two Attorneys jointly and ſeverally to claim the Liberties and ancient Cuſtoms of the City, if, and when Neceſſity required.

How the new Maior returned from Weſtminſter.

Which being done, they returned: the Commoners on Horſeback going before in a Company according to the Suits of their Myſteries or Trades. But they of the Myſtery whereof the Maior was, and they that were of his Livery, went next before the Maior. But none went near the Maior for a conſiderable Diſtance: But the Sergeants at Arms, Macebearers, and his Swordbearer, and one Sheriff on his Right Hand, and the other on his Left, with white Rods in their Hands, all going before. The Recorder and the Aldermen followed next after him through the Middle of Weſt-Cheap unto his Houſe; and then thoſe that were not invited to the Feaſt, went home.

The Cuſtomary Devotions of the New Maior.

The new Maior goes to St. Thomas of Acon.

And ſo to Paul's.

THE ſame Day after Dinner the new Maior was wont to go from his Houſe to the Church of St. * of Acon, thoſe of his Livery going before him; and the Aldermen in like manner being there met together, they came to the Church of St. Paul: Whither when they were come, namely in the mid Place of the Body of the Church, between two little Doors, they were wont to pray for the Soul of Biſhop William, who, as is ſaid, obtained great Liberties by his Entreaties for the City from William the Conqueror, a Prieſt ſaying that Office de Profundis [called the Dirge.] And from thence they paſſed to the Churchyard, where lie the Bodies of the Parents [Sancti Thomæ Cantuarienſis †] of St. Thomas of Canterbury: And there they ſaid alſo, for all the Faithful of God departed, De Profundis, &c. near the Tomb of the aforeſaid Parents.

And from thence they returned through Cheapſide Market, ſometimes with Wax Candles burning, if it were late, to the ſaid Church [Sancti Thomæ eraſed] and there the Maior and Aldermen offered ſingle Pence. Which being done, every one went to his Houſe.

When the Maior was ſworn before the Conſtable of the Tower.

Maiors ſworn at the Tower.

IF the King's Exchequer were not at London, or if the Court were vacant, the Maior was preſented to the Conſtable of the Tower of London, or his Lieutenant: Who was accepted and ſworn without the firſt Gate: As was done with Sir Nic. Brembre, elected for Maior in the Eve of Palms in the 50 Ed. III. Likewiſe on the Morrow of the Feaſt of Simon and Jude, John le Blount Maior was preſented, ſworn and accepted by John de Blakbrok, Lieutenant of Sir John de Sandwick, Conſtable of the Tower, Ann. 31 *Edw. In like manner on the Nativity of our Lord, the Maior, Aldermen, and Sheriffs, and thoſe of the Maior and Sheriffs Liveries, were wont to come together at St. ...... The former Ceremony was alſo obſerved on the Feaſt of Circumciſion and Epiphany, and Purification of the Glorious Virgin.

In Eaſter Week, on Monday before nine a Clock, the Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs were wont in their Habit, and alſo a great Company of People of both Sexes, to come to the Hoſpital of Saint Mary without Biſhopſgate, to hear a Sermon: In like manner on Tueſday and Wedneſday in the ſame Week.

Whitſuntide.

Likewiſe towards the Feaſt of Whitſuntide, the Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs were wont to meet, and provide themſelves agreeably with Suit of Garments. The Maior moreover and the Sheriffs gave Liveries to their Friends, and their Houſehold Servants, and the Officers of the City, in an honourable manner, according to each one's Degree. And Monday in Whitſun Week, between nine and ten of the Clock before Dinner, the Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs in their Habit, met together in the Church of St. Peter's upon Cornhill; and all alſo of the Livery, as well of the Maior, as Sheriffs. From which Place the Proceſſion of the Rectors of London going before, firſt followed thoſe that were of the Livery of the Sheriffs, next thoſe of the Livery of the Maior. Then the Maior with the Recorder and Aldermen according to their Degrees, paſſed thro' Cheap into Paul's Churchyard; and entring on the North ſide, being met there by the Proceſſion of the ſame Church, they went out by the South Part of the ſame Churchyard; and ſo by the Cloſe from Watlingſtreet, they entred the Church at the great Inn on the Weſt part; and there they ſtood ſtill in a Body, until the Hymn Veni Creator had been ſung by the Vicars and Organs; at each other Verſe an Angel ſent from above incenſing. Which being done, the Maior and Aldermen going up to the Altar, offered. And then every one went home.

From St. Thomas of Acon on Wedneſday.

The third Day being Wedneſday in Whitſun Week, the Maior, Aldermen, and Sheriffs met the aforeſaid Hour at the Church of St. Thomas of Acon. And from thence the Proceſſion of the Common People of Eſſex going before, they paſt directly to Paul's Churchyard: and it was done as the Day before; and the Archdeacon of Eſſex gave the ſaid Serjeants 6 s. 8 d. And it is to be noted, that when the ſaid Fees were not paid, the Archdeacons were wont to be diſtrained to pay them.

Proviſions made for the Perſonal Appearance of the Aldermen at the Elections.

ONCE at the Election of a Maior, the Aldermen abſented themſelves, fearing to admit the Office of a Maior, at the Inſtance of William de Ilford, then Common Serjeant for the Commonalty of the City, Richard Lacer being then Maior [about 1345.] And ſince the Aldermen ought to meet together on Simon and Jude's Day, to the Election of Maiors in Guildhall; it was ordered, that from henceforth every Year, on the Feaſt of the Tranſlation of St. Edward the King, [which was October 13.] the Maior and all the Aldermen for the time being, and alſo out of every Ward of the City, twelve, eight, or ſix, according as the Ward ſhall be great or ſmall, of the Diſcreeter and Wiſer ſort of each Ward, ſhould meet together; and that none, unleſs they be ſummoned, come, nor intrude themſelves in ſuch Election of Maior or Sheriff. And that on the ſame Feaſt of St. Edward they chuſe a Maior, according to the Cuſtom, for the following Year: that the Maior ſo choſen on that Feaſt, between the Feaſt of St. Edward and the Feaſt of St. Simon and Jude next following, may diſpoſe of his Eſtate.

The Meeting on St Edward's Day for chuſing a Maior.

Fine for refuſing to hold Maior.

It was alſo agreed, that if he who was ſo choſe in the Feaſt of St. Edward for Maior, and ſhall abſent himſelf on the Feaſt of Simon and Jude following, and depart at a diſtance, not willing to take upon him the Burthen of the Maioralty, whether he be abſent or preſent in the time of the Election, nevertheleſs the Serjeants of the City that ſhall be for the Time, ſhall cauſe 100 Marks to be levied of his Goods and Chattels, Lands, Rents, and Tenements, who ſhall ſo abſent himſelf; to be paid to him who on the ſaid Feaſt of Simon and Jude ſhall happen to be choſe in his Place by reaſon of his Abſence.

nalty of an lderman's bſence.

It was agreed alſo, that all the Aldermen be preſent every Year in the City of London, as well on the Tranſlation of St. Edward the King, as in the Feaſt of Simon and Jude, at the Election of a Maior. And if any Alderman at thoſe Feaſts ſhall abſent himſelf, he ſhall pay to the Chamberlain of the ſaid City 20 l. Sterling; unleſs the ſaid Alderman ſo abſent, be abſent for a reaſonable Cauſe, and ſo can excuſe himſelf to the Maior and Aldermen.

A Maior elected came not; and what followed.

And the like Ordinance was made in the time of the Maioralty of Walter Turk, viz. Ann. 24. Edw. III. of thoſe that abſented themſelves in the Election of Sheriffs, under the Penalty of 100 l. Sterling. Which Ordinances are inſerted in the Book F. And this was once executed, viz. 42 Edw. III. becauſe Walter Berneye, elected Maior on Friday in the Feaſt of the Tranſlation of St. Edward, came not on the Feaſt of Simon and Jude then following, to take his Office. Simon de Mordon was choſe on that Feaſt of the Apoſtles Simon and Jude, for the ſame Year, and the Morrow after admitted and preſented to the Barons of the Exchequer; and of the Goods of the ſaid Walter were levied 100 Marks for the uſe of the ſaid Simon.

Lib. G *fo.*216.

To add a few things more, collected from Records of the Tower, or Inquiſitions, concerning the Maiors of London.

Favours ſhewn to Maiors by the King.

Special Favours have been granted by the King to the Maior. As was King Edward the Third's Grant to Reginald de Conductu, or Reynold of the Conduit, who was Maior two Years together; whereby he was at great Expences, to the overburdening his Eſtate. And whereas the Maiors uſed to take great Benefit from the Merchants Strangers, that repaired hither in good Numbers for Traffick, this Foreign Trade was ſtopt by reaſon of King Edward's great Wars abroad. The King therefore in the eighteenth of his Reign granted the ſaid Reginald, in relevation' ſtatus ſui, i. e. for the Relief of his Eſtate, 21 l. of yearly Rent, iſſuing out of divers Meſſuages and Shops in the ſaid City, belonging to the King.

Maiors appointed by the King.

One excuſed ſerving Maior.

The King ſometimes made Maiors, as well as Cuſtoſes, by his own Authority, and ſometimes excuſed Perſons from ſerving the Office of Maior, or any other Magiſtracy of the City. Of this laſt we have an Inſtance in one Simon, a Merchant of London, who had a Patent from King Edward III. in the firſt of his Reign; whereby that King freed him from ſerving Maior, Sheriff, Alderman, Coroner, Alderman againſt his own Will in the foreſaid City or elſewhere: And not only ſo, but Quod quietus eſſet de omnibus Priſis, Auxiliis, Vigiliis, & Contributionibus quibuſcunque; i. e. to be quit of all Prizes, Aids, Watches and Contributions whatſoever, as well within the City of London, as elſewhere within the Kingdom. And that the Goods of the ſaid Simon be not taxed to Tenths, or to pay other Quota's. This was extraordinary indeed; and ſurely his Merit at the King's Hand was great.

The King makes certain Maiors.

Theſe Maiors were appointed by the King's Letters in the ſixteenth of Edw. II. The Office of Maioralty being in the King's Hands for certain Cauſes (as the Record ran) the King committed it to Nicholas Farndon, Citizen of London, as long as it pleaſed the King; and commanded the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and the reſt of the City, that they be obedient to him as Maior. And in the fourteenth of the ſame King, the Maioralty being then in the King's Hand, per Conſiderationem Curiæ, i. e. by the Conſideration of the Court, he conſtituted Robert Kendal Maior, to do, to execute, &c. in all things that belonged to the ſaid Office, and to take to himſelf thoſe things which the Maiors have accuſtomed to take.

Richard II. in the twentieth of his Reign, with the Aſſent of his Council, appointed Richard Whittington to ſerve Maior in the room of Adam Bamme, that deceaſed in his Maioralty, until the Day accuſtomed for the Election of a new Maior.

Cuſtoſes appointed by the King, what.

Now to give an Inſtance or two of the King's Letters to certain Perſons to be Cuſtoſes of the City, when the City had forfeited their Liberties, or the King had aſſumed them. Theſe were conſtituted not for a Year, or a ſet Time, but while the King pleaſed. And they had ſometimes extraordinary Powers over the City granted them, to chaſtiſe it. In 25 Edw. I. John Breton was made Cuſtos. And the Record ſaith, Habet poteſtatem amerciandi & caſtigandi Aldermannos, & Vicecomit' ibid. & miniſtros ſuos immorigeros: i. e. He had a power of amercing and chaſtiſing the Aldermen and Sheriffs of the City, and their Servants, if they were diſobedient. And Richard II. in the ſixteenth of his Reign, by the Conſent of his Great [that is his Privy] Council, conſtituted Baldwin de Radington Knight, Cuſtos of the City, donec aliter duxerit ordinand'. i. e. until he ſhall think fit otherwiſe to appoint.

Maces of Silver allowed to be carried before the Maior.
Abridgment of the Rec. reviſ. by W Prin. 1657.

In Honour of the Maior of London, King Edward III. indulged by his Letters, that Maces carried before the Lord Maior of London, might be of Silver; but Maces of that Metal to be carried in no City in England beſides. For this Command was given out 20 Edw. III. That no Man within City or Town or elſwhere do carry Maces of Silver, except the King's Sergeants only. But to carry Maces of Copper, and no other Mettal, except the Sergeant of London: who may carry their Maces of Silver within the Liberties of London before the Maior, in preſence of the King.

A Maior ſent from the City.

Maiors have been abſent from the City and gone beyond Sea at the King's Command. Such a thing happened 2 Edw. I. when that King commanded the City to appoint two Citizens to officiate in his Place. By his Letters to the Sheriffs and Commonalty directing them to provide two diſcreet Citizens among themſelves, to keep the ſaid City loco Majoris, and them to obey as Maior, the Maior at the King's Command being about to go beyond Sea.

The Maior's Seal.

The Maior's Seal was ſometime ſet to Deeds, for the better Witneſſing and Confirmation of them. Thus I find 20 Richard II. the Common Seal of the Maior ſet to the Deed of one J. S. for the better witneſſing of the matter (as the Record runs) and for that the ſame was better known than the proper Seal of the ſaid J. S.

The Maior Cuſtos of an Hermitage.

The Maior pro tempore was conſtituted Cuſtos and Protector of the Hermitage near Cripplegate, in 3 Ed. I.

The Maior's Perſon aſſaulted

The Maior's Perſon is inviolable, and 'tis an high Crime to aſſault him, or make any Reſiſtance to him. Once ſuch a thing happened about the Year 1339. Andrew Aubrey being Maior. When in a popular Tumult, headed chiefly by two, Haunſart and Brewere, an aſſault was made upon the ſaid Maior, and ſome of his Servants wounded. But this was lookt upon as ſuch an hainous Deed, that theſe two were preſently tryed and convicted at Guild-hall, and thence carried forth to Cheapſide, and beheaded. This was about 15 Edw. III. Which Juſtice that King allowed of, and ſent the Maior and City a ſpecial Indemnity for what they had done. This being ſomewhat remarkable, I ſhall, from the Record it ſelf, ſet down the Occaſion of the Tumult, the Affront offered the Maior, the Tryal and Execucon, with the King's Approbation and Juſtification of the Judgment done.

The Letters Patent ſet forth, that the King, diſpoſing to go to the Parts beyond Sea, and willing to provide as ſecurely as he could, for the ſafe Cuſtody of the City of London, and the Conſervation of the Peace thereof, had required and charged the Maior, Sheriffs, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City, that he being abroad out of the Kingdom, they ſhould keep the ſaid City and the King's Peace there as far as they were able; and that, if there ſhould be in the ſaid City any Malefactors and Diſturbers of the ſaid Peace, the King being thus abroad, they ſhould cauſe due and ſpeedy Puniſhment to be done upon them: And that the ſaid Maior, Sheriffs, &c. had ſo taken upon them at their peril the Cuſtody of the City, and Conſervation of the Peace, and to inflict Puniſhment, according to the King's Deſire and Command.

Now in purſuance of this Commandment, there happening ſuddenly to ariſe in the City, Fights and Differences between the Fiſhmongers and the Skinners of the City, they the Maior, Sheriffs, &c. went to pacify the ſaid Fight and Diſſenſion, and did attach Malefactors and Diſturbers of the Peace, being there found, as it was incumbent upon them in reſpect of their Office to do. But Thomas the Son of John Haunſard and John le Brewere, and ſome other Malefactors and Diſturbers of the Peace, not permitting the ſaid Attachment to be made, made an Inſult upon the ſaid Maior, Sheriffs, and other Miniſters of the City, there performing the Duty of their Office, for the Conſervation of the King's Peace, and reſcued the Malefactors attached by the Maior and Sheriffs. And the ſaid Thomas, with his Sword drawn, laid his Hand upon Andrew Aubrey then Maior of the ſaid City, ruſhingupon him with all his Force to overthrow him. And the ſaid John grievouſly wounded one of the Servants of the ſaid City, then obeying the ſaid Maior and Sheriffs, in contempt of the King, and danger of the Commotion of the ſaid City. The ſaid Thomas and John being preſently taken for this, and led to the Hall of the Pleas of the ſaid City, called Guildhall, were there indicted and charged before the ſaid Maior and Sheriffs; and for theſe things by their own Acknowledgments convicted, for that Cauſe. And by the Conſideration of the Maior, Sheriffs, Aldermen and Commonalty aforeſaid, in the Hall aforeſaid, were adjudged to Death, and in a certain Street called Le Chepe, were beheaded

We conſidering (as the Record goes on) if ſo great Raſhneſs of the foreſaid Thomas and John had been paſſed over unpuniſhed, it had yielded Boldneſs to others of doing the like things; and ſo thinking the ſaid Puniſhment very ſeaſonable, for the Conſervation of our Peace, and to be well done; and willing by the Conſideration aforeſaid, that the ſaid Maior, Sheriffs, Aldermen and Commonalty be ſecure: and to provide that they may not be troubled by reaſon hereof in future times. What hath been done by the Maior, Sheriffs, &c. as much as belongs to Us, We approve and confirm. And ſo forbad that hereafter they ſhould be ſued neither by himſelf, his Heirs or Juſtices on occaſion of their Death. Teſte Rege apud Turrim London 4. Jun.

Wotton ſometime Maior impannelled on a Jury.

It was reckoned the Privilege of one that had been Maior and Alderman of London, not to ſerve the King, without his Will, in any other Part of the Kingdom. Such a matter happened once in Henry VI. his Reign. Nicolas Wotton, ſometime Maior and Alderman of London, living in Kent, ſtood upon this Privilege, and refuſed to ſerve, when he was impannelled with others before the Judges of Aſſize in the ſaid County, to enquire upon Articles touching the King's Peace: and refuſed to ſwear prætextu Libertatis Civitatis London; i. e. on pretence of the Liberty of the City. But yet this was lookt upon in Wotton as a Contempt. For which he afterwards had a Pardon in 17 Henry. VI.

A Maior moves the Market.

Henry de Waleis, Maior, removed the Sellers that came to London with their Wares and Proviſions from one Place, where it ſeems they uſed to ſtand, to another. For which the Sworn Men of one of the Wards preſented him to the King's Juſtices; and knew not Quo Warranto he did ſo.]

Concerning

Concerning the ALDERMEN.

ldermen, what it ſignifies. Lib. lb.

ALDERMAN ſignifies in the Saxon Language Senior, or an Elder Perſon: for Alde is Old. So that Alderman anſwers to Senator among the Romans. Yet in Aldermen the Old Age of the Mind is more to be regarded, than of the Body, and the Gravity of Manners rather than Antiquity of Years. Whence in the old Laws of King Knute and other Saxon Kings, he was called Alderman who is now called Judge or Juſtitiary, as appears in the Book of Cuſtoms. But in many other Laws of St. Edward, they who are now called Juſtices, were termed Lagemanni, Lawmen.

They were Barons.

Theſe Aldermen were alſo called as well in Name as Honour, Barones. For it is found about the Year 1350, that in the Burial of Aldermen, that honourable ancient Cuſtom was obſerved, viz. that in the Church where an Alderman was to be buried, one armed with his Arms, beating in his hand a Standard, on an Horſe with trappings, carried aloft his Shield, Helmet and his other Arms with the Standard, as the Manner yet is, of burying the Lords Barons. But by reaſon of ſudden and frequent Changes of the Aldermen, and often Plagues, by little and little the Cuſtom vaniſhed in London. But by this it appears, how great Honour was in former Times given to Aldermen.

How to be qualified.

For none was accepted for Aldermen unleſs he were without Deformity in Body, wiſe and diſcreet in Mind, wealthy, honourable, faithful, free, and of no baſe or ſervile Condition; that no Diſgrace, which might happen to him upon the Account of his Birth, might thence redound on the reſt of the Aldermen, or the whole City. And hence it came to paſs that none was made Apprentice, or at leaſt admitted into the Liberty of the City, unleſs he was known to be of a Gentleman-like Conditon; * or if after he had been made free, it came to be known, that he was of ſervile Condition, for that very thing he loſt the Freedom of the City. As it happened to Thomas le Bedel, Robert le Bedel, Alan Undirwode, and Edmund May Butchers; who in the Maioralty of John le Blount, loſt their Freedoms; becauſe they acknowledged they held Land de Villenagio of the Biſhop of London; and they remained without the Liberty of the City.

Whence in the Maioraly of Nicholas Exton Fiſhmonger, Ann. 1386 or 1387, in the ninth or tenth of Rich. II. it was ordered, that in the taking of Apprentices and alſo in the taking of Freedoms, that ancient Cuſtom for the future ſhould be kept.

Wards took their Names from the Aldermen.

A modern Alderman is called from the Ward over which he is; as Alderman of Chepe, Alderman of the Bridge, Alderman of Queenhith. But anciently on the contrary, the Ward was called from the Name of its Alderman. As the Ward of Candlewyckſtreet was called the Ward of Thomas de Baſing: the Ward of Caſtle Baynard was called Simon Hadeſtok's Ward. In like manner the Tower Ward was called the Ward of William de Nadeſtoke. And the Ward of Chepe was called Henry de Frowycke's Ward. So the Pariſh of St. Briget was ſaid to be in the Ward of Anketil de Auvern; which is now called the Ward of Farndon, from Nicholas de Farndon afterwards Alderman of that Ward. And this appears in the Book B.

Their Privileges.

Lib. Cuſtom. 220.

The Aldermen alſo anciently had ſuch a Prerogative, that they were not put into Inquiſitions. In the Time of John le Breton, Cuſtos, among other Ordinances made by him and certain Aldermen choſen in this behalf by the Commonalty, (and the King confirmed the ſame for the Time) this was one, that ſuch Aldermen were Judges of the City. Yet it is found that as well the Aldermen as the Sheriffs of London, were put into the Inquiſition by the King, to wit, for Burglary, and breaking into his Treaſury at Weſtminſter. But ſo rare and ſo great a Caſe cannot be drawn into Conſequences.

The Suit of the Maior, Sheriffs, &c.

The Maior, Sheriffs and all the Aldermen uſed to cloath themſelves in one Suit (or Habit) twice in the Year; viz. when the Maior rode to take his Oath at Weſtminſter. And this Veſture was made of honourable Furrs. And ſo they were uſed to be cloathed again in one Habit againſt Whitſuntide, with a Lining of Silk *. Whence, on Monday after the Feaſt of Epiphany, 31 Ed. III. it was ordered by the Maior and Aldermen, that whenſoever it happened, that the Maior and Aldermen were cloathed in one Habit, none of them ſhould give away or alienate his Robe within that Year, upon the Penalty of 100 Shillings, for the uſe of the Commonalty.

The Aldermen were wont to pay nothing for enrolling Charters or Deeds, however pertaining to them.

Aſſaults made upon Aldermen, how they were puniſhed.

How they were to be puniſhed that made any Aſſault upon the Aldermen exerciſing their Offices in keeping the Peace, appears by Wll. Hulot, Shield-bearer, abiding with the Biſhop of Bath, and Officer of the King's Receipt: whoſe Hand was adjudg'd in Guildhall to be cut off, becauſe he had made an Aſſault upon John Rote, Alderman, in the Time of Nic. Exton, Maior, in the 10th of the Reign of King Richard.

But more fully, Aſſaults, Reproaches, Lyes and Scandals of the Aldermen, are ſpoken and diſcourſed of elſewhere, in the Liber Albus.

Aldermen not removable.

Formerly Aldermen were not to be removed from their Office, during their Life, unleſs for ſome great Offence, or enormous Crime: For which they deſerved alſo to loſe the Freedom of the City. Yet afterwards Edward, Son of King Edward, in the 12th of his Reign, by his Charter, granted, that the Aldermen might be removed yearly. But long ſince the King and his Council conſidering the great Loſſes, Diſprofits and Dangers which have happened by a yearly changing of the Aldermen in the City for ſome time, and which might eaſily happen; it was declared and decreed, as now it is, that the Aldermen ſhould remain immovable, unleſs ſome reaſonable Cauſe of removing them happened; as is contained in the Charter of King Richard II. made to the City [Ann. 17] and confirmed by Act of Parliament.

An Alderman of London's Privilege is to be exempted from ſerving Offices elſewhere. This Caſe is printed in ſome of the Law Books. Alderman Abdy had an Houſe in Leytonſtone in Eſſex; where Conſtables were elected out of the Inhabitants of every Houſe by Preſentment every Year in the Leet. And the ſaid Alderman, by the name of John Abdy, Eſq; was nominated by the Leet holden ſuch a Day, to be Conſtable there the Year following. And becauſe he refuſed, the Steward impoſed a Fine upon him. It was moved to have a Writ directed to the Lord of the Manour [who was Sir William Hicks, Bar.] and his Steward [who was Mr. Conyers] to diſcharge him. And it was granted. For that he ought to be diſcharged by his Privilege; and for the Reaſon of his Attendance in the Courts of London: And he needed not execute by his Deputy.

Two Aldermen Treaſurers of a Subſidy.

Two Aldermen of London were appointed Treaſurers of a Tax given by Parliament to King Richard II. as in the Records; viz. A Parliament had required to know, how and in what manner the Sums were defray'd, [granted by a former Subſidy.] Sir Richard le Scrope, the King's Steward, anſwered the Parliament, that the King's Pleaſure was, that William Walworth and John

Conteſt between the Aldermen and Commonalty.

Let me add here under this Head of Aldermen, a late great Conteſt happening between the Commonalty and the Court of Aldermen; viz. Who ſhould examine and decide any Controverſy ariſing about the Election of an Alderman.

Act of Common Council for Election of Aldermen, controverted.

Thurſday, Septemb. 20. 1711. Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Knt. Lord Maior. A Common Council was called to paſs the Orphans Bill. Then (the Bill depending in Common Council this whole Year, relating to the Election of Aldermen) the Queſtion was put, whether it ſhould paſs or no. The Lord Maior oppoſed it, and would not put the Queſtion. After three Hours debate, a Clauſe of the Bill was left out [which was the reaſon of all the debate for the whole Year paſt;] viz. That all controverted Elections relating to Aldermen, ſhould be decided by the Common Council, and not by the Court of Aldermen themſelves. Then the Bill was paſs'd: Which enacted, That in all future Elections for Aldermen, the Ward ſhall return only one Alderman, and one Commoner. That upon the Demiſe of the Alderman of Bridge Ward without, the Aldermen above the Chair may change their Wards for that. If they refuſe, the Common Council to chooſe one. That none but Freemen, paying Scot and Lot, ſhall have a right to poll for Aldermen. And if any Action enſues upon that account, it is to be defended at the City's Charge. The Orphans Bill was alſo paſs'd.

And here I ſubjoyn this Act for the Election of Aldermen; with three others; viz. 1. For the Nomination of Aldermen; and Election of Common Council-men, made Ann. 1692. 2. For the further regulating the Nominations and Elections of Aldermen, and Common Council-men: and for regulating the Elections in Common Halls, &c. made Ann. 1712. 3. For reviving the ancient manner of electing Aldermen, made Ann. 1714.

An ACT to regulate the Election of ALDERMEN.

WHereas on the twentieth of September, in the third Year of the Reign of King Henry the Fourth, It was agreed and ordained by the Maior and Aldermen, That in the Elections of Aldermen, thenceforwards to be made, there ſhould be named and choſen, four of the moſt honeſt and ſufficient Citizens of the City, one of which, moſt fit to ſupport the Honour and Charge of the City, according to the Diſcretion and ſound Conſciences of the Maior and Aldermen for the time being, ſhould be admitted and ſworn to execute the ſame Office; which ſaid Ordinance, in the Common Council holden the twenty-third day of November then following, was approved.

Be it Enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, the Aldermen and Commons in this Common Council aſſembled, and by Authority of the ſame, That the ſaid Ordinance, and every Article and Thing therein contained, ſhall be, and is hereby repealed and made void to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever.

And for the better Regulation of the ſaid Elections for the future, Be it further Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That from henceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there ſhall be named, elected and preſented to the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, for the time being, or by the Houſholders of that Ward which ſhall be deſtitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the ſaid City, and paying Scot and bearing Lot, two Perſons and no more, viz. one Alderman, and one able and ſufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, not being an Alderman; which ſaid Alderman ſo to be nominated and preſented, ſhall and may remove to, accept and take ſuch Ward, by the Inhabitants whereof qualified as aforeſaid he ſhall be ſo nominated, elected and preſented, if preſent when the Report of the ſaid Nomination and Election ſhall be made, to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, and ſhall declare his Intention ſo to do. In which caſe, there ſhall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Preſentment made to the ſaid Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof he was an Alderman, within four days next enſuing: But in caſe ſuch Alderman ſo nominated and preſented, ſhall be abſent at the time of making the ſaid Report, or being preſent, ſhall declare his Refuſal to remove; then in every ſuch caſe, the other Perſon nominated and returned with the ſaid Alderman, ſhall, by the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, be accepted, admitted and ſworn, well and truly to execute the ſaid Office of Alderman: And in caſe of his Refuſal to take the ſame Office upon him (unleſs he can diſcharge himſelf therefrom according to the Laws of this City) he ſhall be ſubject and liable to all Pains and Penalties which can be inflicted on him by the Laws and Cuſtoms of the ſaid City, or otherwiſe, for ſuch his Refuſal.

And for avoiding delays in making the ſaid Elections, Be it further Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the Lord Maior for the time being, ſhall, at the firſt Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, holden next after the ſpace of ſeven days following every ſuch Nomination and Election, by the Inhabitants of any Ward that ſhall be vacant of an Alderman, to be accounted from the Determination and Finiſhing thereof, and not before, make report to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, of the Names of the Perſons ſo nominated and preſented for Alderman of that Ward; and the ſaid Court ſhall accept thereof, and proceed thereupon, in manner before ſet forth.

And whereas by an Act of Common Council, holden the ſixteenth day of June, in the fourth and fifth years of the Reign of King Philip and Queen Mary, It is, amongſt other things, Enacted, That the Alderman of the Ward of Bridge-Without, ſhould always from thenceforth, at the Time of Vacation and Lack of an Alderman thereof, be elect and choſen by the Lord Maior and Aldermen of the ſaid City, for the Time being, at a full Court of Aldermen, by them to be holden in the Inner-Chamber of the Guild-hall of the ſame City, in manner and form following, and in none otherwiſe; that is to ſay: That they the ſaid Lord Maior and Aldermen for the Time being, ſhall then and there, at their ſaid full Court, among themſelves, nominate and appoint four good, diſcreet, ſufficient and meet Citizens, being Freemen of this City or Liberties thereof, either reſiant within the Borough of Southwark, or within the ſame City or Liberties of the ſame, to be put in the Election of the Alderman of the ſaid Ward, ſo being void of an Alderman; and of the ſame four Citizens, ſo by them nominated and appointed, ſhall, in the ancient and accuſtomed manner, forthwith elect and chooſe one, by Scrutiny, to be Alderman of the ſaid Ward.

Be it further Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That the ſaid laſt recited Clauſe, and every Article and Thing therein contained, be, and the ſame is hereby repealed and made void; and that upon every Vacancy of an Alderman of the ſaid Ward, the Senior Alderman for the time being, who hath born the Charge and Office of Maioralty of the ſaid City, and is diſcharged from it, ſhall and may, at his free Will and Pleaſure, remove to, accept and take the ſaid Ward; and in caſe of his Refuſal to remove to that Ward, then the next Senior Alderman, and ſo ſucceſſively every other Alderman, according to his Seniority, who hath in like manner born the ſaid Office of Maioralty, ſhall and may (if he thinks fit) remove to, accept, and take the ſaid Ward. And in every ſuch Caſe, there ſhall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Preſentment made to the ſaid Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof ſuch Alderman ſo removing, and taking upon him to be an Alderman of the ſaid Ward of Bridge-Without, was an Alderman, within four days after every ſuch Change and Removal, as is before provided for the other Wards of the ſaid City: But if none of the Aldermen who have born the ſaid Office of Maioralty, will remove to and accept the ſaid Ward, Then, in every ſuch Caſe, the Lord Maior of the ſaid City for the time being, ſhall within fourteen days then next enſuing, cauſe a Common Council to be ſummoned and holden: At which Common Council the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons then aſſembled, ſhall, by plurality of Voices, forthwith elect and chooſe one fit and able Perſon, being a Freeman of the ſaid City, to be Alderman of the ſaid Ward. Which Alderman, ſo to be choſen from time to time, ſhall have and enjoy like Prerogative, Liberty and Benefit to change and remove from the ſaid Ward, and to accept and take at his Free Will and Pleaſure, any ſuch other Ward within the ſaid City, as it ſhall fortune he ſhall be hereafter duly elected and choſen unto by the Inhabitants of the ſame other Ward, in like manner and form, as the other Aldermen of the ſame City, lawfully may, and commonly uſe to do; any thing in the ſaid former Act, or any other Cuſtom or Uſage of the ſaid City, to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding.

An ACT for the Nomination of ALDERMEN, and Election of COMMON-COUNCIL-MEN, in the reſpective Wards of the City of London.

WHereas the City of London is, and time out of mind hath been, a Body Politick and Corporate, whereunto divers Franchiſes, Liberties and Priviledges, during all the time aforeſaid, have belonged and appertained; and alſo by ſeveral Acts of Parliament, Grants and Charters of divers Kings and Queens of this Realm, have been ratified and confirmed.

And whereas the Nomination of Aldermen, and Election of Common-Council-Men, for the ſeveral and reſpective Wards of the ſaid City, of Right belonged and appertained, and doth belong and appertain to the Freemen, being Houſholders of the ſaid City, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, and to no others.

Now, for the maintaining the ſaid Right, It is thought right and neceſſary by the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council aſſembled, that it ſhould be declared, and it is hereby declared, by the Authority of the ſame, That it is, and anciently hath been, the Right and Priviledge of the Freemen of the ſaid City, only, being Houſholders, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, and of none other whatſoever, in their ſeveral and reſpective Wards, from time to time, as often as there was, or ſhould be occaſion, to nominate Aldermen, and elect Common-Council-Men, for the ſame reſpective Wards.

And to the Intent and Purpoſe, that due care may be taken for the future, and all Perſons for time to come may take notice thereof, and proceed in ſuch Elections accordingly: Be it Enacted and Ordained, and it is hereby Enacted and Ordained, by the Authority aforeſaid, That at all and every Wardmote hereafter to be held, all and every the Beadle and Beadles of the reſpective Wards of this City, ſhall and do prepare, return and deliver to the Aldermen, at their ſeveral and reſpective Courts of Wardmote, or to ſuch Perſon as ſhall be deputed or authorized to hold the ſame, one Liſt, to the beſt of his or their Knowledge, of all and every the Freemen, Houſholders as aforeſaid, dwelling and reſiding within the reſpective Wards to which they are Beadles, and of no others, apart and by themſelves.

And alſo, one other Liſt, to the beſt of his or their Knowledge, of all and every the other Houſholders within the ſaid reſpective Wards only, apart and by themſelves, to the intent that ſuch Freemen, Houſholders within the reſpective Wards only, as often as there is or ſhall be occaſion, may nominate Aldermen, and elect their Common-Council-Men.

And they, together with the other Houſholders of the ſaid Wards, may chooſe their Conſtables, Scavengers, Inqueſt and Beadles.

And for the preventing all Errors and Miſtakes touching the Premiſes for the future, and that this Act be duly put in Execution for the time to come, Be it alſo Enacted, and it is hereby Enacted, That to all and every Precept, and Precepts hereafter to iſſue, and to be ſent out for Summoning any Wardmote or Wardmotes, this preſent Act be annexed and affixed.

And that before any Nomination or Election as aforeſaid be made, at any of the aforeſaid Court or Courts of Wardmote, the ſame ſhall be publickly and diſtinctly read and declared to the Perſons, who then ſhall be and appear at ſuch Court or Courts, and be duly put in execution and obſerved.

An ACT for further Regulating the Nominations and Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men; and alſo for Regulating the Elections in Common Halls, and for obliging the Aldermen to Nominate and Appoint Common-Council-Men to be their Deputies.

FOR preventing ſeveral Abuſes that have lately happened in the Nominations and Elections of Aldermen and Common-Council-Men of the City of London, by long and unneceſſary Adjournments of Polls and Scrutinies upon ſuch Nominations and Elections, and making undue Declarations of Perſons to be Nominated and Elected, who have no Right to the ſame, to the great Vexation and Diſquiet of the Freemen inhabiting in the ſeveral Wards of the ſaid City; and alſo for the further and better Regulating the ſeveral Nominations and Elections herein after mentioned for the future;

Be it Enacted, Ordained and Eſtabliſhed by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons in this Common-Council aſſembled, and by Authority of the ſame, That if in any Nomination or Election hereafter to be made of an Alderman or Common-Council-Man, or either of them, of any of the Wards of the ſaid City, a Poll be lawfully demanded, the ſame ſhall be begun the ſame Day ſuch Poll is demanded, or the next Day then following at furtheſt, unleſs it be Sunday, and then on the next Day after, and ſo duly and orderly proceeded in from day to day as aforeſaid, Sundays, publick Faſt-days, or Holy-days excepted, until ſuch Poll be finiſhed; and if a Scrutiny upon ſuch Poll ſhall afterwards be lawfully demanded, the Electors of the reſpective Candidates in Nomination then preſent, ſhall immediately out of themſelves, or others, duly qualified to Vote in ſuch Nomination or Election, nominate to the Lord Maior, Alderman or other Perſon holding the ſaid Court of Wardmote, any Number of Perſons not exceeding Six, for and on behalf of the Candidate and Candidates on each ſide (which Perſons ſo nominated, ſhall be deemed and taken to be the Scrutineers for ſuch Nomination or Election, whether of Aldermen or Common-Council-Men) to whom the ſaid Lord Maior, Alderman or other perſon holding the ſaid Court of Wardmote, ſhall within four days next enſuing the finiſhing the ſaid Poll, upon Requeſt of the Candidate or Candidates, or any other perſon or perſons appointed to make ſuch Scrutiny on his or their behalfs, and at the charges of ſuch Candidate or Candidates, or other perſon or perſons appointed to make ſuch Scrutiny, requiring the ſame, deliver, or cauſe to be delivered to him or them, one or more true Copy or Copies (atteſted by him under his Hand) of the Poll taken in the ſaid Nomination or Election; and the perſons ſo nominated by the ſaid Electors, for each of the ſaid Candidate or Candidates, ſhall within Ten days next after the Receipt of the ſaid Copy or Copies, deliver or cauſe to be delivered to the Lord Maior, Alderman, or other perſon holding the ſaid Court of Wardmote, the Names in writing of the ſeveral perſons who have polled in the ſaid Nomination or Election, againſt whoſe Votes they ſhall object, with the particular Heads or Reaſons againſt each reſpective Name for ſuch their Objections; who ſhall thereupon within Three days then next following, at the requeſt of the ſaid Candidate or Candidates, or ſome other perſon or perſons appointed to make the ſaid Scrutiny, on his, or their behalfs, and at the charges of ſuch Candidate or Candidates, or other perſon or perſons appointed to make ſuch Scrutiny requiring the ſame, deliver or cauſe to be delivered to him or them, one or more true Copy or Copies (atteſted by him as aforeſaid) of the Paper containing ſuch Names and Objections as aforeſaid; and the Lord Maior, Alderman, or other perſon holding the ſaid Court of Wardmote, ſhall within Ten days then next following (excluſive of ſuch days as are before excepted) upon full hearing the ſaid Parties, touching the ſame in the ſaid Court of Wardmote (which ſhall be adjourned from Time to Time, and kept on foot for that purpoſe) openly and publickly declare which of the ſaid Candidate or Candidates are duly Nominated and Elected, and at the ſame time deliver to the reſpective Candidates, or other perſons appointed to make ſuch Scrutiny, a true Liſt in Writing, ſigned by ſuch Lord Maior, Alderman, or other perſon holding ſuch Court of Wardmote, of the Names of all ſuch perſons as he ſhall allow or diſallow to have good Votes, and who were objected againſt as aforeſaid on either ſide upon ſuch Scrutiny, that ſo the Candidates conteſting, may know which of the Electors objected againſt are allowed, and which of them are diſallowed, in every ſuch Nomination or Election.

And be it further Enacted, by the Authority aforeſaid, That in all Elections of Maior, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, and other Officers of the ſaid City, uſually choſen at Common-Halls, where a Scrutiny upon a Poll is lawfully demanded and granted, for determining the Elections of ſuch Officers or any of them, the Sheriffs of the ſaid City for the Time being (to whom the Right of granting and taking the Poll and Scrutiny, or either of them, doth properly belong) ſhall, upon full hearing the Objections againſt any perſon voting in the ſaid Elections, to diſqualifie his Vote, and the Anſwer made thereto, or before they make Return of ſuch Officer as ſhall be choſen, openly and publickly declare, in the place where the Scrutiny ſhall be made, whether the perſon or perſons ſo objected againſt, have or hath a Right, and be well intituled, according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of the ſaid City, to Vote in the ſaid Election or not, and be allowed or diſallowed by him accordingly; that ſo the Candidates conteſting may know which of the Electors objected againſt are allowed, and which of them are not allowed in the ſaid Elections.

And whereas ſeveral of the Aldermen of the ſaid City that now are, have appointed perſons to be their Deputies, who are not of the Common-Council, whereby great Inconveniencies do many times happen:

Be it therefore further Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That all and every ſuch Deputy and Deputies, ſhall, at the Feaſt of St. Thomas the Apoſtle next enſuing, be Removed and abſolutely Diſcharged from their ſeveral Places of Deputies; and that from and after the ſaid Feaſt, no Alderman of the ſaid City, ſhall at any Time or Times nominate or appoint any perſon to be his Deputy, but ſuch as ſhall be of the Common-Council of the ſaid City, for that Ward whereof he is Alderman; and that every Nomination, Election or Appointment of any other perſon ſhall be void to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever, any Law, Cuſtom or Uſage of the ſaid City to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

And be it alſo Enacted, That no Common-Council-Man, ſo to be nominated and appointed as aforeſaid, ſhall continue in the ſaid Place or Office of Deputy, any louger than for the Time that he ſhall be and remain of the Common-Council of the ſaid City, for the Ward wherein he was Deputy: And that upon his Removal from, or not being choſen of the Common-Council for that Ward, for any ſucceeding Year, every ſuch Nomination and Appointment to be Deputy, ſhall be void: and in ſuch caſe every Alderman ſhall nominate and appoint ſome other Perſou, being of the Common-Council of the ſaid City, for the Ward whereof he is Alderman, to be his Deputy, in his Room and Stead.

And be it further Enacted, That to all and every Precept and Precepts hereafter to iſſue, and be ſent out for the Summoning any Court of Wardmote, for the Nomination and Election of an Alderman and Common-Council-Men, or any of them, this preſent Act be annexed.

And that before any Nomination or Election be made, as aforeſaid, at any Court of Wardmote, ſo much of this preſent Act, as relates to the Nomination and Election of Aldermen, and Common-Council-Men, ſhall be publickly and diſtinctly read and declared to the Perſons who ſhall then be and appear at ſuch Court, and be duly put in Execution and obſerved.

An ACT for Reviving the ancient Manner of Electing ALDERMEN.

Whereas by the ancient Uſage and Cuſtom of the City of London, when any Ward of the ſaid City became vacant and deſtitute of an Alderman, the Inhabitants of that Ward, having a Right to Vote in ſuch Elections, were wont to chuſe one Perſon only, being a Citizen and Freeman of the ſaid City, to be Alderman of the ſame Ward.

And whereas ſeveral Acts and Ordinances of Common-Council have been heretofore made to alter the ſaid ancient Way and Method of Election, as particularly on the Firſt of Auguſt, in the twenty firſt Year of the Reign of King Richard the Second, It was Ordained, That for the future in the Elections of Aldermen, Two at leaſt, honeſt and diſcreet Men, by the Men of the Ward which ſhould be deſtitute of an Alderman, ſhould be choſen and preſented to the Maior and Aldermen, ſo that either of them whom they ſhould chuſe might be admitted and ſworn; and on the twentieth of September, in the Third Year of the Reign of King Henry the Fourth, it was agreed and ordained by the Maior and Aldermen, That in the Elections of Aldermen thenceforwards to be made, there ſhould be named and choſen Four of the moſt honeſt and ſufficient Citizens of the City, One of which moſt fit to ſupport the Honour and Charge of the City, according to the Diſcretion and ſound Conſciences of the Maior and Aldermen for the Time being, ſhould be admitted and ſworn to execute the ſame Office: Which ſaid Ordinance in the Common-Council, holden the twenty third day of November then following, was approved.

And whereas by an Act of Common-Council made the twentieth day of September, in the Tenth Year of her Majeſty's Reign, in the Maioralty of Sir Gilbert Heathcote, Kt. Intituled, An Act to Regulate the Elections of Aldermen, the ſaid laſt recited Ordinance is repealed and made void to all Intents and Purpoſes whatſoever: And it is thereby (amongſt other things) Enacted, That from thenceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there ſhould be named, elected, and preſented to the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen for the Time being, by the Houſholders of that Ward which ſhould be deſtitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the ſaid City, and paying Scot, and bearing Lot, two Perſons and no more, viz. one Alderman and one able and ſufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, not being an Alderman; which ſaid Alderman ſo to be nominated and preſented, ſhall and may remove to, accept and take ſuch Ward, by the Inhabitants whereof, qualified as aforeſaid, he ſhall be ſo nominated, elected and preſented, if preſent when the Report of the ſaid Nomination and Election ſhall be made, to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, and ſhall declare his Intention ſo to do. In which Caſe, there ſhall be a Wardmote holden, and the like Nomination and Preſentment made to the ſaid Court, by the Inhabitants of that Ward whereof he was an Alderman, within four Days then next enſuing: But in caſe ſuch Alderman ſo nominated and preſented, ſhall be abſent at the Time of making the ſaid Report, or being preſent ſhall declare his Refuſal to remove; then, in every ſuch Caſe, the other Perſon nominated and returned with the ſaid Alderman, ſhall by the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen be accepted, admitted and ſworn, well and truly to execute the ſaid Office of Alderman; as by the ſaid ſeveral Acts or Ordinances, relation being thereunto ſeverally had, may more fully appear.

Which ſeveral Ways of Electing and Preſenting more than one Perſon to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, upon a Vacancy of an Alderman, have been found to be very inconvenient, and to create unneceſſary Difficulties in ſettling ſuch Elections in Caſes where Conteſts do ariſe.

Be it therefore Enacted by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, the Aldermen and Commons in this Common-Council aſſembled, and by Authority of the ſame, that the ſaid ſeveral recited Acts or Ordinances of Common-Council, and every of them, and all other Acts and Ordinances of Common-Council, ſo far only as they or any of them oblige and require the Inhabitants of the ſeveral Wards of this City, in Elections of Aldermen, to nominate, elect and preſent more than one Perſon to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, ſhall be and are hereby repealed, and made abſolutely null and void.

And for reviving the ſaid ancient Cuſtom, and reſtoring to the ſaid Inhabitants their ancient Rights and Privileges of chuſing One Perſon only to be their Alderman; Be it further Enacted, by the Authority aforeſaid, That from henceforth, in all Elections of Aldermen of the ſaid City, at a Wardmote to be holden for that purpoſe, within the Time by the Laws of the ſaid City limited for holding the ſame, there ſhall be elected, according to the ſaid ancient Cuſtom, by the Houſholders of that Ward which ſhall be void of an Alderman, being Freemen of the ſaid City, and paying Scot, and bearing Lot, only One able and ſufficient Citizen and Freeman of the ſaid City, not being an Alderman: Which Perſon ſo Elected ſhall be returned by the Lord Maior, or other Perſon duly authorized to hold ſuch Wardmote, to the ſaid Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, within the Time for that purpoſe by the Laws of the ſaid City limited and appointed, and ſhall be by them admitted and ſworn, well and truly to execute the ſaid Office of Alderman; and in caſe of his Refuſal to take the ſame Office upon him (unleſs he can diſcharge himſelf therefrom, according to the Laws of the ſaid City) he ſhall be ſubject and liable to all Pains and Penalties which may be inflicted on him by the Laws and Cuſtoms of the ſaid City, or otherwiſe, for ſuch his Refuſal.

Provided always, and be it Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That all Acts of Common-Council heretofore made, relating to the Time of Electing, or the Method or Manner of taking Polls and Scrutinies upon, or making Returns of ſuch Elections, and every Article and Thing in them, and every of them contained, which are not by this or ſome former Act repealed or altered, ſhall ſtand and be in force, and be duly obſerved by all Perſons therein concerned; Any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

Provided alſo, That nothing herein contained ſhall extend, or be conſtrued to alter the Manner of Conſtituting or Electing an Alderman of the Ward of Bridge-Without, whenever the ſame ſhall become vacant; but that the Method of Conſtituting and Electing an Aldermau of the ſaid Ward, ſhall be continued and obſerved, as in and by the ſaid Act made the Twentieth of September, One thouſand ſeven hundred and eleven, is directed and appointed.

GIBSON.

And here it may not be improper to ſubjoyn a Doubt about a Clauſe in the ACT of Common-Council, concerning the Election of two Aldermen in the Wardmote. As follows:

The Caſe of the Inhabitants of the Ward of Biſhopſgate, in Reference to the Return of an Alderman by the Lord Maior, &c. with the Opinion of Sergeant Prat, and Mr. Lechmere thereon. Drawn up by Mr. Richard Bromely, a Common-Council-Man of the ſaid Ward.

Court of Wardmote an ancient Franciſe.

THE Courts of Wardmotes are Court Leets, and are an ancient Franchiſe of the City of London: Which have been held Time out Mind, and ar econfirmed by divers Acts of Parliament. The Government of theſe Courts is in the Court of Aldermen: who are a Court of Record, and Conſervators of the Rights and Franchiſes of the ſaid City; and are ſworn to uphold and maintain the ſame.

The ſaid Courts of Wardmote are held by the Lord Maiors as Stewards thereof, or by their Deputies. And all Returns of Officers choſe, and other Matters which concern the Government of the ſaid City, tranſacted in the ſaid Courts of Wardmotes, are always made to the Court of Aldermen: who have Cognizance thereof.

By ancient Cuſtom the Aldermen of each reſpective Ward were choſen by the Inhabitants of the ſame; paying Scot, and bearing Lot, which by ſome late Acts of Common Council, is reſtrained to Freemen only; viz.

By an Act made the 20th of September, 1711. It is (inter alia) Enacted, that from thenceforth in all Elections of Aldermen of this City, there ſhall be named, elected, and preſented to the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen, for the Time being, by the Houſholders of that Ward which ſhall be deſtitute of an Alderman, being Freemen of the ſaid City, and paying Scot, and bearing Lot, an Alderman, and one able and ſufficient Citizen and Freeman of this City, &c.

Vid. the Act.

An Election is lately made of an Alderman for the Ward of Biſhopſgate, purſuant to the ſaid Act of Common Council.

The Lord Maior makes a Return to the Court of Aldermen of * A. B. as duely elected, and called for him to be ſworn into the Office.

Laurence.

A Petition was preſented to the Court of Aldermen by many Inhabitants of the ſaid Ward, complaining of an undue Return.

Which ſaid Petition his Lordſhip refuſed to be read in the ſaid Court, before the Perſon he had returned, ſhould be ſworn

Quer. I. Whether the Court of Aldermen ought not firſt to read and and conſider the Petition, before the Perſon he returned, be ſworn?

The Judgment of Mr. LECHMERE follows.

I am of Opinion, that the Court of Aldermen are in Juſtice bound to read the Petition; and likewiſe to conclude, and come to a Reſolution upon it, before the Perſon returned by the Lord Maior, be ſworn and admitted into Office; if the Court of Aldermen have Power to do Right to the Petitioners; as I think they have. It muſt be a great Injuſtice to them, as well as Reproach to their own Proceedings, to defer the Conſideration of a Petition, till it ſhall be too late to give relief upon it.

Quer. II. Hath the Court of Aldermen a Right to judge and determine concerning the Merits of the Election, notwithſtanding any thing contained in the ſaid Act of Common Council?

I think the Court of Aldermen have an unqueſtionable Right to judge of the Election. It has upon former Occaſions appeared, that they have immemorially exerciſed ſuch Power, of reconſidering the Election upon the Petition of the Electors: And that they have, as the Caſe was done right to the Ward, even againſt the Report of the Lord Maior, by admitting the Perſon, who appeared to them to be duly choſen into ſuch Office, tho' not returned. And this Power of the Court of Aldermen, I conceive, neither is, nor can be abridged, or taken away by the Act of Common Council.

Quere III. If ſo, is the Court at Liberty to judge upon the ſame ab integro? Or, are they confined to the Objections delivered to my Lord Maior, by the Scrutiners in ſuch Elections?

The Court of Aldermen are at Liberty, nay, I think, they muſt in Juſtice adjudge upon the Merits of the Election ab integro, if inſiſted on by either ſide, and cannot be confined to the Objections of the Scrutiners. The Order of the Common Council in that reſpect is but directory, as to the Proceeding of the Lord Maior, and does not extend to the Court of Aldermen: who are in nature of a Superiour Court, and muſt re-examine the State of the whole Election, if required; as neceſſary to do Juſtice to the Parties.

N. LECHMERE, May 11th 1713.

Serjeant Pratt*'s Opinion upon the forecited Act, and another Act of Common Council made the 6th Day of* Decemb. 1712. viz.

Scrutineers.

IT is there enacted, (inter alia) that the Scrutiners in any Scrutiny upon an Election of Alderman, ſhall within ten Days after a Receipt of a Copy of the Pole-Book, deliver to the Lord Maior, a Copy of their Objections with their Reaſons.

Quer. I. Whether, Shopkeepers, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, lodging in ſuch Ward, and being Freemen of the ſaid City, have not a Right to vote in ſuch Elections?

Anſwer. A Shopkeeper is in Law, and within the Intent of this By-Law, as I conceive, Domus Manſionis: And therefore a Shopkeeper within the Ward, being otherwiſe qualified, hath a Right to Vote in ſuch Elections, as I conceive.

Quer. II. Hath the Court of Aldermen a Right to judge and determine concerning the Merits of the Election; notwithſtanding any thing contained in the ſaid two Acts of Common Council?

Anſw. The Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen are not concluded by the Report of the Lord Maior; but being obliged to admit, and ſwear the Perſon that is elected, and preſented to them by the Houſholders, muſt of neceſſity, as incident thereto, have a Power to enquire into the Merits of the Election: eſpecially, if complaint be made by the Electors, that the Report is wrong.

Quer. II. If ſo, is the Court at Liberty to Judge upon the ſame ab integro? Or, are they confined to the Objections delivered to my Lord Maior?

Anſw. The laſt By-Law was intended only to prevent Delays by the Lord Maior. And therefore hath preſcribed a Method for his Proceeding; but doth not, as I conceive, extend to the Court of Aldermen. But they may enquire into the Right of Election without regard had to any ſuch Proceedings: to the End that they might admit and ſwear the right Perſon who is not bound by any reſpect of the Scrutiners.

JOHN PRATT.

Another Caſe about Election of Aldermen.

There was alſo a notable Caſe lately of Alderman Conyers (now Sir Gerard Conyers Kt.) and Alderman Delme (now Sir Peter Delme Kt.) and the Common Council, oppoſing their Election, which was as follows.

Communicated to me by Mr. Rich. Bromely

THE Courts of Wardmotes are Courts Leet, and are an ancient Franchiſe of the City of London, which hath been held Time out of Mind, and are confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament. The Government of theſe Courts is in the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen: who are a Court of Record and Conſervators of the Rights and Franchiſes of the ſaid City, and are ſworn to maintain and uphold the ſame. The ſaid Courts of Wardmote are held by the Lord Maiors, Stewards thereof, or by their Deputies: And all Returns of Officers choſen, and other Matters, which concern the Government of the ſaid City, tranſacted in the ſaid Courts of Wardmotes, are always made to the Court of Aldermen on St Thomas Day; who have Cognizance thereof, by ancient Uſage confirmed by the Act of Parliament for reſtoring the City Charter.

See the Precept to the Aldermen from the Lord Maior.

The Aldermen of each reſpective Ward were choſen by the Inhabitants of the ſame, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, which by ſome late Acts of the Common Council is reſtrained to Freemen only. In two late Elections of Aldermen in the Ward of Broadſtreet and Langborn, the ſaid Lord Maior for the Time being, held the Wardmotes, and took the Polls, and Scrutinies, and made Returns of the Perſons, whom he apprehended to be duely elected, to the Court of Aldermen. And no complaint being made to the ſaid Court of an undue Election, Mr. Conyers was admitted, and ſworn an Alderman for the Ward of Broadſtreet: And Mr. Delme for the Ward of Langborn by the ſaid Court, according to the ancient Cuſtom and Uſage.

Some ſhort Time after, the other Candidates in the ſaid Elections, finding themſelves diſappointed; and depending upon their Intereſt in the Court of Common Council, and being reſolved to make it a Party-Cauſe, applyed themſelves to the ſaid Court, and obtained an Order to commence Suits in the Queen's Bench Court at Weſtminſter, againſt the ſaid Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme: And the ſaid Court of Common Council appointed a Committee of their own Members to proſecute the ſame: and ordered Monies out of the Chamber of London, to carry on ſuch Proſecution. And the ſaid Committee have cauſed ſeveral vexatious Suits to be commenced in the Queen's Courts at Weſtminſter againſt the ſame Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme: And have applyed great Sums of Money, which they received by Vertue of the ſame Order, for carrying on the ſame, to the Damage and Oppreſſion of Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme.

The ſaid Mr. Conyers and Mr. Delme, being returned, admitted and ſworn according to the ancient Cuſtom and Uſage of the ſaid City, and no Complaint or Objections being brought to the Court of Aldermen of any undue Election in the ſaid Wards, 'tis preſumed the Acts of the ſaid Court in Admiſſion of the ſaid Aldermen is concluſive; and the Matters in queſtion in the Suits brought, being touching the Right to the Title of the ſaid Office of an Alderman, which being for Life is a Freehold within the Purview of the Laws of this Kingdom; Whether any Perſon, or Perſons, who are not immediately concerned in Intereſt in the ſaid Freehold, who ſhall concern themſelves in the Proſecutions of ſuch Suits, by the Application of Money, or otherwiſe, for carrying on the ſame, are not within the Statutes of Maintenance; and may not be proſecuted by Indictments, or by Information in the Crown-Office for the ſame; Notwithſtanding any Orders of the Common Council for that Purpoſe.

Quere.

Common Council, What?

The Court of Common Council, as now conſtituted, is but of a late ſtanding. By ancient Cuſtom and Uſage the Members were ſummoned by the Lord Maiors and Court of Aldermen out of the ſeveral Companies and Myſteries; to adviſe with, and make Ordinances, as Occaſion offered: And at other Times, out of the ſeveral Wards, for the ſame Purpoſes: but without any certain Number. Their Qualifications and Number, as is preſumed, depended upon the Diſcretion of the Lord Maiors and Courts of Aldermen. And their Buſineſs was chiefly to adviſe about the Revenues and Common Welfare of the City. Their very Stile and Oath import ſo much. The Oath they take is to this Effect following: viz. 'To give good and true Counſel in all things touching the Common Welfare of this City, after their Wit and Cunning: And that for favour of any Perſon, they will maintain no Singular Profit againſt the Common Profit of this City.

Tho' the preſent Settlement of the Common Council differs, as to the Choice and Number, from what it did formerly; it doth not appear that they have acquired any new Authority.

Quere.

Whether their late By-Laws for altering the ancient Cuſtom and Uſage in the Wardmotes, confirmed by Parliament, in the Election of Aldermen, and taking away the Right of Unfreemen, being Inhabitants in the ſaid Wards, paying Scot, and bearing Lot, at the Time of Elections, be not void in it ſelf, and no ways binding to her Majeſty's Subjects in ſuch Wards; whoſe ancient Rights are invaded thereby.

The Tryal of this Caſe (by the Reſolution of the Common Council) coſt the City ſome Thouſands of Pounds: and the two Aldermen Elect as much. And the Matter at laſt ſunk.

These Suits and Expences complained of in Parliament.

But this Expence was complained of in the Houſe of Lords, ſitting Anno Dom. 1719. Apr.... when the ſaid Houſe received the Report of the Committee appointed to examine into the many Sums of Money which had been iſſued out of the City Caſh, for carrying on Cauſes and Suits at Law, relating to the Elections of Aldermen and Common Council Men: which begun in the Year 1711. By which it appears that 2827 l. 10 s. had been expended in ſuch kind of Suits and Proſecutions. Which the Lords having debated, reſolved, 'That the Common Councils of London having iſſued great Sums of Money out of the Chamber of London, in maintaining ſeveral Suits of Law between Citizen and Citizen, relating to controverted Elections, have abuſed their Truſt, been guilty of great Partiality, and of a groſs Miſmanagement of the City Treaſure, and a Violation of the Freedom of Elections!]

But now to go on with the ancient Cuſtoms, as I have taken them out of the Records of London.

Concerning the Aldermens Courts, called WARDMOTES.

Wardmote, What? Lib. Alb. J. S.

A WARDMOTE is the Aſſembly of the whole People of one Ward ſummoned, the Alderman the Head being preſent, or his Deputy, for correcting the Defects, removing the Annoyances, and promoting the Commodities of the ſame Ward.

Wardmote is as much as Plibiſcitum among the Romans, and Folkeſmote among the Saxons.

What was done at Wardmotes.

The Alderman was wont once, twice or more times in the Year, by Vertue of a Warrant from the Maior directed to him, to hold his Wardmote. In which he was wont to inquire of the State and Quiet of the ſaid Ward, and to preſent the Defects to be corrected by the Alderman.

The Chooſing of an Alderman.

What was done, a Ward being Vacant.

IN chooſing of an Alderman, [according to ancient Cuſtom] the Maior was wont to go to the Ward which was vacant, and in the Place where the Wardmote of that Ward was held, there calling before him, if he would, by the Bedel, all the Freemen inhabiting that Ward: And there an Alderman ought to be choſe by the Maior and the ſounder Part of them preſently if they would, or could, or elſe by a prefixed Day: So that they exceeded not 15 Days, to make that Election. Becauſe then the Maior ought, and was wont with the Advice of the Aldermen his Fellows, to appoint an honeſt, wealthy and circumſpect Man for Alderman of that Ward.

How an Alderman was choſen, and preſented. What penalty upon refuſal.

And the Men of the Ward, when they had choſen, were to preſent the elected Perſon to the Maior and Aldermen, to be admitted. Which Elect after he was admitted, if he refuſed to take upon him this Office or to undergo it, he ſhould loſe his Freedom by the Cuſtom of the City, to which he ſhould not return without making a notable Fine and Payment.

And if the Elect were admitted, he was to ſwear the Oath accuſtomed. But if the Maior and Aldermen for ſome notable Cauſe thought not fit, that the Elect be admitted, the Ward muſt proceed again to a better Election. But if they would not, or out of their illwilling and proud Diſpoſitions, choſe another whom, for the benefit and honour of the City, the Court would not condeſcend to admit, the Maior and Aldermen, after 15 Days expectation, as in the former Caſe, were wont to chuſe and admit another.

The Manner of holding a Common Council.

How many out of each Ward ſummoned.

THE Day before, the Maior and Aldermen ſhall cauſe to be ſummoned by the Servants of the Chamber, to come to Guild-hall, out of each Ward, ſixteen, twelve, eight or four (according to the greatneſs or ſmallneſs of it) of the Wiſeſt and Wealthieſt ſort: and that none but they that are ſummoned come, nor preſume to be of this Council, and that under pain of Impriſonment anciently, more lately, under a certain penalty and correction made in an Ordinance in the Time of Nicolas Wotton, Maior. All the Commoners ſummoned ſhall be called over ſingly by a Servant of the Chamber ſtanding higher then the reſt: and thoſe that make default a Clerk of the Chamber ſhall note in a Roll, which he ſhall hold in his hand, of the Names of the ſummoned. They that appear ſhall go together.

Lib. I. fol. 176.

In caſe of Doubt.

If a Matter of Controverſy and Doubt happen, about which they cannot agree, they ſhall be examined ſeparately by a Servant of the Common Clerk, and of the Common Sergeant at Arms, by Oath, &c. Note, for the Coming of the Men of one or two Wards, if they have been ſummoned, the Buſineſſes of the City ſhall not be delayed: but they may proceed without expecting the coming of the Abſent. And every one ſummoned and not coming ſhall be amerced 2 s. for every time.

Some ſummoned, and not coming.

Oath of a Common Council Man.

The Oath of every one elected to a Common Council is, That he ſhall ſwear to be faithful to our Lord the King, and his Heirs, &c. That he ſhall come when he ſhall be ſummoned for a Common Council of the City, unleſs he be reaſonably to be excuſed; that he ſhall give good and faithful Counſel according to his underſtanding and knowledge; and for no Man's favour ſhall maintain a private Profit againſt the publick and common Profit of the City, &c. So help thee God, &c.

Lib. H. fo. 178. Choſen out of the Myſteries.

In the Time of the Maioralty of John Ward this Ordinance of chooſing Commoners for a Common Council of the City was entred: That whereas before theſe Commoners were choſen by the Wards, hereafter they ſhould be choſen by each Myſtery, and not by Wards. viz. Out of ſome Myſterys ſix Men, out of others four, and out of others two. And to do this, Bills were ſent by the Maior, not to the Aldermen, but to the Governours of each Myſtery. But during that Ordinance, Tumults increaſed among the People: the Great were deſpiſed by the Leſs. Whence great Controverſies and Diviſions aroſe between the Citizens; as appeared in the Election of Nicolas Brembre, John Northampton and other Maiors.

Lib. H. fo. 45, 45.

Afterwards ordered to be choſen out of the Wards.

Afterwards the diſcreeter and worthier Perſons of the City being called together, it was treated about the Amendment of the ſaid Ordinance. And it was finally decreed, that according to the ancient laudable Cuſtoms, a ſolid and approved Common Council ſhould be henceforth choſen by the Wards and not by the Myſteries only. And that Cuſtom in the great Aſſemblies of the Common Council, is held and kept to this Day.

Of the SHERIFFS.

The Sheriffs, Judges; Wherein.

THE Sheriffs of the City were formerly called Bailiffs. They were Judges of themſelves only in their Courts of Perſonal Pleas. And in the Huſtings they were not Judges alone, but alſo Executors of the Judgments and Precepts of the Maior, &c.

The Maior's Eyes.

They are alſo the Maior's Eyes, ſeeing and ſupporting part of the Care, which the Perſon of the Maior alone is not ſufficient to bear. For they and all their Officers ought, and have been accuſtomed to be obedient to the Maior for the Time, as Members ſerving the Head, in ſuperſending and bringing before him Complaints, had and affirmed with them, to examine, &c. and in performing all other his Commands.

Debates with the Sheriffs, how determined.

When a Queſtion or Debate ſhall ariſe between the Sheriffs, and ſome other belonging to the Sheriffs themſelves, or their Officers, it ought, and was accuſtomed to be determined by the Maior and Aldermen: Becauſe the Liberty of the City hitherto hath not allowed the Sheriffs to be Judges themſelves in their own Cauſes.

Order for Sheriffs Clerks and Servants. Lib. Horn. fo. 271.

There happened once, in Edward the Second's Time, great Diſcords to ariſe between Sir John le Blund, Maior, and Reginald de Thunderſle, Sheriff, and his Clerks and Officers. This gave Occaſion to the making of an Ordinance upon the Diſobedience of the Sheriffs and their Clerks. Which was this. "Since that many Evils happen to the Communaltie and Sheriffs, by the Diſobedience, Ignominy and Rebellion of the Sheriffs their Clerks and Servants, it is agreed and appointed by the Maior and Aldermen, that all Sheriffs Clerks and Servants be obedient and yielding to their Superiors in all lawful Things, and that may be done de jure. And if they ſhall not, but be, and may lawfully be, convicted upon this; let them be removed from their Office, without having it again afterwards.

And the Difference between the ſaid Maior and Sheriff received this Accommodation by the Judgment of the Aldermen:

Cognitio & Concordia R. de Thunderſle.

Accommodation of the Diſcord between the Maior and Sheriff. Lib. Horn, ubi ſupra.

"Before the ſaid Aldermen and others, the Diſcords and Diſagreements, ariſen between Sir John le Blund, Maior of London, and Reginald de Thunderſle, Sheriff of London, by common Friends mediating, were quieted: and that in the manner under-written: To wit, that the ſaid Sir John remitted and pardoned the foreſaid Reginald all manner Rancours and Hatreds between them from the beginning of the World to this Day. And the ſaid Reginald, for the fore ſaid Remiſſion and Pardon, pledged to the ſame John ten Hogſheads of Wine: So that the ſaid Reginald do not offend againſt the ſaid Sir John for the future. But if he again offend againſt him; and upon this may “ lawfully be convicted, he obliged himſelf, his “ Heirs and Executors, to pay the ſaid Ten “ Hogſheads.

Of the Election of SHERIFFS.

The Maior firſt electeth. Lib. Alb.

FOR the Cuſtom of electing Sheriffs, the Maior, Recorder, Aldermen, and Commons being aſſembled on St. Matthew's Day, in the Manner as is appointed in the Election of Maior; Firſt, the Maior ſhall chooſe according to his own Free Will, one diſcreet Man, Free of the City, to be one of the Sheriffs for the enſuing Year. For whom he will anſwer the Moiety of the Farm of the City to the King, if he, ſo choſen by the Maior, be not ſufficient. But if the Maior chooſe by the Counſel and Aſſent of the Aldermen, they muſt anſwer with him. And thoſe Perſons that are choſen by the Common Council, for themſelves and for the others ſummoned by the Maior for this Cauſe (as before is declared) ſhall chooſe for the Commons another Sheriff. For whom the whole Commonalty muſt anſwer, for the other Moiety of the Farm due to the King, if he be not ſufficient.

In caſe of a Controverſy upon an Election.

If a Controverſy ariſe among the Commons upon the Election, it may be done and diſcuſſed in the manner as is contained in the Article of the Common Council.

In caſe of Refuſal, or Abſence, the Penalty.

If any of thoſe choſen refuſe, or abſent himſelf, that he be not preſent at Guildhall the Eve of St. Michael at Ten of the Clock, to take his Charge, then ſhall be levied of his Goods, Lands, and Tenements, 100 l. One Half to the uſe of the Chamber, the other Half to him that ſhall then preſently be Elected and Charged with the Office on his Default. And if being choſen again the ſecond time he refuſed the Charge, all his Goods, Lands and Tenements were to be arreſted for all the Coſts relating to that Office.

Right of Election of Sheriffs, declared.

About the Right of Election of Sheriffs, Matters ran high in the City, at the latter End of King Charles the Second's Reign: the Maior adhering to the ancient Cuſtom of nominating one Sheriff, and the Commons endeavouring to break that Cuſtom, as by the Charter having that Power in themſelves to chooſe both Sheriffs. Which begat great Feuds and Diſturbances among the Citizens: And many Pamphlets were printed pro and con upon that Argument. In the Maioralty of Sir John Moore, the Court of Aldermen directed ſome judicious Perſons to conſult the Records of the City, what the Cuſtom and Practice had been in former Times. Which, after it was drawn up, the Court required it to be printed by this Order, viz.

Thurſday, June 25th 1682. and 34 Car. II.

This Court taking notice of divers Papers that have been printed, touching the Uſage in chooſing the Sheriffs of this City and the County of Middleſex, doth Order, That this Collection which hath been made out of the City Records by Direction of this Court, be forthwith printed, to give Information to the Citizens of this City, touching this Matter.

WAGSTAFF.

It was called A brief Collection out of the Records of the City touching Election of Sheriffs of London and Middleſex.

Cuſtom for the Ld Maior to nominate a Sheriff, from 21 Ed. III.

The Collector firſt ſheweth, that the Charters are to the Citizens to chooſe their Sheriffs: But that by Uſage and peculiar By-Laws thoſe Elections were reſtrained to the Liveries. And that ſo it had been the Uſage from the 21ſt Year of Edward III. for the Maior to nominate or chooſe a Perſon, either in the Common Hall, or, if drunk to before, to preſent him to the Common Hall. And he there hath been always confirmed and allowed to be one of the Sheriffs; until the Year 1641. Except in four or five Years between the 21ſt of Edward III. and the Year 1641. Wherein the Sheriffs were on the Day of Election both nominated by the Commonalty, the Perſons choſen by the Maior having before refuſed the Office, and paid the Forfeiture. And from 1641, during all the Time of the Rebellion, and ſo to the Year 1663, the Perſon nominated by the Lord Maior was refuſed to be confirmed by the Common Hall; but hath been confirmed ever ſince (except in the Year 1674) to the Year 1680.

The Collector further ſhewed, that this Privilege of the Lord Maior, was in the City Records ſeveral times, ſaid to be according to ancient Cuſtoms, Rules and Ordinances of the City.

That indeed 4 Hen. V. in an Act of Common Council then made, it is ſaid, that the Sheriff ought to be freely and indifferently choſen by the more ſufficient Citizens, ſummoned to thoſe Elections. Other Acts of Common Council make particular mention of, or imply the foreſaid Privilege. As an Act of Edward the Third's Time, That Citizens abſenting themſelves on the Day of Election, to avoid the Office of Sheriff, ſhould forfeit 100 l. And the Maior every Year to ſay in his Conſcience and by his Oath, if he had choſen any other than he hath choſen, if he had been preſent, and to name the Perſon. And the Commonalty in the ſame manner.

An Act made 7 Rich. II. That St. Matthew's Day ſhall be the Day of Election of a Sheriff; and when the Commons ſhall have agreed upon a Perſon, they ſhall preſent him to the Maior and Aldermen.

An Act made 19 Hen. VIII. That if any Citizen happened to be Named or Elected, as well by the Maior According to his ancient Prerogative, as by the Commonalty on the 2d of September, and take not the Office, he ſhall Forfeit, &c.

An Act made 30 Hen. VIII. That the Election of Sheriffs for the Commonalty, ſhall be had and uſed on the Day of St. Peter ad Vincula; Provided, the Maior ſhall not at any time before Lammas, Name and Elect one of the Sheriffs, at his Pleaſure.

An Act made 13 Eliz. That if any Citizen happen to be choſen Sheriff, either by the Maior, or elſe by the Commons, at Times and Places appointed, &c. and appear not to take upon him the Office, he ſhall Forfeit, &c.

An Act the 24th of the ſame Queen: Whereby the 1ſt of Auguſt is appointed for Confirmation, Allowance and Election of the Perſons to be named Sheriffs by the Lord Maior, according to ancient Uſage: And for the Election of another by the Lord Maior and Commons. If the Perſon to be named by the Maior ſhall before the 1ſt of Auguſt refuſe to take upon him the Office, or deceaſe; or that new Nomination ſhall need to be made, it ſhall be lawful for the Lord Maior, before the 1ſt of Auguſt, to make a new Nomination, or Nomination, as hath been accuſtomed.

An Act 36 Eliz. and the ſame alſo is repeated 7 Car. I. differing only in the Penalties; which are made greater by this of 7 Car. I. This repealeth all former Acts touching Election and Confirmation of Sheriffs: And conſtituteth the Day, as well for Confirmation and Allowance of ſuch Perſons, as ſhall be Choſen and Elected by the Lord Maior to be Sheriffs, as for the Choice of ſuch other Perſon as by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons ſhall be choſen to be Sheriff, to be the 24th of June. And thereby it is Enacted, That if any Perſon ſo Choſen and Elected, do not before the next Court of Aldermen enter into Bond to take upon him the Office, he ſhall forfeit 400 l. And that if any Forfeiture ſhall be made by any Perſon to be firſt choſen or elected by the Lord Maior, 100 l. of ſuch Forfeiture ſhall be to him that ſhall firſt in the ſame Year accept that Office. And if after ſuch Acceptance, any other Forfeiture ſhall happen to be made by any Perſons that ſhall be choſen by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons, 100 l. ſhall be to him, that ſhall firſt after accept the Office, being elected by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons.

And that no Alderman by Poſteriority of Election ſhall be inferior to a Commoner: And that the Lord Maior do not chooſe any Commoner, while there is an Alderman eligible,

The uſual Proclamation that beginneth the Common Hall on Midſummer-Day, declareth, That they are ſummoned for Confirmation of the Perſon choſen by the Lord Maior; and for Election of another, to be Sheriffs for the Year enſuing.

From the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, Perſons drunk to by the Lord Maior, have frequently before Confirmation by the Common Hall, ſign'd Bonds to hold the Office, or paid the Forfeiture upon Refuſal to hold, or ſwore themſelves not of Ability to hold.

By all which it may appear (as the Paper concluded) that what Sir John Moor the preſent Lord Maior had done, in chooſing Mr. North, and preſenting him to the Common Hall to be confirmed, was no Innovation; but was warranted by Uſage and Acts of Common Council; notwithſtanding the falſe Inſinuation lately ſet forth in Print to the contrary.

Act for regulating Election of Sheriffs.

The next Year 1683, Sir VVilliam Pritchard, Maior, there was made an Act of Common Council for the Regulation of the Election of Sheriffs, upon a Report made by Sir James Edwards, Sir John Moor, Sir Henry Tulſe, Aldermen, and ſeveral other Commoners appointed thereunto. Which Report was to this Tenor:

That they found the Uſage for the Lord Maior to nominate and elect one of the Sheriffs of this City and Middleſex, called in queſtion in the troubleſome and diſorderly Times, as it was unhappily that Year, [viz. 1683.] or the two laſt: And that they had examined the Uſage in that Particular, and found it very ancient, and not queſtioned that they could find, until the breaking out of thoſe Troubles [between King Charles and the Parliament.] And that they had ſeen very many Acts of Common Council that took notice of it, and allowed it: and particularly the Act made 7 Car. I. touching the Election of Sheriffs. To which laſt-mentioned Act they were of Opinion, that certain Additions or Explications ſhould be made in ſome Particulars, which ſeemed not ſufficiently provided for thereby: And that they had prepared a Bill for that purpoſe, which they preſented to the Honourable Court. All which they humbly ſubmitted to the Wiſdom and good Pleaſure of this Honourable Court, the 5th of June, 1683, with their Names ſubſcribed: Who were, Sir VVilliam Turner, Sir John Moor, Sir Henry Tulſe, Sir Thomas Langham, Fra. Griffith, Nathaniel Hawes, Hen. Loads, Pet. Ailworth, Nic. Charleton, Tho. Vernon.

The Bill being then read, it was put to the Queſtion, whether the ſame ſhould be read again, or recommitted: and be determined to be read again? it was ſo done accordingly. And queſtion being put, whether it ſhould be read a third time? it was carried againſt the further reading thereof. Then upon a further Queſtion, whether the ſaid Bill ſhould paſs, or no, and Poll taken thereupon, 113 Commoners being for the paſſing it; and 78 againſt it? the ſame was paſt and made the Act of this Court.

Penalty for refuſing to act, when choſen Sheriff.

The Penalty in this Act was, for a Freeman choſen, and refuſing to act, to forfeit 400 l. For an Alderman choſen Sheriff, and refuſing, to pay 600 l. Whereas before, the Forfeiture was but 600 Mark.

The Maior's Sheriff confirmed.

And whereas there was of late great and fierce Diſputes and Conteſts touching the Uſage of the Maior to elect a Perſon for Sheriff; which hath given great Diſturbance to many good Citizens and Offence to his Majeſty: And Feuds and Animoſities have thereby ariſen, and are ſtill too much continued among many Citizens; and other manifold Inconveniences and Miſchiefs have been occaſioned thereby to the City, and greater may enſue, if due remedy be not provided: To take away and remove all Occaſions of the like Diſturbances for the future; It is declared and enacted, that hereafter the Perſon who ſhall be nominated and elected by the Maior according to ancient Uſage, be one of the Sheriffs, and ſuch Election ſhall be declared to the Commons of the ſaid City aſſembled in the Common Hall the 24th of June, being the Day appointed for the Confirmation and Allowance of ſuch Perſon, and alſo for the Choice and Election of ſuch other Perſon as by the Maior, Aldermen and Common Council ſhall be choſen, to be Sheriff of the ſaid City and County of Middleſex.

The Court reſents theſe Quarrels of the Citizens.

Theſe Bandyings among the Citizens, wherein the Diſſenters from the Eſtabliſhed Church, generally went, for depriving the Maior of the foreſaid ancient Cuſtom, gave great Offence to the Court: and both his Highneſs the Duke of York, and the King himſelf, ſoon ſhewed their Reſentments. For in this Year 1683, a Suit commenced, wherein James Duke of York was Plaintiff, and Thomas Pilkington, Eſq; (who was afterwards Sir Thomas Pilkington and Maior) was Defendant, upon an Action of Scandalum Magnatum, for that he had charged the Firing the City upon that Duke. And not long after, in the ſame Year 1683, there was an Information brought againſt Sir Patience VVard, Knt. and Alderman, who was a Witneſs on behalf of Pilkington, for Perjury, in the Court of King's Bench, in that he had ſaid, that there were many words laid in the Declaration in the foreſaid Action of Scandalum Magnatum, not ſpoken by Mr. Pilkington. To which Sir Patience Ward and his Witneſſes pleaded, that what he depoſed was as he believed, or to the beſt of his Knowledge, or according to the beſt of his Memory, or that he did not hear ſuch and ſuch words ſpoken. But the Jury brought him in guilty of the Information.

Pilkington and Ward, Aldermen, ſued by the Duke of York.

K. Charles ſeizes the Charter.

King Charles the ſame Year ſhewed his Diſpleaſure againſt the City in a higher manner; namely, in ſeizing the Charter of the City, by an Information againſt the Maior and Commonalty, for uſurping of divers Franchiſes and Liberties within the ſaid City, and for aſſuming to themſelves an unlawful Power to levy ſeveral great Sums of Money as well upon the ſaid Citizens of London as Strangers; and in particular, upon thoſe which came to the Market of the ſaid City; by colour of the Laws and Ordinances of their Common Council by them in fact ordained and eſtabliſhed, without any other Right or Authority. And for that the ſaid Maior and Commonalty and Citizens in their Common Council aſſembled, did vote and ordain, That a certain Petition, under the name of the Maior, &c. ſhould be exhibited to the King maliciouſly and ſeditiouſly: and to the intent that the ſame Petition might be publiſhed and diſperſed abroad, &c. they did ordain it to be imprinted, and did print and cauſe the ſame to be printed and publiſhed. The Import of this Petition was, that the Parliament might ſit, and examine the dangerous Plot againſt the King's Life; taking notice therein of the King's proroguing them juſt when they were upon the Buſineſs.

A Riot in an Election of the Sheriff.

To which may be added, to ſhew in what a Ferment things now were in the City, upon the Infringement of this Cuſtom of the Maior in nominating a Sheriff, Thomas Pilkington, Eſq; Slingesby Bethel, Samuel Swinnock, John Deagle, Richard Freeman, John Jakel, John Key, and John Wickham, Sir Thomas Player, Henry Corniſh, Samuel Shute, and Francis Jenkes: All theſe were in the Years 1682 and 1683, proſecuted and convicted for a Riot, about the Election of Sheriffs for the City of London. And by Judgment of the Court of King's Bench in Trinity Term, 1683, were fined 4100 l. and by Impriſonment and otherwiſe were forced to pay the ſame: Which ſoon was paid into the Exchequer.

Several Acts about Election of Sheriffs, repealed.

Sir Richard Levet being Maior, an Act of Common Council was made, and printed: Wherein it was ordered, concerning an Act of Common Council made in the Maioralty of Sir Robert Ducy, Knight, which repealed two Clauſes in two Acts of Common Council, made in the ſeveral Maioralties of the ſaid Sir Robert Ducy and Sir William Pritchard, Knights.

The Act made in Ducy's Maioralty, mentioned an Act made May the 5th, 34 Reg. Elizab. Sir William Webbe, Maior, touching the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of this City and County of Middleſex, and divers other Acts of Common Council made concerning the ſame. Now by Ducy's Act, all thoſe Acts were made void and of none Effect: For that the ſame Laws had not taken ſo good Effect as might have been wiſhed, by reaſon that the Penalties and Forfeitures therein contained, had been over mild; and thereby his Majeſty's Service was in danger of Prejudice; and the Citizens, by reaſon of their often Refuſal of the Office of Sheriff, had been much troubled and diſquieted.

The Day of Election the 24th of June.

Now it is ordered, that the Day for Confirmation and Allowance of ſuch as ſhall be choſen by the Lord Maior to be Sheriff of the City and County of Middleſex; as alſo for the Choice and Election of ſuch other Perſons, as by the Lord Maior, Aldermen, and Commons, ſhould be choſen to be Sheriffs of the City and County of Middleſex, ſhould be yearly holden on the 24th of June. Or if there ſhould be juſt Cauſe to make a new Election, then the ſame to be from time to time on ſuch Day as ſhould be ordered by the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen.

Sheriff to be elected to be worth 10000 Pounds.

That no Freeman of the City ſo to be choſen, be diſcharged or exempted from the Execution of the Office of Sheriffalty, except he will voluntarily take his Corporal Oath, before the Lord Maior and Aldermen in open Court, that he is not of the Value of 10000 l. in Lands, Goods, and ſeperate Debts; and do bring with him ſix other Citizens of good Credit and Reputation, who ſhall voluntarily teſtify upon their Oath, that in their Conſciences they believe that the ſaid Perſon hath depoſed and ſworn truly.

Preamble to ſome old Acts repealed.

WHereas an Act of Council made the Fifth day of May, in the Thirty fourth Year of the Reign of our late Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth, of England, &c. in the Time of the Maioralty of Sir William Webb, Kt. deceaſed; one Act was made and ordained, for touching and concerning the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of this City, and the County of Middleſex. And whereas alſo divers other Acts of Common Council have been made touching the ſame, Be it therefore Enacted by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Common Council of this City, That the ſaid Act made the ſaid Fifth day of May, in the Four and thirtieth Year aforeſaid, and all other the ſaid Acts made touching or concerning the Choice, Election and Confirmation of the Sheriffs of this City and County of Middleſex, ſhall be void and of none effect, for that the ſame Laws have not taken ſo good effect as might be wiſhed, by reaſon that the Penalties and Forfeitures therein contained, have been over-mild, and thereby his Majeſty's Service have been in danger of prejudice, and the good Citizens of this City, by reaſon of often refuſal of the ſaid Office of Shrievalty have been much troubled and diſquieted: For better Reformation whereof, Be it now therefore Enacted, Ordained and Eſtabliſhed by the Lord Maior and Aldermen and Commons in this Common-Council aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, That from henceforth for ever the Day as well for Confirmation and Allowance of ſuch Perſons as hereafter ſhould be choſen and elected by the Lord Maior of this City for the Time being, to be Sheriffs of the ſaid City and County of Middleſex; as alſo for the choice and election of ſuch other Perſons as by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons ſhall be choſen to be Sheriffs of the ſaid City and County of Middleſex, ſhall be yearly holden on the Four and twentieth day of June: And if it ſhall happen by the Death or Refuſal of any of the ſaid Perſon or Perſons ſo to be choſen or elected, as aforeſaid, or by the Death of any Shrieve of this City, departing in the Time of his Shrievalty, or upon any other occaſion whatſoever, there ſhall be juſt cauſe to make a new Election; then the ſame ſhall from time to time be at ſuch Day and Time, as by the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen for the time being, ſhall be ordered and appointed: And that no Freeman of the ſaid City, ſo to be choſen or elected, as is aforeſaid, ſhall be diſcharged or exempted from the Execution of the ſaid Office of Shrievalty by ſuppoſition or excuſe of Defect, or inſufficiency of Wealth, except he will voluntarily take his corporal Oath before the Lord Maior and greater part of the Aldermen, in open Court of the Lord Maior and Aldermen for the time being, That he then is not of the Value of Ten Thouſand Pounds in Lands, Goods and ſeparate Debts, and do likewiſe bring with him Six other Citizens, Freemen of the ſaid City, of good credit and reputation, ſuch as the Court of Lord Maior and Aldermen for the time being, ſhall allow, who ſhall likewiſe voluntarily teſtify upon their corporal Oaths, That in their Conſciences they believe, that the ſaid Perſon ſo to be choſen or elected Sheriff, hath depoſed and ſworn truly concerning his Value, as is aforeſaid. And it is likewiſe ordained and enacted by the ſame Authority, That if any Perſon, being a Freeman of this City, ſhall be choſen or elected Sheriff of the ſame City and County of Middleſex, and publication thereof by open Proclamation being made in the Guildhall in the place where the Court of Huſtings is uſually holden in the preſence of the Lord Maior and Six Aldermen for the time being (at the leaſt) or in the abſence of the ſaid Lord Maior, then in the preſence of Eight Aldermen of the ſaid City for the time being (at the leaſt;) and being called to come forth and give his conſent to take the ſaid Office of Shrievalty upon him, ſhall not perſonally appear before the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen for the time being, in the Inner Chamber of the Guildhall aforeſaid, at the next Court there to be holden (unleſs he have ſuch reaſonable Excuſe as the Lord Maior and greater part of the Aldermen for the time being, ſhall in open Court allow) and then and there become bounden to the Chamberlain of the ſaid City, for the time being, and his Succeſſors, by his Deed Obligatory, in the Sum of One thonſand Pounds, with Condition, That if he ſhall perſonally appear in the publick Aſſembly in the Guildhall of the ſame City on the Vigil of St. Michael the Arch-Angel then next following at the Time in that behalf accuſtomed, and then and there take upon him the Office and Charge of Shrievalty of the ſaid City and County, That then the ſaid Obligation ſhall be void; Or if ſuch Perſon ſo to be choſen or elected, ſhall before the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen openly declare his Refuſal to take upon him the ſaid Office, Then every ſuch Perſon which ſhall make ſuch Default in Appearance, or which ſhall not become bounden, or which ſhall declare his Refuſal, as aforeſaid, ſhall

Day of Election to be Midſummer-day yearly.

Provided nevertheleſs, and be it Enacted, Ordained and Eſtabliſhed by the Authority aforeſaid (any thing in this Act to the contrary notwithſtanding) That if the Perſon ſo to be choſen or elected, and making default in appearing, or denying to become bounden, or that ſhall declare his Refuſal, as aforeſaid, ſhall be an Alderman of this City at the time of his Choice or Election, then every ſuch Alderman ſo to be choſen or elected, ſhall forfeit the Sum of Six hundred Marks, of lawful Money of England, to the Maior and Commonalty of the ſame City, to be employed to the Uſes hereafter in this Act declared and expreſſed. All which Forfeitures or Penalties ſhall be recovered by Action, or Bill of Debt Original, to be commenced and proſecuted in any of the Courts of Record of the King's Majeſty, or his Heirs or Succeſſors, within the ſaid City: And that the ſame Perſon or Perſons ſo offending, or refuſing, after ſuch Forfeiture, ſhall nevertheleſs remain Eligible yearly afterward to be Sheriff of the ſaid City and County, as if he or they had never been before choſen or elected to the ſaid Office. Provided alſo, and it is likewiſe Enacted and Declared, touching the Uſes and Employment of the ſaid Forfeitures, That if any ſuch Default or Forfeiture ſhall be made, as aforeſaid, by any Perſon that ſhall firſt in any Year be choſen or elected by the Lord Maior for the time being, to be Shrive of the City of London, and County of Middleſex, That then One hundred Pounds, parcel of ſuch Forfeitures, ſhall be given and beſtowed upon ſuch perſon as ſhall firſt in the ſame Year accept to take upon him the ſaid Office of Shrievalty: And if it ſhall happen after ſuch Acceptation of the ſaid Office, any other Forfeiture by Default or Refuſal ſhall be made in the ſame Year by any perſon that ſhall be choſen or elected by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons, for the time being, to be Sheriff of the ſaid City and County of Middleſex, That then one Hundred Pounds parcel of ſuch Forfeiture ſhall be given and beſtowed upon ſuch other perſon as ſhall firſt after ſuch Forfeiture in the ſame Year accept and take upon him the ſaid Office of Shrievalty, being thereunto elected and choſen by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons of the ſame City: And that all the Reſidue of the ſame Foſeitures, and all other Forfeitures and Penalties for Refuſal, or making Default to appear, denying to become bound, or declaring refuſal to take the ſaid Office of Shrievalty, as is aforeſaid, ſhall be wholly and entirely uſed and employed to the only Uſe and Behalf of the Maior, and Commonalty, and Citizens of the ſaid City; any Act, Law, or Ordinance to the contrary in any wiſe notwithſtanding. And be it further Enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, That if any Freeman of this City, which ſhall incur any Penalty or Forfeiture before declared, by Force of this Act, ſhall not within three Months next after ſuch Forfeiture incurred, well and truly pay unto the Chamberlain of the ſaid City, for the time being, all ſuch Penalties and Forfeitures to ſuch Uſes as in this Act is appointed and declared, That then every ſuch perſon failing of ſuch payment, ſhall, over and above the ſaid Penalties and Forfeitures before declared, forfeit and loſe the Sum of one Hundred Pounds more to the Uſe of the ſaid Maior and Commonalty, to be recovered in Form aboveſaid. And to the intent that no Alderman of this City ſhall, in reſpect of Poſteriority of Choice or Election to the ſaid Office of Shrievalty, be inferiour in Anciency or Preheminence to any Commoner, and for other good Conſiderations: It is therefore Enacted, * That the Lord Maior of the ſaid City for the time being, ſhall not at any time hereafter chooſe or elect any Commoner of this City to be Sheriff of this City of London, and of the County of Middleſex, ſo long as there ſhall then be an Alderman of this City Eligible to the ſaid Office; Any former Law, Cuſtom, Uſage, or other Matter whatſoever to the contrary notwithſtanding. Which ſaid Clauſe being not only repugnant to Reaſon, but contrary to the Rules and Methods of Elections;

Be it therefore Enacted by the Maior, Aldermen and Commons in Common Council aſſembled, and by the Authority of the ſame, that the ſaid ſeveral Clauſes before-recited, and either of them, and every Article and Thing contained in them, or either of them, ſhall be, and are hereby repealed, annulled and made void.

And whereas by ſeveral Acts of Common Council, the Election of Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Bridgmaſters, and Auditors of the Chamberlain and Bridghouſe Accounts, and Aleconners, are appointed on Middſummer-day yearly, except the Sheriff or Sheriffs, Chamberlain, or other of the ſaid Officers, for the time being, ſhall die, or for juſt Cauſe be removed: And whereas in ſome Years (as in this preſent Year) Midſummer-day hapneth to fall on the Lords day, commonly called Sunday, which ought to be kept holy, and is a neceſſary and required part of the Service of God, and enjoyned by the Laws and Statutes of this Realm;

Be it therefore Enacted and Declared, That from henceforth, whenſoever Midſummer-day ſhall happen to be on the Lords Day, commonly called Sunday, that the Election of the Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Bridgmaſters, Auditors of the Chamberlain and Bridghouſe Accounts, and Aleconners, ſhall be on the Day next following, any Act or Acts, or any other Uſage to the contrary notwithſtanding.

GOODFELLOW.

Act for ſettling Common Tryals and for Poles and Scrutinies.

The Election of Maiors, Sheriffs, and other conſiderable Officers of the City, is done at a Common Hall, as it is called. But divers Conteſts and Animoſities have happened between the Court of Aldermen and Commoners in and about theſe Common Halls, and the Elections made therein. To regulate therefore and ſettle theſe matters of Common Hall for Time to come, and that Quietneſs and Peace might be maintained at them, an Act of Common Council was made, Sir Thomas Lane Maior, intitled, For ſettling the Method of calling, adjourning, and diſſolving the Common Halls, upon the ſeveral Elections of Maiors, Sheriffs, Chamberlains, and other Officers, uſually their choſen. Occaſioned, as the ſaid Act ſet forth, by Diſputes of the Right and Power of calling and adjourning Common Halls, ſuch Elections of Maiors, &c. Whereby ſeveral Diſorders had ariſen among the Citizens. Therefore it was declared by the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Common Council, that the Right of aſſembling Common Halls for ſuch Elections, and the Power to diſſolve the ſame after ſuch Elections made, and not otherwiſe, is and of Right ought to be in the Lord Maior. And it was Enacted, that if after any Common Hall is aſſembled for any Election, a Pole or Scrutiny, or either of them be lawfully demanded, or any other Difficulty ſhall ariſe, which may require the Adjournment of the Hall; then the Right of granting, and taking the Pole, or Scrutiny, and adjourning of the ſaid Hall from time to time, till ſuch Pole or Scrutiny be concluded, ſhall be in the Sheriffs of the City for the Time being. And that if any Diſputes or Difference ſhall ariſe at ſuch Elections between the Sheriffs touching any Matter relating to Adjournments, Poles or Scrutinies; all ſuch Differences ſhall be determined by the Lord Maior: And ſuch Orders and Directions as he ſhall make, ſhall be obſerved by the ſaid Sheriffs accordingly. And in default of immediate compliance with ſuch Orders, the Lord Maior to proceed to the granting and taking the Pole and Scrutiny, and adjourning the ſaid Hall from time to time, till ſuch Pole be concluded, and the Election finiſhed.

Poles or Scrutinies to be finiſhed within three Days.

It was further enacted, that where any Pole or Scrutiny for determining Elections ſhall be granted, the Sheriffs ſhall finiſh ſuch Poles within three Days next and immediately enſuing the firſt meeting and aſſembling of the Common Hall. And they are required then to make return of ſuch Officers and Perſons as ſhall be choſen, within ſeven Days next after finiſhing of ſuch Pole. And in caſe of Difference between the ſaid Sheriffs, then the Lord Maior is hereby required to finiſh ſuch Pole within three Days.

None elected Sheriff to be diſcharged, but by the Maior, Aldermen, &c.

Enacted further, That no Perſon that ſhall be duly choſen and elected Sheriff by the Liverymen of this City in Common Hall aſſembled, ſhall be diſcharged from ſerving the ſaid Office after the 30th Day of Auguſt in any Year, without the conſent and approbation of the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons in Common Council firſt had and obtained.

Nomination of a Chamberlain and Bridgmaſters, to be in the Livery.

Enacted further, That whereas by an Act of Common Council, June 6th, that an Act made the 21th of June 1643, repealing two former Acts, whereby the Court of Aldermen were to nominate two to the Common-Hall for Election of a Chamberlain, and four for their Election of Bridgemaſters; and the Commoners to chooſe out of them and no other; ſhould be abrogated and repealed: The Court taking the ſeveral Acts into conſideration, enacted, That the Clauſe of Repeal in the ſaid Act made the 6th of June, be henceforth abrogated, and the ſaid Act of 21. of June is hereby revived, and declared to be in force, ſo far as concerneth the Repeal of the former Acts. And that for the future, the Nomination of any for Chamberlain or Bridgmaſters, and the Choice of them ſhall be made in the Livery of the ſeveral Companies, lawfully intitled to have ſuch Liveries, according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of this City, in Common Hall aſſembled, and not otherwiſe.

The Act it ſelf (made 1695) follows.

An ACT of Common Council for Settling the Methods of Calling, Adjourning and Diſſolving the Common Halls, upon the ſeveral Elections of the Mayor, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, and other Officers uſually there Choſen.

Whereas by reaſon of ſome Diſputes concerning the Right and Power of Calling and Adjourning of Common Halls, for Election of Mayor, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, and other Officers and Perſons at ſuch Halls uſually Choſen, ſeveral Diſorders have ariſen amongſt the Citizens of this City, to the great Diſquiet thereof.

Now for the preventing the like Miſchiefs for the future, and that a certain and undoubted Method may be obſerved therein for the time to come, Be it declared by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons in Common Council Aſſembled, and by the Authority thereof, That the Right of Aſſembling Common Halls, for the Election of the Lord Maior, Sheriffs, and other Publick Officers of this City, and the Power to diſſolve the ſame, after ſuch Elections made and finiſhed, and not otherwiſe, is, and of Right ought to be in the Lord Mayor of this City for the time being.

And it is Enacted and Ordained for the future, That if after any Common Hall is aſſembled, for any of the Elections as aforeſaid, a Poll and Scrutiny, or either of them, ſhall be lawfully demanded, or any other Difficulty ſhall ariſe, which may require the Adjournment of the ſaid Hall, That then the Right of granting and taking the Poll and Scrutiny, or either of them, and Adjourning the ſaid Hall from time to time, till ſuch Poll and Scrutiny are concluded, and the ſeveral Elections finiſhed, ſhall be in the Sheriffs of the ſaid City for the time being, and no other; Any Law, Uſage or Cuſtom to the contrary notwithſtanding.

But if it ſhall at any time happen, That any Diſpute or Difference ſhall ariſe at ſuch Elections between the Sheriffs for the time being, touching any Matter relating to Adjournments, Polls or Scrutinies, that may impead or hinder the compleating and finiſhing thereof within the Times hereafter for that purpoſe limited and appointed; That then and in ſuch Caſe, all ſuch Differences between them, the ſaid Sheriffs, ſhall be determined by the Right Honourable the Lord Maior for the time being; and ſuch Orders and Directions as his Lordſhip ſhall therein make, ſhall be obſerved by the ſaid Sheriffs accordingly; And in default of an immediate Compliance with ſuch Orders and Directions, That then it ſhall and may be lawful to and for the ſaid Lord Maior for the time being, to proceed in granting and taking the Poll and Scrutiny, or either of them; and in Adjourning the ſaid Hall from time to time, till ſuch Poll or Scrutiny are concluded, and the ſeveral Elections finiſhed; in like manner as the ſaid Sheriffs ſhould or might have done, in caſe no ſuch Difference had hapned.

And it is hereby further Enacted and Ordained, That where any Poll or Scrutiny, or either of them, for determining the Elections of the Officers and Perſons aforeſaid ſhall be granted, that the Sheriffs for the time being ſhall finiſh ſuch Poll within Three days next and immediately enſuing the Firſt meeting and aſſembling of the Common Hall; And that the ſaid Sheriffs ſhall and are hereby required to finiſh the Scrutiny, and to make Return of ſuch Officers and Perſons as ſhall be ſo Choſen, within Seven Days next and immediately enſuing the finiſhing of ſuch Poll: And in caſe of Difference between the ſaid Sheriffs, as aforeſaid, That then the Lord Maior for the time being, ſhall and is hereby required to finiſh ſuch Poll within Three Days next and immediately enſuing ſuch Difference, and to finiſh the Scrutiny, and to make Retorn of ſuch Officers and Perſons as ſhall be ſo Choſen, within Seven Days next and immediately enſuing the finiſhing of ſuch Poll, in like manner as the Sheriffs ſhould have done, in caſe no ſuch Difference, as aforeſaid, had hapned.

And it is hereby further Enacted and Ordainded, That no perſon or perſons that ſhall be hereafter duly elected and choſen Sheriff or Sheriffs for the City of London and County of Middleſex, by the Livery-Men of this City, in Common Hall aſſembled, ſhall be diſcharged from ſerving the ſaid Office, after the thirtieth Day of Auguſt in any Year, without the Conſent and Approbation of the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Commons in Common Council aſſembled, firſt had and obtained: Any Law, Uſage, or Cuſtom to the contrary hereof in any wiſe notwithſtanding.

And whereas by a Clauſe in an Act of Common Council made the ſixth day of June, 1683, it was, amongſt other things, Enacted, That an Act made the twenty firſt day of June, 1643, Repealing two former Acts of Common Council, whereby the Court of Aldermen were to nominate two Perſons to the Common Hall for their Election of a Chamberlain, and four for their Election of the Bridge-Maſters, and the Commoners to chooſe out of them, and no others, ſhould be Abrogated and Repealed: Now this Court, taking the ſaid ſeveral Acts into their Conſideration, do hereby Enact and Ordain, and be it Enacted and Ordained by the Authority of the ſame, That the ſaid Clauſe of Repeal in the ſaid Act, made the ſixth day of June, 1683, and every thing therein contained, relating to or concerning ſuch Repeals, be from henceforth Abrogated and Repealed; and the ſaid Clauſe is hereby Abrogated and Repealed accordingly: And the ſaid Act made the twenty firſt day of June, 1643, (ſo far as concerns the Repeal of the ſaid former Acts of Common Council) is hereby revived, and declared to be in Force and Virtue. And the ſaid Acts of Common Council, directing and enacting ſuch Nomination, as aforeſaid, are hereby declared to be and ſtand Repealed and Annulled, to all intents and purpoſes whatſoever.

And it is hereby further Declared, Enacted and Ordained by the Authority aforeſaid, That for the future the Nomination of all and every Perſon and Perſons for Chamberlain and Bridge-Maſters, and alſo the Election and Choice of them, ſhall be made by the Livery of the ſeveral Companies of this City (lawfully entituled to have ſuch Livery, according to the Laws and Cuſtoms of this City) in Common Hall aſſembled, and not otherwiſe: Any Law or Uſage to the contrary thereof notwithſtanding.

GOODFELLOW.

Three hundred Pounds, and no more, to be paid by the Sheriffs.

THERE was a Charter granted to the City by King Edward I. in the firſt of his Reign: Wherein was contained, that the Sheriffwick of London and County of Middleſex, be holden for ever for 300 l. thence yearly to be paid, according as the King's Progenitors had granted to the City. And it was commanded to the Treaſurer and Barons of the Exchequer, that the ſaid Sheriffs be not burthened beyond the ſaid Sum. For, it ſeems, before they had been oppreſſed and burthened with greater Payments than the ſaid 300 l.

Sheriffs allowed out of the Exchequer, about the Execution of Traitors.

The Sheriffs uſed to have Allowance from the Exchequer for the Charge of the Execution of Traitors. And it appears in the Records of the Tower, that King Edward III. in the fourth of his Reign, commanded the Treaſurer and Barons of his Exchequer, that they ſhould allow the Debt due to the Sheriff of London for the Expences circa Tractionem & Suſpenſionem Rogeri de Mortuomari, &c. i. e. about the Drawing and Hanging of Roger Mortimer and Simon de Bereford.

Complained of for ſelling Places.

The Sheriffs uſed to make their Benefit of Places under them, and ſo made their beſt of their Offices that way. Whereby their Clerks and Servants were very burthenſome unto ſuch as had Buſineſs to be done with them. The Treaſurer, and other the King's Juſtices, had this complained of before them by the Jury of the Inquiſition. Who ſaid, “That John Adrian, late Sheriff of London, and Lucas de Batencourt, at that preſent Sheriff [viz. 1267.] and all other Sheriffs and Bailiffs, and their Clerks and Servants, as well in the Time of King Henry III. as of the King now, [Edward I.] take Gifts pro Officiis ſuis exercendis & non exercendis; i. e. for exerciſing or not exerciſing their Offices. And that without Money and Gifts they would not perform, nor do their Duties.

An Ordinance for Clerks and Serjeants of the City.

This was a Grievance of the City complained of at other times; as appears by a notable Ordinance made by the Maior and Aldermen in the Beginning of King Edward the Second's Reign, for Clerks and Serjeants of the City, belonging to the Sheriffs; who were come to that paſs, that the Maior and Aldermen could not get their Precepts and Executions performed. The Ordinance, as I find it in the Book Horne, was to this Tenor.

Lib. Horn. fo. 21. b.

“Whereas London, the City of the Lord King, in modern Times no doubt hath excelled other Cities in the Kingdom of England; and ſo much the more, for the daily Dangers happening in it, it ought more warily and ſecurely to be governed by the Counſel and Help of very ſkilful Men, for the Royal State, and the Profit and Preſervation of the People reſorting hither. Hence it is, that when the Sheriffs of the ſaid City, and their Miniſters, according to the Precepts of the Maior and Aldermen, delay to make Executions of Buſineſſes, which happen in the ſame City from divers Cauſes, as well for levying Debts of the King, as Debts of the City, as making Executions, according as Caſes perhaps emerge: And when the Sheriffs of the ſaid City, and their Miniſters in each Execution, and the Precepts enjoined them by the Maiorand Aldermen, are found ſo rebellious and remiſs, that ſcarce any of the Precepts and Executions ſo enjoined, can be fulfilled either in Part or in Whole, or they be brought to their Duty:

“Thomas Romeyn Maior of London, John de Wengrave, &c. Aldermen, in the third Year of the Reign of King Edward, Son of King Edward, ſeeing the huge Dangers, and manifeſt Scandals which might eaſily hang over the City and Citizens of the ſame from hence, the ancient Memorials concerning the Ordinances of the City being ſearched, to correct ſuch Defects of the Sheriffs and their Miniſters, and to adminiſter ſpeedier Juſtice to every one, as is fit: We have now found regiſtred the Puniſhment upon ſuch Sheriffs and their Miniſters ſo offending, provided and ordered. Which Puniſhment, not willing at preſent to encreaſe, change, or diminiſh, but rather taking Care to ratify and confirm; We have appointed by the common Conſent of the Commonalty of the whole City then preſent, namely on Thurſday next before Whitſunday, June the 4th, the Year aboveſaid, that whenſoever any ſpecial Precept on the Part of the Maior and Aldermen, for levying the Debts of the King or the City, or doing any other Buſineſs, ſpecially touching the City, ſhall be done or appointed by the Sheriffs; that the ſame Sheriffs, by themſelves or their Miniſters, have a certain Day to anſwer upon the Precepts to them made, delivered, and appointed. At which Day if the Sheriffs come not, or come and ſhall not anſwer reaſonably to their Precepts; or ſhall not excuſe themſelves by a reaſonable Cauſe; that thenceforth they incur the Pain of Degradation, and be degraded from their Office; and their Servants, who ſhall be found obſtinate in ſuch Executions and Precepts, be wholly removed from doing or executing their Service for the future

Degradation of a Sheriff.

“ in the ſaid City, ſo that they be by no means reſtored to ſuch Office again.

We have hitherto lookt upon the City Magiſtrates, Maior, Aldermen and Sheriffs ſingly and diſtinctly: Now let us obſerve ſomething of the Exerciſe of their Power and Authority in the City conjunctly.

MAIOR with the ALDERMEN, or SHERIFFS.

Charge to the Maior and Aldermen, when the King went abroad. J. S.

WHEN the King went abroad, he commonly left ſome ſpecial Orders and Commands by his Letters to the Maior, Sheriffs and Aldermen, to take Care of preſerving the King's Peace in his Abſence in the City; and to impriſon and puniſh ſuch as ſhould make Diſturbances and Inſurrections, or be guilty of other Miſdemeanors. Such a Letter did King Edward III. ſend to the Maior, &c. in the 15th Year of his Reign. And according to this Charge they put to Death two Mutineers in Cheapſide, as was told before.

Inquiſition by the Maior and Aldermen for ſuch as made Diſturbances.

Towards the Beginning of the ſaid King Edward's Reign were Inſurrections in ſome Places in the Realm, particularly in Bedfordſhire and London. For the Felonies and Tranſgreſſions of the Law done in London, the King ſent Letters to the Maior and Sheriffs, commanding them to make Inquiſition about them, and to take thoſe that were found guilty, and commit them to Priſon, until they ſhould have further Command concerning them. Whereupon ſeveral were taken and put into Priſon: whoſe Crimes touched the State of the King and his Crown. Afterwards the King appointed certain of his Juſtices, Oliver de Ingham, John Matravers, John de Stoner, Rob. de Malberthorp, and John de Grantham, to hear and determine according to the Inquiſitions, and the Indictments according to thoſe Inquiſitions made.

Maior and Aldermen lend the King Money.

The Maior and certain Aldermen lend King Edward III. Money to the Sum of 4601 l. 3 s. 4 d. And the King Ann. 45 of his Reign granted them the Security and Obligation of his Cuſtoms and Subſidies for the Repayment.

Maior and Aldermen may amend and correct

The Maior and Aldermen had a Power granted them to amend, correct, &c. the Cuſtoms of their City, when there ſhould be occaſion. But this Power was afterwards revoked.

The King reproves the Maior and Sheriffs about Proviſions.

Meaſures and Weights.

The Maior and Sheriffs were reproved by King Edward III. for leaving the City in Want of Proviſions and Victuals, and for the great Dearneſs of them; that being one of the great Cares of the Magiſtrates of London to prevent. There is a Record containing a ſharp Reprehenſion from that King to thoſe Magiſtrates, for ſuffering Bread, Wine, Beer, and all ſorts of Victual to be ſold in the City at over dear Rates; and for not ſuperviſing and reforming the Defects of Weights and Meaſures; which every Maior took a Corporal Oath to do. Yet none of them hitherto had performed his Oath as he ought; to the great Scandal of the Maior, and Scandal alſo of the Inhabitants of the City, as alſo of thoſe that reſorted to it. And commanding them under pain of forfeiting all they could forfeit to him; that calling all the Aldermen and other Commons of the City together, they ſhould ſet ſuch a Price upon the Victuals aforeſaid, having reſpect to what was firſt paid for them; and to correct the Meaſures and Weights, that Sellers ſhould receive not exceſſive but reaſonable Gain: And that the Inhabitants and others reſorting to the City might feel the Benefit thereof, and of their Reformation of Weights and Meaſures. Giving this Charge to the Maior; viz. “That your Oath, as Maior, may remain inviolable, do you chaſtiſe and puniſh all from time to time who do againſt Right, and reform all other Things which you ſhall know to be repugnant to the good Government of the ſaid City and Suburbs. That by your Diligence exhibited in this Behalf, that City may be reduced to its due State, and exceſſive Regrators wholly taken away. And that you publickly proclaim all and ſingular the Premiſſes in the foreſaid City and Suburbs in the accuſtomed Places. But if they ſhould not appoint a ſpeedy Remedy for all theſe Exceſſes, that then the grieved ſhould complain thereof to him and his Council; and he, in their Defect, would cauſe Remedy to be applied to theſe Exceſſes without Delay.

Maior and Sheriffs charged with Execution of Traitors.

When Executions, eſpecially of Perſons of greater Note, were to be done, the Maior, as well as the Sheriffs, were required to aſſiſt at them. Roger Mortimer was adjudged as a Traitor to be hanged Ann. 4 Ed. III. Whereupon the Earl Marſhal by Commandment, with the Aid of the Maior and Sheriffs of London, and Conſtable of the Tower, executed him.

Maior and Aldermen lay Taxes upon the City.

The Maior and Aldermen did formerly lay Taxes upon the City by their own Authority. Which in an Inquiſition taken before the King's Treaſurer, and other his Judges, about the 14th of Edward II. the Jury of the Ward of Aldermanbury made this Preſentment. Dicunt, &c. “They ſay, that the Commonalty of London is and ought to be common, and that the Citizens are not bound to be taxed without the ſpecial Command of the King, or without their common Conſent. That the Maiors of the City, and the Cuſtodes in their Times, after the common Redemption made and paid for the City of London, (of which Payment the Commons could never be certified) [That might be Ann. 1296, 24 Edw. I. when the Liberties of the City were reſtored] have come, and by their own Authority, without the King's Command, and Commons Conſent, did tax the ſaid City according to their own Wills, once and more, and diſtrained for thoſe Taxes; ſparing the Rich and oppreſſing the Poor Middle Sort; nor permitting, that the Arrearages due from the Rich be levied; ad Exhæredationem Regis, &c. to the Diſinheriting the King, and the Deſtruction of the City. Nor can the Commons know what becomes of the Monies levied of ſuch Taxes. And that this hath laſted from the Time of John Adrian, Maior, uſque nunc.” [And he was Maior Ann. 1270 and 1271, the latter End of Henry III.]

They turn out a Common Council Man.

The Maior and Aldermen alſo took upon them to turn out Common Councilmen, when they ſaw Occaſion. By what Right I do not know nor determine. Hence the ſworn Men in the foreſaid Inquiſition made a Preſentment of this; viz. That the Maior and Superiors of the City depoſed Walter Henry of his Power and the Council of the City, by an Action; becauſe he would not ſuffer the Rich to levy Tallages upon the Meaner Sort, until the Rich had paid their Arrears of the Tallages.]

THIS City of LONDON being under the Government of the Britons, Romans and Saxons, the moſt ancient and famous City of the whole Realm, was at length deſtroyed by the Danes, and left deſolate, as may appear by our Hiſtories. But Ælfred King of the Weſt Saxons, having brought this whole Realm (from many Parts) into one Monarchy, honourably repaired this City, and made it again habitable, and then committed the Cuſtody thereof to his Son in Law Adhered, Earl of Mercia. After whoſe Deceaſe the City, with all other Poſſeſſions pertaining to the ſaid Earl, returned to King Edward, ſurnamed the Elder, &c. And ſo remained in the King's Hands, being governed under him by Portgraves (or Portreves) which Name is compounded of the two Saxon Words Porte and Gereſe, or Reve. Porte betokeneth a Town, and Gereſe ſignifieth a Guardian, Ruler, or Keeper of the Town.

London Doomſday-Book.

" Theſe Governours of old time (ſaith Robert " Fabian) with the Laws and Cuſtoms then uſed " within this City, were regiſtred in a Book called " the Doomſday Book, in the Saxon Tongue: But " of later Days, when the Laws and Cuſtoms " were changed, and for that alſo the ſaid Book " was of a ſmall Hand and ſore defaced, [and " hard to be read or underſtood] it was leſs ſet " by, ſo that it was imbezeled and loſt." Thus far Fabian.

Notwithſtanding, I have found by ſearch of divers old Records abroad, namely, in a Book ſometime appertaining to the Monaſtery of Saint Albans, of the Portgraves, and other Governours of this City, as followeth.

Lib. S. Albani.

Firſt, That in the Reign of King Edward the Laſt, before the Conqueſt, Wolfegare was Portgrave; as may appear by the Charter of the ſame King in theſe Words:

Wolfgare, Portgrave. Citizens of London Burgeſſes.

Edward, King, greeteth Alfward Biſhop, and Wolfgar my Portgrave, and all the Burgeſſes of London. And afterward, that in another Charter King Edward greeteth William, Biſhop, and Swetman my Portgrave. And after that, in another Charter to the Abbey of Chertſey, To William, Biſhop, and Leofſtane and Alffy, Portgraves.

Leofſtane Portgrave.

In the Reign of William the Conqueror, William, Biſhop of London, procured of the ſaid Conqueror his Charter of Liberties, to the ſame William, Biſhop, and Godfrey, Portgrave, and to all the Burgeſſes of the City of Londou, in as large Form as they enjoyed the ſame in the Time of King Edward, before the Conqueſt.

Godfrey Portgrave.

Portgrave and Provoſt.

And then in the Reign of the ſaid Conqueror, and of William Rufus, Godfrey de Magnavile * was Portgrave (or Sheriff,) as may appear by their Charters, and Richard de Par † was Provoſt.

In the Reign of King Henry I. Hugh Buche †† was Portgrave, and Leofſtanus, Goldſmith, Provoſt; Buried at Bermondſey.

After them, Aubery de Vere was Portgrave, and Robert Bar Querel Provoſt. This Aubery de Vere was ſlain in the Reign of King Stephen. It is to be noted alſo, that King Henry I. granted to the Citizens of London the Sheriffwick thereof, and of Middleſex, as in another Place before is ſhewed.

Aubrey de Vere Portgrave. I. Leyland.

Sheriffwic of London.

In the Reign of King Stephen, Gilbert Becket was Portgrave, and Andrew Buchevet * Provoſt.

After him Godfrey Magnavile, the Son of William, the Son of Godfrey Magnavile, by the Gift of Maud the Empreſs, was Portgrave, or Sheriff of London and Middleſex, for the yearly Farm of 300 l. as appeareth by the Charter.

Portgrave or Sheriff.

In the Time of King Henry II. Peter Fitz-Walter was Portgrave. After him John Fitz-Nigel was Portgrave. After him Ernulphus Buchel became Portgrave. And after him William Fitz-Iſabel.

Portgraves, ſince called Sheriffs, and Judges of the King's Court, and have therefore Under Sheriffs, Men learned in the Law, to ſit in their Courts.

Theſe Portgraves are alſo in divers Records called Vicecomites, Viſcounts, or Sheriffs; as being under Comes, i. e. an Earl; for that they then, as ſince, uſed that Office as the Sheriffs of London do to this Day. Some Authors do call them Doomſmen, Eldermen, or Judges of the King's Court.

William Fitz-Stephen, noting the Eſtate of this City and Government thereof in his Time, under the Reign of King Stephen, and of Henry II. hath theſe Words:

Doomſmen, or Judges of the King's Court.

" This City (ſaith he) even as Rome, is divided " into Wards: It hath yearly Sheriffs inſtead of " Conſuls: It hath the Dignity of Senators and " Aldermen: It hath Under-Officers; and, ac" cording to the Quality of Laws, it hath ſeve" ral Courts, and General Aſſemblies upon ap" pointed Days.

Thus much for the Antiquity of Sheriffs, and alſo of Aldermen in ſeveral Wards of this City, may ſuffice: And now for the Name of Bailiffs, and after that, of Maiors, as followeth.

Bailiffs of London.

In the firſt Year of King Richard I. the Citizens of London obtained to be governed by two Bailiffs. Which Bailiffs are in divers ancient Deeds called alſo Sheriffs, according to the Speech of the Law, which called the Shire Balliva; for that they (like as the Portgraves) uſed the ſame Office of Sheriffwick, for the which the City paid to Fee Farm 300 l. yearly as before, ſince the Reign of Henry I. which alſo is yet paid by the City into the Exchequer until this Day.

Nott's Law againſt Uſury.

This Maior made a ſevere Law againſt ſuch as were guilty of Uſury, which ran in thoſe Times into great Oppreſſion and Extortion. In the 14th of Richard I. about the Year 1390, the Citizens prayed, that againſt the horrible Vice of Uſury, then termed Schefes, and practiſed as well by the Clergy as Laity, the Order made by John Nott, late Maior, might be executed through the Realm. The Anſwer was, that the King willed thoſe Ordinances to be viewed; and if the ſame be found to be neceſſary, that they be then confirmed.]

Maior, John Northampton, Draper, or rather Skinner, as I find in ſome Record.

This Maior took ſtrict Order for the Suppreſſion of Uſury, which prevailed much about theſe Times; and therein had ſo good Succeſs, that the Commons in Parliament, as they had done in Walworth's Time, petitioned the King, That againſt the horrible Vice of Uſury (then termed Shefes) and practiſed as well by the Clergy as Laity, the Order made by John Northampton, late Maior of London, might be executed through the Realm. Whereunto the King anſwered, The King willeth thoſe Ordinances to be viewed; and if they be found to be neceſſary, that the ſame be then affirmed.

Northampton, Maior, takes Order againſt Uſury. L. Coke's Inſtitut. p. 3. J. S.

MAIOR, Sir William Hewet, Clothworker, Son to Edmund Hewet of Wales in Yorkſhire. He died the 6th of February 1566. His Wife was the Daughter of Leveſon of Kent.

An Accident happening to this Maior's Daughter.

This Maior was a Merchant poſſeſt of a great Eſtate, valued at 6000 l. per Ann. And was ſaid to have had three Sons and one Daughter; to which Daughter this Miſchance happened; (the Father then living upon London Bridge.) The Maid playing with her out of a Window over the River Thames, by chance dropt her in, almoſt beyond expectation of being ſaved. A young Gentleman, named Oſborne, then Apprentice to Sir William the Father (which Oſborne was one of the Anceſtors of the Duke of Leeds in a direct Line) at this calamitous Accident, immediately leapt in bravely, and ſaved the Child. In Memory of which Deliverance, and in Gratitude, her Father afterwards beſtowed her in Marriage on the ſaid Mr. Oſborne, with a very great Dowry. Whereof the late Eſtate of Sir Thomas Fanſhaw, in the Pariſh of Barkin in Eſſex, was a Part; as the late Duke of Leeds himſelf told the Reverend Mr. John Hewyt, from whom I have this Relation; and together with that Eſtate in Eſſex, ſeveral other Lands in the Pariſhes of Harthil and Wales in Yorkſhire; now in the Poſſeſſion of the ſaid moſt

Noble Family. All this from the old Duke's own Mouth to the ſaid Mr. Hewyt.

Alſo, that ſeveral Perſons of Quality courted the ſaid young Lady; and particularly the Earl of Shrewſbury. But Sir William was pleaſed to ſay, Osborn ſaved her, and Osborn ſhould enjoy her. The late Duke of Leeds, and the preſent Family, preſerve the Picture of the ſaid Sir William in his Habit of Lord Maior, at Kiveton Houſe in Yorkſhire, to this Day: valuing it at 200 l.

This Maior was buried in St. Paul's Church, dying Anno 1599, as his Tomb bore Date, being a very magnificent Work: erected for him on the North ſide of the South Iſle, behind the Stalls in the old Quire, near Dr. Collet's, Dean of St. Paul's, lying on the Weſt, and that of Sir William Cockain, Knt. and Bart. The Device of the PAGEANT born before this Maior, Octob. 29, 1585.

A SPEECH ſpoken by him that rid on a Luzarne before the Pageant, apparelled like a Moor. J. S.

A Speech at this Ld. Maior's Show.

FROM where the Sun dooth ſettle in his Wayn,
And yoakes his Horſes to his fiery Cart,
And in his way giues life to Ceres Corne,
Euen from the parching Zone, behold I come,
A Straunger, ſtraungely mounted, as you ſee,
Seated upon a luſty Luzern's Back,
And offer, to your Honour (good my Lord)
This Emblem thus in ſhowe ſignificant.
Loe! louely London, riche and fortunate,
Fam'd through the World for Peace and Happineſſe,
Is heer aduaunc't and ſet in higheſt Seat,
Beawtified throughly as her State requires.
Firſt, ouer her a Princely Trophey ſtandes,
Of beaten Gold; a riche and Royall Armes,
Whertoo this London euer more bequeathes
Seruice of Honour and Loyaltie.
Her Props are well-aduiſed Magiſtrates,
That carefully attend her Perſon ſtill.
The honeſt Franklin and the Husbandman,
Layes downe his Sackes of Corne at London's Feet,
And bringes ſuch Preſents as the Countrie yeeldes.
The pleſaunt Thames a ſweet and daintye Nymphe,
For London's good conuayes with gentle Streame,
And ſafe and eaſie Paſſage, what ſhe can,

And keepes her leaping Fiſhes in her Lappe.
The Soldier and the Sayler franckly bothe,
For London's aid are all in readines,
To venture and to fight by Land and Sea.
And this thriſe Reuerend Honorable Dame,
Science, the Sap of euery Commonwealth,
Surnam'd Mechanicall, or Liberall,
Is vow'd to honour London with her Skill.
And London, by theſe Freendes ſo happy made,
Firſt thanks her God, the Author of her Peace;
And next with humble Geſture, as becomes,
In meeke and lowly manner dooth ſhe yeeld,
Her Self, her Welthe, with hart and willingnes,
Unto the Perſon of her Gracious Queene
Elizabeth, renowned through the World,
Stall'd and anointed by the higheſt Powre,
The God of Kings, that with his holy hand
Hath long defended her and her England.
This now remains, Right Honourable Lord,
That carefully you doo attend and keep
This louely Lady rich and beautiful,
The Juel wherewithal your Soueraigne Queen,
Hath put your Honor louingly in Truſt:
That you may add to London's Dignity,
And London's Dignity may add to yours,
That worthely you may be counted one,
Among the number of a many moe:
Careful Leeftenaunts, careful Magiſtrates,
For London's Welfare and her Worthines.

Dixi.

Spoken by the Children in the Pageant, viz.

LONDON.

NEW Troye I hight, whome Lud my Lord ſurnam'd,
London, the Glory of the Weſtern ſide:
Throughout the world is louely London fam'd,
So far as any Sea comes in with Tide.
Whoſe Peace and Calme under her Royal Queene,
Hath long been ſuch as like was neuer ſeene.

Then let me liue to caroll of her Name,
That ſhe may euer liue and neuer dye:
Her ſacred Shrine ſet in the houſe of Fame,
Conſecrate to eternal memorie.
My peerleſs Miſtreſſe, Soueraigne of my Peace,
Long may ſhe joy with Honour's great increaſe.

MAGNANIMITY.

THE Country and the Thames afford their aide,
And careful Magiſtrates their care attend:
All Engliſh harts are glad, and well appaide,
In readines their London to defend.
Defend them, Lord, and theſe fair Nymphs likewiſe,
That ever they may do this Sacrifice.

LOYALTY.

THE greateſt Treaſure that a Prince can haue,
Dooth louely London offer to her Queene,
Such Loyaltie as like was neuer ſeene,
And ſuch as any Engliſh heart can craue.

The COUNTRY.

FOR London's aid the Country giues ſupplie
Of needful things, and ſtore of euery Graine:
London, giue thanks to him that ſits on high,
Had neuer Towne leſſe cauſe for to complaine.
And loue and ſerue the Soueraigne of thy Peace,
Under whoſe Raigne thou haſt this rich encreaſe.

The THAMES.

WITH Siluer glide my pleaſant Streams do run,
Where leaping Fiſhes play betwixt the Shores:
This gracious good hath God ſo kinde begun
For London's uſe, with help of Sails and Ores.
London rejoyce, and giue thy God the praiſe,
For her whoſe Highnes lengths thy happy days.

The SOLDIER.

ARmour of ſafe defence the Soldier hath,
So louely London carefully attends,
To keep her ſacred Soueraigne from Skathe,
That all this Engliſh land ſo well defends.
And ſo far London bids her Soldiers goe,
As well may ſerue to ſheeld this land from woe.

The SAILOR.

THE Sailor that in cold and quaking Tide,
The wrathful Storms of Winter's Rage doth bide,
With Streamers ſtretcht, prepares his merry Bark,
For Countries Welth to ſet his Men awark.
That Queene and Country eazely may ſee,
The Seaman ſerues his Prince in his degree.

SCIENCE.

FOR London's Safety and her Happineſs,
The Soldier and the Sailor may you ſee
All well prepar'd, and put in readineſs,
To doo ſuch Seruice as may fitting be.
I, Art, with them doo joyne, and they with me.
London then joy, and let all Ages knowe
What Duty to thy Soueraigne thou dooſt owe.

The firſt NYMPH.

THUS with the Morning Sun and Evening Star
Theſe holy Lights ſhall burne; the cheerful Flame
With ſweeteſt odour ſhall perfume as far
As India ſtands, in honour of her name.
Whoſe Trophey we adore with ſacred Rights,
With ſweeteſt Incenſe and with endles lights.

The Second NYMPH.

SO long as Sun dooth lend the world his light,
Or any Graſſe dooth growe upon the ground,
With holy flame our Torches ſhall burne bright,
And Fame ſhall brute, with golden Trumpets ſound,
The Honour of her ſacred Regiment,
That claimes this honourable Monument.

The Third NYMPH.

OUR holy Lights ſhall burne continually,
To ſignifie our Duties to her State:
Whoſe Excellent and Princely Majeſtye,
Approoues it ſelfe to be moſte fortunate.

The Fourth NYMPH.

VErtue ſhall witnes of her Woorthines,
And Fame ſhall regiſter her Princely Deeds;
The world ſhall ſtill pray for her Happines,
From whome our Peace and Quietnes proceeds.

The Salary to the Chaplain is 10 l. yearly. The Boys, when they go out from the School, which is at 17 or 18 Years of Age, have 3 l. to buy them Cloaths; and ſeven Years after, if not married, and have a good Character, are allowed 7 l. more and an Angel; and the Girls the ſame. The ſaid poor Folks and Children have their Cloaths given them every Midſummer-Day, when they all in Order walk round the Court, and ſing the Pſalm, Bleſſed is the Man that careful is, &c. And then they repair to the Church, where the Chaplain reads the Orders to them.

In the ſame Town alſo is more lately erected a very fair, ſpacious and noble Structure, for a Free School and an Habitation for the Maſters; the ſaid Sir William Turner, having left by Will 5000 l. for the building and endowing of the ſame; the Maſter's Salary being an 100 l. a Year, and the Uſher's 50 l. Mr. William Oakley, of New College, Oxon, was appointed the firſt Maſter there nine Years ago, late deceaſed, and Mr. Forder, Uſher. Chelmley Turner, Eſq; Nephew and Heir of Sir William Turner, ſole Patron.

The ſaid generous and Chriſtian Benefactor lies interred under a comely Tomb, on the North ſide of the Churchyard of the ſaid Church of Kirk-Leedham. The Inſcription ſhews his Quality, and at the bottom a Verſe taken out of the Pſalms, He hath diſperſed abroad, he hath given to the Poor, his Righteouſneſs endureth for ever.

Add to the reſt, that he gave divers large Pieces of Silver Plate to the ſaid Pariſh Church, for the Uſe of the Communion.

Memorandum, Sir William Turner fined for Alderman before Alderman Starling, who held Sheriff the Year before him. But Turner was Maior the Year before Starling, his Seniority of Alderman being reckoned according to his fining.

CHAP. VII.

Government by MAIORS; How ancient: Chief Butler at Coronations: His Privileges and State. SHERIFFS: Their Office: Their Courts. UNDER-SHERIFFS. Ancient Fees due to the Maior and Sheriffs.

The Antiquity of the Maioralty. J. S.

ALTHO' the Government of the City by Maiors is commonly reputed to begin with Henry Fitz-Alwyn in the beginning of King Richard the Firſt; yet ſome Men, learned in the Antiquities of the City, affirm that Title of the chief Magiſtrate to be antienter. For tho' no name of a Maior be found to be before the ſaid Fitz-Alwyn; the word Maior, as Chief Officer of London, is met with in the time of Henry II. who was Father to King Richard. For it is found in a remarkable Book of the Archives of the City, that the Articles concerning the Pleas of the Crown were delivered to the MAIOR, as well in the time of King John and King Richard, as in the times before them, viz. in thoſe of King Henry II. their Father.

Lib. Alb. f. 28. a.

King Henry III. granted a Charter to the City, Anno 1233. to chooſe their own Maior. The Charter with the Terms thereof is as follows.

Henricus Dei gratia, &c. i. e. Henry by the Grace of God, &c. to the Archbiſhops, Biſhops, &c. Greeting.

KNow ye, that we have Granted, and by our preſent Charter have confirmed to our Barons of our ſaid City of London, that they chooſe them a Maior of themſelves every Year, Qui nobis ſit fidelis, diſcretus, & ydoneus ad regimen Civitatis: i. e. Who may be faithful to Us, diſcreet, and fit for the Government of the City. Yet ſo, that when he is Elected he be preſented unto Us, or our Juſtice (if we be not preſent) and ſwear Fealty to us. And that they may in the end of the Year remove him, and ſubſtitute another, if they will, or retain the ſame. Yet ſo, as the ſame be ſhewed unto us, or our Juſtice (if we ſhall not be preſent.)

We have granted alſo to our Barons, and have confirmed it by our Charter, that they have well and peaceably, quietly and entirely, all their Liberties which hitherto they have uſed, as well in the City of London, as well in Water as on Land, and all other Places; ſaving to us our Chamberlainſhip. Wherefore we will, &c. Witneſs, the L. Euſtachius London, Peter Wincheſter, John Bath, Biſhops; Hubert de Burgo, Earl of Kent, and our Juſtice, Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glovernie [of Glouceſter] Raphe Fitz-Nicol, Richard de Argenten, our Stewards. Given by the hands of the Venerable Father the Biſhop of Chicheſter, our Chancellor, at Weſtminſter, the 18th Day of February, in the 18th Year of our Reign.

The Maior Chief Butler at Coronations.

IT is alſo for the Honour of this great Magiſtrate of the City, that at any Prince's Coronation he is to attend as Chief Butler of England, and has a Benefit thereby. For (as it is found in the City's Records) the Maior of the City, by reaſon of his Office of Maioralty, Secundum libertates & conſuetudines ejuſdem Civitatis, prout Majores, Aldermanni, Vicecomites, & Cives ejuſdem Civitatis facere conſueverunt de toto tempore: i. e. According to the Liberties and Cuſtoms of the City, as the Maiors, Aldermen, Sheriffs and Citizens of the ſame City, have accuſtomed to do from all times; claimed this Right 1 Rich' III. by Preſcription, and had it allowed at the Coronation. And ſo it is done in ſucceeding times.

The Maior and Citizens claim at the Coronation of Rich. III. E Lib. Cuſtum. in Camer. Lond. fo. 275. b.

When ſeveral made their Claims at the Coronation of the ſaid King Richard III. it is thus ſet down in one of the old Records of London. Proceſſus fact' ad Coronation' Dom' Reg' Angl' Richardi Secundi. ‘ Memorandum, that the Maior and Citizens, of the City of London before the Lord Steward, appearing by the Recorder of the ſaid City, claimed by mouth according to the Liberty and Cuſtom of the ſaid City, that the ſame Maior, on account of his Office of Maioralty, may ſerve in his own Perſon our Lord the King on the day of his Coronation, as well in the Hall as after Dinner in his Chamber, de Cupa Auri, to ſerve him with a Cup of Gold. And the ſame Cup, when he departed from the Feaſt of the ſaid Lord King, together with an Ewer of Gold, to have for his Fee, and to carry away with him. And that the other Citizens, who ſhould be choſen by the City, ought to ſerve the ſame day in the Office of Butler, in aid of the Chief Butler, as well at the Table in the Hall at Dinner, as after Dinner in the Chamber, to the Nobles and others; as the Maiors and Citizens of the ſaid City, their Predeceſſors, hitherto have, as is aſſerted, accuſtomed to do. And it was admitted by the King.

Lib. K. fo. 17. a. 8 H. VI. & lib. L. fo. 191. a & b.

There is a large Entry made in one of the City Records of this matter, which is thus tranſlated: The Title is, Coronatio Domini Richardi Tertii, & Dominæ Annæ Conſortis ſuæ, &c. i. e. The Coronation of the Lord Richard III. and the Lady Anne his Wife, &c.

To the Right High and Mighty Prince the Duke of Norfolk, Seneſchal of England,

The City claim the Butlerſhip at the Coronation, in their Letter to the Duke of Norfolk, High Steward.

SHOWEN unto your good and gracious Lordſhip, the Mair and Citezeins of the Citee of London, that where after the Liberty and commendable Cuſtomes of the ſaid Citee, of time that no man's mind is to the contrary, uſed, enjoyed and accuſtomed, the Mair of the ſame Citee for the time being, by reaſon of the Office of Mairaltie of the ſaid Citee, in his own Perſon, oweth of Right and Duty to ſerve the Kyng our Souvereigne Lord in the day of his ful noble Coronation, in ſoch place as it ſhal pleaſe his Highnes to take his Spyces; and the ſame Cup, with the Kevering belonging thereunto, and a Layer of Gold, the ſaid Mair to have, and with him to bear away at the time of his departing, for his Fee and Reward.

And alſo, that divers other Citezeins, that by the ſaid Mair and Citee ſhal therto be named and choſen, owen of Right by the ſame Cuſtom at the ſame Day to ſerve in the office of Butlerſhip, in helping of the Chief Butler of England, to the Lords and Eſtates that ſhal be at the ſaid Coronation, as well at the Table in the Hall at meat, as after meat in the Chamber.

Beſeechen your ſaid Lordſhip, that Edmund Shaa, now Mair, and other Citezeins of the Citee aforeſaid, to the ſaid Office and Service now choſen; whoſe Names, in a Scedule hereunto annexed, be ſpecified; may be admitted to do the ſame Service as their Predeceſſors, Mairs and Citezeins of the ſaid Citee, in caſe ſemblable, have uſed in dayes paſſed.

Alſo, the ſaid Mair and Citezeins praien, that they may ſit, in the day of the ſaid Coronation, at the Table next the Cupboard, of the liſte ſide of the Hall; lyke as of late tyme it hath been uſed and accuſtomed. And that the ſaid Mair may have and enjoy the ſaid Fee and Reward, according to the Duetie.

The like Bill was offered to the ſame Duke, for the Coronation of the Queen, mutatis mutandis.

The ſaid King and Queen were crowned at Weſtminſter, the 6th of July. And in the day of the Coronation of the ſaid King and Queen, after the Feaſt was finiſhed; in which as well Edmund Shaa, Maior, as the Aldermen and other Citizens elected by the Common Council, to attend upon the Chief Butler of England, according to Cuſtom, were kindly and honourably handled. And the ſame Maior, after Dinner ended, as before was ſaid, offered to the ſaid Lord the King, Wine in a Gold Cup, cum Fiola Aurea, i. e. with a Golden Viol full of Water (ad attenuand' Vinum) to temper the Wine. After that the Wine was taken by the Lord King, the Maior retained the ſaid Cup and Viol of Gold to his own proper uſe. In like manner the Maior offered to the Queen, after the Feaſt ended, Wine in a Golden Cup, with a Gold Viol full of Water. And after Wine taken by the ſaid Queen, ſhe gave the Cup with the Viol to the Maior, according to the Privileges, Liberties, and Cuſtoms of the City of London in ſuch Caſes uſed.

The Policy and Grandure of this Magiſtrate.

Concerning the Policy of the Government of this City by this Magiſtrate, his Magnificence and Grandure, and the Freedom of the Citizens under his Influence, thus one unnamed in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, (whom I conjecture to be Recorder Fleetwood) writes. 'Strangers do no leſs envy than admire the manner of it; ſeeing ſo populous a City, containing by true Eſtimation more than five hundred thouſand of all ſorts of Inhabitants, managed not by cruel Viceroys, as in Naples or Milain; neither by proud Podeſta, as be moſt Cities in Italy, or inſolent Lieutenants or Preſidents, as are ſundry Cities in France, (whoſe Preſidents are Noblemen or Captains, environed with a Guard of Soldiers, and holding their Cities poſſeſſed with a Garriſon, as well in the quieteſt calm of Peace, as in the hotteſt combuſtion of War) but by a Man of Trade, or a meer Merchant. Who, notwithſtanding, during the time of his Magiſtracy, carrieth himſelf with that honourable Magnificence in his Port, and Enſigns of Eſtate, that the Conſuls, Tribunes, or Prætors of Rome, (namely, when as the ſame was reduced to a Monarchy) much leſs the Podeſta of any City in Italy, never bore the like Repreſentation of Dignity; and that not only in Peaceable ſeaſons, but in time of greateſt War. For ſuch Credit the Princes of this Land have repoſed in their Fidelity and Direction, that we have few Examples in any Chronicle of any Nobleman, or other, appointed to aſſiſt the Lord Maior in his Government, much leſs to be ſole Ruler or Lieutenant for the time, were the State never ſo troubleſome, and the Affairs of never ſo great Conſequence and Importance.'

I find divers Ordinances and Privileges for the Maiors of London in the ancient Records of the City: As,

Ancient Cuſtoms and Laws for Maiors. Ex Calend. Camer. Lond.

That none be choſen Maior again for five Years after the Year he was Maior. Afterwards a Law was made, that none ſhould be Maior again but ſeven Years after he had been Maior. Another Order was, that none ſhould be Maior but twice.

That no Maiors or Aldermen be Braciatores, i. e. Brewers, [who formerly kept Drinking-Houſes ſometimes.]

That the Servants of the Maior be ſworn to make and take the Rights or Dues of the Maior.

The Maior ought to ſerve the King on the day of his Coronation.

That the Maior have two Hogſheads of Wine, to forbear making ſix Men Free, according to an ancient Cuſtom. And again by another Order,

That the Maior have forty Marks to ceaſe to make Men Free.

A Fine of an hundred Marks was laid upon one, for a Rebellion made to a Maior.

One was impriſoned, becauſe he would not come at the Maior's Summons.

One made a Fine of an hundred Hogſheads of Wine, becauſe he deſpiſed the Maior, by calling him An evil Maior.

Note, A great Diſſention once [about the end of the Reign of King Edward III.] in the Election of a Maior; ſome favouring one Man, and ſome another: For which a third Man was choſen; and neither of them contended for was Maior for that Year.]

Privileges of the Lord Maior R. B.

This great Officer, the Lord Maior, hath divers Privileges belonging to him; ſome of which are as followeth. As the Head of the City, he is the Principal in all Commiſſions of Felony, &c. and the Chief Judge for the Goal-delivery at the Seſſions for Newgate He is Conſervator for the Rivers of Thames and Medway. In all Commiſſions touching the River of Ley, he is always one. He is Coroner within the City and Liberties. He is Chief Butler to the King at his Coronation, as was ſhewn before. And if the Commonalty chooſe a Maior in the Abſence of the preſent Maior, for the next Year, the Election is void. Upon the Death of any of the Officers belonging to the Lord Maior, during his Maioralty, others are to be put in their ſtead by him; which oft proves very advantageous to him.

His Attendance.

For his Domeſtick Attendance, it is very honourable. He hath four Officers that wait on him, who are Eſquires by their Places, as ſhall be ſeen in due place; beſides twenty nine or thirty other daily Attendants, many of whom have their Servants.

When the Lord Maior goeth abroad, he is uſually accompanied with the Sheriffs either on Horſeback or in their Coaches, and other Officers walking by in their Gowns, on each ſide. The Lord Maior is always habited in a long Robe; ſometimes of fine Scarlet Cloth richly furred, ſometimes in Purple, and ſometimes over his Robes a Hood of Black Velvet (which ſome ſay is a Badge of a Baron of the Realm) with a great Chain of Gold hanging about his Neck; or ſometimes a Collar of SS, with a rich Jewel pendant thereon.

The Maior's Court Days.

Theſe are uſually the Lord Maior's Attendants, when he goes to the City, or to keep Courts at Guildhall, which is every Tueſday and Thurſday throughout the Year, except Holidays, or in Seſſions time, and the whole Month of Auguſt.

The Ld. Maior's going to Weſtminſter to be ſworn.

But upon the 29th of October, when he goes to Weſtminſter in his Barge, accompanied with the Aldermen, all the City Officers, with the Companies of the City in their ſeveral Barges, adorned with Streamers, Pendants, Colours and loud Muſick, viz. Drums, Trumpets, Hautboys, &c. to take his Oath in the Exchequer Chamber, adminiſtred to him by the Barons of the Exchequer, viz. To be true to the great Truſt repoſed in him, he makes a gallant Show. The like at his return to Guildhall: Where there is prepared a moſt ſumptuous Dinner: To which many of the Nobility, the Judges, and divers Publick Officers are invited: And many times Kings and Queens have been pleaſed to honour that Feaſt with their Preſence.

Upon the Death of the King, the Lord Maior is ſaid to be the Prime Perſon of England. For when King James I. was invited to come and take the Crown of England, Robert Lee, then Lord Maior, ſubſcribed in the firſt place, before all the great Officers of the Crown, or all the Nobility.

The Maior choſen on Michaelmas-day by the Livery Men.

This great Magiſtrate is always choſen on Michaelmas-day, by the Livery-men of the ſeveral Companies, out of the twenty ſix Aldermen: In which Election the ſenior Alderman formerly uſed to be choſen; but of late Years it is not always obſerved, being at the Electors diſcretion.

Hath the Title of Lord.

Time out of mind, the Maior of London hath been of ſuch high eſteem, that in all Writings or Addreſſes to him, the Title of LORD is prefixed; which is given to none but to Noblemen, Biſhops and Judges; and of late time to the Maior of York.

The Lord Maior of London, for his great Dignity, is uſually Knighted.

The Cuſtom and Form of Electing this chief Officer of the City, will be declared hereafter.

The Cuſtom of the Companies dining with the Maior.

The Maſters, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, and as many as pleaſe of the other Members of the Livery of each Company, do annually invite themſelves to dine with the Lord Maior at his Houſe, towards the beginning of the Year; by ſending to him ſome of their Members with a Purſe and divers Papers of Money in it, each Paper containing two, three, five, or more Guineas in it, and expreſſing the Name and Place of Abode of the Perſon that ſent them. And then on the day that the Lord Maior appoints, they meet at ſome convenient Place, and ſo go together in their Livery Gowns, to dine with him. Who, in requital, towards the latter end of his Year, ſends an Officer to every Man's Houſe with the Preſent of a Silver Spoon Gilt, and withal invites them and their Wives to dine with him and the Lady Maioreſs at his Houſe on ſuch a Day.

Sheriffs, whence elected.

Now for the SHERIFFS of London and Middleſex. They were of old time choſen out of the Commonalty, Commoners, and oftentimes never came to be Aldermen: As many Aldermen were never Sheriffs, and yet advanced to be Maiors. But of later time, by occaſion, the Sheriffs have been made Aldermen before, or preſently after their Election.

Nicolas Faringdon was never Sheriff, yet four times Maior of this City; and ſo of other. Which reproveth a By-word, Such a one will be Maior before he be Sheriff.]

Sheriffs, their Nomination. J. S.

Formerly the elder Sheriff was nominated by the Lord Maior, by his drinking to ſuch a Perſon, whom he thought fit, calling him by the name of Sheriff for the enſuing Year, whereſoever he were, whether preſent or abſent. And this Nomination was cuſtomarily confirmed by the Commonalty. But of late the Commons contended againſt that Cuſtom; and ſo both the Sheriffs were elected by the Livery Men of each Company. The Time, the Method and the Form thereof, ſhall be ſhewn hereafter. Now very lately the old Cuſtom of the Lord Maior's nominating a Sheriff, is again appointed and ordered by Act of Common Council. And Sir John Parſons, Maior Anno 1704, was the firſt after that Act, that nominated a Sheriff. The ſaid Act ſhall in due place be ſpecified.]

Office of a Sheriff. R. B.

As to the Office of the Sheriffs, it belongs to them to ſerve the King's Writs of Proceſs, be they Summons, Attachments, or otherwiſe, to compel Men to anſwer to the Law for the ſeizing on Goods, Land, or Bodies, as the Cauſe requires: Alſo all Extents, Writs of Poſſeſſion, &c. And for the better Execution of this Office, after a Reſiſtance, the Sheriff may raiſe the Poſſe Comitatus. He is to return Juries for Trials of Mens Lives, Liberties, Lands, and Goods: And upon Actions on the Caſe for Aſſaults and Battery, Defamations, Treſpaſſes, &c. And ſuch Jury Men ought to be of honeſt Repute, and of good Ability to conſider of, and deliver their Verdicts according to Juſtice and the Merit of the Cauſe. He ought to look after the keeping the Publick Peace. He is to ſee Condemned perſons executed according to their Sentence, except pardoned by the King's Grace. He is to gather in and collect the Publick Monies, by Fines, &c. that belong to the King; and to be accountable for, and to pay in the ſame into the Exchequer: Firſt deducting his Publick Expences cuſtomarily allowed to Sheriffs. If a Reſcue be made after an Arreſt, the Reſcuer is liable to be ſued, and to pay the Debt. In all Caſes where the King is Party, the Sheriff may break open Doors, if Entrance be denied him; but not upon any private Proceſs; but upon Proceſs of Outlawry after Judgment he may do it, or untile the Houſe to come in: But in all Caſes where the Door is open, he may enter, and make Execution of his Writ.

Under-Sheriff.

For the better performing of this Office, the Sheriffs jointly have their UNDER SHERIFF, who is always an Attorney, and generally of known Parts; who enters into Security for his juſt Performance of an Office of ſo great Truſt. For the Under-Sheriff acts all for the County, but hath no concern within the City and Liberty of London, and keeps his Office in ſome convenient Place for the ſame; having his Deputy, and ſeveral Clerks to do the Office and Buſineſs. And for Bailiffs, there is no want of them.

The Sheriffs Priſons.

For the City of London, and the Liberties, the Sheriffs have each their Compter or Priſon, and to each their peculiar Officers; as, a Secondary, Clerk-ſitters, a Priſon Keeper, with Serjeants and their Yeomen, for Arreſts, Attachments, Execucutions, &c.

Their Courts.

They have likewiſe each their COURT, with a Judge belonging to it, for the Trials of all Cauſes on ſuch Arreſts. Of this Court more will be ſaid in due place. The Lord Maior and Citizens have the Sheriffalty of London in Fee, and Sheriffs are Guardians under them.]

And theſe have their particular Shares and Parts of the City committed to their Charge and Overſight reſpectively: Having alſo their Deputies under them.]

Out of theſe Aldermen is choſen the Maior.

There are in this City (according to the number of Wards) ſix and twenty Aldermen; out of which yearly on the Feaſt of St. Michael the Archangel, one who hath ſerved Sheriff, is elected to be Maior for the Year following. He is to begin and take place on the 28th day of October then next after his Election. The other Aldermen his Brethren are to him Aſſiſtants in Councils and Courts.

Cuſtoms and Paſſages concerning Aldermen.

Several ancient Cuſtoms, Rules and Paſſages concerning the Aldermen of London, may be obſerved out of the Records of the Chamber: Some whereof are theſe that follow.

Lib. H. C. & G. Neither Maior nor Aldermen to hold Bracium, i. e. a Brewhouſe or Tavern, or Bakehouſe; nor their Servants.

Lib. H. An Alderman removed from his Office, or a Commoner from Common Council, not to be reelected.

Ibid. An Alderman loſt his Liberty, becauſe he was abſent from the City for the greater part of the Year.

Ibid. An Alderman lined not his Cloak, which he ought to uſe in Proceſſion. Therefore it was adjudged by the Court, that the Maior and Aldermen ſhould all Breakfaſt with him. [Perhaps this was ſome covetous Alderman, and this Puniſhment was to meet with him that way.]

Lib. I. One was judged and impriſoned for falſe Words ſpoken of an Alderman.

Ibid. One Gydney was impriſoned, becauſe he refuſed the Office of an Alderman.

Rotul. Hamond. An Alderman was once rejected, becauſe he was inhabilis, i. e. unable.

The Aldermen have been required in former times to gather up all Debts due to the King, each in their Wards.] 2 H. 3. m. 4.

The Election of an Alderman.

The Aldermen, who may be called the Senators of the City, are choſen by the Common Councilmen and others of the Livery reſiding in the reſpective Ward, when there is a Vacancy by Death. If any thus elected refuſe to hold, he is fined. But this rarely happens.

Some have endeavoured to get themſelves excuſed from being Aldermen. J. S.

Yet this hath ſometimes happened; when Men, either not caring to ſpend their Money, or affecting Retirement and a private Life, have endeavoured, by ſome means or other, to get themſelves excuſed from being called upon, either for Alderman or Sheriff. Yet when able Men have thus declined this Honourable Service of the City, the Freemen have not taken it well at their hands, and withal have refuſed to grant their Requeſt. Such an inſtance happened in Queen Elizabeth's days. (Mr. Branch.) One Branch (who notwithſtanding afterwards ſerved Sheriff and Maior) ſued to be diſcharged of the Office of Sheriff and Alderman; thereby alſo to be diſcharged of the Office of Maior, when that ſhould come to his turn. But the Commons upon this, expoſtulated the Caſe in ſome Diſpleaſure; and ſhewed, firſt, his Abilities, as he was of great Wealth in Lands and Goods, and without Iſſue; and moreover had married with one Mrs. Minors, an antient Woman, without Iſſue, and in all account paſt Childbearing; the Widow of Mr. Minors, who alſo was rich, and died without Iſſue, and left his Subſtance to his Wife. It was urged alſo, that his Father and Grandfather were alſo Citizens of London. So that in all Mens Opinions, they ſaid, there was not a Man in London, whoſe Suit in this matter could be more unreaſonable. That the Example were perillous to the City, conſidering the great Charge that was to be born in theſe Offices, and the Unwillingneſs of miſerable rich Men to take that Charge upon them. For one Precedent being had, they by this and like ways would always travail to be diſcharged; and good Men, weaker in Wealth, ſhould for love to the City be driven to undo themſelves, by taking ſuch Offices upon them; and finally the City unſerved.

Aldermen and Common Councilmen elected by the Wards.

The Wards are to elect their Aldermen and Common Councilmen. But for the regulating and adjuſting of the Nomination of an Alderman, and electing of Common Councilmen from time to time, was an Act of Common Council made, Sir Thomas Stamp Maior, Anno 1692. By which Act it was declared, ‘That it is, and anciently hath been the Right and Privilege of the Freemen of the City only, being Houſholders, paying Scot and bearing Lot, and of none other whatſoever, in their reſpective Wards, from time to time to nominate Aldermen, and elect Common Councilmen. And it was enacted by the Authority aforeſaid, that at all Wardmoots the Beadles of the reſpective Wards ſhall prepare and deliver to the Aldermen of the ſeveral Wards, or to ſuch as ſhall be deputed and authorized to hold the ſame, one Liſt of all the Freemen aforeſaid, dwelling within the reſpective Wards, and alſo another Liſt of other Houſholders within the Ward: To the intent that ſuch Freemen Houſholders within the Wards only, as often as there is occaſion, may nominate Aldermen and elect Common Councilmen; and that together with other Houſholders they may chooſe their Conſtables, Scavengers, Inqueſt and Beadles. And to all and every Precept and Precepts hereafter to iſſue, and to be ſent out for ſummoning Wardmoots, this preſent Act be annexed and affixed. And before any Nomination or Election, the ſame to be publickly read and declared to the Perſons who ſhall be and appear at ſuch Courts.

At Wardmoots, Liſts to be preſented of the Freemen, &c.

R. B.

All the Aldermen that have paſt the Chair, and the three eldeſt Aldermen that have not been Maiors, are by their Charter Juſtices of the Peace within the City and Freedom thereof.]

As the Wards were placed and treated of before in this Book, according to the order of their beginning Eaſtward; ſo the Names of the Aldermen that had the Government and Direction of them in the Year 1633 (when this Survey was laſt publiſhed) are ſet down; That is, not according to their Degree as Knights, but as the Wards ſtand, ſo do the Aldermen reſpectively.

The Alteration of the Aldermen ſince (divers of them being ſince dead) will be ſeen under each Ward.

THUS theſe Wards have from (time to time) held, and ſtill do, their ſeveral Aldermen, till either Death or other occaſion of remove, do make an Alteration in their Aldermen.]

Thus much for the Chief and Principal Governours of this famous City: Of whoſe Publick Government, with the Aſſiſtance of Inferiour Officers, their Charges for keeping of the Peace, Service of the Prince, and Honour of this City, much might have been ſaid, and I had thought to have touched more at large. But being informed that a Learned Gentleman, James Dalton, a Citizen born, minded ſuch a Labour, and promiſed to perform it; I have forborn, and left the ſame to his good Leiſure. But he being now lately deceaſed, without finiſhing any ſuch Work (a common Fault to promiſe more than to perform) and I hear not of any other that taketh it in hand;

Mr. Dalton intended to write of the Government of the City, dies. So Stow in his 2d Edition.

I have been divers times minded to add certain Chapters to this Book. But being (by the good Pleaſure of God) viſited with Sickneſs; ſuch as my Feet (which have born me many a Mile) have of late Years refuſed me, once in four or five Months, to convey me from my Bed to my Study; and therefore could not do as I would.

Stow adds ſomething of that Subject.

At length remembring I had long ſince gathered Notes to have Chaptered, am now forced to deliver them unperfected, and deſire the Reader to pardon me, that want not Will to pleaſure them.

[Beſides the Maior, Sheriffs and Aldermen, there be ſeveral other eminent Officers belonging to the City.]

The Recorder.

Firſt, There is a RECORDER of London, a grave and learned Lawyer, ſkilful in the Cuſtoms of the City: Alſo he is to be a chief Aſſiſtant to the Lord Maior, for their better direction in matters of Juſtice and Law. He taketh place in Councils and in Courts, before any Man that hath not been Maior, and learnedly delivereth the Sentences of the whole Court.

His Qualifications. Lib. Alb.

The Qualifications of the Recorder of the City are thus ſet down in one of the Books of the Chamber. That ‘He ſhall be, and is wont to ‘be, one of the moſt ſkilful and vertuous Apprentices of the Law of the whole Kingdom. Whoſe ‘Office is always to ſit on the Right-Hand of ‘the Maior, in recording Pleas, and paſſing ‘Judgments. And by whom Records and Proceſſes had before the Maior and Aldermen at ‘Great St. Martins, ought to be recorded by ‘word of Mouth before the Judges aſſigned there ‘to correct Errors. The Maior and Aldermen ‘have therefore uſed commonly to ſet forth all ‘other Buſineſſes, touching the City, before the ‘King and his Council, as alſo in certain of the ‘King's Courts, by Mr. Recorder, as a chief ‘Man endued with Wiſdom, and eminent for ‘Eloquence.

His Fee.

The Fee of the Recorder was ſometimes more, and ſometimes leſs, according to Time and Merit, as appears in the fourth Book of Liber Albus. After, the Recorder's Fee was ſettled at an Hundred Marks. And he was to have of the Chamber ſuch Veſture (Lineatam vel penulatam) lined or faced, and as often as the Maior and Aldermen take every Year. And his Clerk, ſuch as the Serjeants of the Chamber. The Recorder and his Clerk are wont to ſit at the Maior's Table.

A Recorder ſworn 32 Ed. 1. Lib. Horn.

What the Recorder's Office was long ago determined to be, to wit, in the Year 1304, may be worthy to be read out of a Record; viz. Die Lunæ, &c. 'On Monday after the Feaſt of the 'Converſion of St. Paul, in the 32 of King Edward, 'before the Lords, John le Blund, Maior, John 'de Burreſorch, Sheriff, William de Beton, Walter 'de Fynchingfeld, William de Leyre, Thomas Romeyn, 'Adam de Folham, John of Canterbury, Simon de Paris, John de Dunſtaple, Richard de Glouceſtre, Henry 'de Louceſtre, Adam de Rokeſle, &c. Aldermen, 'meeting together, John de Wengrave, Alderman 'and Recorder, was ſworn, well and faithfully to 'render all the Judgments of the Huſtengs, after 'the Maior and Aldermen ſhould meet concerning 'their Pleas, and agreed together; and alſo all 'other Judgments touching the City of London, '&c. And that he ſhall do Juſtice as well to 'Poor as Rich. And that all the Pleas of the 'Hunſtengs preſently after the Huſtenge is finiſhed, 'he ſhall overſee, order, and cauſe to be enrolled, 'according to the things pleaded, &c. And that 'he ſhall come prepared to diſpatch the Buſineſs 'of the City, &c. when he ſhall be lawfully warned by the Maior and Bailiffs. For which Labour the aforeſaid Maior and Aldermen have 'yielded to give the aforeſaid John, X l. Sterling 'by Year out of their Chamber, and 20 d. of 'each Charter written, and each Teſtament enrolled in the ſaid Huſtengs, &c.

The preſent Recorder is Sir William Thomſon, Knight.

Maſter Chamberlain of London. He is an Officer of great Repute and Truſt; and tho' annually choſen on Midſummer-day, yet not diſplaced, but continues during Life, if no juſt and great Crimes are made out againſt him. He had the keeping of the Monies, Lands and Goods of the City Orphans, or took good Security for the Payment thereof when the Parties came to Age. And to that end he was deemed in the Law a ſole Corporation, to him and his Succeſſors, for Orphans. And therefore a Bond, or a Recognizance made to him and his Succeſſors, was recoverable by his Succeſſors. This Officer hath a Court peculiarly belonging to him, which will be ſpoken of hereafter. The Coroner. R. B.

The Coroner of London, called ſo à Corona; i. e. a Crown, becauſe he deals principally with the Crown; or in matters appertaining to the Imperial Crown of England. As to the Antiquity of this Office; there were Coroners in the time of King Alfred, as appears by the Book intituled, The Miroir. The Lord Maior for the time being is Coroner, but hath his Deputy for the Management thereof. In ancient time this Office was of ſuch great Eſteem, that none could execute it under the Degree of a Knight. As the Sheriff may enquire of all Felonies, ſo the Coroner is to enquire of all ſudden Deaths. And to that end he impannelleth a Jury, taketh Evidence upon Oath, and giveth the Charge to the Jury.

The City petition the King for a Coroner of their own. J. S.

In former Times this Officer was nominated and appointed by the King. In 51 Edw' III. the Citizens prayed, that they might place and diſplace a Coroner among themſelves, Anſwering unto the King, what belongeth thereunto. It was anſwered, The King will not depart with his ancient Right.

To the right bearing of which Sword, in the Chamber of London, this Obſervation is to be made, according to an ancient Writer of Armoury: 'That the Bearer muſt carry it upright, the Hilts being holden under his Bulk, 'and the Blade directly up the midſt of his Breaſt, 'and ſo forth between the Sword-bearer's Brows. 'This in diſtinction from bearing the Sword in 'any Town for a Duke, or an Earl, or a Baron. 'If for a Duke, the Blade thereof muſt lean from 'the Head between the Neck and the Right 'Shoulder, nearer to the Head than the Shoulder. And for an Earl, the Bearer muſt carry 'the ſame between the Point of the Shoulder and 'the Elbow: And ſo there is another different Bearing of the Sword for a Baron.]

The SHERIFFS OFFICERS.

Sheriffs Officers.

THE SHERIFFS alſo of London, as the Maior, for the State of the City, had their Officers. In the Year 1471, they were appointed each of them to have ſixteen Serjeants, every Serjeant to have his Yeoman. And ſix Clerks, to wit, a Secondary, a Clerk of the Papers, and four other Clerks; beſides the Under-Sheriffs Clerks, their Stewards, Butlers, Porters, and other in Houſhold many.

Of the MAIORS and SHERIFFS LIVERIES.

Liveries of the Maiors and Sheriffs.

NOW to ſay ſomething of the Maiors and Sheriffs Liveries. To follow Precedent of former time, the Clerks of Companies were to enquire for them of their Companies, that would have the Maior's Livery, their Money (as a Benevolence given) which muſt be 20 s. at leaſt put in a Purſe, with their Names that gave it, and the Wardens to deliver it to the Maior by the firſt of December. For the which every Man had then ſent him four Yards of Broad-Cloth, rowed or ſtriped thwart with a different Colour, to make him a Gown; and theſe were called Rey-Gowns, which was then the Livery of the Maior, and alſo of the Sheriffs; but each differing from others in the Colours.

The Maior gave ſtrip'd Cloth for Gowns, called Rey-Gowns.

Party-coloured Gowns.

Of older times I read, that the Officers of this City wore Gowns of Party-Colours, as the right ſide of one Colour, and the left ſide of another. As for Example; I read in Books of Accounts in Guild-Hall, that in the 19th Year of Henry VI. there was bought for an Officer's Gown two Yards of Cloth, coloured Muſtard Villars (a Colour now out of uſe) and two Yards of Cloth coloured Blew, Price 2 s. the Yard; in all, 8 s. More, paid to John Pope, Draper, for two Gown Cloths, eight Yards of two Colours eux ombo deux de Rouge (or Red) Medley Brune and Porre (or Purple) Colour, Price, the Yard, 2 s. Theſe Gowns were for Piers Rider and John Buckles, Clerks of the Chamber.

More, I read, that in the Year 1516, in the 7th of Henry VIII. it was agreed by a Common Council in the Guild-Hall, that the Sheriffs of London ſhould (as they had been accuſtomed) give yearly Reyed Gowns to the Recorder, Chamberlain, Common Serjeant and Common Clerk, the Sword-bearer, Common Hunt, Water-Baily, Common Cryer, like as to their own Officers, &c.

In King Henry the VIII's time they wore Gowns of one Colour.

More, Anno 1525, in the 16th of Henry VIII. Sir William Baily then being Maior, made a Requeſt, for that Cloths of Bay (as he alledged) were evil wrought, his Officers might be permitted (contrary to Cuſtom) for that Year to wear Gowns of one Colour; to the which (in a Common Council) one anſwered and ſaid, Yea, it might be permitted: And no Man ſaid Nay, and ſo it paſſed. Thus much for Party-coloured and Rey Gowns have I read. But for Benevolence to the Maior, I find that of later time, each Man giving 40 s. towards his Charges, received four Yards of Broad Cloth to make him a Gown: For Sir Thomas White performed it in the firſt Year of Queen Mary; but Sir Thomas Lodge gave (inſtead of four Yards of Broad Cloth) three Yards of Satten to make them Doublets. And ſince that, the three Yards of Satten is now turned into a Silver Spoon, and ſo it holdeth.

The Wardens, and Perſons.

LordMaior's Feaſt 1531. J. S.

So that at the Feaſt of Richard Greſham this 23 Hen. VIII. which was Anno 1531, were, Meſſes of Meat, 111½. And Gueſts of the Freemen entertained at Guildhall, 273. Beſides the Wardens of each Company, reckoning two to each Company, 120. In all 393.]

The Companies obtained Licenſes from the King to aſſociate themſelves for their Government.

Theſe Companies ſeverally at ſundry times purchaſed the King's Favour and Licenſe by his Letters Patents, to aſſociate themſelves in Brotherhoods, with Maſter and Wardens, for their Government. Many alſo have procured Corporations, with Privileges, &c. But I read not of Licenſe by them procured for Liveries to be worn, but at their Governours Diſcretion to appoint, as occaſion asketh, ſometime in Triumphant manner, ſometime more Mourning-like. And ſuch Liveries have they taken upon them, as well before as ſince they were by Licenſe aſſociated into Brotherhoods, or Corporations. For the firſt of theſe Companies that I read of to be a Guild, Brotherhood, or Fraternity in this City, were the Weavers, whoſe Guild was confirmed by Henry the Second. The next Fraternity, which was of St. John Baptiſt, time out of mind, called of Taylors, and Linnen Armourers of London, I find that King Edward I. in the 28th of his Reign, confirmed that Guild by the name of Taylors and Linnen Armourers; and gave to the Brethren thereof Authority yearly to chooſe unto them a Governour or Maſter, with Wardens, &c. The other Companies have ſince purchaſed Licenſe of Societies, Brotherhoods, or Corporations, in the Reigns of Edward III. Richard II. Henry IV. Henry V. Henry VI. Edward IV. &c.

Brotherhoods. Weavers the firſt Brotherhood. Taylors the ſecond, confirmed by the King.

Somewhat of LIVERIES worn by the Citizens of London in time of Triumphs, and otherways.

The Citizens ride out to meet K. Henry III. and his Queen. How habited;

IN the Year 1236, 20 Henry III. the Maior, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Citizens of London, rode out to meet the King, and his new Wife Queen Eleanor, Daughter to Reymond Berengarius of Aragon, Earl of Provence and Narbonne. The Citizens were cloathed in long Garments, embroidered about with Gold and Silk of divers Colours: Their Horſes finely trapped, to the number of three hundred ſixty; every Man bearing a Golden or Silver Cup in his hand: The King's Trumpets before them ſounding, &c. as you may read in my Annals.

And how, when they met K. Edward I. his Queen.

Anno 1300, 29 Edward I. the ſaid King took to Wife Margaret, Siſter to Philip le Bew, King of France. They were married at Canterbury. The Queen was conveyed to London: Againſt whom the Citizens, to the number of ſix hundred, rode in one Livery of Red and White, with the Cognizance of their Myſteries embroidered upon their Sleeves. They received her four Miles out of London, and ſo conveyed her to Weſtminſter.

Meet K. Henry V. with his Priſoners from France.

Anno 1415, 3 Henry V. The ſaid King arriving at Dover, the Maior of London, with the Aldermen and Craftſmen riding in Red, with Hoods Red and White, met with the King at the Black Heath, coming from Eltham with his Priſoners out of France.

Meet Henry VI. coming from France. The Maior and Aldermen, how habited.

Anno 1432, 10 Henry VI. He being Crowned in France, returning into England, came to Eltham towards London. And the Maior of London, John Welles, the Aldermen, with the Commonalty, rode againſt him on Horſeback; the Maior in Crimſon Velvet, a great Velvet Hat furred, a Girdle of Gold about his Middle, and a Bawdrike of Gold about his Neck, trilling down behind him: His three Henxemen on three great Courſers following him, in one Suit of Red, all ſpangled in Silver. Then the Aldermen in Gowns of Scarlet with Sanguine Hoods: And all the Commonalty of the City, cloathed in White Gowns and Scarlet Hoods, with divers Cognizances embroidered on their Sleeves, &c.

Maior, &c. meet King Henry VII. at Shoreditch.

Anno 1485, 1 Henry VII. The Maior, Aldermen, Sheriffs and Commonalty, all Cloathed in Velvet (as in a mourning Colour) meet the King at Shoreditch, and conveyed him to Pawl's Church: where he offered his Banners [taken at the Victory of Boſworth over King Richard III.]

Hoods anciently the Coverture of Mens Heads. No Caps, nor Hats.

Thus much for Liveries of Citizens in ancient times, both in Triumphs and otherwiſe, may ſuffice: Whereby may be obſerved, that the Coverture of Mens Heads was then Hoods. For neither Cap or Hat is ſpoken of, except that John Welles, Maior of London, was ſaid to wear a Hat in time of Triumph; but differing from the Hats lately taken in uſe, and now commonly worn for Noblemens Liveries. I read, that Thomas Earl of Lancaſter, in the Reign of Edward II. gave at Chriſtmas in Liveries to ſuch as ſerved him, 159 Broad Cloths; allowing to every Garment Furs, to Fur their Hoods. More near our time: There yet remain the Counterfeits and Pictures of Aldermen, and other that lived in the Reign of Henry VI. and Edward IV. namely, Alderman Darby, that dwelled in Fenchurch ſtreet, over againſt the Pariſh Church of St. Dionys, left his Picture, as of an Alderman, in a Gown of Scarlet on his Back, an Hood on his Head, &c. as is in that Houſe (and elſewhere) to be ſeen.

An ancient Picture of a Maior in Guildhall.

For a farther Monument of thoſe late Times, Men may behold the Glaſs Windows of the Maior's Court in the Guildhall, above the Stairs. The Maior is there pictured, ſitting in Habit party-coloured, and a Hood on his Head; his Sword-bearer before him with an Hat, or Cap of Maintenance: The Common Clerk and other Officers bare-headed, their Hoods on their Shoulders.

Square Bonnets.

And therefore I take it, that the uſe of ſquare Bonnets worn by Noblemen, Gentlemen, Citizens and others, took beginning in this Realm by Henry VII. and in his time: And of further Antiquity I can ſee no Counterfeit, or other Proof of uſe.

K. Henry VIII. wore a round Cap.

Henry VIII. (towards his latter Reign) wore a round flat Cap of Scarlet, or of Velvet, with a Bruch or Jewel, and a Feather. Divers Gentlemen, Courtiers and other, did the like. The youthful Citizens alſo took them to the new Faſhion of flat Caps, knit of Woolen Yarn, black; but ſo light, that they were forced to tie them under their Chins, for elſe the Wind would be maſter over them. The uſe of theſe flat round Caps ſo far encreaſed (being of leſs Price than the French Bonnet) that in ſhort time ſome young Aldermen took the wearing of them. Sir John White wore it in his Maioralty; and was the firſt that left Example to his Followers.

A Maior falls into this Faſhion.

Then came in the Spaniſh Felt.

But now the Spaniſh Felt, or the like Counterfeit, is moſt commonly of all Men, both Spiritual and Temporal, taken to uſe. So that the French Bonnet, or ſquare Cap, and alſo the round or flat Cap, have for the moſt part given place to the Spaniſh Felt. But yet in London among the graver ſort (I mean, the Liveries of Companies) remaineth a memory of the Hoods of old time, worn by their Predeceſſors.

The Faſhion of the Hoods.

Theſe Hoods were worn, the Roundlets upon their Heads, the Skirts to hang behind in their Necks to keep them warm; the Tippet to lie on their Shoulder, or to wind about their Necks. Theſe Hoods were in old time made in Colours according to their Gowns; which were of two Colours, as Red and Blew, or Red and Purple, Murrey, or as it pleaſed their Maſters and Wardens to appoint to the Companies. But now of late time they have uſed their Gowns to be all of one Colour, and that of the ſaddeſt. But their Hoods being made the one half of the ſame Cloth their Gowns be on, the other half remaineth Red, as of old time. And ſo I end, as wanting time to travail further in this Work.

Of theſe, ſomething will be ſpoken hereafter. There were alſo Beadles, Conſtables, Scavengers, neceſſary Officers in each Ward: And the Sheriffs had their Serjeants. Freemen of the City, called BARONS. The COMPANIES, or CORPORATIONS: Their Coats of Arms, Charters, Times of their Incorporations. The MERCERS; GROCERS; DRAPERS; FISHMONGERS; GOLDSMITHS; SKINNERS.

The Government of the City by Companies. J. S.

AS the Government of this City is chiefly maintained by the Superiour Magiſtrates before ſpoken of, viz. Maior, Sheriffs, and Aldermen; ſo a neceſſary part of the Government thereof conſiſteth in the Companies of the Freemen: Which Freemen ſeemed anciently to be called Barons. Which word Baron was brought in by the Normans, to anſwer the word Thane uſed by the Saxons. Which, we are told, they uſed ſometimes in a large Signification to mean a Freeman, born of Free Parentage. And ſo did the Normans take the Word Baron; calling their Free Citizens of their beſt eſteemed Cities and Burroughs by the name of Barons. And ſo Bracton meaneth when he writeth Per Barones London, i. e. By the Barons of London; that is, by the Free Citizens of that City. There are divers Charters, wherein mention is made of ſuch like Barons; as, the Barons of Warwick, in Doomſday: And in our time, the Burgeſſes of the five Ports, are called the Barons thereof.

The Companies.

Of theſe Barons, or Free Citizens, conſiſt the Companies. And the City of London conſiſting of various Tradeſmen, that is, of ſuch as make and ſell Commodities; for the Regulation of them there muſt be Laws and Rules, according to which they ſhould follow their Trades, Arts, and manual Occupations. And for this end thoſe of each Trade or Myſtery (as it is alſo ſtiled) are diſtinguiſhed into Companies, or Societies, or Fraternities. Which have their ſeveral Halls and Places of Meeting (generally magnificent Buildings) to confer together monthly, or oftner, concerning their proper Buſineſſes, as alſo for Feaſting on ſet Days. They have alſo Maſters, Wardens, Aſſiſtants, Clerks, and other Officers to conſult for, and to direct and order all things relating to the good Eſtate of their reſpective Societies, and to puniſh and reſtrain all Abuſes incident to their Trades.

Their Halls.

Why called Corporations.

Theſe are called alſo Corporations, becauſe they are incorporated, or embodied together by Charters from the Kings and Queens of England, or by Acts of Parliament, with certain Liberties and Privileges; for the better Government of their reſpective Members. And moſt of theſe Companies have weighty Truſts of Charity repoſed in them; and are richly endowed with Lands and Livings for that purpoſe.

Precedency of the Maſter and Wardens.

Such Reſpect is given to the Maſters and Wardens of the ſaid Companies, that when they meet at their ſeveral Halls, either ſitting upon Buſineſs, or Feaſting, they take the Precedency at their Tables of all the reſt of the Society, tho' they be Batchelour Knights, or Baronets.

The Preference of the Twelve Companies.

Of theſe Companies there be as many almoſt as there be Trades and Myſteries practiſed and profeſſed. But the Twelve firſt are the Chief, and are by ſome ſtiled Honourable. None is capable of being Lord Maior, but he muſt be of one of theſe Twelve Companies. And therefore if any of an inferiour Company be choſen to that Honour, he muſt quit his former Company, and make himſelf a Member of one of the Twelve.

A Specification of all the Companies.

We ſhall next proceed more particularly to ſet down the Names of the Twelve Companies, and of all the reſt; together with their Coats of Arms, their Charters, and the Time of their Incorporations; and alſo various Remarks concerning many of them, according as the Notices thereof have come to hand from ancient Papers, Records, or good Information.

The FIRST of the Twelve, and which hath the Precedency of all the Companies of London, is that of the MERCERS.

The Mercers, when firſt a Company.

THE MERCERS were enabled to be a Company, and to purchaſe Lands, to the Value of 20 l. by the Year, the 17th Year of King Richard II. Anno Domini 1393.

Were chiefly Merchants. J. S.

This Company in former times conſiſted much of ſuch as ſold rich Silks brought from Italy; and lived chiefly in Cheapſide, St Laurence Jury, and the Old Jury: And afterwards the Mercers were generally Merchants. And when in the Year 1585, a great Muſter was to be made at Greenwich before the Queen, of the Citizens, to conſiſt of 6000 Men, the Mercers ſent out 294 Soldiers: who were out ſeven Days and a Night, at 16 d. a Day each. Which, with all other neceſſary Expences of Arms, Proviſions, &c. coſt them 392 l. 10 s.

Their Charge at a Muſter.

Overſeers of Paul's School.

This Company are the Overſeers of the flouriſhing School dedicated to the Child Jeſus, ſituate near St. Paul's Church.

Sir Thomas Greſham.

Of this Company was Sir Thomas Greſham, Kt. that renowned Merchant, who built the Royal Exchange, and founded the Lectures in Greſham College.

None for many Years ſucceſſively have been Maſters of this Company but Knights, or Aldermen, or Sheriffs, or ſuch as have fined for thoſe Places: Or having ſome other Honourable Qualification. As in the Year 1702, was choſen John Morice, Eſq; lately a Parliament-man, and Son of Sir William Morice, ſometime Secretary of State, &c.

Their Hall.

Their Hall ſtandeth on the North ſide of Cheapſide, next the Poultry, having a graceful Stone Frontiſpiece, with divers Figures over the Gate cut in Stone, one whereof is Charity and her Children.

Here

Their Chappel.

Here alſo is their Chappel, formerly better known by the name of St. Thomas of Acre, or Acon. The entertaining Hall, and other fair Rooms for the meeting of the Company, are above Stairs. There hangs Mr. Papilion's Picture, a late liberal Benefactor.

The Triumphant Pageant when one of this Company is Maior.

When any one of this Company is choſen Maior, to make one of the Triumphs of the Day wherein he goes to Weſtminſter to be ſworn, a moſt beautiful Virgin is carried through the Streets in a Chariot in all the Majeſty and Glory poſſible, with her Hair all diſhevel'd about her Shoulders; to repreſent the Maidenhead which the Company give for their Arms. And this Lady is plentifully gratified for her Pains, beſides the Gift of all the rich Attire ſhe wears. Such a Pageant made part of the Splendour of the Day, Anno 1701, when Sir William Gore was Maior.

Their Feaſt at the Election of a Maſter.

When the Maſter was choſen, they uſed to have a very ſplendid Feaſt; and Perſons of the Court and of the beſt Quality were preſent. And after the Feaſt was over, the new Maſter was conducted in State by the Company to his own Houſe, where they were treated again. In the Year 1577, in the Month of July, on a Munday, was the Mercers Feaſt, when Sir Lionel Ducket (who had been Lord Maior in the Year 1572) was choſen Maſter. There were then preſent, among others, the Maſter of the Rolls, Sir Thomas Greſham, Sir William Damſel, Mr. Sackford of the Privy Chamber, and the Recorder Fleetwood. Dinner being done, as the Order was, they brought the Maſter home to his Houſe, where they had a great and royal Banquet.

Fleetw. Letter to the Lord Treaſurer.

A Fund for Widows ſettled in this Company.

From this Company proceeds a great Benefit to many Widows of Clergymen and others, out of a Fund ſettled here; having Annuities paid to them at the rate of 30 l. per Cent. according to the reſpective Sums that are paid in by their Huſbands, to commence at their Deaths. It may be worth relating how this Fund began. Dr. Aſſheton, Rector of Beckenham in Kent, firſt propoſed it to the Mercers, Novemb. 11. 1698, at a General Court then held. Who thereupon appointed a Committee to conſider of the ſame. Which Committee, after ſeveral meetings and diſcourſes with Dr. Aſſheton, acquainted him, what Eſtate they had to ſettle for Security, being in clear Rent 2888 l. 8 s. 10 d. per Annum (beſide the Payments appointed by the Benefactors to be paid out of the ſame.) Which by a moderate Calculation would yield them when the Leaſes came out, 13500 l. per Annum clear. And the ſaid Dr. Aſſheton conſidering the ſame to be reaſonable Security, the ſaid Committee made their Report to a General Court the 23d of December the ſame Year. Which Court, having read the ſaid Report, did ſuſpend their Reſolution of the ſame for that time. And another General Court was appointed to be held the 13th of January following; that ſo all the Members of the Company might have time to conſider of the ſaid Propoſal, and the Report of the Committee thereupon. At this laſt General Court they did accept the ſaid Propoſal, and did declare, that in caſe 100000 l. ſhould be ſubſcribed, and paid into the Company in ſuch manner as hereafter ſhould be mentioned, the ſaid Company undertook to pay unto the Widows of the Subſcribers, according to the foreſaid Propoſitions, 30 l. per Cent. per Annum, free of Taxes and Charges at Lady-day and Michaelmas. That for the better Security of the Payments, as ſoon as the ſaid 100000 l. ſhould be ſubſcribed, they would ſettle and convey in due Form of Law, the Lands, Houſes and Eſtate before mentioned, in Truſtees, for the due Payment of the ſaid Annuities. That all married Clergymen, and other married Perſons, (except as hereafter excepted) that inhabited in the Kingdom of England, and exceeded not the Age of ſixty Years at the time of the Payment of the Money, and receiving the Company's Bond, and were then in good and perfect Health, and had ſubſcribed any Sum, not leſs than 50 l. nor exceeding the Sum of 300 l. in caſe they died in the Kingdom of England, and left their Wives, Widows; the ſaid Widows ſhould receive, as before mentioned, the Sum of 30 l. yearly, for every 100 l. ſo ſubſcribed; and ſo proportionably for a greater or leſs Sum. Perſons that went to Sea, and Soldiers, not to be admitted to ſubſcribe, in regard of the Caſualties and Accidents they were particularly liable to.

Theſe and other Articles were then publiſhed and declared. Purſuant hereupon, the Subſcription Books were laid open March 1. 1698, and ſeveral Thouſand Pounds were ſubſcribed, but not amounting to the 100000 l. required. At a General Court, June 16. 1699, it was reſolved that the ſaid Settlement propoſed before, ſhould be forthwith ſettled by able Council in the Law, in Truſtees of undoubted Reputation and Ability, for the Aſſurance of the Subſcribers. And as ſoon as the Settlement was made, Publication to be made thereof. Then they enlarged the Sums to be ſubſcribed, viz. That all married Men of the Age of thirty Years, or under, might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 1000 l. That all married Men of the Age of forty Years might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 500 l. And that all married Men, not exceeding the Age of ſixty Years, might ſubſcribe any Sum not exceeding 300 l. And the Widows of all ſuch Perſons ſubſcribing, to receive the Benefit of 30 l. per Cent. per Annum, according to the former Propoſal.

And they declared further, that any Perſons under the Limitation aforeſaid mentioned, might ſubſcribe for the Uſe and Benefit of any Perſon or Perſons, as ſuch Subſcriber ſhould by his Laſt Will and Teſtament direct, during the natural Life of his Wife, in caſe ſhe ſurvived him; declaring in his Subſcription that it was ſo intended. [This was firſt ſeaſonably propounded by Dr. Blackhal, the late Right Reverend Biſhop of Exon, that ſo his Children alſo might, if he thought good, receive part of that Benefit with his Widow.]

The Deed of Settlement was enrolled in her Majeſty's High Court of Chancery; and an authentic Copy of it tranſcribed into a Book, and well atteſted, may be peruſed on Fridays every Week, between the Hours of Nine and One in the Forenoon. Therein is ſhewed, what Eſtates are ſettled, and the Value of them; who are the Truſtees, and to whom theſe Eſtates are made over and conveyed, for the Security of the Subſcribers, and the effectual Payment of the Widows.

Account of this Propoſal by Dr. Aſſheton.

Dr. Aſſheton did, in the Year 1788, print a little Book, intitled, A full Account of the Riſe, Progreſs, and Advantage of this Propoſal: With Directions for the Widow, how to receive her Annuity, without any Delay, Charge, or Deduction. Which Book was given gratis at Mercers Hall. That Reverend Divine did in the Preface to that little Book declare, that he did not for his own Private Advantage project this, but ſincerely deſigned a Publick Good: And in like manner, that the Worſhipful Company undertook to manage this Propoſal, not from any proſpect of Advantage to their own Private Perſons, but only out of a generous Deſign to make the Company more capable to anſwer the End and Reaſon of their Charter; which was, To eſtabliſh and manage Publick Charities, and thereby to enlarge their Capacities of doing good. And he farther preſumed to declare, that the Company of Mercers, by accepting and managing this Propoſal, would do a greater and more publick Good to the whole Nation, than they could pretend to do by founding an Hoſpital for Widows in every County of the Kingdom. In as much as it is a much Nobler Charity to prevent any from being poor, than to relieve him when he becomes actually ſo.

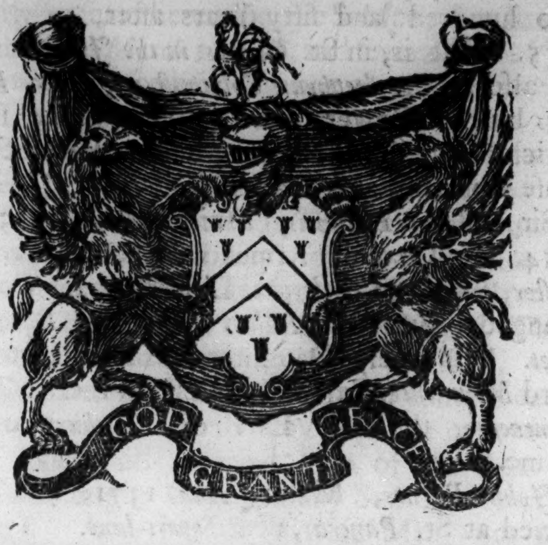
GROCERS.



THE Company of GROCERS (in elder times called PEPPERERS) were firſt incorporated by the Name of Grocers, in the twentieth Year of King Edward the III. Anno Dom. 1345. The Arms and Supporters granted by Thomas Benoît, Clarencieux, in the Time of King Hen. the VIII. [Viz. Anno 1531.] [Helm and Creſt, afterwards granted, and the ſame Arms and Supporters confirmed by William Hervey, Clarencieux under the Seal of his Office, and the Seal of his Arms Ann. 1562. 4 Reg. Elizab. And approved in a Viſitation Ann. 1634. The Arms. J. S.

The Hall. The Hall of this Company is ſituate in the Poultry, in a Lane ſomewhat Weſtward of St. Mildreds Church. In the Hall are the Pictures of Sir John Cutler, Sir John More, Sir John Fleet, Aldermen, drawn in their full Proportions. In reſpect of the largeneſs and convenient Situation of it, it hath been made uſe of by ſeveral Lord Maiors; now it is taken up by the Bank of England.

This Company of Grocers traded in divers Commodities, ſome by Wholeſale, ſome by Retale, but chiefly in Fruits of Foreign Growth, as Figs, Almonds, Raiſins, Corinths, commonly called Currants; alſo in Sugars, and Spice: But ſo much in that of Pepper, that they were anciently called Pepperers: Whereof we meet with many Citizens of great Wealth and Subſtance in former Times. And in the later Times of Queen Elizabeth, ſome there were called Pepperers, as dealing only in Pepper, which was commonly laid up in Leadenhal. Pepperers.

A Spaniſh Prize of Pepper. In the Year 1589, or thereabouts, a great Spaniſh Carack, richly laden with Plate and other Commodities, was taken from the Spaniard, and brought into England: wherein, among other Goods, was a conſiderable Quantity of Pepper: Which the Dealers in Pepper had bought of the Queen at a good rate. Whereof having ſold about eighty Bags, divers Parcels of Pepper were brought in upon them by the procurement of the Grocers, to furniſh themſelves at cheaper rates than they had bought of her Majeſty. And a long Time of Sickneſs in the Nation had proved a great lett to them in the Sale of it. They feared therefore the hardneſs of the Bargain would greatly impoveriſh their Eſtates. Wherefore they petitioned the Lord Treaſurer, that the Queen might command, that no Pepper might be brought in for three Years into any of her Dominions, the Time of the Pepper-Vend requiring no leſs. And they would be ready to ſatisfy her Majeſty the Cuſtom of ſo much Pepper as by Computation might be brought in, during the Time of the Reſtraint, after ſuch rate as had been brought in, ſince the Time of the buying of this Pepper. And thereby they ſhould be able to perform their Payment at the Day appointed: Promiſing not to advance the price of Pepper above 3 Shillings in the Pound, during the Reſtraint

Currants brought in by Strangers.

I have met alſo with a Paſſage, (ſomewhat before) concerning the Merchandize of Corinths, or Currants: (as we commonly pronounce it) A parcel whereof a bout the Year 1575. was brought in by divers Strangers; Which the Company of Grocers meant to have bought at ſuch a reaſonable price, as the Retailers might well have ſold the ſame at 3*d*. or 3*d* ½ penny the Pound. But others unſkilful, and not traded in the Myſtery hearing thereof, gave 600 l more for the ſame than they had bid. And ſo brought up the Prices, to the enriching of the Stranger, and impoveriſhing of our own People. This was made matter of Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer.

Starch firſt ſold by the Grocers.

Starch was firſt ſold by the Grocers; which (as it ſeems) came in about the latter end of Queen Elizabeth's Reign. For about the Year 1594 or 1595, Sir John Packington procured the Queen's Letters Patents for him only to make and ſell Starch. It grew now a Commodity in great requeſt, and vended for the moſt part by the Grocers, ſerving the greateſt part of the Chapmen through England. But the Grocers by this Patent were cut off, and ſo moleſted that they were fain to make Complaint to the Lord Treaſurer, with the Subſcription of their Names, to the Number of Thirty nine; viz. William Layer, Richard Denman, Will Brockbank, Peter Heylyn, Henry Parkhurſt, John Caſon, &c. For the Aſſigns of the Patentee, minding to enrich themſelves very extraordinarily by the execution of the ſaid Patent, took courſes to compel the Grocers to ſell the Patentee's Aſſigns all ſuch Starch, as the Grocers had, before, or ſithence the granting of the Patent bought, remaining in their Shops and Warehouſes; and that at ſuch Prizes as the ſaid Aſſigns pleaſed to ſet down, being much leſs than the Commodity coſt, or was worth: Or elſe the Aſſigns violently ſeized and took the ſame away unpaid for. In caſe they were withſtood by the poor Men, the Owners thereof, they were forthwith ſent for by Purſevants before Commiſſioners thereunto appointed. Where they were required to enter Bonds in great Sums of Money, with condition to buy all the Starch they ſhould ſell of the ſaid Aſſigns, and of none other; and with Condition further, not to ſell Starch to any but to ſuch as were Licenſed to buy by the ſaid Patentee's Aſſigns. To the firſt Part of which Condition, Viz. to buy all the Starch they ſhould vend of the Patentee's Aſſigns, moſt of the Company, in regard of their Loyalty to her Majeſty, conſidering it her good pleaſure to grant the ſaid Patent, had purpoſed to yield unto: But touching the other part, that they ſhould ſell or vend no Starch but to thoſe that were by the Aſſigns Licenſed to buy, the moſt part of the Company were perſuaded they could not yield unto without their Overthrow and utter Undoing. For hereby they might not ſell what they bought to their Chapmen.

Lands and Eſtates taken from the Grocers.

About the Year 1580 and odd, the Grocers, as well as many other Companies, ſuffered ſeverely in their Gifts and Charities formerly granted them. Which becauſe the Donors had given them, or ſome part of them, for the maintenance of Chauntries to pray for the Souls of them and their Anceſtors, or for other Superſtitious uſes, were all ſwallowed up by the Crown by Vertue of an Act of Parliament in the beginning of the Reign of King Edward VI. But many of theſe Gifts, being hitherto concealed, and retained in the hands of the Companies, Queen Elizabeth granted a Patent of theſe concealed Lands and Tenements to certain Perſons, with a Power to ſearch and recover theſe Gifts. Now thoſe that were found came to the Crown, or were purchaſed again by the Poſſeſſors. Now there were theſe Gifts of this Nature found in the hands of this Company of Grocers, as I tranſcribed from a Liſt brought into the Treaſury.

The preſent Condition of this Company.

This Company of Grocers hath the misfortune to be more in Debt than any of the other Twelve; being almoſt ruined by the Fire of London. For being in Debt beforeby ſeveral great Sums that they Ravenhill their Clerk's Acc. printed. 1682.

they were forced to take up, they hoped to repay them by raiſing conſiderable Sums in Fines and renewing of Leaſes of Houſes in London, almoſt expired; when the Fire came and burnt all down. Whereby they were further ſunk into Debt.

Their Debts.

All which Sums they took up on their Common Seal: Nor were ſingular therein, but neceſſitated thereunto, in compliance with all other Companies, and indeed with the whole City.

Upon the taking up this Money, they made a By-Law to levy the ſame on themſelves, if their Stock fell ſhort: and ſo they continued Payment of their Intereſt. And as one Creditor call'd for his Money in, they took up others, and paid them off, depending upon getting in their Principal. All which failed them. Till at laſt their ſole hope of advancing Money was by renewing of Leaſes; many whereof were nigh expired. But the great Fire, Anno 1666, conſumed their whole Revenue in London, they having paid for Intereſt between 1640, and 1666, 3000 l. This made them uncapable of paying both Debts and Charities.

Upon this they let their Ground to Builders for Fines on long Leaſes: Great part of which they were compelled to pay by the Decree of the Judges at Cliffords Inn.

Benefactors towards building the Hall.

Upon this they ſet on foot voluntary Subſcriptions. Sir John Cutler at his own proper Coſt, erected the firſt Building in the Garden, being their Parlour, and entertaining Room over it. For the Repair and beautifying of the great Hall Sir John Moor advanced 500*l.* Sir John Frederic, Sir James Edwards, Sir Henry Tulſe, and ſeveral other Aldermen and Members, contributed largely, for an additional building, to render it convenient and commodious for Habitation of the chief Magiſtrate of this City, both for Ornament and Uſe.

In the Year 1682, Sir Henry Tulſe, Mr. Box, Mr. Winch, and Mr. Reve, Maſter and Wardens for that Year; and Mr. Beal and Mr. Bourn, two of the late Wardens, the Court of Aſſiſtants joyned with them, reſolved to finiſh the great Hall. Which was done with that Speed as was almoſt incredible; tho' enlarged and made more convenient with many Accommodations. So that it far exceeded any Hall that now is, or probably ever was in London. And the Charge amounted to a far greater Sum than was at firſt propounded, yet it manifeſtly appeared to have been the only Means left to keep the Company of Grocers upon a Foundation. For that the Apprentices and Freemen of Eſtate or Value, who before declined, now daily encreaſed.

The ancient State of this Company.

But now to look backward to the antient State of this Company. In the 3 Edw. III. Anno 1329. John Grantham was choſen and held Maior, by the Name of Grocer (whereas before they are ſuppoſed to be called Pepperers) And this was before they were incorporated. The firſt Charter of this Company was in 20 Edw. III. Anno 1345. Which ſeems to be long before the Mercers were incorporated. The Charter was renewed ſeveral times afterwards, particularly in 7 Hen. VI. by the name of Cuſtodes & Communitas Myſterij Grocerij Londini: i. e. The Wardens and Commonalty of the Myſtery of the Grocery of London. In the beginning of that Kings Reign, they purchaſed the Ground where the Grocers Hall now ſtandeth, with the Ground belonging to it, of Walter-Fitzwater; bounding the ſame betwixt the Old Jury and Wall Brook.

The Grocers had the King's Beam;

The Grocers were ſo conſiderable long before that time, that they were the only Men intruſted with the management of the King's Beam; peculiar to them, as principally uſing the ſame. And had the naming of the Weigh-maſter; and alſo the naming, placing, removing, and governing of the Four Porters; all to be elected out of their own Company.

And Privilege to inſpect Weights.

Among other Privileges and ancient Uſages of this Company, it is recorded as high as Edward the Fourth's Days, that this Company had power of Inſpection of Abuſes and Irregularities of all Perſons in the City or Suburbs, any way uſing or exerciſing any kind of Grocery, and alſo to aſſay the Weights they bought or ſold by; and to take notice of all Defaults, and to return them to be fined at the diſcretion of this Fellowſhip; and to take 4*d.* of every Perſon for their Labour herein. Which Uſage was always continued. And in the Charter renewed to the Company 15 Cha. I. this Privilege is confirmed and expreſſed to extend Three Miles from the City, as well within Liberties as without.

Formerly an Alderman always Maſter.

This Company formerly never wanted an Alderman of their Members, to ſucceed Maſter Warden of the Company. And ſo faithfully did they acquit themſelves of thoſe Charities they were intruſted with, that it gave them the greateſt Reputation of any Company in London. In ſo much that many well diſpoſed Perſons did covet to make this Company the Treaſury of their Charities.

The ſaid Arms in the ſaid Patent are thus blazoned, Troys Royes de Soleil iſſuantz hors de troys nues de flambe coronez de troys Corons Imperials Dore, aſſiſer ſus une eſcue Dazure. This Patent I have ſeen in the Pet. Le Neve, Eſq;

the Poſſeſſion of P. Le Neve, Norroy King of Arms. In a Viſitation Book in the Office of Heralds, it appears that the Drapers Coat of Arms was confirmed by William Harvey, Clarencieux; and ſince by Sir William Segar, Kt. Garter: and ſo entred Anno 1634. John Tayler, Maſter.

The new Drapery, what.

Of the Drapers I have nothing to ſay, but concerning thoſe who in the Time of Queen Elizabeth were called The new Drapers, I might ſay a great deal. The Strangers Italians, French, Dutch, and Flemings that tranſported themſelves into England in the Days of King Edward, but chiefly in the Beginning of Queen Elizabeth, wove Cloth mixed Woolen and Linnen. And this was called The new Drapery, and the Sellers The new Drapers. For before theſe Times, this new Drapery was made in other Countries beyond Sea, with our Wool that was tranſported; and being wove, and wrought into Mocadoes, Grograms, Bays, and ſuch like Cloths and Yarn, were ſent over again into England, and ſpent here. For which (beſide the Profit of the Merchant) the Queen had a Cuſtom paid. About the Year 1576, it was found that the Queen was a Loſer in her Cuſtoms and Benefits made by Wool, by reaſon of this new Drapery. Which appeared by this that followeth.

Various ſorts of this new Drapery.

The ſorts of this new Drapery were various. There were

Bays of the { double / middle / ſingle } ſort.
Raſh or Stannet of the Florens making.
Serche, [Searge] of the French ſort.
Says of the Flanders ſort.
Norwich Grograin.
Narrow Woolſteds.
Mocadoes { double / ſingle / tuft } ſort.
Plomets.
Carells.
Fuſtians of Naples.
Blankets, called Spaniſh Ruggs.
Knit Hoſe of Woolſted Yarn.

The Queen's Loſs by this Manufacture.

Now they made the Queen's Loſs by this Manufacture to appear thus. A Sack of Wool weighed 364 lb. and being tranſported by the Merchants of the Staple, yielded to her Majeſty

For { Cuſtom 6 s. 8 d. / Subſidy 33 s. 4 d. / Licenſe 20 s. } that is 3 l.

The Sack of Wool, being converted into Cloth, would make four broad ſhort Cloths. And every broad ſhort Cloth by the Statute of King Edward VI. in the 5th and 6th Years of his Reign, having their full Content and Proportion limited, being clean ſcoured, well milled and thicked, and thorow dry, over and beſide all manner of Waſte, muſt weigh 64 lb. And every broad ſhort Cloth, being tranſported as beforeſaid, yielded to her Majeſty 26 s. 8 d. The which is leſs Profit to her, than the Sack of Wool being tranſported as beforeſaid yielded, by 33 s. 4 d.

The ſaid Sum of 3 l. for her Majeſty's Duty on the Sack of Wool being divided into 360 Parts, amounteth to 2 d. on every Pound Weight of the Sack, ſaving ſome odd Pounds.

And her Duty of 6 s. 8 d. the Cloth being divided into 64 Parts, which is for ſo many Pound Weight as the broad Cloth weigheth, amounteth to one Penny Farthing on every Pound.

How to be remedied.

In Conſideration of the Loſs that her Majeſty had by the making of this new ſort of Cloths within the Realm, in the Cuſtom and Duty of the Wool, that otherwiſe would be tranſported, and in the Cuſtom and Subſidy that ſhould be paid at the returning of the ſame in Cloths; it was thought reaſonable, that there ſhould be paid for all ſuch Cloths, and other like new ſort of Cloth and Crewel, Lace and Fringe, that ſhould be made within the Realm, of Wool, by Engliſhmen and Strangers .... upon every Pound Weight.

To be ſealed.

It was thought neceſſary alſo, for the better levying of the ſaid new Duty, and for the underſtanding of the Goodneſs of the ſaid Cloths, and what Quantity of Wools ſhould be yearly made into ſuch ſorts of Cloths and Wares, (to the Intent it might be conſidered what Loſs her Majeſty thereby ſhould have in her Cuſtoms) that all the ſame ſhould be ſealed by ſpecial Officers, with Seals made for the Purpoſe. And that a Book be made thereof, and delivered yearly into the Exchequer. And the ſame Officers to take for the ſealing of the ſame, ſuch Fees as were then paid in any City, Town and County of the Realm in the like caſe.

The City's Complaint of the new Draperies.

This City alſo had ſome Complaint to make concerning the matter before us. For this new Drapery made and woven in the Realm, was brought frequently to the City, there to be ſold. And becauſe theſe Cloths were not of the ſame Names, that the Cloths of Woolen or Linnen of ancient Time were, altho' they conſiſted of the ſame Subſtance, the Makers and Merchants pretended a Liberty to themſelves to make their Markets thereof, and to buy and ſell the ſame in Inns, Chambers and Warehouſes, and all other Parts of the City and Liberties, at their pleaſures, to the Deceit of the Queen's Subjects, and the more eaſy Utterance of naughty and deceitful Wares: and for the more eaſy intruding upon the Liberties of the City by foreign buying and ſelling: Whereas by common Uſage and ancient Cuſtom uſed in the City, and by old Laws and Ordinances made and executed in the ſaid City, all manner of Commodities, Cloths and Merchandizes made and wrought within the Kingdom, and brought here to be ſold, ought to be brought unto ſuch common Market-place, as to that purpoſe in the ſame City was appointed; and there only ought to be bought and ſold. And the Owners thereof did there pay Hallage and other Duties. Which was ſo done, that good and lawful Wares ſhould be bought and ſold; and corrupt and unlawful Bargains and Contracts, tending to the Deceit of the People, and contrary to the Laws of the Realm, might be avoided: and alſo, that there might be no foreign buying and ſelling, in fraud of the Liberties, Franchiſes and Cuſtoms of the City, being confirmed and ratified by Acts of Parliament.

Hallage.

An Ordinance of the City, to bring the new Drapery to be ſold in Blackwel Hall.

Therefore the Lord Maior, Aldermen and Common Council of the City did ordain, that from henceforth no manner of Cloth of the new Device, Commodities and Merchandizes aforeſaid, made of Wool, or of Woolen and Linnen together, not accuſtomed heretofore to be brought to Blackwel-Hall, which hereafter ſhould be brought to the City to be ſold, ſhould be brought to the common Market-place, named The Waſted Hall, ſituate at the North end of the Old Jury, in the Ward of Baſinghal within this City; and there from thenceforth ſhould be bought and ſold. And that no Perſon free of the City, or any other dwelling within the Liberties, or having any Houſe, or Shop, or Room within the ſame City, ſhould from thenceforth, there or elſewhere, take in, harbour, or beſtow, or ſuffer to be taken in, received, &c. any of the ſaid Cloths of the new Device, before the ſame be brought to the Market-place aforeſaid, thereunto appointed, and there harboured, taken in, bought and ſold. The Market Days for the ſaid Cloth of the new Device to be every Tueſday and Wedneſday, from Eight till Eleven Forenoon, and from One until Four Afternoon. And the Officers of the ſaid Hall and and Market-place to be attendant at the ſaid Hall, to receive the Premiſſes from time to time. Who might take for Hallage and other Charges of the ſaid Cloths, ſuch Rates as follow, that is to ſay:

Narrow Raſh for Doubleting, containing 30 Yards the double Piece, for Hallage 1 d.
Broad Raſh for Cloaks and other Garments, containing from 20 to 25 Yards the Piece, 2 d.
Borratoſe, wrought with Silk, containing under 20 Yards, ob.
And the double Piece above 25 Yards, 1 d.
Plomits, wrought with Silk, or otherwiſe, the ſingle Piece, 1 d.
Carells, containing 14 Yards a Piece, one farthing.
Worſted Hoſe, the dozen Pair, 2 d.
Norwich Gartering, the Groſs, ob.
Stowle Lace, and Penny broad Lace, the dozen Groſs, 1 d.
Crewel or Worſted Yarn, the dozen Pound, 1 d.
Fringe, the dozen Pound weight, 1 d.

And theſe being paid, the Officer, or his Deputy, ſhould ſtrike a Seal of Lead upon every particular Piece of the ſaid Merchandize, as well in diſcharge of the Owner from a Re-demand thereof, as alſo to charge the ſame Officer with the Money received. This was the Sum of a Proclamation by the Lord Maior, Octob. 28. in the 18th Year of Queen Elizabeth.

Benefit of Hallage to the City.

After theſe Rates, the Hallage was worth to the City of London in half a Year after this Proclamation, (that is, from October to the end of March) after 6 l. a Month, 30 l. And if all had been brought into the Hall according to the ſaid Proclamation, it would have been worth by Computation 200 l. per Ann. But there ſoon followed a Controverſy between the City of Norwich and the City of London; thoſe of Norwich aſſerting, that they ought to pay no Hallage, but were as free as any Citizen of London for ſuch Exactions. And ſo the Hallage came to little or nothing.

The Damages of this new Drapery.

But now, as to the Prejudices accruing by theſe new Drapers to the Queen, and the Realm, theſe Murmurs were made; that the Queen loſt her double Cuſtoms of Wool; Cloth and Kerſy-making decayed; for that theſe new ſort of Cloths for Garments, and Yarn for Hoſe and otherwiſe, were ſo much uſed within the Realm; and that there was a Decay in the poor Engliſhmen's Work, Strangers being in a manner wholly employed in the working of theſe Cloths. But Thomas Smith the Queen's Cuſtomer, a Man ſkilful in theſe matters, being required his Judgment, ſhewed the Lord Treaſurer Burleigh, That tho' there were ſome Loſs by theſe Manufactures to the Queen in her Cuſtoms Inwards, yet it was recompenced by her Cuſtoms Outwards; and alſo profitable for the Commonwealth: ſince ſuch numbers of thoſe Commodities could not be wrought in the Realm by Strangers only, but that they muſt ſet on work many poor People, Natives of this Realm. And whereas it was thought, that the making theſe would prove the Decay of Cloths and Kerſies, there were as many made then, as had been in Times paſt, and as much worn within the Realm as had been before time. And that it appeared by the Cuſtom-Books, that there were as many carried out of the Realm as before.

Strangers.

The Attorney General's Judgment of an Impoſition upon it.

For the making the Queen Satisfaction for the leſſening of her Cuſtoms, an Impoſition was propounded to be laid upon this Drapery, as was ſaid before. But here aroſe a Queſtion, Whether the Queen could lay an Impoſition of this nature upon it. Wherein Sir Gilbert Gerrard, the Queen's Attorney General, gave this Anſwer, That he thought ſhe might ſet any reaſonable Impoſition upon any Piece of ſuch Drapery as ſhould be made by any Stranger. And that for two Cauſes: The one was, for that all the Strangers that made ſuch things did work here only by her Majeſty's Sufferance. And therefore they were to obey ſuch Impoſitions as ſhould be laid on them; or elſe not to work at all. And another Cauſe was this, for that her Majeſty did now receive ſome Loſs and Detriment by their great Drapery of Wool: which heretofore was uſed to be vended out of the Realm, and now was not. And thereby her Majeſty did loſe her ancient Cuſtoms that were paid her for thoſe Wools, when they were tranſported. Another Queſtion put to the ſaid Attorney General was, Whether theſe new Draperies were not in the Office of the Alnegers, or not. To which he anſwered, that he thought they were not within the Compaſs of any Alneger's Office by force of any Statutes heretofore made. And the Queen's Sollicitor, Sir Thomas Bromely, was conſulted alſo; and was of the ſame mind.

The Impoſitions put upon it.

The Impoſition laid upon theſe Cloths by the Lord Treaſurer, was according to the Weight of them, after the proportion of 4 d. for 64 Pound Weight of Wool, and not otherwiſe. And if any of them were found to be made partly of Thread-Yarn, or any other Stuff, than of Wool, the ſaid Subſidy was to be demanded and paid according to the Weight of the Wool only, that the ſame Cloth did contain.

Patentees.

William Fitzwilliams and George Delves, Eſquires, Gentlemen Penſioners to the Queen, about the Year 1578, obtained to be Collectors of this Subſidy, and Viewers and Alnegers of the ſaid Manufacture, and had the Queens Letters Patents for ſeven Years, paying a certain yearly Rent to the Queen.

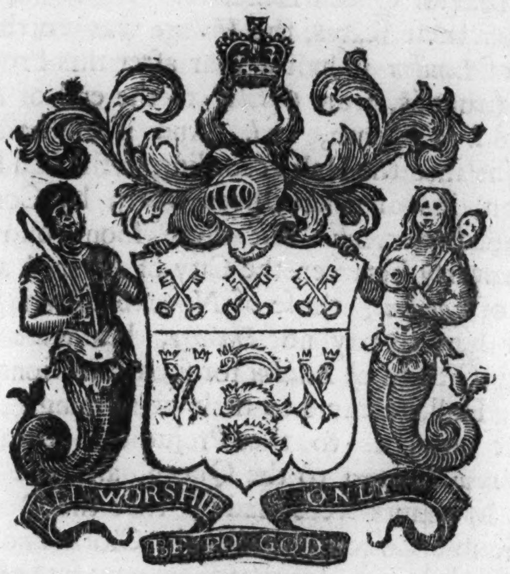
FISHMONGERS.



Two Companies of Fiſhmongers.

J. S.

THE Fiſhmongers were at the firſt, two Companies, namely Stock-fiſhmongers and Salt-fiſhmongers: [Each bearing different Coats of Arms. The Stock-fiſhmongers bare, Azure, two Lucies in Saltoir Argent, with Coronets over their Mouths, Or. The Salt-fiſhmongers bare Azure, three Croſs Keys Saltoirwiſe, Or. On a Chief Gules three Dolphins naiant, Argent] Which Salt-fiſhmongers An. 1509. (which was in the beginning of King Henry VIII.) did bear their Arms as hereafter is ſet down, [Somewhat differently to what they bore them before; to wit, Azure, three Dolphins naiant, Argent. On a Chief Guels, three Croſs Keys Saltoirwiſe, Or.] But laſtly, in the 28th Year of the ſame King, Anno Dom. 1536. the ſaid Companies were united in one; and then their Arms were more fully granted. [Which with their Supporters, Helm and Creſt was, as here appeareth.]

United.

J. S.

The ancient Arms, and Creſt were ratifyed and confirmed, with the Grant of their Supporters, by Robert Cook, Clarencieux An. 1575. And again viewed and entred in the Viſitation An. 1634. John Dyke, Auguſtine Garland, Iſaac Pennington, and three more, Wardens of the ſaid Company.

Salt Warf Regiſt. Lond. Tho. Weſton.

Their Halmotes.

Dicunt homines de Halimoto, &c. The Men of the Halimote ſay, that they ought to have two Laghelmotes in the Year. One on the Feaſt of St. Martin: the other in Lent. And all Fiſhermen and thoſe of the Halimote ought to be there: and he that fails forfeits 20*d*.

Moreover, it ought to be forbidden in that Halimote, that no Fiſhmonger buy a freſh Fiſh before Maſs at the Chappel upon the Bridge be celebrated, as at the Church of St. Magnus.

They ſay alſo, that the ſaid Fiſhermen muſt ſell freſh Fiſh after Maſs, and Salt-fiſh after Prime.

That no Fiſhmonger ought to go to buy Fiſh beyond the Bounds appointed. And theſe are the Bounds, the Chappel upon the Bridge, Bainards Caſtle, Jordans Key: Unleſs the Fiſh be ſet to ſell, as they are at Berkynes, Northflete, Dartford, and in ſome other Markets.

None to buy Fiſh in any Boat, unleſs brought thence to Land.

Upon a Complaint of this Company once to a former King, againſt one of their Trade foreſtalling Fiſh, &c. he iſſued out his Letters to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, to this Tenor.

The Hall.

The Hall of this Company ſtands in Thames-ſtreet and reaches South to the Water-ſide; new built ſince the great Fire with a very ſpacious and graceful Quadrangle. They keep up a Memorial of that famous Lord Maior, Sir William Walworth, ſometime a Brother of their Company; whoſe Effigies in full proportion ſtands in a Niche in their great Hall, holding his bloody Dagger in his Hand, wherewith it is reported in our Hiſtory he manfully ſlew the Rebel Wat Tyler. And they have that very Dagger (if Tradition may be believed) hanging up in one of the Rooms, that did that Heroic Execution.

Sir William Walworth.

Sir William Leman, Maior.

When Sir William Leman of this Company was Maior, which was about the Year 1616, among the ſeveral triumphant Shows that adorned the Day of his Entrance into his Office, there rode ſeveral Men in Armour, one whereof with the Head of Wat Tyler upon his Spear erected. There was then alſo a Pageant repreſenting Walworth lying dead in his Monument; and an Angel, the Genius of London, making him ariſe: Who forthwith ſat up, and ſtanding made a Speech to the Maior paſſing by.

Sir Thomas Abney.

That Repreſentation of an Armed Man riding with the Head of Wat Tyler upon his Spear in Memory of Sir William Walworth, was again made when Sir Thomas Abney, Fiſhmonger, entred upon his Maioralty.

In their Hall is a fair Coat of the Arms of England ſet up to the Honour of King William III. with this Inſcription.

Auguſtiſſimo, Potentiſſimo, & Inviɛtiſſimo, Angliæ, Scotiæ, Galliæ & Hiberniæ Regi, GULIELMO Tertio, Fidei a Papiſmo Deſenſori & Conſervatori, Libertatis Reſtauratori, Publicæ felicitatis Auctori, Seculi Reparatori, SACRUM.

Maiors of the Fiſhmongers. J. S.

Thoſe of this Company of Fiſhmongers that have obtained the Chief Magiſtracy of this City, for the Honour of the Company, I ſhall here ſet down in their Order, with ſome Remarks and Remembrances of ſome of them.

John Lovekin, Maior An. 1349, 1359, 1366, and 1367. He was buried at St. Michael's in Crooked-lane.

Walter Turk, Maior 1350. Buried at St. Nicolas Cold-Abby, on the Back ſide of Old-Fiſh-ſtreet.

John Worth, or Wroth, Maior 1361. Buried at St. James at Garlickhith.

John Peche, Maior 1362.

Simon Mordon, Stockfiſhmonger, Maior 1369. Buried at St. Michael's in Crooked lane.

Sir William Walworth, Maior 1375, and 1381. He was Knighted this Year for killing (or rather arreſting) of VVat Tyler in Smithfield; and not of Jack Straw, as it was written upon his old Tomb before the great Fire, at St. Michael's in Crooked-lane. And for the Memory of the Man let his Coat of Arms be added: Which was Gules, a Bend ragule Argent, between two Garbs, the one Or, the other of the Second.

Sir Nicolas Exton, Maior 1387, and 1388. Buried at St. Mary-hill by Billingſgate.

Sir William Aſcham, Maior An. 1404.

Sir John Michel, Maior 1425, and 1437. Buried at St. Magnus by London-bridge.

Sir John Rainwel, Maior 1427. Buried at St. Botulph by Billingſgate. An. 1445.

Sir John Parneis, [or rather Perves] Maior An. 1433.

Sir Steven Forſter, Maior 1455. Buried at St. Botulph by Billingſgate.

GOLDSMITHS.

THE GOLDSMITHS were incorporated and confirmed in the ſixteenth Year of King Richard II. [The Arms ancient: the Creſt and Supporters were added and granted by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, Anno Dom. 1571, [13 Regin' Eliz' Approved and entred at a Viſitation made by Sir Henry St. George, Anno 1634.

The Diſcord between the Goldſmiths and Fiſhmongers.

Rot. Braci, & Aubrey.

The ancient Mutiny in the City between the Goldſmiths and the Fiſhmongers, for Precedency, would not be appeaſed: The Diſcord remaining, a Proclamation was made by the Maior and Aldermen, by their own Authority, without any other Warrant, that the Rebels ſhould return to Peace; and that none ſhould receive them under pain of Forfeiture of Life. And Note, That ſome of them were Bannifiati, i. e. Baniſhed, and expelled the City, and deprived of their Freedom, becauſe they would not render themſelves to Peace.

In the Year 1574, one William Sutton diſcovered and informed the Lord Treaſurer of ſeveral Frauds uſed by many of the Goldſmiths in thoſe times; being employed to ſearch their Shops for unduly wrought Silver and Gold Plate. Who took away a great deal ſuch, and ſealed it up. And there were ſeveral Men ſworn before Sir Rowland Hayward, Maior; who were ready to ſhew, by whom, and when theſe Deceits were done. The Abuſes in Gold Wares were ſuch, that many in buying were wronged five Shillings in the Ounce; in ſome Wares eight Shillings; in ſome thirteen Shillings; and in ſome Wares more. The Abuſes in Silver Wares were, when the Loſs to the Buyer ought not to have been ſix Pence, it had been three Shillings in ſome things; in ſome five Shillings; in ſome ſix Shillings; and in ſome more. And this appeared by the Warden of the Goldſmiths Books, wherein the Faults of the deceitful Workers, Sellers, and Putters to Sale were regiſtred. And alſo many Biliments, Chains, Tablets, Buttons, and ſuch like, which were commonly worn, or to be ſhewed, made this alſo appear. And the Finers alſo, who proved the ſame true by their Waſt in Fining. And this ſaid Plate, that for its Deficiency was taken and ſealed up, was examined before Secretary Smith, who was well ſtudied in the Quality and Nature of Metals: and he was able to ſatisfie all Perſons, that there was not one Piece but was againſt the Laws of the Realm, the Ordinance of the Houſe, and their own Oaths.

Sir Tho. Smith.

Many had deviſed Works, wherein they had beſtowed Copper, Lattin, Sother, and ſuch like things, whereby the Buyers might be deceived. Theſe Deceits were practiſed from the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign to this time, when it was thus complained of.

Preſent State of England. p. 397.

Out of this Company of Goldſmiths once a Year a Jury is taken, conſiſting of 24 Perſons. Who go up to the Court; and then in the Preſence of the Lords of the Council, ſome Pieces of every ſort of Money coined the foregoing Year, and that had been taken out of the Mint, is exactly aſſayed and weighed. Which Pieces were taken at adventures out of the ſaid Mint, and kept under ſeveral Locks by ſeveral Perſons till this time. And hereby ſpecial Care is taken, that the Engliſh Coin want neither Purity nor Weight.

The Hall.

The Hall of this Company eſcaped in part the great Fire, being a fair Structure of ſmoothed Brick, with a ſpacious Quadrangle paved with Free-Stone; ſituate in Foſter Lane near St. John Zachary's. Here remain the Pictures of Sir Martin Bowes and Sir Hugh Willoughbie, both of this Company, great Benefactors to it, and ſometimes Lord Maiors of London. The latter a Man never to be forgotten, for bringing in the New River Water into the City. For the Rents whereof he gave then 30 l. a Year to this Company; which are now worth to them near 300 l. a Year.

Hereof all Perſons concerned are deſired to take notice, and demean themſelves accordingly. Otherwiſe the Wardens will make it their Care to procure them to be provided againſt according to Law.*

Goldſmiths were Jewellers.

Theſe Goldſmiths have commonly (beſides Plate) dealt in Jewels and precious Stones. And in former Times, there being no great ſtore of them, nor of Gold and Silver, nor Artiſts in the Company, in making Veſſels of Gold and Silver, or in ſetting of Stones artificially into Jewels, they were fain to ſend for them upon Occaſion from France, and other Places beyond Sea: As appears by theſe Letters Patents granted to Sir Edmund Shaw, Kt. and ſome time Maior, Goldſmith to King Richard III. ‘ To al Maiors, &c. ‘ That for great Conſiderations Us ſpecially moving, We wol and charge you, that yee ſuffer ‘ our truſty and welbeloved Edmund Shaw, Kt. ‘ Alderman of our City of London, and Rauf Latham, or any other his menial Servants or Apprentices, to bring out of the Obeiſance of ‘ France, and out of the Parts beyond the Sea, ‘ to this our Realm of England, al maner of Mettal of Gold, and al maner Mettal of Silver; ‘ and alſo al gilt, as wel as party gilt, as otherwiſe, be they the ſaid Mettals in Weight or in ‘ any maner of Faſhion, what it be; and al maner of Pearls and precious Stones, ſet or unſet, ‘ poliſhed or unpoliſhed: Without any Cuſtom ‘ or other Devoir for Us, or for our Right or ‘ Duty to be demanded of the ſaid Edmund or ‘ Rauf. THE Company of SKINNERS were incorporated in the firſt Year of King Edward III. Anno Dom. 1327. And made a Brotherhood in the 18th Year of King Richard II. The Creſt and Supporters were granted by William Harvey, who was free of the ſame Company, Anno Dom. 1561.

In a Viſitation Book of London, there is no Helmet, and the Leopard in the Creſt is paſſant upon the Wreath, and not ſeiant. And the Ermins in the Coat are only three, two, three. And the Arms,

In the Herald's Office. J. S.

Name of this Company.

The Name of this Corporation was, Maſter and Wardens, Brothers and Siſters of the Guild or Fraternity of the Skinners of London; to the Honour of God, and the precious Body of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Furrs, &c. Princely Ornaments.

Engl. Voyages, p. 374.

This Company flouriſhed in former Times, when Sables, Lucernes, and other rich Furrs were worn for Tippets in England: Which were Princely Ornaments. Of which Henry Lane in a Letter to Richard Hackluit, the Collector of the Engliſh Voyages Anno 1567, thus ſpoke: ‘That it was great Pity but it ſhould be renewed, eſpecially in Courts and among Magiſtrates, not only for the reſtoring of an old worſhipful Art and Company, but alſo becauſe they be for our Climate wholſome, delicate, grave and comely, expreſſing Dignity, comforting Age, and of long Continuance, and better with ſmall Coſt to be preſerved than thoſe new Silks, Shaggs and Raggs; wherein a great part of the Wealth of the Land is haſtily conſumed.

The Decay of the Skinners Company.

Cony-skins.

The Skinners in thoſe Times were many in number, kept and maintained great Families, were able in competent manner to live, and contribute to the Services of the Realm; and did ſet on work great numbers of Tawyers, and other poor ſort of the People of the Realm. In thoſe Times Cony-skins and other Furrs of the Breed of this Realm were, by ſuch as had them of their own Breed, and ſuch as gathered them, as Pedlars and ſuch like, ordinarily brought and offered to be ſold to the Skinners. And the Skinners bought the ſame at reaſonable Rates. And then out of ſuch Skins and Furrs choſe out and culled thoſe that were fit for Wear within the Realm, and cauſed them to be dreſt, and ſet the Poor on Work. And ſo had by Choice and Plenty wherewith to ſerve the Nobles, Gentlemen, and other Subjects of England. The Reſidue of the Furrs and Skins ſo come to their hands, they vended to every Man as fitted his Trade; and to the Merchants ſuch as were fit to be ſent beyond Sea. But afterwards about the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Time, the Skinners were much diſabled, it being become common for the wealthy Merchants, Engliſh and Strangers, to ſend abroad into the Shires and Counties of the Realm, and drew unto them the Pedlars, Petty Chapmen, and other like Gatherers of Skins, and thereby procured Skins, which they ſent beyond Sea. And ſo engroſſing them into their hands, the Skinners were exceedingly hindred in their Trade.

The Skinners Complaint;

This occaſioned them to make a public Complaint, how they were hereby utterly diſabled to ſet poor Tawyers and others on work; or to maintain themſelves but in miſerable Poverty; not able, as thoſe before them, to contribute to Subſidies and other Services of the Realm. And by means whereof the Prices of all ſuch Skins and Furrs as came to their hands, were greatly encreaſed. And hence Men were driven to leave off the wearing of ſuch Furrs, and betake themſelves to foreign Commodities, ſoaking away the Wealth of this Nation.

And Petition againſt the Eaſtland Merchants.

The Eaſt Country Merchants Requeſt.

And hence a Controverſy aroſe between the Skinners and the Eaſtland Merchants. The Skinners about the Year 1592, petitioned the Queen, That whereas they were fallen into great Poverty by reaſon of the engroſſing and inordinate tranſporting of Cony-skins; and that thereby they could not have Choice of the beſt ſort for her Majeſty's Service, and her Subjects; no Pedlars or Petty Chapmen might gather or engroſs any Skins or Furrs of the Breed of England, but under Licenſe of two Juſtices of the Peace of the County where, &c. And that ſuch Licenſed ſhould not make ſale of any ſuch Skins or Furrs ſo gathered by them, but to ſome Perſons known to be of the Trade of the Skinners. And that all others might be reſtrained to buy and tranſport them. The Company of Eaſtland Merchants required, on the other hand, to have free Licenſe to buy, provide and engroſs, in any Place whatſoever, and of all Perſons, all manner of Conyskins, raw or tawed, and at their pleaſure to tranſport them, in any Bottom whatſoever, unto any Place, yielding the ordinary Cuſtom.

The Maior and Aldermen oppoſe the Skinners.

The Maior and Aldermen wrote a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer againſt the Skinners Petition: Urging, that this Practice of the Skinners, that all the Skins of the Breed of England muſt firſt paſs thro' the Hands and Property of ſome Freeman of that Company, before they ſhould be tranſported, would be to the exceeding great Prejudice not only of the Liberty of the City, but of all other Traders into Foreign Parts, within this whole Realm. And the Patent being ready drawn by the Advice of learned Council, and in great Forwardneſs to be ſigned by the Queen, they prayed the Lord Treaſurer to be a means to ſtay the ſame, till ſuch time as he ſhould be better informed touching the great Inconveniences which would grow thereby. For which purpoſe they had appointed certain of the Aldermen and others to attend upon him. What was done further in this Buſineſs, I know not.

The School at Tunbridge.

This Company be Patrons and Governours of an eminent Free-School at Tunbridge in the County of Kent, founded by Sir Andrew Judd, a Skinner, ſome time Maior of London. Which upon ſome Trouble and Doubt was afterward confirmed by Parliament. The brief Account whereof was as followeth, taken from an authentic Paper.

The Reaſons and Occaſions whereupon the Acte preferred for the Companye of SKYNNERS is grounded.

The Caſe of this School.

SIR Andrew Judd, carrying a minde to erecte a Schole at Tunbridge, and to endowe the ſame with ſome competent maintenance, did to ſuche purpoſe withe his owne proper money, purchaſe divers Lands, in the name of himſelf and one Henrye Fiſher. Whome he put in truſt to ſee the Worke perfected, yf himſelf ſholde fortune to be prevented by deathe.

Kinge Edwarde the Sixte gave licence by his Letters Patents for the founding of the ſaid Schole, and that the Maſter, Wardens and Comminaltie of the myſterye of Skynners of London ſhal be the Gouernoures of the Poſſeſſion, Reuenwes and Goods of the free Grammar ſchole of Sir Andrewe Judd Knight in the Towne Tunbridge in the Countye of Kent.

For the Endowmente of this Schole Sir Andrewe Judd afterwards did by his laſt Will to ſuche expreſſe uſe, bequeathe to the Companye of Skynners the Lands, ſo as aforeſaid purchaſed. And in that bequeſt uſed the ſaide Companye by the name of Maſter and Wardens of the Fraternitye of Corpus Chriſti of the Crafte or Myſtery of Skynners of London.

The ſaide Henrye Fiſher, to accompliſh the ſaid Will, did graunte and aſſigne the ſaide Lands to the ſaid Companye to the ſaid uſes; as alſo certen other Lands of his owne to other godlie uſes. Sithence whiche Acte, and in contempt therof, the ſaid Andrewe Fiſsher hathe endeavored nowe verie latelye to ſtripp the ſaid Schole and Companye of the ſaid Lands, under pretence that the ſaid Companye was not rightlie mentioned by the ſtricte name of theire verie Incorporation, neither towching themſelves, nor the ſaid Schole.

And thereuppon doe enacte, that all the Letters Patents, Deedes, Wrightings, Aſſuraunces and Conveyances and Acte of Parliament afore mentioned, ſhalbe good and effectual. And the ſaid Corporation of Skynners ſhall by that theire trewe name, haue and enioye all Lands, Tenements, &c. aſſured, mentioned or intended to bee aſſured or conveyed unto them by any name or names whatſoeuer other then concerning the ſaid Schole: And ſhall by the ſaid proper title of Incorporation, concerning the ſaid Schole, haue and enioye all the Lands, Tenements, &c. convayed, or mentioned or intended to be aſſured or convayed, unto them by any the Letters Patents, Wrightings, Conveyaunces or Act of Parliament before menmentioned, by any name or names whatſoeuer.

The Acte contayneth alſo a ſpeciall Proviſo, that as it iuſtifiethe all Graunts made to the ſaid Companys of Skynners, ſo all Leaſes, Tearmes, Aſſurances, Acte or Thing, made or graunted by them in reſpecte of either of the ſaid Incorporations by any name or names whatſoever, ſhalbe good according to the trowe meaning of the ſame, Notwithſtanding any miſtaking, miſnaming or not trewe naming of either of the ſaid Incorporations.

This Account of the faithful Expence of the Company's Revenues, was in all Probability drawn up for the Satisfaction of the Queen, in order to ſtop the Purpoſe of ſuch, as had gotten Commiſſions from her for concealed Lands, that had been given to Superſtitious Uſes.

An odd Paſſage of one of this Company.

I cannot paſs over a Paſſage of one of this Company, by reaſon of the Novelty of it. In the Year 1584, a new Parliament ſat in November, when one Robinſon, a lewd Fellow born in Stamford, and a Skinner, had the Confidence to ſit in the Houſe all the Day, though no Member, and heard all the Speeches: Wherein many weighty matters were uttered relating to the Concernments of the Queen and the Kingdom; which contained ſuch notable Paſſages of State, that Fleetwood, Recorder of London, and then a Member, called them Magnalia Regni, in a Letter to the Lord Treaſurer. One of theſe Speeches was made by Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Walter Mildmay. Which tended to a Generality upon the Safety of the Queen; whoſe Life was then in danger by a diſcontented Party. Another Speech was made by Mr. Vice-Chancellor, Sir Chriſtopher Hatton, which laſted two Hours. His Speech tended to particular and ſpecial Actions, and concluded with the Queen's Safety. When this Fellow was diſcovered, he was ſearched, and nothing found about him. Mr. Fleetwood the Recorder, Mr. Beal, and other Parliament Men and Papiſtfinders, were ſent to ſearch his Lodgings, but found nothing. He remained for ſome time in the Serjeant's Cuſtody, and ſo, as it ſeems, was diſmiſt.

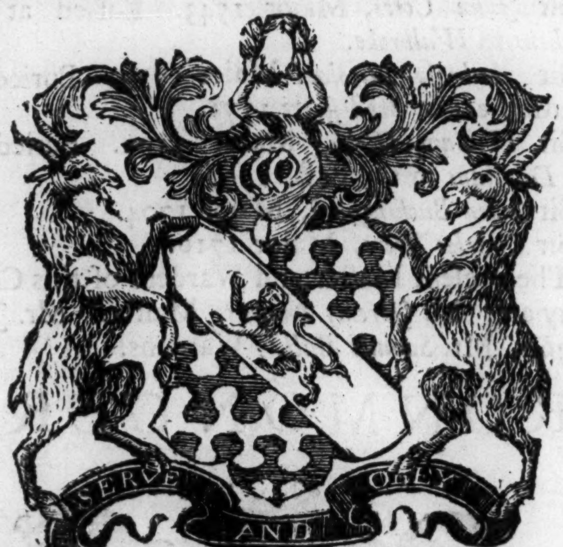
HABERDASHERS.



Fraternitas S. Catharinæ de Haberdaſhers Ann. 1380. Regiſt. Teſtam. Lond. J. S.

THE HABERDASHERS, or HURRERS, (of old time ſo called) were incorporated a Brotherhood of St. Katharine, in the ſix and twentieth Year of King Henry VI. Anno 1447. [There was alſo Fraternitas S. Nicolai de Haberdaſher.] They were confirmed in the ſeventeenth Year of King Henry VII. and named Merchant-Haberdaſhers. The [Arms being ancient, together with the addition of] Creſt and Supporters, were granted by Robert Cook, Clarencieux King of Arms, by Patent under his Hand and Seal, dated 8 Novemb. 1570. and 12 Eliz. And confirmed at the Viſitation in 1634. Henry Andrews, one of the Aldermen, Maſter. In the Book of which Viſitation, the Creſt is without an Helmet.]

Called Milleners, and why. J. S.

Theſe were alſo called MILLENERS, ſo called from the Place Milain in Italy, whence the Commodities they dealt in chiefly came; ſuch were Owches, Brooches, Agglets, Spurs, Caps, Glaſſes, &c. So that theſe Tradeſmen were ſuch uſually as ſold Wares that came from beyond the Seas, from Italy, from Venice, France, or Spain.

Pins.

Among other ſmall Wares ſold by them, Pins were ſome: Which Strangers alſo brought in formerly to the Value of 60000 l. a Year. But about the time that Knives were made ſo good in England (which was about the latter end of Queen Elizabeth) Pins began to be made. And under King James I. the Engliſh excelled all Nations in making all ſorts of them.

What Wares they dealt in.

Their Shops made a very gay Shew, by the various foreign Commodities they were furniſhed with. And by the purchaſing of them, the People of London, and of other Parts of England, began to ſpend extravagantly; whereof great Complaints were made among the graver ſort. There were but a few of theſe Milleners Shops in the Reign of King Edward VI. not above a Dozen in all London. But within forty Years after, about the Year 1580, from the City Weſtminſter along to London, every Street became full of them. Some of the Wares ſold by theſe Shopkeepers were, Gloves made in France or Spain, Kerſies of Flanders-Dye, French Cloth, or Frizado, Owches, Brooches, Agglets made in Venice or Milain, Daggers, Swords, Knives, Girdles of the Spaniſh Make, Spurs made at Milain, French or Milain Caps, Glaſſes, Painted Cruſes, Dials, Tables, Cards, Balls, Puppets, Penners, Inkhorns, Toothpicks, Silk Bottoms and Silver Bottoms, fine Earthen Pots, Pins and Points, Hawks-Bells, Saltſellers, Spoons, and Diſhes of Tin. Which made ſuch a ſhew in the Paſſengers Eyes, that they could not but gaze on them, and buy ſome of theſe Knicknacks, tho' to no purpoſe neceſſary. Of which Trade and Trifles, a Writer in the middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign makes this Complaint:

Brief Conceit of Engliſh Poeſy.

> 'I mervail no man taketh heed to it, what number of Trifles cometh hither from beyond the Seas, that we might either clean ſpare, or elſe make them within our Realm: For the which we either pay ineſtimable Treaſure every Year, or elſe exchange ſubſtantial Wares and neceſſary for them. For the which we might receive great Treaſure.

Aſſize of Iron-work for Cart-wheels. Lib. Horn. fo. 306.

* Fabri de Waldis.

|| Groporum.

I find a Complaint about the Year 1300, of the Ferones, (that is, of ſuch as dealt in Iron) made to Elia Ruſſel, Maior, and the Aldermen, for that the * Smiths of the Wealds, and other Merchants, bringing down Irons of Wheels for Carts, to the City of London, they were much ſhorter than anciently was accuſtomed, to the great Loſs and Scandal of the whole Trade of Ironmongers: and requiring remedy upon this. Whereupon an Inquiſition was taken of lawful and honeſt Men: Who preſented three Iron Rods of the juſt and anciently uſed length of the Strytes,† and alſo of the length and breadth of the Gropes || belonging to the Wheels of the Carts. Which Rods were ſealed with the Seal of the Chamber of Guild-Hall, London. Whereof one remains in the ſaid Chamber; and another Rod was delivered on the Monday before the Purification of the Virgin Mary, Anno 29 Ed. I. to John Dode, and Robert de Padington, Ironmongers of the Market. And the third was delivered the ſame Monday to John de Wymondeham, Ironmonger of the Bridge. All which from Day to Day warned all the Merchants bringing theſe Iron-works to the City of London, as well from the Wealds, as elſewhere, that they ſhould not henceforward bring ſuch Irons, unleſs of the Length and Breadth aforeſaid, upon Forfeiture of the ſaid Iron-works, that ſhould be found againſt the Aſſize aforeſaid.

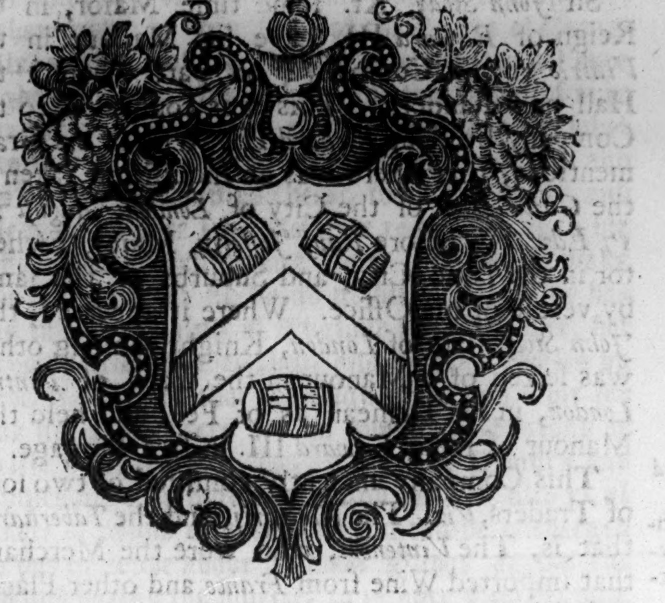
VINTENERS.



A. M.

The Vintonners were incorporated in the Reign of King Edward III. by the Name of Wine-Tonners, and confirmed in the 15th Year of King Henry VI. Anno Dom. 1436. The Arms were firſt granted by Clarencieux in the 6th Year of King Henry VI. Anno Dom. 1427.

K Edw. III. his Letters for the Regulation of Vintners.

J. S.

But this is miſtaken in ſeveral Particulars. For that Grant of King Edward III. was not for the incorporating them, but only for the Regulation of the Trade, and for the Hindrance of any other to deal in Gaſcoin Wines, but ſuch alone as were enfranchiſed in the Craft of Vintrie. Nor were they called any where in that King's Letters by the Name of Wine-Tonners, but Vinteners, and Merchants Vintners, and Merchants of Vintrie. Nor was their ſuppoſed Corporation confirmed by King Henry VI. but he only confirmed and ratified the Contents of the Letters of King Edward III. as we ſhall ſee by and by. Nor did this pretended Confirmation bear Date in the 15th of that King, but the 8th of November, in the 6th of his Reign. Nor yet laſtly, were the Vintners Arms granted the 6th of King Henry VI. but (as appears by a Viſitation Book of the Heralds) were granted them by Clarencieux, under the Hand and Seal of his Arms and Office, the 17th of September, 1447, and in the 20th of Henry VI. Which were afterwards confirmed by Tho. Benolt, Clarencieux, October 22. in his Viſitation in the 22d of Henry VIII. And again in the Viſitation of London, 1634, approved and confirmed by Sir Henry St. George, Kt. Richmond Herald. At which time was Richard Davis Maſter, Robert Shaw, Robert Child, and Philip Travers, Wardens.

Their Arms. Herald's Office, C. 24.

When incorporated.

Richard Mervail, Citizen and Vintner of London, by his laſt Will gave this Company certain Lands and Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Edmund's Lumbard-ſtreet: On Condition that they were incorporated within two Years after. The Will of the ſaid Mervail bare Date in the 17th of King Henry VI. ſo that it is preſumed they were incorporated the 19th or 20th of Henry VI. to preſerve to themſelves the ſaid Legacy.

Divers Tenements belonging to them.

King Edward VI. granted to Gunter and Hobſon, four Tenements in St. Michael the Querne; three in Foſter-Lane; three in Garlick Hith, and one in Sopers Lane. Which Gunton and Hobſon conveyed the ſame to the Company of Vintners, An. 2 Ed. VI.

BotulphWharf.

Botulph Wharf belonged to this Company: by Vertue of a Grant of King Edward I. in the 10th of his Reign, and in the Maioralty of Henry de Waleys; whereby he gave his ſaid Wharf to Henry de Kingſton, and confirmed it to him, for the Uſe of the Company; paying a Silver Penny yearly to the King at the Feaſt of the Nativity of St. John Baptiſt, for all Services, Cuſtoms, Demands Secular, and all other things. This Wharf was ſtiled in the ſame Grant, Our Common Key in the Pariſh of St. Botulph next Billingſgate.

Manour in the Vintrie.

Sir John Stody, Kt. ſome time Maior, in the Reign of Edward III. gave his Manour in the Vintrie to this Company: on part whereof the Hall now ſtandeth. This was confirmed to the Company by King Richard III. Who in his Grant mentions, that there was an Inquiſition taken at the Guild Hall of the City of London, Auguſt 26. 17 Edw. IV. before Rauf Joſſelyn, Maior, Eſcheator in the ſame City, and Suburbs of the ſame, by vertue of his Office. Where it appeared, that John Stody, late of London, Knight, among other, was ſeized of a Manour in the Ward of Vintrie, London, in his Demean as of Fee, and held that Manour of King Edward III. in free Burgage.

King Edward to the Maiors, concerning the Vintners corrupting their Wines.

This Company anciently conſiſted of two ſorts of Traders, Viz. The Vinetarij, and the Tabernarij: that is, The Vintners, who were the Merchants that imported Wine from France and other Places, and the Taverners, who kept Taverns for them, and ſold it out by Retayl to ſuch as came thither to drink, or fetched it to their own Houſes. Of both theſe Sellers of Wine it was a Complaint as long ago as the Reign of King Edward III. that they mixed and corrupted their Wine; and ſelling that ſo mixed at the ſame price with the good. Which cauſed that King in the ſecond of his Reign to ſend his Letters to the Maior and Sheriffs, to ſee this Abuſe corrected: which was, as the Expreſſion in the ſaid Letter is, to the ſcandal of the City, and the danger of the Lives of the Citizens; and that they ſhould cauſe it to be proclaimed, that no Wine ſhould be ſold but pure and good. The Patents ran to this Tenor.

2. Ed 3. 2. m. 11.

‘——— Rex, &c. i. e. The King to the Maior and Sheriffs of London, Greeting. Whereas it is given to Us to underſtand, that the Vinteners of the ſame City and their Taverne keepers ſelling Wine at Retayl in the ſame City and Suburbs, do mingle and corrupt Wines with other Wines; and are not afraid to ſell the Wines ſo mixt and corrupted at the ſame price as they ſell the good and pure; Not permitting Men, drinking in their Taverns, or otherwiſe buying Wine of them, to look whether the Wines are drawn out of the Hogſheads into the Meaſures, or taken elſewhere; to the ſcandal of you and of the Commonalty of the City aforeſaid, and to the corrupting of the bodily Health of thoſe that buy Wine by retail in the ſame City, and drink in the Taverns, and the danger of their Lives: Whereat We are not without juſt cauſe offended. We willing to prevent theſe Dangers, command you, that in the ſaid City and Suburbs, in places where ye ſhall ſee it expedient, ye do on Our behalf cauſe it to be publickly proclaimed and prohibited, that none preſume in any manner to mingle ſuch Wines, nor to ſell any mixt, but good and pure: And that all and ſingular, drinking Wine in Taverns, or otherwiſe buying Wine thence, may look, as they will, whether the Wines ſo ſold, as aforeſaid, in Taverns, be drawn out of the Hogſheads, or taken elſewhere. And if after the foreſaid Proclamation and Prohibition, ye ſhall find any doing the contrary, ye ſo puniſh them, by levying a Forfeit upon them for Our Uſe, that that Puniſhment may terrify others from offending in the like Caſe; and that We for your default may have no need to lay on heavier hands for the regulating of this matter.

Witneſs the King at VVeſtminſter the 28th day of November.

The Vintners anciently Wine-Merchanas.

Theſe Vintners were anciently Wine-merchants, that traded chiefly in importing Wine, brought from Gaſcoine: and ſelling it here to the Court and Nobility, or to the Retailers that kept Taverns in London and elſewhere.

Dependents on theſe Merchants.

Great Numbers of Perſons then, and ſtill depending upon theſe Vintners; as Shipwrights and Mariners, and others that live by the Navy; Retailers, Lightermen, Porters, Coopers) for great numbers of Casks are, uſed in this Calling) Wharfingers, Carmen, together with thoſe that were concerned in letting of Ware-houſes, Cellars and Vaults: All which with their Wives, Families and Servants amounted to a vaſt number of Souls.

None to be Merchants of Wine, but Vintners.

This Company had an ancient Charter from King Edward III. dated June 15. in the 38th of his Reign, to prevent and forbid any Merchants to trade for Wine to Gaſcoine; but only ſuch as were free of this Craft of Vintners: Whereas before many others did, carrying over their Wares and Commodities, as Cloth and other things of the growth of England, into that Country, and bringing home their Wines. Whereby Injury redounded to this Company; and alſo the Gaſcoiners held up their Wines at dearer Rates, ſince there came ſuch Numbers to buy. And whereas before the Gaſcoiners were at the Charge of bringing in their Wines hither, now the Merchants of England brought them in at their own Expences. Which was lookt upon as harm to the King and Realm. The King therefore henceforth allowed only thoſe that were enfranchiſed in the Craft of the Vintners to buy Wine beyond Sea, and trade in it. And commanded that the Gaſcoiners, when they brought in their Wines, ſhould not ſell them in ſmall Parcels, but in great by the Tun or Pipe: Moreover, this Company was to appoint four able ſkilful perſons of their own Myſtery to be ſworn before the Maior, to overſee all manner of Wines ſold by Retail at Taverns, and that their Prices were reaſonable. This Charter of King Edward III. Anno 1363. was inſpected and confirmed by King Henry VI. in the 6th of his Reign, that is, Anno 1427. being intended that the Merchants Vintners ſhould trade to Bourdeaux, to reſtrain the Multitude, that was thought to be the Occaſion why the Prices of Wines were then enhanced. And this being a piece of Antiquity, and tending to the ancient Privileges of this Company, it will be worthy to be here exemplified.

Wine Craft of Vintry.

The Vintners CHARTER from King Edward III. that none Trade to Gaſcoine for Wines but the Merchants of the Vintrie Confirmed by King Henry.

By the King & Counceill in the Parliament.

In the ſeventh of Edward VI. there was an Act made concerning the Price of Wines; and for ſtinting the number of Taverns in each great Town in the Kingdom. By which Fourty Taverns or Wine-Cellars only were allowed in London, and three in Weſtminſter. Gaſcoin, Guien, and French Wines to be ſold not above 8 d. the Gallon within any of the King's Dominions; Rochel Wines at 4 d. the Gallon: any other Wines, of no higher valuation than 12 d. the Gallon.

Prices of Wines in King Edward the ſixth's time. Forty Taverns in London.

In the Year 1569, ſeveral Vintners, free of other Companies, and not incorporated of the Vintners, were diſturbed in their ſelling Wine, by Vertue of the foreſaid Act, the Trade of the Vintners being thereby abridged and ſtraitned to a certain Form, (as they complained) Abridging the Liberties and Franchiſes of the great Charter, wherein it is ſaid, Civitas London habeat omnes Libertates ſuas antiquas, & Conſuetudines ſuas, quas habere conſuevit. And King Edward III. a wiſe and politic Prince, having ever a ſpecial Care, amongſt other

The Inconvenience thereof to the Vintners.

An. 42. Ca. 1.

Things unto the due Obſervation of the Liberties of the great Charter of England, did not only by Parliament confirm all the Points of the ſaid Charter, but alſo did enact, that if any Statute were to the contrary, that it ſhould be holden for none. Now one of theſe ancient Liberties and Franchiſes was, that every Citizen and Freeman might uſe and occupy what Trade ſoever beſt liked him for his profit. Notwithſtanding the Trade of Vintners and Wine-ſellers was of late abridged by that Act of Edward the VI.

Queen Mary diſpences with King Edward's Act about Wines; as to the Prices;

And Sellers of them.

In conſideration whereof Queen Mary, that next ſucceeded the ſaid King, by her Charter granted to the Maſter, Wardens and Company of Vintners a ſpecial Diſpenſation to buy, ſell and utter for a certain Time, in ſuch ſort as they were accuſtomed, according to the ancient Liberties, Franchiſes and Cuſtoms of the ſaid City, notwithſtanding the ſame Statute. Yet notwithſtanding the ſaid Charter of Diſpenſation, there were certain Citizens (who being free of other Companies than of the Myſtery of Vintners, and being not remembred at the obtaining and granting of the ſaid Charter, did after upon their humble Suit to the ſaid Queen Mary, obtain and get at her Majeſties hands, an eſpecial Grant of Diſpenſation of the ſaid Statute. The which Grant was to endure but for their own times and no longer.

None to ſell Wine but of the Company of Vintners. The Inconvenience thereof.

But ſince which Charter of Diſpenſation, theſe Inconveniences aroſe, that ſuch as had been Apprentices, and ſpent the beſt part of their Youth in the Service of ſuch as had occupied the Trade of Wines, coming out of their Years, and being free of ſuch Companies as their Maſters were free of before them, might not by reaſon of the ſaid Statute uſe the ſame Trade as their Maſters did uſe, while they ſerved them. The which was their utter Undoing; and gave occaſion of hindrance unto their Maſters, as that it was now come to paſs, that none would be their Apprentices, by reaſon that after they were made Freemen, they could not uſe their Maſters Trade. Hereupon a Petition was preferred to Queen Elizabeth out of her honourable Inclination of Pity, to provide for the Relief of theſe her Subjects, according as their learned Counſel in the Laws of this Realm ſhould deviſe.

The Vintners Judgment about the Gaugers of Wines.

Some Perſons in the Year 1594. ſue to the Lord Treaſurer for a new Office of Survey to be erected for the gauging of Wines, and Oyles within the City of London and Liberties; upon pretence of doing it more faithfully and exactly than the common Gaugers did, to the wrong of the Subjects, and to have 16 d. a Tun reward. Concerning this the Lord Treaſurer ſent to the Company of Vintners for their Judgment herein. To which the Maſter, John Pindar, and Raſe Fitche and Andrew Goodyere, Wardens, gave anſwer, that they did not find any Neceſſity for ſuch an Office or Officer, eſpecially in or about London, conſidering the good Ordinances were provided for the ſame, in moſt full and ample and ſufficient manner, as well by her Majeſties Laws, as by ſolemn Oaths and good Bonds taken of the Gauger, for the due and diligent execution of his Office. So that they did not know that any Man had or could have juſt cauſe to complain of any want of Duty in that behalf. And in caſe any Error or Default ſhould be committed by any Gauger, or Seller of Wine or Oyl, there was ſo good remedy already provided by the ſaid Laws, as well for the Gauger, if he gauge not truly, as for the Seller, if he make not allowance for the Lacks, that the Buyer if he will, may be ſatisfied to his full Content. And if the Buyer will not take the Remedy by Law, yet he were better to bear ſome Loſs, than to pay after the Rate of 16 d. a Tun, or to attend the Surveyor in his View and Survey thereof to be had, and Entrance made into the Surveyors Books. The Trouble whereof would be ſuch to the Surveyor, as he could in no wiſe be able to perform. For at one Inſtant 30 or 40 Bargains are made. So that they thought by this Suit their Charge and Trouble would be encreaſed, and their Loſs no way redreſt.

And if Corruption might be in the Gaugers now in poſſeſſion, being ſolemnly ſworn, and bound in great Bonds for the due Execution thereof, beſides the penalty of the Laws, what better Aſſurance might they look for, that the like Corruption be not in the new Surveyor or his Deputies. So they prayed his Lordſhip's favourable Acceptance of their Anſwer from his accuſtomed Goodneſs in maintaining the Charters and Liberties of the City, and reſtraining of this and ſuch like Impoſitions and Innovations; which turned in the end, but to the burden of her Majeſties Subjects.

Their Reaſons againſt ſetting up a new Office of Gauging.

And in another Paper in anſwer to the Suitors Objections againſt the preſent Gaugers, they ſhewed that the Laws contained two principal Grounds, as Matter ſufficient for Redreſs of all ſuch Diſorders as might fall out againſt the Proviſion made by them. The one was the Forfeiture of four Double by the Gauger in default of his Care, Diligence and Truſt. The other, the full Satisfaction the Seller muſt yield to the Buyer in caſe there be found want of Number, of Meaſures full. If the Buyer ſhould not take the Benefit of the Law for his Remedy, which hath been of purpoſe provided for him, he is to impute his Loſs to his own Folly; and not to be relieved by Invention of new Offices. For that were an endleſs Work in making of Laws; if every private Head ſhould upon his Conceit have new Means of Remedy ſet out for him, whereas there is ſufficient provided before.

It would infringe the Ld. Maior's and City's Privilege.

In this matter of Gauging, as in many Caſes of the like Nature in the City, the Survey reſteth in the Lord Maior, and Guardians of the Charters and Privileges of the City. Whoſe Office is to ſee, that all ſuch Ordinances as are eſtabliſhed for the good Government of the City be duely kept and obſerved for the good of her Majeſties Subjects, and the ſupplanting of all Infringers of the ſame. So that in this Caſe to require a Surveyor, is in effect to require a Surveyor of the Lord Maior's Actions and Carriage of himſelf, and of the Council of the City in their whole Adminiſtration. And by the Statute of the 16 Rich. II. cap. 5. No Searcher or Gauger of Wine, &c. ſhall have Eſtate in his Office for Term of Life, or of Years, but that the ſaid Offices ſhall remain in the King's hand, under the Governance of the Treaſurer for the time being, with the Aſſent of the Council, when need is. And if any Letters Patents be made to the contrary, they ſhall be clearly void, and of none effect.

By the Petition to her Majeſty, all Forfeitures due to her Majeſty by any Statute provided for the true Gauging, and holding of the Lawful Aſſizes of Wines, Oyls, and other Liquors gaugeable, are ſued for, to be granted by Patent for Years, together with the Office of Surveying the Gauges at the Rent of 50 l. per Ann. and with a Fee of 16 d. upon every Tun. The Penalty of which Laws, if they were put in Execution, it is moſt certain would be of more Profit to her Majeſty, than were fit to paſs at that Rent; beſides the Fee of the Surveyor would exceed the Gaugers 12 d. upon every Tun.

The Inconvenience of a Licence of certain Years to ſell Wine.

The Company of Vintners endeavoured about the Year 1580 and odd, to obtain of the Queen a Licence to ſell Wine for certain Years, and not Durante Beneplacito, (for then ſuch a Licence might not be revoked;) for which probably they would have given the Queen a good Sum. This the retailing Vintners were againſt. Becauſe it would be the occaſion of heightning the Price of Wines. Which would bring on a decay of the Trade, and ſo the Subverſion of the Company: Becauſe in time, none would care to buy them at ſuch dear Prices. As it was in other Profeſſions through the exceſſive enhauncing of the Prices of Commodities, whereby none were well able to purchaſe them. And in the iſſue, the Queen would looſe her Cuſtoms, and other Duties, the Navy would be weakened, and thoſe that might have lived reaſonably well, be driven a begging; viz. All that multitude of Callings that had dependance upon this Trade.

The Companies Plea for themſelves.

On the other ſide the Company ſaid for themſelves, that the Vintners in former times were continual Suiters, till the latter end of King Henry VII. his time, to the Lord Maior of London, for reformation of Abuſes in ſelling Wine, in regard of the goodneſs of it, and the reſtitution of the Gauge and Meaſure. Who neither could nor would remedy the ſame. Whereupon were made Acts of the 28th and 33 of Henry VIII. and the 7th of Edward VI. touching Prices of Wines by Retail and Engroſs, without any Cauſe given therefore by the ſaid mere Vintners. But what good ever ſince by them had enſued, the heightning the Prices of Wines and the ſaid Companies utter undoing taught. As of old time ſince before King Edward I. until the foreſaid 28 Henry VIII. his Reign, like things upon like Occaſions came to paſs; and never were, ne could be redreſt, but onely through the Policie practiſed by the ſaid Vintners good Ordinance; as by the ſundry Grants made in that behalf unto them by King Edward III. and alſo by King Henry VI. might appear.

Diſorderly Houſes occaſioned by Licenſes not taken from the Company.

In theſe times, about the middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, ſome Perſons had Licences to ſell and retail Wine, independently upon the Company. And they were commonly ſeen to have kept the moſt diſorderly Houſes. A Remonſtrance was laid before the Lord Treaſurer by one Lane of the Company, that theſe Licenſed Perſons ſhould be brought to order, being no Innovation or new Invention, as was urged by ſome; which appeared, in that they themſelves had ſought by their own Bonds to ſtand bound to the Company to obſerve a certain Order of leſs importance: Which otherwiſe they knew they had no way to reform. The reducing theſe Licenſed Men would be great cauſe, as he urged, of avoiding Whoredom, Dancing, Dicing, and Banqueting of Apprentices, Serving Men, and ſuch like, daily uſed in Taverns, with the better Obſervation of Days preſcribed to be faſted on. And touching the ſaid Company, it would avoid exceſſive Incomes and Rents, whereby many had been under, and all unjuſt quarrelling at the Law, and all foreſtalling and regrating: And that the Order for decent Apparel might be obſerved and uſed; and the overheightening the Prices of any Commodities, whereby Men became Bankrupts, ſhould be remedied.

There were certain ancient Ordinances for the Government both of the Merchant Vinteners, and Vinteners Retailers; viz.

For the Merchants.

Ordinances for the Vintners Merchants.

That ſix perſons, being Vintners, ſholn be Governors and Counſillors to al Vintners, and to al Vintners Attorneys that ſhullun paſs the Seas to Bourdeaux. That after they have landyd and ben there two days, and partely underſtoode of the Likelehode of the Pryces, that or [i. e. ere] eny buy, they al meet and take ordre what every man ſholn gyve, and none to excede, upon payne to forfeit to the King xx*l.* and xx*l.* to the Felowſhip: and who that can eſpie eny doing the contrarie, be it Maſter or Servant, ſhal have to tell [i. e. pay] twenty Nobels for his travell. That none make no Servant, no Broker, no Man, Woman, or Child, to buy Wine above that Pryce, upon the payne aforeſaid. And in caſe any happen to come upon other, when they byn taſting, that leſt they ſhuld therby highen the Market, they do avoid. And if after the firſt Seer be gon, and culde not agree, the ſecond happen afterward to buy; yet if it were the Wines of the firſt Seer's Cuſtomer, he ſhal have half the Wyne notwithſtonding of the Buyer, &c.

For the Reteylours.

Retaylers.

Th'Othe of the four Wardens of the Vintners Reteylours is, Wel and truly to rule the Company, and to keep th'Ordinaunces that for the Commonwele are or ſhullen be made, and duely to put them in execution; doing alweye Evynhode, as well to the Poore as to the Riche.

Th'Othe of the Freemen is, To be true to the King and his Laws, obedient to the Wardeins and Ordenaunces, to keep good Rule, to obey al Summons, and to pay al Duties after their Power.

Th'Ordinaunce to be rede every Yere twice; viz. at the going to Burdeaux, and at the beginning of Lent.

The Companie, when new Wyne is, ſhal from the Ryding of the Maior unto Eaſter-day, aſſemble every Fortnight, to let al Diſorder, in gredy running and buying of Wines. Which if any ſhullen do contrary ther Orders therin, he ſhal pay for every Fault ten Mark.

None ſhal colour Straungers Goods to t'hurt of the Kings Cuſtomes, or highening of the Pryce of Wynes.

None ſhal ſel Wynes tyl the Wardeins have given them the Pryce, upon payne to forfeit 6 s. 8 d. for every Gallon ſo ſold, &c.

None ſhal utter one Wyne inſted of another, upon payne for every Offence to pay xx s.

None of any other Companie ſhal uſe Wynes, except he firſt be ſworn t'obey al the Vintners Ordenaunces, whileſt he ſhal occupie.

None ſhal diſcover any Talk, that, concerning the highening of Wynes to be abatyd, ſhal by eny Perſon be gyven or counſilled, upon payne of xx l.

Item, That eight Perſons onely of the ſaid Company, being of beſt Experience, were alweys of old tyme appointed to taſt and buy al maner of Wynes, after they were brought over, and had byn cellared three Days. So that none after did excede the Pryces by them made, upon grete Penalties to be payd: Which cauſed good cheap.

This was confirmed April the 24th, by King Charles I. in the ninth Year of his Reign.

J. S.

K. James I. free of this Company. Edm How. Abridgm.

King James I. June 12. 1607, dined with the Lord Maior, Sir John Watts, Clothworker; and after went into the Clothworkers Hall. And there was made free of that Company, with Sir Patrick Murrey, Gentleman of his Bedchamber, Sir Arthur Arſton, and Sir Hugh Carmichel, Knights, and James Medow, D. D. the King's Chaplain.

The Manner thereof.

The Lord Maior at this Dinner preſented the King with a Purſe of Gold. And when he was ready to depart, the ſaid Maior beſought him out of the great Favour which he had before profeſſed to the Clothworkers Society in particular, that his Majeſty would vouchſafe to be free of the Clothworkers. Which the King readily accepted. And deſcending from the Dining Room, went into the Hall, the Maior bearing the Sword before him. And there he was received by the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants. Unto whom the King ſpake kindly, and with Reſpect. And asking, who was Maſter of the Company. The Lord Maior anſwered, Sir William Stone. To whom the King then ſaid, Wilt thou make me free of the Clothworkers? Yes, ſaid the Maſter, and do think myſelf a happy Man, that I live to ſee this Day. Then ſaid the King, Stone, give me thy Hand. And now I am a Clothworker. And after that, he walked into the Garden, and then into the great Parlour, the Lord Maior bearing the Sword before him. And while he ſat there, the Earls of Shrewsbury and Cumberland, being both free of that Company, preſented his Majeſty with Bread and Wine. Then riſing up, he ſaid, Now I drink unto all my good Brethren the Clothworkers. And I pray God to bleſs them all, and all good Clothworkers. And for Proof of our ſpecial Favour to the Fraternity, I do here give unto this Company two Brace of Bucks yearly for ever, againſt the Time of the Election of the Maſter and Wardens. Then the Maſter, the Wardens and Aſſiſtants humbly thanked his Majeſty; and having kiſſed his Hand, the King departed.

Other Myſteries about Cloth, now loſt.

There were other Companies incorporated in former Times, which are now ſunk and gone: Whoſe Buſineſs was chiefly about Cloths, as Fullers, Telars, Burilers, concerning whom I have met with theſe particular Matters.

FULLERS.

Fullers of Cloths. Lib. Alb.

OF theſe and the Dyers a Complaint was made by ſome of the Company to King Edward I. that certain of them, namely, John de Oxon, Henry at Watergate, and Elias le Shereman, concerning Cloths ſent to them to be fulled; and which ought to be fulled only within the City; that they ſent them to the Mill at Stratford, and elſewhere without the ſaid City, and cauſed them there to be fulled; in Deceit and great Damage of the Men who owned thoſe Cloths, and alſo of the Men uſing the Trade in the foreſaid City, and to the Depreſſion of the ſaid Trade. Whereupon the King, in the 26th of his Reign, ſent his Letter to the Cuſtos and Sheriffs of London, to call the Parties before them. Who accordingly did ſo; and the aboveſaid John, Henry, and Elias, in all the ſaid Matters acknowledged themſelves to be faulty. And the ſaid Cuſtos and Sheriffs cauſed to appear before them the Dyers, Taylers, Burilers, Weavers, and Fullers, to appoint and provide for the ſaid Trade of Fullers; how for the time to come they ought to do, and govern themſelves, to amend the ſaid Trade of Fullers.

And this Ordinance was made for the common Profit of the City, that no Fuller, Dyers or Theſſarans, ſhould for the time to come carry Cloths out of the City, to be fulled or dyed, upon certain Penalties.

TELLARS or TELARS

WERE Webbers or Weavers of Cloth. Theſe were very ancient, and were a Guild or Fraternity, confirmed by King John. And whereas it was a Cuſtom to receive from them, for the King, eighteen Mark of Silver yearly, by this Charter of Confirmation the ſaid King required twenty Mark to be from thence yearly paid at the Exchequer on the Feaſt of St. Michael.

King Henry III. gave them another Charter, and referreth to an Inſpeximus of a Charter which his Grandfather King Henry granted the Tellars of London. This King Henry III. in his ſaid Charter required of them two Mark in Gold, payable every Michaelmas.

Theſe choſe two Bailiffs from among themſelves to hold Courts of the ſame Trade. And preſented the ſaid Bailiffs ſo choſen to the Maior Elis Ruſſel: who were by the ſaid Maior accepted and ſworn. And if any matters could not be determined by them, they were to be brought to the Maior, to be ended by him.

BURILERS

Burilers.

WERE a Myſtery for the inſpecting of Cloths woven, as to the well making of them, and meaſuring of the Breadth of them. For Cloth ought to have been two Ells wide from Liſt to Liſt; (which was called Burrells) according to an old Conſtitution.

Pat. 9 H. III. m. 5.

There uſed to be great Contentions between the Telars and theſe Burilers: Whereupon King Henry III. once interpoſed his Pardon and Indulgence againſt the Burilers. Rex conceſſit hominibus London quod non vexentur propter Burellos, vel pannos Burellatos; quamvis non ſint in latitudine duarum ulnarum infra Liſtas, ſecundum Conſtitutionem prius factam de pannorum latitudine.

Lib. Horn. fo. 278.

There is this Record remaining in the Chamber of London. ‘Be it remembred, that on Thurſday next after St. Hilary, the 20th [it ſhould be 28th] of Edward I. John de Caunefeld, and Wauter Payne, Bailiffs of the ſaid Guild of Telers of London, and the whole Commonalty of the ſame, were ſummoned before Elis Ruſſel, then Maior of the ſame City; to anſwer to Fouk de St. Edmund, and to Henry le Joſue, and other good Men of the Myſtery of Burilers, upon certain Articles, and Points, and Eſtabliſhments, in Time whereof there is no Memory: Which the ſaid Wauter and John, and others of the ſaid Guild have infringed; and other new Ordinances, &c. to the Damage and Prejudice of them and their Myſtery of Burilers. They acknowledged they were faulty, and in ſome Points did contrary to their Cuſtoms and Uſages: Whereof they prayed Grace.

‘And it was aſſented to by both Parties, that ſome of the Burilers, and ſome Telers ſhould be choſen; viz. William de Leyre, Wauter de Finchingfeld, Thomas Romayne, and Richard de Glouceſter, Aldermen; Fouk de St. Edmund, Henry de Joſue, John de Hatfend, and three more, Burilers; and William de Gillingham, John de Cannefend, Robert Moris, Simon de Purtepole, and three more, Telers. And theſe ordained that the Telers ſhould uſe and hold certain Ordinances.” Which are there ſet down.

As, That none make Cloth mingled with a Thread of England and of Spain. That no Cloth be made of Flocks and Thrums, &c.

The Hall, and Windows painted.

This Company of Clothworkers alſo is a very flouriſhing and wealthy Company. The Hall, ſituate in Mincing-Lane, was partly burnt down in the great Fire: but the Walls of the Court-Room ſtood, being built in the Year 1594, as appears by the ſaid Year graved upon the Wall toward the Garden, and yet remaining. The Hall is ſpacious, with the Windows painted with Coats of Arms of Perſons of Eminence of their Company, and Benefactors. On the great Eaſt Window is the Coat of Arms of Sir John Robinſon, born quarterly; and thus under-written, Sir JOHN ROBINSON, Kt. and Bar' His Majeſty's Lieutenant of the Tower of London, Lord Maior of this Honourable City 1663, *and Preſident of the Artillery Company, kept his Maioralty in this Hall. Above theſe two Windows, two other painted with Coats of Arms, one for Sir William Peake, Kt. Sheriff; the other for Sir Denys Gauden, Kt. Sheriff.

In this Eaſt Wall in two Nieches ſtand in full Proportion the Effigies of King James I. and King Charles I. gilded.

On the great South Window oppoſite to it, is painted the Coat of Samuel Pepys, Eſq; Secretary to the Admiralty, being quarterly; in the firſt Quarter Sable, between a Bend Or, charged with three Flowers de Lys of the firſt, two Horſes Heads erazed Argent. The ſecond, within a Bordure engrailed Or, a Lion rampant. The third as the ſecond, the fourth as the firſt. Under-written, Samuel Pepys Admiralitati Angliæ à Secretis, Societatis hujuſce Magiſter; idemque Benefactor; Anno Dom. CIↃ DC LXX VII.

On the next South Window is the Coat of Arms of Mr. Hewer, one of the Commiſſioners of the Navy: Sable, two Talbots Heads erazed Or; between as many Flanches, Ermin. Under-written, Guilielmus Hewer, Claſſis Angliæ è Commiſſariis; Societatis hujus Magiſter, idemque Benefactor, Anno Dom. CIↃ DC LXXX VII.

Sir Joſeph Williamſon and Mr. Pepys gave to this Company two very great Baſins, and as many noble ſtanding Cups gilt. Which are uſed and drunk in on their Feaſt Days.

Lord Maiors of this Company.

Of this Company of Clothworkers there have been theſe Maiors.

Matters relating to the Brewers.

Of various Matters relating to this Company of Brewers, I have met with theſe Notices, as they happened in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth; which I have collected out of ſome authentic Papers.

A Suit made for gauging Beer and Ale.

In the Year 1580, or thereabouts, Sir Thomas Gorges ſued to have the Office of Gauger of Beer; namely, to Survey the gauging and filling every Barrel: And for the defraying of the Charges, and of Officers to be employed, to have a Penny for gaugiug every Barrel of Beer and Ale; an Halfpenny for every half Barrel: and ſo for every Veſſel after that Rate. And for inclining the Queen to grant this, he ſhewed in his Petition to the Lord Treaſurer Burghley, that there was a Deceit to the Buyer of Beer and Ale, both in the Aſſize of the Veſſels, and in the not filling them up. And that the Buyers, taken altogether, were deceived hereby 30000 l. a Year: Which by this Expedient propounded, would be ſaved. And beſides, it was promiſed that the Queen ſhould have 200 l. a Year for a Rent. And that a great number of prohibited Wares were daily tranſported out of the Realm by ſtealth, and ſo eaſily paſt, as they had done. And hereby her Majeſties Cuſtoms would be encreaſed. Beſides, he would engage to gain her 7 or 800 l. yearly in the Aſſize of the Veſſels, and filling of Beer and Ale, which was yearly ſerved only to her Majeſties Houſe.

The Brewers Anſwer therto.

To which the Brewers made this Anſwer;
“ That tho' Veſſels were well filled in the “ Brewhouſe, yet ſuch as were carried in “ Drayes, by that time they ſhould be laid in the “ Buyers Cellars, would, by reaſon of ſpurging
“ and working in the Carriage, want near a “ Gallon in every Barrel. So that the Survey-
“ ing of the filling of them in the Brewhouſe
“ would bring ſmall Profit to the Buyer. And “ Ale in London and many other Places, being “ put in Veſſels that be open, as the Buyers may “ eaſily ſee, whether they be filled or not, the “ filling of them needs no ſuch Survey of any “ other Perſon. That the Sizes of Veſſels were “ limited by Statute, and well known to the “ moſt part of Buyers; and were continually
“ lookt unto by the Clark of the Market, and by “ Maior's and other Head Officers of Cities and “ Corporate Towns, and within Liberties:
“ who were authorized thereunto by Statutes,
“ Charters and Grants. And the Defects might “ be eaſily perceived by the Buyer. So as there
“ was no great need of a Surveyor in that behalf.
“ And the Correction of the Aſſize of Beer and “ Ale, touching the Veſſels and Meaſures, be“ longing to Head Officers in moſt Cities, “ Towns Corporate and Leets, was like to be-
“ get many ſudden Complaints. That a Penny
“ for gauging every Barrel of Beer and Ale would “ grow to a great Yearly Revenue. It was “ computed, there would be due for Beer Veſſels
“ in London only, 5000 l. yearly. And it might be “ thought, that throughout the Realm it would “ make the Sum up 10000 l. a Year at leaſt.”
But this Buſineſs of having a Surveyor for Beer ſtuck ſtill, and we ſhall hear more of it by and by.

Beer tranſported.

In the Year 1585, a Dutch Man deſired to have Licence to tranſport Beer. And it was allowed him by the Lord Treaſurer, upon Agreement, to import ſo much Clap board, according to the Tuns of Beer he carried out.

Quantity of Beer brewed.

26 Brewers in London and Weſtminſter.

The Quantity of Beer brewed in London, about this time, viz. 1585, in a Year, by the Calculation that one made for the uſe of the Lord Treaſurer, was thus computed. There were at leaſt 26 Brewers in the City, Suburbs and Weſtminſter, whereof the one half of them, Strangers, the other Engliſh. The moſt of every of them brewed ſix times a Week: and ordinarily they brewed 20 Quarters at every time: which yielded in Small Beer 100 Barrels at the leaſt, and in Strong Beer 60 Barrels at the leaſt. Every one with another of them did brew 420 Barrels weekly a piece. Which amounted to 2496 Barrels yearly. So the whole Number of the Brewers being 26, they did brew yearly 648960 Barrels. And by this Computation the Gentleman that ſued to be General Surveyor for Gauging, at a Penny the Barrel, and ſo for every half Barrel proportionably, ſhould receive in London and the Suburbs, 2028 l. a Year.

Who had the Power of gauging formerly.

Cap. 4. The Coopers to gauge.

Veſſels of Beer and Ale were not gauged by any Statute before the 23 Hen. VIII. But the Defects thereof were puniſhable upon the Preſentment of Juries and Ale-Conners, before the Juſtices Itinerants, Juſtices of Peace, the Clarks of the Market, Stewards of Leets out of Cities; and in Cities, by force of Charters. And in that Year [i. e. 23 H. VIII.] by an Act, Authority was given to the Wardens of the Coopers of London, to Search, View and Gauge all Veſſels of Beer, Ale, and Soap in London and the Suburbs, within two Miles of London; and to take a Fee for the ſame. And like Authority was given to the Maiors, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Conſtables or other Head-Officers out of London, for Veſſels there. This was urged to the Treaſurer of England Anno 1586, againſt any Common Gauger ever having any Authority of Gauging Veſſels, or uſed before.

Deceit of the Coopers.

But the Coopers were complained of; for that they by the Statute aboveſaid, being to gauge Veſſels for the full Contents by that Statute limited, and that thoſe that held due Meaſure ſhould be Sealed with a St. Andrew's Croſs; they being in bargain with the Brewers, would ſet the Croſs upon the Veſſels as full Gauge, tho' they wanted one, two or three Gallons. And the Law had inflicted no Puniſhment on the Coopers, for not gauging or for untrue gauging; the Coopers being Judges of their own Work: And having liberty at their pleaſure to Search and Gauge, but not commanded ſo to do.

Complaints againſt the Brewers.

Beſides this Want of Meaſure, there were about this time divers other things charged upon the Brewers: Which I will here ſet down, together with their Apology and Vindication of themſelves. They were charged for their Malt and Hops, which they uſed. As that they brewed with ill Malt: and in the End of the Year they commonly brewed with Wyvel Malt, being the Bottom and Sweepings of their Garners, to make room to bring in new Corn. It was alſo bruited, that they put in Darnel, Roſin, Lime and Chalk, and ſuch like; which making the Drinkers thirſty, they might drink the more. And that for Cheapneſs, when Hops were dear, they put into their Drink, Broom, Bay-berries, Ivy-berries, and ſuch like things. But their Surveyor never found this upon Examination to be true.

Item, it was charged upon them, that with one Maſhe they uſed to make two Brewings. But that alſo was hardly true, by reaſon it would taint their Beer, and loſe that which would be good enough to utter to moſt Cuſtomers.

Item, that they boiled not their Liquor, as was done in private Houſes, to ſave Fewel, and to make the more Beer with the leſs Malt. And ſuch Beer was ſoon ſtale. But they anſwered, ſuch Beer pleaſed London beſt, to drink new ſmall Beer about 14 Days old.

Item, that they brewed foiſted Beer and corrupt Beer again, ſent home by their Cuſtomers, and never would loſe any.

Item, that the Beer-brewers were very unclean in their Brewing, and about all their Veſſels. But if it were ſo, their Maſters had the Loſs by it, when their Beer was returned home, and fain to be brewed twice at their Charges.

Item, that they ſet in the Heads of their Barrels to make them leſs. But that wanted Proof.

Item, there was this Deceit in Veſſels of Beer that were tranſported: that under the Name of theſe, paſs'd many Barrels ſtufft with prohibited Goods, as Pike-heads, Halbard-heads, Piſtols, and Match, Candles, and Soles of Shoes of new Leather cut out in Pairs of all Sizes, and the like; the Bungs of the ſaid Barrels being beſmeared with a little Yeſt; to the hindrance of the Commonwealth, and to the Profit of Enemies. Another Deceit that the Strangers, Foreigners, and others practiſed with the Brewers and their Servants was, packing up Caſes and Pieces of Silk, and delivering them as empty Barrels on the Brewers Wharf. The Brewers ſtrait beſmeared them with Yeſt, and ſo ſent them to the Merchants Houſes, as Barrels of Beer for the Proviſion of the Houſhold, to the hindrance of the Queen's Cuſtoms.

The Brewers Surveyor.

The Brewers themſelves appointed their Surveyor. And there being now in theſe Days of Queen Elizabeth, many Strangers and Denizen Brewers, as well as Engliſh, the Company ſet a Penny upon every Barrel of Beer brewed by a Stranger, and an Halfpenny upon every Barrel brewed by an Engliſhman, for the ſaid Surveyor's Salary. Tho' ſome ſaid, this was done indeed to drive away the Strangers.

Objections againſt a new Surveyor of the Brewers.

But when the Suit was ſo ſtrongly urged for a General Surveyor to be made by the Queen, ſome about the Year 1586, made theſe conſiderable Objections to it; That if the Queen granted this Survey of the Veſſels, then according to Statute the Brewers would withſtand the ſame, and pray they might be ſurveyed according to Law. That the Maior and Bench of London could never bring it to paſs, that the Veſſels ſhould be of the right Sizes, and ſerved out full from their Brew-houſes; nor durſt they ever force the Brewers to it, for fear of leaving the City unvictualled. That the Ale-Brewers by their Charter had Authority to ſearch and ſurvey themſelves: and all Beer-Brewers likewiſe, both for Veſſels, for filling them, and for Wholſomneſs of Drink. And if the new Survey were granted, it would intrude upon their Charter and Authority, to the Offence of the City. And that if the Queen of her Prerogative ſhould command (which was doubted whether ſhe might) never ſo little a Fee upon a Barrel to be paid to the Chief Surveyor, the People would ſay ſtrait, their Drink were exciſed, as it was in Flanders, and would be more hereafter. And ſo the People and Brewers both, would repine at it. And that if the People had their Meaſure, the Brewers would exact it again. And laſtly, that as for the clayed and beſmeared Barrels with Yeſt, the Searchers and Officers of the Cuſtom-houſe would provide well enough againſt that.

The Maior's Care of the Beer.

The Lord Maior and Bench of Aldermen did often attempt to make a Reformation among the Brewers, eſpecially in two or three reſpects. Firſt, the Beer being brought in while it was purging, many Gallons were loſt. Which they endeavoured to reform by requiring Beer and Ale Carts to carry filling Beer, to make good that which was ſpilt or purged by the way; or to give Allowance for the ſame. Secondly, for the mending of Beer, it being ſo ſmall, the Maior and Common Council would have had two ſorts of Beer, of 4 s. and 6 s. the Barrel: and to diſallow the brewing of ſtrong Beer, of 8 s. the Barrel, March Beer only excepted. There was a notable Act of Common Council made the 6th of the Queen, Octob. 25. concerning theſe matters. But neither the Maior nor Bench could ever bring this Reformation to paſs, the Brewers being ſo headſtrong, and ready to leave the City without Proviſion, by leaving off brewing ſuddenly.

A Proclamation of the Maior about the Price of Beer.

In the Year 1591, Sir John Allot, Maior, publiſhed by Proclamation, that the Brewers ſhould not make any more ſorts or kinds of Beer or Ale than two, viz. the ſtrong and the double. And that the ſame ſhould be ſold after the Rate of 6 s. and 8 d. the Barrel of the beſt, and 3 s. and 4 d. the Barrel of the double Beer or Ale, and not above. But all Commodities belonging to Brewers being now advanced conſiderably in their Prices, the Brewers made great Complaints againſt this Order. For Malt was ſold at 13 s. the Quarter, Hops at 4 l. 6 s. 8 d. and 4 l. 10 s. the Hundred; which heretofore was ſold at 6 s. and 8 d. the Hundred: and yet one Hundred of Hops then was worth three Hundred of Hops at that preſent ſold. The Price of Barrels being 20 s. or 22 s. the Laſt, heretofore ſold for 9 s. the Laſt. The Price of Coals, then ſold at 24 s. or 26 s. the Chaldron; not long before ſold at 12 s. or 13 s. the Chaldron. To which they added, the great and exceſſive Price of all manner of Victuals, and charge of Houſekeeping, and other Neceſſaries belonging to the Brewers Trade; the large Rent of their Houſes, far exceeding the Rents given for the ſame in any former Age. Theſe Things conſidered, the Brewers were not able, at the Prices ſet, to ſell ſuch good and wholſome Beer as was fit the City ſhould be ſerved with. Whereupon they were Suitors to the next Lord Maior, Sir William Webbe, and the Aldermen, to have good Conſideration of this Cauſe; and to ſet ſuch reaſonable Prices and Rates on Beer and Ale, as they might make and ſell good and wholſome Liquor, and live by their ſaid Trades. As they had at ſundry times deſired the Lord Maior and Aldermen to conſider the two Statutes, viz. 51 H. III. and 31 Ed. I. and the Prices of Malt, Hops, Coals, Barrels, Kilderkins, Veſſels, and other Neceſſaries, belonging to their Trade; and to make an indifferent Proof and Trial, what and how much good and wholſome Beer and Ale of the beſt, and how much of the Double, might be made of a Quarter of Malt: and to conſider of all Charges belonging to the ſaid Trade. Alſo, they offered to ſhew unto them their Books, whereby they might plainly ſee, what and how much Ale and Beer they had or did make of a Quarter of Malt, and the juſt Charge expended in and about the ſame. Notwithſtanding, the Lord Maior and Aldermen refuſed, and denied. Which as they urged, tended to the great Hindrance of the City; ſince they were not able to ſell and utter ſuch good and wholſome Ale and Beer as was fit: and to the utter undoing of the Brewers, if they continued their ſaid Trades. For many of them ſhould be forced to leave and give over the Trades in which they had been brought up, to the Hindrance, if not undoing, of the Company of Brewers.

The Brewers Appeal from the City to the Lord Treaſurer.

This made them appeal to the Lord Treaſurer of England. By whoſe means only they acknowledged they had obtained their Incorporation from the Queen, with divers Liberties and Privileges to and for the ſaid Company. Praying him to procure ſuch ſpeedy Trial and Examination of the ſaid Cauſe, and thereupon ſuch reaſonable Prices to be aſſeſſed for Beer and Ale, as thereby the Commonwealth of the City and Suburbs might be well ſerved, and his Orators have a convenient Living by their Trade. And withal they preſented a Paper to the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, being the true Aſſize of Ale and Beer, according to the Prices of Corn, riſing and falling, by the Equity of the Statute Anno 51 Hen. III. afterwards confirmed and allowed by Statute Anno 31 Ed. I. viz.

The true Aſſize of Ale and Beer.

Then by the ſame rate a Quarter of Malt being at the Price of 4 s. a Barrel of Ale being 32 Gallons, at 1 d. the Gallon, amounteth to -	2 s. 8 d.
Item, the Kilderkin being 16 Gallons after that rate is - - - - -	16 d.

And then the Barrel of the beſt Ale and Beer was ſold for - - - -	3 s. 8 d. or 4 s.
The Three-halfpenny Beer was then ſold the Barrel for - - - - - -	3 s.
The Barrel of ſingle Ale and Beer - -	2 s.

☞ It is to be noted, that the Charge of Houſe-Rent, Houſekeeping, Servants Wages, Victual, and other Neceſſaries, do treble and fourfold exceed the Price thereof in thoſe former Times.

The Tranſportation of Beer raiſeth the Price of Corn.

About theſe middle Times of Queen Elizabeth another Controverſie aroſe concerning Beer, namely concerning the tranſporting of Beer beyond Sea, which they called Portage Beer. It was obſerved now a-days, that the Tranſportation of Corn and of Beer was the Cauſe of the Dearth of Corn. For the preventing and remedying of which, ſometimes Proclamations were iſſued forth, for the reſtraint of Tranſportation: and ſometimes the Brewers were reſtrained from brewing any ſweet or ſtrong Beer to be tranſported by Cocket, as Merchandize. By this means Corn did once riſe and fall ſundry times within two Months. Sometime before Michaelmas Corn was bought and provided to have been tranſported. Whereupon the Price of Corn was enhanced 6 or 7 s. in a Quarter. Which happened within the ſpace of 14 days. Then a Proclamation was publiſhed for the Reſtraint of Corn and Beer, the 8th day of October; and the Price of Corn within five days did fall 5 or 6 s. in a Quarter. Which cauſed many joyful Hearts among the poor Commons, and many thouſand Bleſſings and Prayers for the Author thereof. After this Proclamation, by reaſon of ſome Quantities of Beer brewed and tranſported, the Corn-men then, thinking the Reſtraint would not continue, began again the ſecond time to increaſe their Prices. The Brewer to thwart the evil Minds of the Corn-men, and bad Dealing of the Merchants, reſtrained themſelves from brewing ſtrong Beer to be tranſported as Merchandizes; whereby the Price of Corn did fall the ſecond time. Novemb. 4. one procured from the Lord Treaſurer, Licence to brew and tranſport 500 Tuns of Beer, notwithſtanding the Reſtraint and Orders taken againſt the Brewers. Which Warrant was for Service of her Majeſty: Whereby the Price of Corn increaſed the third time.

A Eſtimation, what Beer is yearly carried out.

There was an Eſtimate made at this time [about the Year 1591.] What Beer was carried yearly for the Low-Countries and other places, after this manner. There were twenty great Brewhouſes or more, ſituate on the Thames ſide, from Milford-Stairs in Fleet-ſtreet, till below St. Katharines. Which brewed yearly the quantity of ſeven or eight Brewings of ſweet Beer or ſtrong Beer; that paſſed to Stoad, Embden, the Low-Countries, Calais, Diep, and thereabouts. And account but 600 Brewings at 44 Barrels the Brewing, it makes 26400 Barrels: Which at 7 to a Tun, make 3771 Tun.

LEATHERSELEERS.

This Company had a Power to Search Skins.

This Company by Patent from King Henry VII. had the Search of Calve-skins, Sheep-skins and Lamb-skins, Goats and Kid-skins, deceitfully wrought; and of all other like deceitful Works and Workmen touching that Myſtery, in any part of the Realm; and were to make ſuch Search by the Survey of the Maior and other Head Officers of the City and Town where ſuch Search ſhall be made: And had further Power to puniſh the ſaid Offenders, and to ſeize, as Forfeit, the ſame deceitful Ware. Whereof the one Moiety to the Uſe of the King and his Succeſſors, or to the Uſe of thoſe Cities and Places where the Offence happens; and the other Moiety to the Company. And the Searchers were to be ſworn to make due Search. And ſuch a Power alſo had the Company of Skinners by Patent.

The Glovers complaint againſt the Leatherſellers.

The Leatherſellers became great Engroſſers of Leather in all Places of England: And did tranſport it abroad, to the raiſing of the Price of it. For which the Glovers within 40 miles compaſs about London, feeling the Inconveniency of it, made Complaint about the Year 1593 and 1594, to the Lords of the Privy Council. They complained, that the Leatherſellers did engroſs continually into their hands all Sorts of Leather within the ſeveral Shires of England, and alſo Ireland and Scotland. Which had raiſed the Price of White Leather from 20 s. the Hundred, to 50 s. and 3 l. the Hundred. Secondly, that when they had ſo engroſſed it by the Thouſand, whereof they bought three or four ſorts at ſeveral Prices, they then packed it into Dozens, and put four Skins at the leaſt into every Dozen, ſcarce worth an Half-penny a piece: And yet nevertheleſs did ſell theſe mixed Dozens far dearer than they paid for the very beſt. Whereby they, the Glovers, were deceived at the leaſt 16 d. in every Dozen, by four ſmall Skins in ordinary called Linings, packed in every ſuch Dozen. Thirdly, they further complained, that by means of this engroſſing, they were conſtrained to come 30 or 40 Miles compaſs round about London to buy their Leather at London: Whereas were it not for them, they might have had their Leather at home in the Country, and at a far more reaſonable rate, and better. Laſtly, that where by their intolerable engroſſing (being but four Perſons that did it) they were become great Tranſporters of Leather out of the Land, and under colour of Licence for one Thouſand, ſhipped away ten Thouſand, they prayed their Lordſhips, that ſome might be appointed to ſee, that no more were ſhipped away than were licenſed; and that a Market might be appointed for all White Leather: And that the Countrymen might be commanded to bring in their Leather to a ſettled place; as at Leaden-hall or ſuch like, before they made ſale thereof to any Leatherſeller, or other; whereby to engroſs it. That they, the poor Glovers about London, might buy the beſt for their Money, as ſoon and as well as they. And then Leather in ſhort ſpace ſhould be ſold for 30 s. which was then 50 s. and upwards. And for the Reformation of theſe apparent Injuries, they thought it convenient that Leather ſhould be Sealed; ſo as the Price exceeded not 2 d. the Dozen. And laſtly, that if this were not lookt to, the Leatherſellers would ſoon become richer than common Subjects; and thouſands of the Glovers forced to beg about the Streets.

To Seal Leather.

Improvement of the Trade of Leather by the Merchants of Barbary and Ruſſia.

By reaſon of the Trades of the Merchants in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, to Barbary and Ruſſia and other Places, there was a great Quantity of Skins of divers Sorts then yearly brought into the Realm, more than in times paſt. And towards the latter times of that Queen, the People had better Experience in dreſſing, working and making of Leather; ſome with Oil, ſome with Allom, ſome with Shomack and other things. By reaſon whereof a greater Number of the Queen's Subjects with their Families were ſet on work and maintained, than in former Times. And by reaſon of the good and well dreſſing thereof, the ſame was more uſed than formerly, to the benefit of the Realm, and the great Store tranſported by way of Merchandize. Whereby the Queen had the more Cuſtom and Subſidy both outwards and inwards.

A Patent for Searching and Sealing of Leather. Leatherſellers deceits.

Upon pretence of an Act of Parliament, Edward Darcy Eſq; ſued to the Queen for her Letters Patents, during his Life, for or twenty Years, for the Searching and Sealing of all Leather throughout England, as was provided in the Statute for Shoe-Leather. For the Leatherſellers had been found guilty of great Abuſes practiſed, in deceitful Dreſſing, Sale and Uttering of all Leather for the moſt part, except Shoe-Leather. The Skin of a Bull, Horſe, &c. was ſold for right Buff. Rams-skins, and Sheeps-skins ſold for right Shamways. And ſo many other kinds, to the wrong and hindrance of the Buyer.

The Gain of this Patent to Darcy.

Darcy ſucceeded in his Suit, and had his Patent from the Queen: But ſtill with a Clauſe in it for Revocation by ſix of the Council. This was a very gainful Buſineſs to him. As, for the Sealing of a dozen of the beſt Stags Skins dreſt, worth 4 l. was paid 8 s. For Sealing a dozen of the ſecond Sort, worth 33 s and 4 d. the ſame was paid. And ſo proportionably for other Skins. So that he received ſometimes the tenth part, the ninth part, the ſeventh, the ſixth, the fourth, and ſometimes, and often, the third part of the Value of the Commodity.

The Complaint againſt him by all the Dealers in Leather.

Therefore, ſoon after this Patent was begun to be executed, which was about the End of the Year 1592, the Leatherſellers and all that dealt in Leather-cutting, made moſt grievous Complaints, eſpecially the poorer Sort; viz. that it was like to overthrow them and their Trades. And were minded to repair in a multitude to the Court to the Lords of the Council. But firſt they went to Sir William Row, Lord Maior, with a Petition to him. The Maior hereupon ſent his Letters to the Lords, to prevent the Tumult, together with their Petition. In which Petition joyned all theſe Tradeſmen following, viz. Leatherſellers, Fellmongers, Glovers, Point-makers, Purſe-makers, Sadlers, Girdlers, Coffer-makers, Budget-makers, Stationers, White-Tawiers, Jerkinmakers, Leather-dyers, and all other Dreſſers, Workers and Converters of Leather, inhabiting within the City. They ſet forth, That whereas he, the Lord Maior had received a ſtrait Charge from the Lords and others of her Majeſties Privy Council, about the Aſſiſtance to be given to Mr. Darcy, touching the Execution of his Patent, for the View, Search and Sealing of Leather of what kind ſoever: Wherein a new Office was allowed, with Allowance of Fees, to ſo exceſſive and enormous a Rate, as the like whereof was never heard of within the Realm, to be impoſed upon the Subjects, upon any occaſion of publick Service or Duty whatſoever, to be performed to her Highneſs and the State of her Realm: Hereby the poor Suppliants were like utterly to be undone, and their Trades overthrown, in Caſe the ſaid Patent ſhould ſo take Effect. WHEREFORE they prayed the Maior, being the Chief Governour of the City under her Highneſs, and the Chief and Principal Warden of the ſaid Companies, and of all other Trades within the City, to be a Means to the Queen or the Lords, that the Execution of of the ſaid Patent might be ſuſpended; and the Grievances of the ſaid Companies be farther conſidered of, either by their Lordſhips, or ſome other grave indifferent Perſons, to be appointed by them. Who by their Wiſdoms might judge and diſcern of the untrue Suggeſtion made to the Queen by Mr. Darcy, for the obtaining of this Patent; and alſo of the manifold Inconveniences, and intolerable Oppreſſions, which would fall upon the ſaid Companies, in caſe the ſaid Patent ſhould be put in execution.

The Patentee's Plea againſt the Leatherſellers.

So this Buſineſs came before the Lords: And Darcy expoſed as much as ever he could, all the Deceits of the Leatherſellers, and their monſtrous Gains, by ſelling counterfeited Wares for the beſt. And in concluſion, his Sollicitor aſſerted, that the Workmen that dreſt the true Leather were deſirous to have all Leather ſealed, that thereby the good might be known from the bad; and that all People might perceive by the Seal what they had for their Money. So ſhould not the Leatherſeller deceive the whole Commonwealth.

The Leatherſellers Plea and Complaint.

The Leatherſellers, and the Workers in Leather, put in their Paper to the Lord Buckhurſt, Sir John Forteſcue, and Sir John Woolley, of the Queen's Council, appointed to hear this Buſineſs. Wherein they utterly denied any unlawful, counterfeit, or deceitful Dreſſing of the ſorts of Leather, or that any of it was requiſite to have any Search or Seal in ſuch Manner and Form as Mr. Darcy untruly ſuggeſted to her Majeſty. And they marvelled that he, being a Man of great Experience and Calling, would attempt, or preſume to ſue unto her Majeſty to ſearch any ſorts of Leather which were not appointed to be ſearched by Parliament (Tanned Leather being only ſo appointed) and required to ſearch thoſe ſorts of Leather, for which there is no Act of Parliament, nor Law. And her Majeſty ruled her Subjects only by the Laws of the Realm; and would not deal with any contrary to Juſtice. They urged the Bondage the Patentee would bring the Queen's Subjects into; to cauſe every Leather-Cutter, Dreſſer and Occupier of Leather, to bring his Goods to ſuch Towns and Places, and at ſuch times as he and his Deputy ſhould appoint; and there and then attend their leiſure; and what an infinite Toil and Loſs of Time would be conſumed therein, in carrying to and fro. They ſhewed what an intolerable Tax, and what heavy Sums of Money this would amount unto, if it were to be paid by the Law of the Realm. That it would be conſidered, whether it were meet, that ſuch a Tax ſhould be laid upon the People, not being granted by Parliament, nor warranted by Law. And whether, if it were in her Majeſty's Pleaſure to grant it, it were meet or requiſite to raiſe a Revenue of fourſcore or an hundred thouſand Pounds to one Man, to the utter undoing of many Thouſands, her Majeſty's poor and dutiful Subjects. It was alſo put to their Conſiderations, that a multitude of the Queen's Subjects ſhould be bound in 40 l. yearly, not to ſell, or put to ſale, any ſuch lawful Leather, without the Search and Seal of Mr. Darcy, or his Aſſigns; and that thoſe that refuſed, ſhould be impriſoned and reſtrained from their Trades and Occupations, until it pleaſed Mr. Darcy and his Aſſigns or Deputies, to remit their ſuppoſed Offence; and to compel every Man to pay for the ſame Bond 4 d. Since that it appeared through the whole Courſe of the Grant, there was no Law to warrant the ſame. Laſtly, whether it were a meet and convenient thing, that Maiors, Bailiffs, &c. who were ſworn to execute Juſtice, ſhould be bound, contrary to the Rules of Law, to give Aid or Aſſiſtance to the Patentee, or his Deputies.

Queries of the Ld. Treaſurer about Leather.

This put ſome ſtop to Darcy's Patent. Inſomuch that he earneſtly applied himſelf to the Lord Treaſurer, that he might have his Patent, or at leaſt a new one, with the Fees for Sealing abated; and profeſſing himſelf to be ſatisfied with 200 l. or 150 l. a Year. The ſaid Treaſurer (to whom this Matter was left) that he might the better judge of the Leatherſellers Buſineſs, made theſe Queries. Firſt, How many kinds of Leather were ſubject to the Sealing? Secondly, Who were the People in Quality that did firſt work upon them? Thirdly, How many Workmens Hands they paſſed, before they came to the Leatherſellers? Fourthly, How many kinds there were of this Leather, and what was the difference of the Prices of them? Theſe Queries he ſent to certain knowing Men in matters of Trade for their Judgment herein. Who gave him in, a Schedule of all the Prices of Leather, with the Rates they judged fitting for the Sealing.

The Reſolution of the Leatherſellers.

The Lord Treaſurer at length made ſome other Propoſitions to the Leatherſellers. To which nevertheleſs they would not comply. Wherefore he did impriſon ſome of them. Sir Richard Martin and Sir John Hart, Aldermen, and the Recorder, did adviſe them to yield to Darcy. But they (whoſe Names were John Ward, Arthur Parkinſon, Anthony Quaplade, and Richard Ironſide) did urge to the ſaid Aldermen, that at their firſt incorporating into this noble City, they were charged with a preciſe Oath; To be obeiſant and obedient unto the Maior and Miniſters of the City, the Franchiſes and Cuſtoms thereof to maintain, and this City to keep harmleſs in that that in them was. And then they bade them judge, if to admit Mr. Darcy's Miniſters to Search and Seal, were not to run headlong into the horrible Sin of Perjury; which the Queen could never abide, nor ever yet left unpuniſhed. And becauſe they might err, they prayed, that the Expoſition of their Oath might be referred to the general Cenſure of a Common Council of the City. And they prayed God to ſtrengthen them with all Conſtancy and Patience to endure any thing rather than by their own Act to diſpoſſeſs themſelves of that which had been enjoyed by them and their Predeceſſors, Citizens of London, three hundred Years and more; or rather than to yield Mr. Darcy a jot more than they were bound to do, in 100 l. apiece, by a Decree made with the moſt deep Deliberation the 13th of February laſt, in the Star-Chamber, by the Lords of her Honourable Privy Council, aſſiſted with the Preſence of the moſt Reverend Judges of the Land.

On the back ſide of this Paper, they in theſe Words petition the Lord Treaſurer:

Their Petition to the Ld. Treaſurer.

> ‘WE moſt humbly beſeech your good Lordſhip, that even as you have been hitherto moſt worthily accounted the very CATO of the Common Weal; and even as your Lordſhip will not, that her Majeſty be inferior in Honour and Princely integrity to her moſt noble Father: Who in the ſeventeenth Year of his Reign uttered theſe Words, as is reported by Mr. Hall, to his eternal Praiſe; viz. That his mind was never to ask any thing of his Commons, that might ſound to his Diſhonour, or the Breach of his Laws; ſo we beſeech your good Lordſhip, even for the Love that you bear to God, her Majeſty, and your Country, whoſe Cauſe this is, to read theſe Reaſons; and then to judge, whether we be worthy of Impriſonment, or no: Having no other Choice, but to endure Impriſonment, or to damn our own Souls, and to yield to that which is more heavy to us, than eight Subſidies yearly paying during our Lives, without Coercion of the Laws.

Fol. 141.

Thus ſtout and hardy were theſe Leatherſellers, in aſſerting their Privileges and Rights as Citizens and Free-born Subjects.

The Attorney General's Judgment of the Leatherſellers Caſe.

To all this I add, that this Buſineſs having Difficulty as to the matter of Law, ſo much inſiſted on by the Leatherſellers, the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, a juſt and wary Man, ſent to Popham and Egerton, the one the Queen's Attorney General, and the other her Sollicitor, to examine the State of the Caſe. Who found it to ſtand thus, as they ſignified to him in Writing, That King Henry VII. did confirm certain Ordinances formerly made by the Maior of London, touching the Leatherſellers of London, in the time of King Richard II. concerning how the Defects in the ſaid Myſtery in that time ſhould be ſurveyed and reformed in ſome Points. Which Ordinances concerned only Sheeps, Calves, and Lambs Leather. And King Henry VII. by that Charter did farther grant, That the Wardens of the Leatherſellers of London ſhould by themſelves, or their ſufficient Deputies, have the Search of all counterfeited Calves, Sheeps, and Lambs Leather, and all Workmanſhip concerning the ſame Myſtery, as well in the City, as in all Places of the Realm, and of all miſuſing of the ſame Faculty or Myſtery. Which by the Wardens own Confeſſion before them was neglected, and not exerciſed according to the ſaid Grant. Therefore the ſaid Attorney and Sollicitor thought, in Law the Grant was voidable by Non uſans. Yet ſo long as that Grant ſtood unrepealed, Darcy could not well have the Effect of his Grant from her Majeſty (being, as they took it, the more reaſonable for Reformation of Abuſes then practiſed) unleſs he ſued a Scire facias, for to repeal that Patent of King Henry VII. for Non uſer thereof: Wherein being negligent in the City of London, it was to be thought they had been much more negligent in all other Places.]

On the North ſide of Hartſtreet (between Monkwell-ſtreet and Cripplegate) ſtand ſix Almſhouſes, erected by Mr. Robert Rogers of this Company, and good Maintenance allowed the Inhabiters for ever. The overſight whereof is committed to the Leatherſellers.

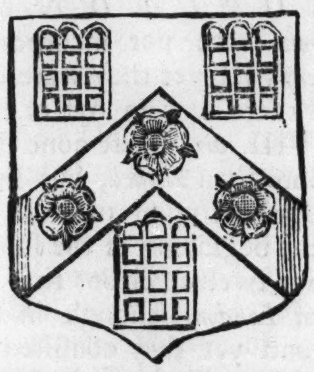
PEWTERERS.



THE PEWTERERS were a Company, or Meeting of friendly and neighbourly Men, in the Time of King Edward IV. And in the 13th Year of this King became incorporated, Jan. 20. And from this King they have been ſtill confirmed by all Princes ſince. The Roſes on the Chevron are born with Stalks, Leaves, and Buds, omitted here. J. S. The Supporters are two Sea-Horſes; the Creſt two Arms holding up a Pewter Diſh, or ſuch like Plate. Theſe granted by Robert Cooke, Clarencieux, and approved at a Viſitation of London, Anno 1634.

The Petition of the Company about caſting Bars of Tin.

This Company uſed to caſt into Bars ſuch Tin as was to be tranſported out of the Realm. Whereby the Poor of the Company were wont to have part of their Living. But after, thoſe Bars were made by Strangers beyond the Seas; whereby the Poor were greatly hindred. Which occaſioned the Company, in the Year 1594, to petition the Queen, that they might have ſome lawful Intereſt in the Trade thereof towards their Living and Maintenance, being two Thouſand People at the leaſt. This Petition the Queen committed to the Lord Treaſurer and the Lord Buckhurſt. Who moving ſo many Doubts and Difficulties, and inforcing them to give the ſaid Lords Satisfaction therein, three Years and more were ſpent in hearing and determining the ſame. As firſt, they examined, I. How the ſame might ſtand with the Good and Benefit of the Tinners of Cornwal and Devonſhire. For which purpoſe they called before them the Lord Warden of the Stannaries; requiring him to confer with ſome principal Tinners of thoſe Countries, and to certifie their Lordſhips of their Aſſent or Diſſent thereto. Which was done accordingly with good Allowance of their ſaid Petition, as a thing very beneficial to them: provided only, that it might be taken at their hands at a Price certain. Which was accordingly inſerted in the Grant of the Queen to them.

II. Afterwards, the Lords were deſirous to be further advertiſed, what Benefit or Prejudice might hereby accrue to the Merchant Tranſporters of the Commodity, or to any other uſing the Trade thereof. And ſo they wrote to the Lord Maior of London, to confer with ſuch Merchants, or other Traders therein, as he ſhould think fit. The Maior gave anſwer to theſe Lords, certifying that the Pewterers Petition was no ways prejudicial to any one of the ſaid Tranſporters or Traders for Tin.

III. Then the aboveſaid Lords were deſirous to know, whether the ſame might be hurtful to the the Queen's Coinage or Cuſtom, and conferred with ſome Officers of the Cuſtom-houſe: And were by them fully reſolved, that it would cauſe not only a Certainty, but an Encreaſe of her Cuſtoms, as well for Coinage as for Tranſportation.

IV. Then their Lordſhips objected, that this Grant to them, the Corporation of the Pewterers, might be injurious to the Generality of the Pewterers throughout the whole Realm. Of this they were fully ſatisfied by good Proof and Teſtimony made before them, that the caſting of Bars had not heretofore been uſed or practiſed by any Pewterers of England, but only by the Corporation of London.

V. Then their Lordſhips required farther Satiſfaction, whether the Wages or Allowance of one Halfpenny in the Pound, demanded for the melting and the caſting of the ſame Bars, were not too great a Sum. And they heard divers Proofs and Teſtimonies made touching the ſame; that the Charge of the melting and caſting of the ſame into Bars deducted, the Remain thereof was not found ſo great, but that their Lordſhips thought it a fit Relief towards the help of the ſaid Company. And that in former times more than an Halfpenny was uſed to be allowed by the Merchants.

Then their Lordſhips finding a general Exclamation and Diſcontentment againſt Patents of Privilege, thought fit to be adviſed by the Attorney General, whether this Patent might ſtand with the Laws and Statutes of the Realm, or not. Of which being reſolved, they committed to the ſaid Attorney the drawing of the Patent. And yet fearing leſt ſome Inconvenience might eſcape them, which Time and Experience might bring forth, they would not let it paſs without a ſpecial Proviſo for her Majeſty to revoke, or annihilate it at her Will and Pleaſure.

And ſo the Patent was engroſſed by the Attorney General by Order from the Queen: And being reviewed by their Lordſhips, and ſigned by them; and by them thought fit to paſs the Queen's Signature at her good Pleaſure. But ſhe, when it was offered her, thought fit to defer the ſigning thereof, till ſhe might receive ſome farther information therein, as well from the Lord Warden of the Stannaries, as from Mr. Carmarthen, and Mr. Middleton, who were very knowing Merchants in thoſe Times. From whom the Queen receiving Satisfaction, ſigned the ſame. And ſo it paſſed both the Signet and Privy Seal.

The Pewterers Patent endeavoured to be obtained by the Earl of Oxford for himſelf.

After all this Trouble, Coſt and Charges, ſuſtained in proſecuting this Suit four Years, the Earl of Oxford wrote to the Queen, to have the Benefit of the ſaid Patent granted to himſelf. And ſo would have undone the Pewterers, their Wives and Children. Whereupon the Company petitioned Sir Thomas Egerton in the Year 1598. and in the Month of April, then Lord Keeper; to be a Means to her Majeſty, that they might have their Patent to paſs the Great Seal according to her Majeſty's gracious Grant thereof unto them. All this Fatigue did theſe Pewterers go through for the Good of their Company.

The Value of Engliſh Pewter in former times.

The Fellowſhip of the Craft and Myſtery of Pewterers of London and elſewhere, was before Henry the Eighth's Reign, one of the beſt Handicrafts within the Realm; And grew and continued by means of ſundry good Acts and Statutes made for the Exerciſe of the ſame; as in the 19th of Hen. VII. and 4 Hen. VIII. And the Engliſh Pewter was had in much Eſtimation in ſtrange Regions and Countries, by a good mixing of Pewter, and forging of Pewter Veſſels. See the Act concerning Pewterers 25 Hen. VIII. Cap. 9.]

THEIR Arms, Creſt and Supporters were granted by Sir Gilbert Dethike, Garter, Robert Cook, Eſq; Clarencieux, and William Flower, Eſq; Norroy (by Patent under their Hands and Seals, June 2. 1569.]

The Barbers-Chirurgeons, being a Company of no mean Credit and Eſtate, became a Brotherhood and Fellowſhip, incorporated by the Charter of King Edward IV. afterwards by the Henrys, the Seventh and Eighth, Philip and Mary, and Queen Elizabeth. Laſt of all, they were again confirmed by King James, with other Additions alſo to their Charters. And all thoſe former Charters have been re-confirmed, with large Additions, by King Charles I.

J. S.

To rectifie and explain what is ſaid of theſe Barbers-Surgeons, let this that follows be added.

BARBERS.

Barbers, an ancient Company.

THE Barbers, long before they were united with the Chirurgeons, were an ancient Company of themſelves; being incorporated in the firſt Year of the Reign of King Edward IV. Febr. 24. at Weſtminſter. And their Company confirmed by King Henry VII. and King Henry VIII. by ſundry Letters Patents. Theſe Barbers anciently practiſed Surgery alſo.

Regiſt. Teſtament. Lond. E. A.

Thomas Colard, Citizen and Barber, by his Will dated Anno 1467, gave his Book of Fyſyk and Surgery, called Roſſe and Conſtantine, to the Hall of Barbers, to be laid into the Library.

Barbers, Regiſt. Lond.

Robert Scot, Citizen and Barber of London, by his Will dated Decemb. 1490, gave to the Fellowſhip of the Craft of Barbers, his Tenements in the Pariſh of St. Bartholomew the Leſs; and to their Succeſſors for ever.]

SURGEONS.

Surgeons, a Company not incorporated. J. S.

THE Surgeons were not incorporated till the Reign of Henry VIII. yet they were a Society long before. And there was an Act of Parliament for them 3 Hen. VIII. viz. That none ſhould practiſe Surgery, no more than Phyſick, but firſt to be examined and approved upon pain of 5 l. for every Month. In the beginning of the ſaid King Henry, there were but twelve Perſons that were Surgeons in the City of London (though in former times many more) and yet they conſiſted of a Warden and a Fellowſhip, called Of the Craft and Myſtery of Surgeons, infranchiſed in the City of London. In the 5th of Henry VIII. they had an Act made in their Favour, to be diſcharged of Queſts, Watch, or other Office; whereby they ſhould uſe or occupy any defenſible Armour, or Geer of War. And the Cauſe aſſigned of this was, becauſe time out or mind, as well in London as in other Cities and Boroughs of the Realm, they had been exempt and diſcharged from all ſuch Offices and Buſineſs; for their continual Service and Attendance, that they daily and nightly, at all Hours and Times, gave to the King's liege People. But they were not as yet incorporated.

BARBERS and SURGEONS.

IN the 32. of Henry VIII. there was an Act paſſed for the Barbers and Surgeons; importing, That Both incorporated 32 Hen. VIII. That whereas there were two diſtinct Companies of Surgeons, occupying the Science of Surgery; the one Company commonly called The Barbers of London, the others called The Surgeons of London; it being judged neceſſary that both Companies ſhould be united and made one Body Corporate, by the ſaid Act they were both united, and made one intire and whole Body Corporate, and one Commonalty perpetual, to be called by the name of Maſters or Governours of the Myſtery and Commonalty of Barbers and Surgeons of London, for evermore. By this Act thoſe of the Company that occupied Surgery were to be exempt from bearing of Armour, or from being put in any Watches or Inqueſts. And that they might take every Year four Perſons condemned and put to Death for Felony, for Anatomies, at their diſcretions and pleaſures. And that none of the Company that uſed Barbery and Shaving, ſhould occupy Surgery, letting of Blood, or any other thing belonging to Surgery, except only drawing of Teeth. Nor he that uſed the Myſtery of Surgery, ſhould exerciſe the Feat or Craft of Barbery or Shaving.

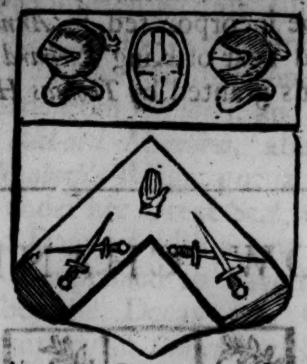
Complaint against the Surgeons. The Surgeons afterwards were complained of, as well for their Ignorance in their Craft, oftentimes hurting their Patients inſtead of doing them good; as alſo for taking great Sums of Money, and doing little therefore. And that it was well known, that the Surgeons admitted, would do no Cure to any Perſon, but where they knew to be rewarded with a greater Sum than the Cure extended to. For many rotted and periſhed to Death for lack of help of Surgery, and daily died. And that they troubled others well diſpoſed, that miniſtred help for God's ſake to poor People that had ſore Breaſts, Pin and Web in the Eye, Scalding, Burning, ſore Mouth, the Stone and Strangury, Saucelim and Morphew. In Conſideration whereof, and for the Comfort and Relief of the King's poor Subjects, it was ordained, in the 34th and 35th of Hen. VIII. That it ſhould be lawful to every Perſon, having Knowlege and Experience in the Nature of Herbs, Roots and Waters, or of the Operation of the ſame, to practiſe and miniſter to any outward Sore, uncome Wound, Apoſtemations, outward Swelling, or Diſeaſe, any Herbs, Ointments, Bath, Pultes and Emplaiſters, according to their Cunning and Experience.]

Leyborne. This Company (beſides divers Priviledges of ſeveral kinds by their Charter granted unto them) have Power at any time to command the Body of any Malefactor executed at Tyburn, (except a Traitor's) to anatomize the ſame: which they commonly do, and exerciſe their Skill thereupon in private at their Hall. And commonly once in every Year (and that in the Time of Lent) they command ſuch a Body. Which being brought from the Place of Execution to their Hall, is cleanſed, and laid out upon a Table, in their publick Theatre built for that purpoſe; where the next Day, a learned Doctor of Phyſick, meets the chief Members of the Company. And the Doctor ſitting in a Chair againſt the Body, and the reſt ſitting on a Bench about it, reads a Lecture about ſome Part or Member; and two of the Company (called at time Maſters of the Body) ſtanding by the Table upon which the Body lies, having all neceſſary Inſtruments to put in Practice what the Doctor reads and dictates; the Galleries above being filled with young Students in Phyſick and Chirurgery, to hear and ſee the Method and Manner thereof, for the Increaſe of their Knowledge. Theſe Lectures do commonly laſt three Days: And then they bury the mangled Body, in a Place in the Pariſh Church-Yard. But ſometimes they make a Skeleton of the Body, or otherwiſe; and many Pieces of Art of that kind are preſerved, and ſtand erected about their Theatre.]

ARMOURERS.



THE Society or Company of the ARMOURERS have been a Brotherhood of ancient continuance, and became incorporated in the beginning of the Reign of King Henry VI. the King being pleaſed to ſtile himſelf a Brother of their Society.

The Arms and Creſt of the Brothers and Siſters of the Fraternity or Guild of St. George, of the Myſtery of the Armourers of the City of London, (as they were termed in their Charter) were anciently born by the ſaid Corporation. But afterwards declared and confirmed to them by Thomas Hawley, Clarencieux, by Patent under the Seal of his Arms and Office, 3 & 4 Phil. and Mary, 1556. And confirmed in a Viſitation, 1634. J. S.

Mrs. Jone Doxie, Widow, gave to this Company of Armourers, for the Relief of four poor Widows, for ever yearly, 5 l. to each; and deſired to have it called the poor Widows Mite.]

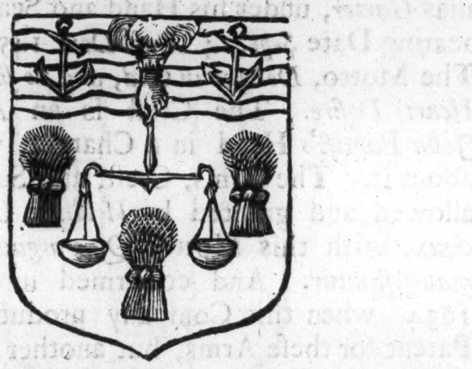
WHITE-BAKERS.



THE Company of WHITE-BAKERS are of great Antiquity, as appeareth by their Records, and divers other things of Antiquity, extant in their Common Hall. They were a Company of this City in the firſt Year of Edward II. and had a new Charter granted unto them in the firſt Year of Henry VII. the which Charter was confirmed unto them by Henry VIII. Edward VI. Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, and King James I.

Their Arms were anciently born: the Creſt and Supporters were granted to them by Robert Cook, Clarencieux, the Letters Patents bearing date Nov. 8. 32 Eliz. 1590. The Cloud on the Chief thro' which the Hand holding the Scales cometh, hath a Glory, omitted in the Edition printed 1633. and on each ſide of the Hand are two Anchors, here alſo omitted; a, by the Viſitation Book Anno 1634, appears. *J. WAXCHANDLERS.

THE Company of WAX CHANDLERS having been a Brotherhood of very ancient ſtanding, and much uſed in the Times of Superſtition, became yet to be incorporated in Anno 1484. it being the ſecond Year of King Richard III.

[Their Arms granted by Thomas Holland, Clarencieux.]

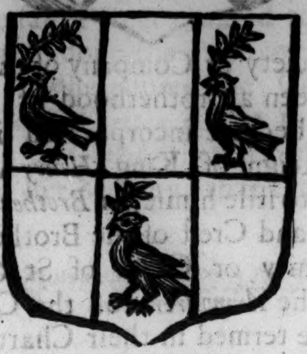
TALLOW CHANDLERS.



THE Company of the TALLOW CHANDLERS, were a Society of great Antiquity, living in good formality among Men, and loving agreement with themſelves: they became to be incorporated in the ſecond Year of King Edward IV. and from him ſucceſſively to King James I.

J. S.

The Arms and Creſt given to John Prior, John Thirloe, William Blakeman, and Richard Greencroft, Wardens, and to other notable Men of the Fellowſhip and Occupation of Tallow Chandlers of London, Freemen, and to their Succeſſors for ever (having no Arms before) by John Smart, alias Garter, under his Hand and Seal of his Office, bearing Date Sept. 24. Anno Dom. 1456. 35 Hen. VI. The Motto, Delight in God, and he ſhall give thee thy Hearts Deſire. The Creſt is an Angel holding John Baptiſt's Head in a Charger, with a Glory about it. The Arms, Creſt, and Supporters were allowed and granted by William Camden, Clarencieux, with this Motto, Quæ arguuntur, à Lumine manifeſtantur. And confirmed in the Viſitation, 1634. when this Company produced an ancient Patent for theſe Arms, but another Creſt, granted to them by John Smart aforeſaid.

The Tallow Chandlers ſearch Oils.

This Company of Tallow Chandlers in former Times dealt not only in Candles, but in Oil, Vinegar, Butter, Hops, Sope, &c. They were in the 3d of Hen. VIII. appointed to ſearch Oils; and had a Power to deſtroy ſuch as were mingled and corrupt. Which was by them executed for a time; and much Oil thereby deſtroyed, that might have been employed to good Uſe. But for that no Fee was granted for the Execution, it was neglected.

They petition the Queen for redreſſing Deceits in the Trade.

In Queen Elizabeth's Reign, about the Year 1576, and before, Abuſes and Deceits were daily uſed and increaſed in this Trade. Concerning which the chief of the Company had divers Conferences in their Common Hall: And about the ſaid Year 1576, they agreed that Roger Tyler, one of the Wardens, and in good Credit among them, as well for his honeſt Dealing, as for his Skill in this his Trade, ſhould ſue in Name of the whole Company, to her Majeſty for a new Grant, to ſearch and deſtroy corrupt Wares, &c. And hereupon they petitioned the Queen, that whereas much counterfeit Vinegar was made of corrupt Beer and Ale, and the ſame coloured and mingled with unwholſome Dredges, as well within the Liberty of London, as alſo in St. Katharine's, Whitechappel, Shoreditch, St. John's, Clerkenwel, and other ſuch like Places, the ſame being corrupt were unmeet to be uſed; and yet the ſame was ſold into the City for good and perfect: the People thereby deceived, beſides the fear of great Infection to be bred therewith: And alſo Firkins of Salt Butter, mingled and packed up with old muſty Butter in divers parts of the Firkins: And the like Abuſe uſed in Oil and Hops: For Reformation whereof, the Maſter and Wardens of Tallow Chandlers of London, who did retail theſe things, and finding daily theſe Deceits, were moved in Conſcience to procure Redreſs: Did moſt humbly beſeech the Queen's Majeſty to grant them Authority to have the peruſing of theſe things, with the Aſſiſtance of the Lord Maior and the Head Officers, for the reforming of theſe Deceits, and for the ſeeing theſe things to be good and perfect from henceforth.

Deceits uſed in Vinegar, Oil, Butter, and Hops.

The Dredges uſed for colouring Vinegar were Elder-berries, Privet-berries, Torne-ſole, and ſuch other like Dredges. The muſty and moldy Butter was packed in the heart of the Veſſels of Butter. The Sallet Oils were mingled with Lisbon Oil. The old and muſty Hops were packed in the heart of the Sacks of Hops, and great Quantity of red Sand mingled with the ſame, to make them weigh more. Which mingling was done in Flanders.

The Queen's Patents to them.

The Queen's Letters Patents to this Company bore Date at Weſtminſter the 15th of April, in the 19th Year of her Reign: Naming, appointing and authorizing the Maſter, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art and Myſtery of Tallow Chandlers of London, and their Succeſſors and Deputies, to be Searchers, Examiners, Viewers and Triers of all Sope, Vinegar, Butter, Hops and Oils. And this Office of ſearching the Premiſſes was granted within London, Southwark, St. Katharine's, Whitechappel, Shoreditch, Weſtminſter, St. John's, Clerkenwel, and St. Giles in the Fields. And Prohibition was given that no Man ſhould put to Sale any of the Premiſſes before they were ſearched, upon pain of Forfeiture: the one Moiety of the Forfeitures to the Queen, and the other to the Searchers. And for the Payment of the Searchers there was an Impoſition upon every Barrel of good Sope, 2 d. and ſo proportionably; upon a Tun of Vinegar, 8 d. upon a Barrel of Butter, 2 d. upon a Tun of Sevil Oil, 8 d. upon a Sack of Hops, 8 d. and ſo upon leſs Quantities proportionably: with a Clauſe of Revocation of theſe Letters Patents for Miſuſer.

The Lord Maior oppoſeth this Patent.

But the Lord Maior and Court of Aldermen, October .... 1583, reſiſted the Execution of this Patent, and made a Declaration, why it ought to be ſtayed, and utterly void; and that by common Law, and alſo by Act of Parliament, viz. the Statute of 12 Edw. IV. cap. 8. “Item, whereas “the Governours, that is, the Maiors, Bailiffs, “and other like Governours of every City, Burgh, “and Town of Subſtance within this Realm, &c. By vertue of which Law the Lord Maior's learned Counſel urged, that of common Right, and by the Laws of the Realm, the ſurveying of all Victuals, and the Correction and Puniſhment of the Offenders and Breakers of the Aſſize of the ſame, are to be preſented, and amerced in the Law-Days, Leets, and Views of Frank-Pledge. And that the Lords of the ſaid Courts are inheritable to the ſame Amerciaments. But by this Charter made to the Tallow Chandlers, they are to be diſinherited for ever. And in all the Places mentioned in the Patent, where the Tallow Chandlers have their Power of ſearching, the Lords of the Liberty have Leets or Law Days. To whom by reaſon of the ſame Liberty, the Scrutiny and Search of the Premiſſes do juſtly and of Right pertain. In Southwark, the Lord Maior and Commons have a Leet, or Law-Day. In Weſtminſter, the Dean and Chapter. In St. Katharines, the Maſter and Confreres. In White Chappel, the Lord Wentworth. In Shoreditch, the Dean and Chapter of Paul's. In Clerkenwel, the Queen. In St. Giles in the Fields, and in High Holbourn, the Lord Mountjoy. So that there was no Place left, where the TallowChandlers might exerciſe the ſaid Office of

By Cuſtom and Uſage all Myſteries to be ſearched by the Maior and City.

Search, but where other Men were juſtly inheritable in the ſame.

Another Argument againſt this Patent was, That the Maior and Aldermen of the City, and all other the chief Governours thereof, and their Predeceſſors always, time out of mind had, and uſed to have, the View, Search and Correction of all Myſteries and Crafts within the City, for and concerning all manner of Deceits and Defaults in all things touching their Myſteries. Which was to be proved as well by the daily Uſage, as alſo by a great number of Records and Precedents of the ſaid City. And beſides the general Uſage and Cuſtom, there were ſpecial Grants and Charters made to the City touching theſe things in queſtion; as Butter, Hops, Vinegar, &c. Theſe were the Arguments and Pleadings of Fleetwood Recorder, Thomas Wykes and William Daniel, all learned Lawyers.

Other Arguments againſt the Tallow-Chandlers Patent.

They urged alſo, that the Impoſition contained in the ſaid Letters Patents was againſt the Common Law, and the Liberty of every Subject in his Goods; and againſt the free Traffick of the City of London, granted by Charter, in the 50th of Hen. III. That there was no need of this Patent, for the Tallow Chandlers ſearching theſe Commodities; becauſe the Lord Maior was bound by his Oath taken in the Exchequer, to perform the ſaid Search. The Words of the Oath are theſe; Good Aſſize yee ſhall ſet upon Bread, Wine, Ale, Fiſh, Fleſh, Corn, and all other Victuals. Weights and Meaſures in the ſaid City yee ſhall do to be kept; and due Execution do upon the Defaults that thereof ſhall be found, according to all the Statutes thereof made, not repealed. Theſe things I find concerning the Tallow Chandlers Company.

The Tallow Chandlers refuſe to ſell their Candles.

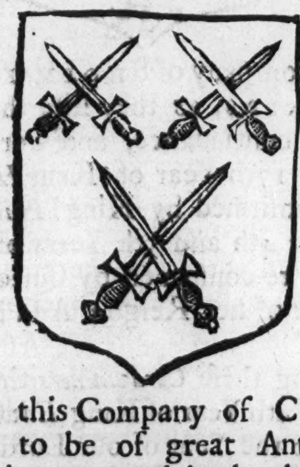
To which I add one thing more, happening in the Reign of King Edward VI. Anno 1551. The Tallow Chandlers of London, upon ſome Diſguſt, perhaps upon the City's ſetting too low a Price upon their Commodities, refuſed to ſell any, by an univerſal Conſent. Which came ſo far, that Orders were taken by the King and Council, commanding them to ſell their Candles: and ſome of them were ſent to Priſon.]

CUTLERS.



CONcerning this Company of CUTLERS, I find them to be of great Antiquity, and that they were incorporated in the beginning of the Reign of King Henry V. and afterward confirmed by King Henry VI. King Henry VIII. King Philip and Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth. And King James, in his 5th Year, the 8th Day of February, fully confirmed all.

[The Arms of the Cutlers of London were granted by Thomas Holme Clarencieux King of Arms, the 16th of King Edw. IV. the Creſt by Robert Cook, Clarencieux, which is an Elephant bearing a Caſtle.]

Knives. J. S.

Knives for hundreds of Years (paſt all Memory were made in this Kingdom, but coarſe and uncomely. But in King James the Firſt his time, the beſt and fineſt Knives in the World were made in London. Richard Matthew at Fleetbridge was the firſt Engliſhman that attained to the Skill of making fine Knives, and Knive-hafts; and 5 Elizabeth he obtained a Prohibition againſt all Strangers and others, from bringing any Knives into England from beyond Seas: which until that time were brought in by Ship loads from Flanders, and other Places.

A Patent for making Knives and Daggers.

The ſame Richard Matthew, about the middle of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, got a Privilege from her Majeſty under her Great Seal, for the making of Knives and Daggers with a new kind of Hafts. But this was complained to have been, and further would be, the Decay and Overthrow of the whole Company of Cutlers within the City, beſides their Wives, Children and Apprentices; and the Prices of Knives and Daggers exceſſively enhaunced, prejudicial to the Queen's Subjects.

Mrs. Crawthornes Gift to this Company.

In the Hall of this Company, ſituate in Cloaklane, is an ancient Picture of one Mrs. Crawthorne: Who gave the Bell-Savage on Ludgate hill to the Cutlers with truſt, out of the Rents thereof to perform ſeveral charitable Acts yearly: as two Exhibitions for Scholars in Cambridge, Coals for the Poor of the Pariſhes of St. Brides and St. Sepulchres, and certain Payments to the Priſons and to St. Thomas's Hoſpital.

Vid. Vintry Ward. Cutlers Hall.

Theſe Cutlers formerly were three Companies, according to three different Arts or Trades, viz. Bladers, who were Smiths that forged Blades: Haftmakers, ſuch as made the Hafts for the Blades: and Sheathmakers, that made Sheaths for Swords, Daggers and Knives. Afterwards all, 4 Hen. VI. incorporated into one Fraternity, by the Name of Cutlers.]

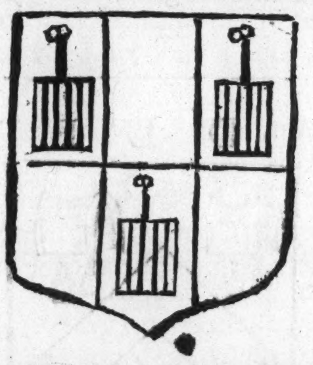
GIRDLERS.



I Find the Company of the GIRDLERS not to be much behind-hand (with others) for Eminency and Antiquity, becauſe they have held good correſpondency with the World and with themſelves: They became to be incorporated the ſixth Day of Auguſt, in the ſeven and twentieth Year of the Reign of King Henry the ſixth.

They ſeem to have been a Fraternity of St. Laurence, becauſe of the three Gridirons their Arms.

BUTCHERS.

THE BUTCHERS were incorporated by King James I. under his Letters Patents, bearing Date the ſixteenth Day of September, in the third Year of his Reign of England, and of Scotland the nine and twentieth. They were incorporated by the Name of Maſter, Wardens and Commonalty of the Art or Myſtery of Butchers of the City of London, the Fraternity being very ancient.

Butchers loſe their Freedom, and why. Lib. Horn. J. S.

Thomas le Bedel, Robert le Bedel, Alan Underwode, Edmund May, Butchers, came before John le Blund, Maior of London, John de Wengrave, William de Leyre, Richer de Reſham, Adam de Fulham, &c. Aldermen. And it was found by their Recognizance, that they held Land de Villinagio of the Biſhop of London, in Stebenhethe: and they remain out of the Freedom of the City of London. Therefore it follows, that they loſe the Freedom of the City. [Yet Bracton ſaith, Villenagium vel Servitium nihil detrahit Libertatis, habita tamen diſtinctione, utrum tales ſint Villani. And the Law Interpreter writes, that Tenure in Villenage could make no Man Villain, until it were continued Time out of Mind.]

The noiſome Scents by Butchers a Cauſe of Infection.

Upon occaſion of the Plague in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, continuing in the City for a long time (whether it were that in the Year 1563, or ſome Plague afterwards happening, I cannot tell) an Ingenious Italian Gentleman, and Phyſician, as it ſeems, aſſigned one great Cauſe of it to be, the killing of Cattel within the City. Blood and Garbage lying ſo long in the Shops, and in ſome other Corners before it was removed, gave a moſt unſavory ſmell. And this chiefly in Eaſtcheape, and St. Nicolas Fleſh Shambles, Places of great Thoroughfare. And carried away by Night thorow the Streets unto the River, ſpread as it paſſed a very offenſive Scent, leaving it behind. Therefore he propounded, that the Queen ſhould build in ſome convenient Place in the Suburbs of this, and other Cities, Slaughter-Houſes, where the Butchers ſhould kill their Beaſts; and the Queen to be allowed for every Beaſt, killed in her Slaughter-Houſe. Specially there being an Act of Parliament in the Reign of Henry VII. for this Purpoſe.]
